There is general training for farm workers, production of fruit and nuts, vegetable gardening and pretty nearly everything that one has to know how to do around a farm.

These courses are conducted through the cooperation of the public schools and are responsible to the state board for vocational education.

William T. Spanton, chief of the division for vocational agriculture, says he believes that on a dollar-for-dollar basis, no appropriations made by congress to stimulate increased food production have contributed more to this end than has been true of the appropriations already made to the U. S. Office of Education for these specific vocational training programs.

"Practically all of our 8,000 local departments of vocational agriculture, scattered widely throughout the entire country," says Mr. Spanton, "have available on the local school ground a well-equipped farm shop building where courses in farm machinery repair are given to farm boys and where, at the same time, their much-needed farm machinery and equipment can be and is being actually overhauled and repaired."

The Military Aspects

The military aspects are a very different matter. The great strength of German strategy built on "inferior line" has been turned to a weakness. A nation on the offensive can strike overpowering blows at any point it chooses along the perimeter of the territory it controls has a great advantage.

Its lines are short, they are protected, they move from the center outward like the spokes of a circle. The opposing power must follow by the circumference—without the supply lines from the Allies to Russia which have to sweep around

BRIEFS... by Baukhage

Of the 20,000 Australian civilians now employed by the U. S. army in the Southwest Pacific, about 30 per cent are as reported by a Melbourne broadcast to the U. S.

The rice produced in China's Japanese-occupied Kiangsu and Chekiang districts can be bought only by the Japanese at a fixed price, to be sent to Japan for military use.

The Tokyo government has organized home guard corps in 13 key centers of Japan in preparation for Allied air raids.

British and American airmen have been dropping copies of a Dutch-language weekly newspaper named "De Pers" in occupied Holland since last May. It was disclosed in London recently.

ON THE HOME FRONT

With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HERE is a cookie jar that may be made at home from odds and ends of wood stenciled with gay peasant figures and quaint lettering. But that is not all. This jar or box sits on an old fashioned brightly painted corner shelf which may be cut out of thin wood and put together quickly with glue and brads.

Even if you do not have a jig saw or a coping saw to cut out the graceful curves of the shelf pieces, you may mark the design on a piece of plywood or other thin wood and have it cut at your nearest woodworking shop. As for the cookie box, it is all straight cuts.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared an actual size pattern for this corner shelf and cookie box; also a stencil pattern with complete color guide for the lettering and peasant figures; all on one large sheet which will be mailed for 15 cents which includes cost and postage. Ask for Pattern 306 and write direct to:

A bill to establish wartime prohibition of alcoholic beverages has been laid aside by the house judiciary subcommittee, which has postponed a hearing indefinitely. It was the belief in congressional circles that the bill will not be considered until after the November elections, during a presidential campaign.

Chairman Hobbs, (Dem., Ala.) commented, "All I can say is that there won't be any hearings at any time soon."

TEMPTING FATE

Once Too Often Costs You Plenty.

Many car owners know their front wheels are out of balance—know that they should be balanced for safety sake. They know that at high speeds this out of balance multiplies hundreds of times and fights against the driving control and then leaves the road.

Unbalanced wheels hammer at the front and rear ends and set up trouble of the steering wheel which makes seasons driving.

Unbalanced wheels are caused by changing tire—wear of tread—addition of patches—improper mounting of tire—loss of balance weights. Your wheels should be checked regularly.

Save money—be safe—have a pleasant driving car by coming into our studio and having your wheels checked and balanced at once. The service is speedy and the cost is low.

THINGS TO CHECK

--before calling a refrigerator serviceman

Sometimes a service call can be avoided if a few simple checks are made first. With servicemen extra busy these days, each owner can be of extreme help, under present wartime conditions, by avoiding unnecessary calls which use up precious time, tires and gasoline. If trouble develops, check these things:

IF REFRIGERATOR UNIT DOES NOT RUN:

- 1 Check to see if plug is making contact in wall outlet.
- 2 If plug is in outlet, check outlet with light cord and bulb to see if current is on.
- 3 If current is not on at outlet, check for blown fuse in house-fuse panel or block.

IF MECHANISM RUNS TOO MUCH:

- 1 Make sure door seal is tight.
- 2 Clean the condenser.
- 3 Temperature control may be set for too cold a temperature.

IF MECHANISM RUNS...but there is little or no refrigeration:

- 1 Stop mechanism by turning off switch or removing wall plug.
- 2 Allow all frost to be melted off cooling unit.
- 3 Start once more and see if cooling unit gets cold.

IF IT TAKES TOO LONG TO MAKE ICE:

- 1 Check temperature control. It may be set on warm position.
- 2 If in wintertime and refrigerator is in cold location, it may not operate long enough to make ice.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Guess we're pretty lucky in our town, Judge, that we don't have the youth problem you read about in other places."
"Don't know as you can call it lucky, Harold...we saw it coming with the war and we did something about it before it hit us. We gave our 'teen age youngsters the recreational facilities they needed and really wanted. Those familiar with this wartime problem know that young folks go to places they shouldn't only when the proper places are not provided for them. Young people always want to be with others of their own age...want their own type of entertainment. Town after town has found out that once these simple wants are met, the problem is well on its way to being licked."

"Guess I didn't really know how far-sighted our town really is, Judge. If we hadn't looked ahead we wouldn't have had anybody or anything to blame but ourselves, would we?"

COOKED A FINE DINNER; THEN THREW IT TO DOG

One lady recently stated that she used to throw her own dinner to the dog most of the time. It made her sick just to look at anything to eat. She was swollen with gas, full of bloated, had headaches, felt worn out and was badly constipated. Finally she got ERB-HELP and says she now eats everything in sight and digests it perfectly. Bowels are regular and normal. She is enjoying life once more and feels like "some other woman" since taking this New Compound.

...between Neighbor Nations

After Victory the South will be in a strategic position to benefit by expanding foreign trade with our good neighbor nations... first, because of the variety and increased volume of southern manufactured goods... second, because port facilities along our Gulf Coast are among the best.

The L&N is a vital transportation link between America's farms and factories and our southern ports. Accelerated by war demands, export and import traffic handled by "The Old Reliable" has more than doubled since 1939, reaching a total tonnage of over a million net tons in 1943... the equivalent of a mountain of food and war materials one-half mile in circumference and four hundred feet high!

That the L&N is handling this record wartime volume satisfactorily is typical of the dependable service this railroad has rendered to the South over the past 94 years.

Granted fair tax laws and equal rights with other forms of transportation, the L&N will continue to aid southern progress and improve foreign trade... to distribute millions of dollars each year in wages, taxes and purchases from other southern businesses... to champion a Greater Industrial South through true American Free Enterprise!

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

THEODORE PRATT

W.N.U. RELEASE

CHAPTER I

It never in the world ever occurred to Mr. Winkle that he would be drafted and sent off to the war. War was for young men, not for a settled married man of forty-four.

There was talk of the Army not wanting the older men, but nothing had yet been done about this. The thing being done was what Mr. Winkle received in this morning's mail. When he reached in the mailbox and took out the communication from his draft board, his hands trembled a little. Peering through his metal-rimmed glasses, he read that he was classified I.A.

He knew what that meant. After ten days' time, he was subject for induction into the United States Army.

He stood there on the front steps of his house, a small man engulfed by a tremendous event that toppled over his world and sent it bowling off into space like a cannon ball. He thought:

Not he, who had been married for twenty years. Not he, a former careful accountant who was now the conservative proprietor of a modest general repair shop located in the alley back of his house. Not he, with his overly active and morbid imagination. Not he, who was no man of action, but was afraid to death of guns or violence of any sort.

Not he, with his stored-up memory of how, as a boy with his .22

rifle, he had shot a squirrel. The tiny animal fell from the high branch where he aimed at it, landing with a thud on the hard ground. When he held the warm, fuzzy body in his hand, he was sick at heart at what he had done. In later life, when he stepped on an ant, or squashed a spider, or even swatted a fly, Mr. Winkle felt squeamish at taking life.

Upon being called by his draft board last week for physical examination, Mr. Winkle had thought that the strange doctor appreciated his dyspepsia, his nearsightedness, his caved-in chest, his good beginning on a paunch (even though otherwise he was skinny enough to be underweight), his jumped-up pulse at the slightest exertion, and his general make-up of no great muscularity.

Never before had Mr. Winkle known himself to be such a physical wreck.

The doctor pursed his lips at the visual evidences of this close approach to the grave. He frowned in such a manner as to give Mr. Winkle reason for counting on the slightest exertion, and his general make-up of no great muscularity.

that deep down, in spite of her sharp words and orders, she loved him and he loved her. Beyond his speculation on how she would receive the news, he had a reluctance about telling her.

Yet he didn't see what else he could do. With a sigh, he went into the house.

Mrs. Winkle was already behind her half of the newspaper in the breakfast nook, which was all the dining room their small house possessed. Mr. Winkle, in his mind, could look right through the paper and see her, a well-filled-out lady of exactly his own age. To a person seeing her for the first time, she appeared dainty in spite of her plumpness, quiet feminine, and of an eminently good nature. She was a shock, upon second glance, to notice the way her lips pressed themselves together and the perpetual frown that creased the other- over his world and sent it bowling off into space like a cannon ball.

Blue eyes.

Any paid no attention as Mr. Winkle carefully stepped over Penelope, the third member of the family.

Their sad-eyed spaniel was settled on the floor with her black muzzle resting on her paws. At eight, Penelope in her dog world was approximately Mr. Winkle's contemporary age in the human world. She was as amiable and mild as Mrs. Winkle herself. Never having been allowed a husband, she had rather droopy disposition. Now, in her middle age, she had given up hope and no longer pretended to any interest at the sight of a male, but simply sniffed listlessly or ignored the meeting altogether.

Penelope, Mr. Winkle thought, was no more prepared for the large, adventurous and dangerous things of life, such as war, than she was. He sat heavily in his place in the breakfast nook. From behind her paper, Mrs. Winkle demanded, "Anything for me?"

"No-o," answered Mr. Winkle.

At his drawing out of the word, Mrs. Winkle put her paper aside and looked at her husband. She didn't see what he had received, for he held it below the table. But from the look of Mr. Winkle's complexion and the tone of his voice, she knew at once.

Mrs. Winkle was the first to speak again. Her frown deepened and her lips were tight when she stated disapprovingly, "Wilbert, your notice has come."

Silently, Mr. Winkle handed over the notice to her.

Mrs. Winkle took it in a single glance. Her face went white. Her frown disappeared and her mouth softened. She looked bewildered, as if props had been knocked out from under her and she had no solid ground to stand on. She said breathlessly, as if caught off guard, "You're going to war."

Mr. Winkle cleared his throat so as to be sure he could control his own voice, trying it out this way without first chanting how it might sound. "It means," he explained, "I'm just being passed on to the Army doctors."

"You're going to war," Mrs. Winkle repeated in a whisper. Now she looked actually frightened, amazed, and hurt.

It had been years since Mr. Winkle had seen such expressions on his wife's face. They affected him deeply. He began, "Now, Amy—"

"You'll be killed!" Mrs. Winkle wailed.

"To this excitement, and perhaps at the new, strange tone in Mrs. Winkle's voice, Penelope began to howl.

Mr. Winkle had counted on no such behavior on the part of his wife. He had become so accustomed to her staid ways that he hadn't pictured them being punctured so abruptly.

He realized what a blow it was to her. She was threatened with not having him around to order about.

To have him removed from her and sent off to war destroyed her defenses and left her bewildered and alone. It was this that she reflected that it was taking the greatest war in history to accomplish this.

From the look on her face, Mr. Winkle almost expected Amy to begin weeping. But she didn't. She just sat there staring at him, her eyes bright and wide and dry, and he sat staring at her. They regarded each other awesomely while Penelope continued to howl.

Penelope was interrupted by the shrill ringing of the telephone. Mr. Winkle made a movement to go into the living room to answer it, but Mrs. Winkle, with a rather wild look on her face, started before he did. She appeared to want to do something definite.

Sitting in the breakfast nook, Mr. Winkle heard her voice.

"Why, yes, I suppose so," she faltered. "Just a minute."

Any hesitancy didn't sound like Amy at all. Rather, it sounded like the Amy of years ago, when Mr. Winkle married her.

Her voice came again, calling in to him, "It's the newspaper—they want to come out and interview you."

Alarmed at this, and at Amy asking his advice about something in- stead of deciding it herself, Mr. Winkle asked, "Me? Now? Here?"

Mrs. Winkle gave an affirmative answer to each of these questions, her words sounding like strangled chirps.

Mr. Winkle thought, desperately. Suddenly, he wanted to lash out at something. "Certainly not," he said. "I can't wait around here. I've got to get to the shop. And I don't tell them I don't want to be interviewed."

Mrs. Winkle passed on his views over the telephone. They didn't seem to make much impression, for Mrs. Winkle, after listening to what was said in reply, kept agreeing doubtfully, "Yes . . . yes, but—oh, I can see that's probably right."

She hung up and came back. She appeared to be slightly dazed.

"They said," she told Mr. Winkle, "that you're already something of a celebrity—from being the first married man in the older men's classification to be drafted—and that it's your patriotic duty to set a good example. They're coming out here to take pictures of us both."

"I won't do it," he said. "And you shouldn't."

"But, Wilbert," Mrs. Winkle protested, "it won't look right if we don't."

"I don't care how it looks. Where's my hat?" He was emboldened to be peremptory. "Where's my lunch box?"

He saw them both where they were kept ready for his departure to business. He snatched them up almost savagely, and clamped them on his head. He hadn't felt so aroused for many years. He didn't quite know what to make of the way

It wasn't until he had gone some way that it occurred to him he had forgotten to kiss his wife good-by.

He felt, for there was fear mixed in his too, with his unaccounted-for anger. Mainly, there was the sense of being unmoored by an unsure Amy.

He turned, and marched to the front door. Mrs. Winkle followed him. "Wilbert," she said weakly, "you have to, and you know it."

By the time he reached the steps outside, Mr. Winkle had somewhat calmed. His small storm was nearly over. He blinked, "I suppose," he admitted, "I'll have to do a lot of things I don't feel like doing."

Abruptly, he strode away, down the walk, and then along the street. It wasn't until he had gone some way that it occurred to him he had forgotten to kiss his wife good-by.

It was the first time he had neglected of the duties of their married life. Ordinarily, he would have been called back and given instructions. But there was no sound from Amy.

Guiltily, he glanced once behind, to see her still standing on the steps, her hand at her throat, watching him depart. Penelope was at her feet, staring after him mournfully.

It may seem curious that, though Mr. Winkle's place of business was located right in back of his house, he didn't go out through the rear door and across the fifty feet of yard to reach his shop.

To the Winkles this wasn't strange at all. There was quite a good reason for it.

It originated from Mr. Winkle's career as a public accountant having disappeared during the depression. Secretly, he was just as glad, for he had never cared much for dealing in long rows of someone else's figures. He greatly preferred tinkering with mechanical things, for which he had a decided flair and a delicate touch.

PAUL IN EPHESUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:10; Ephesians 2:1-10; 3:14-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—"We are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them."—Ephesians 2:10.

Not peace—but a sword! With such graphic words Jesus indicated that His coming into the world would set men apart, either for or against Him (see Matt. 10:34-42). The gospel is the good news of redemption for all mankind, but the attitude of men toward the gospel divides them sharply, into the saved and the lost. Which are you?

Our lesson, telling of Paul's ministry at Ephesus and giving part of his letter to the Ephesians, shows that the gospel does divide, but that it also gives quickening grace and strength for Christian living.

I. Dividing (Acts 19:10).
Paul had a long ministry at Ephesus and a very successful one, but at the same time it was a stormy, trying experience. After all, he did not those elements often go together?

Paul began in the synagogue. That was the proper way, and his custom. He ran into opposition, and after three months he had to seek another place to meet the people. But notice, he did not give up and leave town.

The teaching of any truth results in division, and especially is that true of the gospel. It was found before long (vv. 23-41) that winning people to Christ interfered with the heathen business interests, and then things began to stir.

One wonders why modern business set for the destruction of men's souls by rotten plays, movies, books, amusements, and by the saloon is so content to let the church alone. Is it because our testimony does not harvest, require 4½ yards of such material; 4½ yards of 38-inch material.

Christ is a divider of men. Yes, those who stand on the right side of that divide also receive the blessing of Christ.

II. Quickening (Eph. 2:1-10).
Dead men, spiritually, come to life when they meet Christ and believe on Him. We were all dead in trespasses and sins, entirely unable to help ourselves, when God in mercy and grace quickened us.

He did this for us, but also for His own glory. That really is the most adequate explanation of grace. It was and is for His glory, a showing forth (v. 7) of the exceeding riches of His grace, through all the ages to come.

Being saved, then, is not (as some describe it) a foolish thing of little import, that takes place in some mission or little crossroads Sunday school. It does happen there, thank God for that, but it reaches clear up to the highest heavens, and on to eternity. This business of bringing men and women, boys and girls to Christ is the greatest of all occupations. Let's be busy about it!

Be sure to note in verses 8-10 that it is all of grace. No works can enter into salvation. We are "his workmanship," not the result of a cooperative enterprise or creation.

But at the same time do not fail to stress that we are created "unto good works" (v. 10). The professed Christian who talks about being saved by grace, but who does not live it out in the good works which God has ordained as the proper expression of salvation by grace, should not be surprised if the testimony of his lips is not believed.

If we are quickened to newness of life in Christ, we ought to bring forth fruit. That is not possible in our own power. But wait, the gospel which divides and quickens is also—

III. Strengthening (Eph. 3:14-19).
Paul prayed for the Ephesians, but somehow one feels that he prayed for the Christians of all time, for every member of "the whole family in heaven and earth" (v. 15) who bear the name of Christ. The writer is rejoicing today that he belongs to that family, but he wonders how it is with you who read these lines. Do you belong?

Paul prayed in the Spirit, that is, in a comforting and encouraging thought, too, for Paul here is a Christian experience for his readers, which seems to be a possible of attainment, except for one thing. It is the power of God which is to bring it about. Prayer in the Spirit is prayer that God answers, always and fully.

So we read with confidence these magnificent, enriching petitions, and say: "O God, make me that kind of a Christian, a real Christian."

Observe that there is to be a strengthening of the inward man by the Holy Spirit. This is not something "put on" or acquired. It is God's gift.

Note also that it has a normal development, a growth in the knowledge of Christ because of an ability to "comprehend" (v. 18). Is not that our great need? We are unspeakably rich in Christ, but we do not seem to know enough to take out our inheritance.

For Afternoons
A BEAUTIFULLY gored and fitted frock with trim, narrow belt and flattering waist with simple V-neck to be made up in nice fabric. Use one of the small-flower, design sheer rayon crepes, an all-over print cotton, navy blue rayon crepe or a polka-dotted dimity.

Pattern No. 8646 is in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34, short length, requires 4½ yards of such material; 4½ yards of 38-inch material.

Baby Clothes
LOVELY for a tiny baby when the complete set is done in white rayon silk or fine handkerchief linen. The small coat and dress have identical yokes. For the older child, make the set with a pastel or beige or navy flannel.

He did this for us, but also for His own glory. That really is the most adequate explanation of grace. It was and is for His glory, a showing forth (v. 7) of the exceeding riches of His grace, through all the ages to come.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

After the war American synthetic plants should produce enough to meet our military requirements, perhaps 200,000 tons or more a year, and as much additional as can be justified through the free play of economic forces to meet their current civilian needs. This is the recommendation of John L. Calvery, president of The B. F. Goodrich Co.

At the beginning of the year our stockpile of natural rubber was less than one quarter of what it was of the time of Pearl Harbor. Unless plantations are reactivated from the Japs and immediately put into operation, our imports of crude are not expected to exceed 80,000 tons in 1944.

SAFTT Sergt. Joe Louis, heavy-weight champion of the world, made a couple of surprising revelations recently when he named an opponent team for Stars and Stripes, servicemen's publication.

First surprise came when he named Max Baer as the toughest opponent he ever met. Second was his choice of Jim Braddock as possessor of the most potent right hand.

In explaining his selection of Baer as the toughest opponent, Joe said: "I pitched more strikes against Baer than I did against a half dozen ordinary opponents. Any other man would have lasted less than half a round, just as Schmeling did in his second fight.

Most ring followers figured that Schmeling had the most dangerous right, for Max flattened Joe in 12 rounds in New York in 1936. But Louis merely remarked: "If Schmeling's right carried the explosiveness Braddock's did, I never would have been able to answer the bell after the fifth round. Max landed his Sunday punches for 12 rounds before he could put me away."

That One Wallop

"Braddock hit me once in the first round, and had he been able to follow up his advantage, this little boy might never have been the champion of the world."

It was on June 22, 1937, that Louis knocked out Jim Braddock in the eighth round in Chicago for the world title.

Billy Conn was named five times in the mythical line-up. Conn, who came exceedingly close to unseating Arturo Godoy was the most troublesome; Bob Pastor the fastest retreater, and Johnny Paycheck his poorest opponent.

Louis picked Conn as the smartest of all his opponents, the fastest, the possessor of the most dangerous left and the fighter with the best offense and defense.

In Joe's book, Lee Ramey was his most courageous opponent; Arturo Godoy was the most troublesome; Bob Pastor the fastest retreater, and Johnny Paycheck his poorest opponent.

He considers the hardest punch he ever took was a right landed by Al Delaney in a 1934 bout. Joe admitted it nearly cracked his jaw. On the reverse side, Louis claims the hardest punch he ever landed was the one that knocked out Pauline Uscudum in the fourth round in New York.

Smartest Fighter

More than one individual pointed out that Conn's smartness wasn't in evidence the night he almost removed Joe's crown. Boxing records show that Conn got ahead of Louis in that fight. He had piled up a comfortable lead in points. Those records also show that the Irishman became rocky and tried to slug it out with the champion.

But Louis wasn't thinking of Conn's intelligence or his I.Q. He was probably referring to his unquestioned ability to avoid punches and to move quickly, landing punches through the smallest openings in his opponent's defense.

Most smaller fighters are smarter (in that fashion) than their heavier contemporaries. They know more about all the angles of boxing than the big fellows.

SPORTS SHORTS

Five million Americans play softball.

Flying Ebony in 1935 was the only "field horse" to win the Kentucky Derby.

Clark Griffith once had a chance to buy Grover Cleveland Alexander for $700 but turned him down, considering him too wild.

WALTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JUNE 8, 1944

VOLUME 30—NO. 29

Details Arranged By Leaders For 5th
War Loan Drive

June 12 1944, our government—which means you and every other citizen—begins its Fifth War Loan drive. Our county's quota in this 16-billion-dollar drive is $600,000. We have faith that we shall meet this request and shall not be surprised if we exceeded it.

Day-by-day the war and its costs in "blood and tears," is being brought more vividly home to the people of our county. More and more frequently those fateful messages, beginning "The government regrets," are being delivered to our county homes, signifying that some man (who so recently was one of us) has given his full measure of blood, his loss wringing the full measure of tears from the loved ones left behind.

These messages and reports from the fronts are making us all more and more aware that the only possible way to stop the increasing flow of this bad news to our homes is to bring this war to a close as quickly as possible. There is no sudden way to end the war, but there is a way to hasten that end: to keep a ceaseless stream of supplies of every sort flowing to the battlefronts. The men fighting those supplies will do the rest, and do it effectively and speedily. THEY HAVE NEVER LET US DOWN.

Insofar as the invasion is concerned, not a person on the home bases has the least doubt but that every man destined to take part in this invasion will meet his assignment with courage and determination. We are confident in that assurance. To fortify those men with an equal assurance that we at home are backing them to our utmost, we must meet this 16-billion-dollar war loan. This is our assignment for this invasion period.

When we evaluate dollars along with what we expect our soldiers, our sailors and our marines to GIVE us, we feel a sense of shame that our government finds it necessary to emphasize that it is only asking us to loan—not give—this money; that such loans are really investments on which we shall receive good returns. What returns did we assume those marines who were moved down on Tarawa or the men due to be moved down on Europe's western coasts?

We could not, we can not assure them they will return home, but, by meeting this war loan, to keep the sinews of war flowing to them and giving them every aid possible—we do assure them that the folks at home are backing them with every dollar they can muster for the cause. All of us must buy more War Bonds than we have ever bought before.

The County Chairman, Precinct Chairmen and heads of Special Committee Groups held a meeting at the Court House in Burlington, Tuesday night of this and made plans to raise Boone County's quota of $600,000. You can help lighten the burden of these faithful Chairmen, who have so patriotically served through all the past drives, by volunteering your services to solicit subscriptions. Each precinct Chairman is expected to organize his precinct and begin soliciting June 12th.

Quite a little rivalry is being expressed among the Precinct Chairmen as to which precinct will report "over the top" first. Let's all do our best to raise the County quota as soon as possible.

INVASION PRAYER

The Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker
President, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America

ALMIGHTY MERCIFUL GOD, Father of all mankind, lover of every life, hear, we beseech Thee, the cry of Thy children in this dark hour of conflict and danger. Thou hast been the refuge and strength, in all generations, of those who put their trust in Thee. May it please Thee this day to draw to the hearts of those who struggle and endure to the uttermost. Have mercy on them and suffer not their faith in Thee to fail. Guide and protect them by Thy light and strength that they may be kept from evil. May Thy comfort be sufficient for all who suffer pain or who wait in the agony of uncertainty.

O righteous and omnipotent God, Who, in their tragedies and conflicts, judgest the hearts of men and the purposes of nations, enter into this struggle with Thy transforming power, that out of its anguish there may come a victory of righteousness. May there arise a new order on earth as it is in heaven. Forgive us as well as those who strive against us, that we may be fit instruments of Thy purposes.

Unto Thy most gracious keeping we commend our loved ones and ourselves, according unto Thee this praise and glory, through Jesus Christ, Our Lord. Amen.

Homemakers Clubs Ten Mile Baptist
In This District Church Dedicated To Meet June 15 Sunday, June 4th

How women can meet "Today's Challenge" will be discussed at the annual meeting of the North Blue Grass district of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers at the Christian Church in Winchester, June 15. Principal speakers at the program, which will open at 10 a. m., will be Mrs. Ralph Seacrest, Shelby county, president of the state federation; Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work; Miss Elsie Margaret Reed of the Royal Norwegian Information Service, and Miss Gertrude Diken, home economics consultant. Mrs. Graham Young, Bourbon county, district director, will preside.

Group singing will be led by Mrs. H. C. Robinson, Fayette county, and the invocation will be given by Mrs. J. T. Purdy, Bourbon county.

District committee chairman taking part in the discussion of the subject, "Today's Challenge," include Mrs. C. A. Lewis, Fayette county, citizenship; Miss Katherine Arnold, Mason county, reading; Mrs. Elmer Barker, Clark county, speakers bureau, and Mrs. H. V. Luker, Campbell county, publicity.

Other features of the program will be roll call by county; by Mrs. C. W. Davis, district secretary, Boyd county; announcements by Mrs. Frances Minick, home demonstration agent in Clark county, and special music by Mrs. J. W. Hall, Mrs. Robert Mason and Mrs. Harold McPherson, Scott county.

RABBIT HASH HOMEMAKERS

The May meeting of the Rabbit Hash Homemakers Club was held at the home of Mrs. May Stephens. The meeting was opened with the reading of the club collect. Seven members and two visitors, Mrs. Harry Acra and Mrs. Lou Pope were present.

Miss Gillispie gave some interesting ways of canning and storing fruit and vegetables. Plans for a Red Cross Home Nursing Course were made. Our next meeting will be held at the river bench at Mrs. Ethel Wilson's.

HYBRID SEED PLANTED
BY 95% OF THE FARMERS

Ninety per cent of Boone County's 1944 corn acreage will be grown from hybrid seed, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. One hundred thousand more bushels of corn are estimated to be produced as a result of use of adapted hybrid seed.

Local seed producers have been practically sold out of seed for several weeks. Farmers who must yet purchase their hybrid seed are advised to stick to Kentucky adapted hybrids, U. 8, 12 and Ky. 102 and 103 are the best yellow. Ky. 72 B, 201, and 203 of the white hybrids have out-yielded some of the yellows. The use of unadapted hybrid seeds cost several local farmers a large portion of their crops each year. Good open pollinated varieties are better than unadapted hybrids.

Ten Mile Baptist Church in Gallatin County that was destroyed by fire about two years ago has completed a new modern building consisting of auditorium, eight Sunday School rooms, a basement under the entire building; and a modern heating system has been installed to heat and cool the building. This church organization is almost a century and a half old. The members have already raised the money to play for the building. Dr. J. W. Black spoke at the dedication of the new building, June 4. Rev. Roy Johnson of Burlington Baptist Church will lead the congregation in revival meeting starting June 5.

Rev. Will Smith has been the pastor of this church for the past seven years.

Plans Completed
For Recreation
Activity Sunday

Plans are being completed for the recreation project at the Christian Church next Sunday afternoon and every Sunday afternoon.

The young people, ages 12 to 24 will meet at the church and those under 12 will have the use of the lawn at the home of Mrs. Mildred Rice directly across from the church.

Various activities are planned for both groups and it is hoped that all who are interested will send their children.

The Willing Workers Class is sponsoring the project and among those who have agreed to give their time to help make it a success are Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Grubbs, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Meadows, Mrs. Lyla Maze, Mrs. Mildred Rice, Miss Mary Ransler, and Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Johnson.

RITES FOR UNCLE OF SHERIFF WILLIAMS

Funeral services for C. C. Talbot, uncle of J. T. Williams, Boone county sheriff, were held at 3 p. m. Monday at the Tallferro funeral home, Erlanger. Rev. Harold Hosom, pastor of the Erlanger Christian Church officiated. Burial was in Highland Cemetery.

Mr. Talbot, who was 88, died at his home, Erlanger road, Erlanger, late Friday following an illness of several days. He had been a resident of Erlanger 35 years and was a member of the Erlanger Christian Church.

He leaves three nephews, Sheriff Williams, Eli Williams, Boone county, and James Williams, Erlanger, and four nieces, Mrs. Alva Dickerson and Mrs. Lane Riggs, both of Erlanger and Mrs. R. O. Corbin and Miss Lottie Williams, both of Cincinnati.

MISS OLIVE KACKLEY IS HONORED GUEST

Thirty members of the Walton Woman's Literary Club, headed by Mrs. C. F. Bankenbaker, president, will honor Miss Olive Kackley, women's commissioner of WCKY, at a luncheon party Thursday, June 8 in Cincinnati. Following the party, members of the club will hold their regular monthly meeting, at which Miss Kackley will be guest speaker.

METHODIST CHURCH
REVIVAL IN SECOND WEEK

The revival meeting at the Methodist Church is in its second week and the interest is fine with increased attendance. Rev. Garriott from Erlanger is bringing good inspiring messages each evening to an appreciative audience. The Pastor states that the meeting will close next Sunday evening as he will leave on Monday for Winchester, Ky., where he will attend the Annual Pastor's School at Kentucky Wesleyan College.

Boone County
Wool Pool Sells
Clip This Week

The Boone County Wool Pool sold the 1944 pooled clip of approximately 60,000 pounds of wool, the first part of this week to John Neumeier of the M. Sable Company of Louisville, according to H. E. White, president of the pool. Delivery will be made on July 8th, 6th, and 7th at Walton, Burlington, and Petersburg, respectively.

This year's sale price is reported as most satisfactory reflecting the advantages of cooperative selling in sufficient quantities to justify full market considerations.

The wool was sold and is to be delivered and paid for in full to the grower on the same basis as in former years. This type of sale was especially difficult for the committee this year in that all final sales must be made to the government on specific grades based on secured basis. Through the delivery of a large quantity of high quality wool to the convenient receiving points, the pool was able to make a cash sale that represented a considerable saving to the grower on the government allowed handler's commission.

All sheep raisers and committee members are urged to forward immediately all signed up pooling sheets, as only signed up or listed wools can be sold through the pool. Commitment are urged to carefully check their lists to see that their sheets are complete. All Boone County Wool growers are invited to take part in the pool operations.

KENTON COUNTY HERD COMPLETES TESTING YEAR

According to the report of D. H. A. supervisor D. W. Dills, the herd of Charles C. Richardson finished the testing year with an average of 441.6 butterfat and 10.71 lbs. milk yield per cow. Mr. Richardson was highly commended by Mr. Lynn Copeland, Field Agent in Dairying for the University of Kentucky.

A Holstein cow in this herd topped the association with 1,907 lbs milk and 95.4 lbs butterfat for the month of May.

This herd also topped the association with an average of 1027 lbs of milk and 48.9 lbs butterfat for May month of the year. The herd six Commonwealth Ambassador Shamrock, No. 88103, combines type and production. He was bred by the Ky. House of Reform and carries the blood of three of the leading Holstein bulls of the U. S.

Fish For Stocking
Farm Ponds Available

Bass, Bream, and Croppie Minnows for stocking farm ponds and lakes are available, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Application blanks are available at the County Agent's Office for securing from Federal Hatcheries.

Properly stocked ponds under good management practices should furnish 40 to 50 one-pound bass and 800 to one thousand brook trout to be taken out per acre and line per surface acre per year. Bass past seven years of age are considered practically worthless for propagation. This means young stock may be most desirable.

Boone County farmers have been building 200 or more ponds or farm reservoirs per year. While the primary purpose of these ponds is livestock water, the fallure to stock these ponds with right fish means another loss of a food crop. Where farmers do not have time to catch fish with pole and line, it is recommended that the pond after the first year be sealed each fall to take out surplus stock.

It is hoped that at some future date this coming winter, a meeting can be held on fish pond management.

MEETING POSTPONED

The Baptist W. M. M. meeting has been postponed until Thursday, June 22 because of the Daily Variation Bible School being in session on the 3rd Thursday.

"FINEST OF THE DAY"

Walton Advertiser

Sirs—Would like to tell you I appreciate retting the Advertiser. Think the column "With Our Boys in Service" a good idea as we always enjoy keeping in touch with our boys from home.

The division I am with has recently been combined with the 4th Air Force which meant a change of insignias for me. We are not far from Hollywood and have seen several movie stars. They have put on some shows here at camp.

Our platoon was adjudged the "finest of the day" and awarded tickets to the Paramount theatre as guest of the Christian Science Service Club of Los Angeles. Again thanking you for the Advertiser.

I am
Pvt. Clifford E. Ryan
Glendale, Calif.

Dear Editor

I wish to thank you for sending me copies of the Advertiser. It certainly makes a fellow in the service feel good to hear news from his own home town and surrounding community.

In closing I wish you the best of luck.

Yours truly,
William C. Piner.

Sgt. Reuben A. Poland, with the 302d Engineers Unit in Italy writes that he has been awarded two bronze stars each representing major battles. He participated in the battles at Sicily and Salerno and will merit a third star for his work at the Anzio Beachhead where he has been stationed for sometime. He is the son of Luther Poland of Glencoe and has many friends here who pray for his safe return.

A happy reunion took place near Australia, recently when Richard N. Shelton, A. B. Seamen of Army Transportation Corps, visited his brother, Howard W. Shelton, M. M. 2-c of the U. S. N. The two brothers had not seen each other for almost 3 years and the meeting was accomplished when Richard learned that Howard's ship was nearby and he surprised his brother by arranging to visit his ship.

Richard is the husband of Mrs. Helen Miskell Shelton of Glencoe and was a Petty Officer on a Merchant Marine Ship prior to his present assignment.

PROMOTED TO SERGEANT

In a letter received from Walter Brooks who is stationed in Italy he says he has been promoted to sergeant and now has a squad of his own. He states he is still in the best of health.

Word has been received that Capt. Harry E. Waller is now stationed in China. He writes he likes his new station fine.

Malcolm Simpson of the U. S. Navy, New York, is home on furlough for ten days, visiting his mother, Mrs. Fred Simpson.

LEADING HERD CLASSIFIED JERSEY CATTLE CLUB

The American Jersey Cattle Club will classify the herd of S. Whitehouse, Dunlap Farm, Walton at 1:00 p. m. on Saturday, June 10th, according to the County Agent's Office. Each animal in the herd will be carefully judged by an American Jersey Cattle Club Judge and given a rating as to quality. This rating will be official in the Jersey Cattle Club world on each individual so classified.

The purpose of the classification program will be to set up standards of perfection by which outstanding breeding stock must be judged. Prof. Fordyce Ely, dairy department at the University of Kentucky will do the classification work.

Tom Dunlap, owner of the farm, extends a hearty invitation to all in the breeders to attend. Mr. Dunlap has spent considerable time and money in testing and breeding up an excellent herd. This will be a meeting of interest to a large number of breeders.

★ IT'S TEAMWORK THAT DOES IT ★

The 5th War Loan STARTS NEXT WEEK!

WHEREVER your invasion forces are fighting—at sea, in the air, on the ground—they're working together for victory. They know that they must depend on each other, for only by coordinated teamwork will they win through to final victory in the earliest possible time.

The Fifth War Loan starts next week. It's going to take teamwork—a lot of it—to put this drive over the top. For we've got a job to do. As the tempo of invasion rises every one of us must mobilize for support of our fighting men.

In every city, town and hamlet men and women like yourself have banded together as War Bond Volunteer Workers, giving their time to taking your subscriptions for Bonds. Support them. Give them the kind of teamwork our boys are giving to each other on the fighting fronts!

When your Volunteer Worker calls, double your War Bond subscription. It's their job to help raise $16 billions of money for victory during this Fifth drive, $6 billions from individuals like yourself.

Make up your mind to welcome your Victory Volunteer with a friendly smile and an open checkbook—remembering that it's teamwork that does it!

ARMY WORMS FOUND IN SMALL GRAINS

The probability of army worm damage to small grains, is announced by the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. Worms a half-inch to three-quarters of an inch long were found feeding on the lower leaves at the base of wheat, rye and barley plants. It was expected that the worms would move up the plants, stripping the leaves and severing the heads.

At that time, the plant is no longer palatable to the worms and it is necessary for them to seek new pastures, which they do by marching in horrid lines up the stalks, they can be stopped and the uninfested fields protected by the use of a dust furrow and poisoned grain bait.

The dust furrow is a mechanical barrier. It is made by dragging a keg or log several times up and down a previously plowed furrow. This act makes a fine dust and establishes a steep furrow up which the worms cannot crawl. Such a barrier should be placed between the crawling worms and the fields to be protected.

In connection with the dust furrow, poisoned bait should be used. It is made by mixing thoroughly 25 pounds of dry bran and one pound of Paris green or white arsenic and adding about 2 1/2 gallons of water. This is broadcast among the worms and in front of the advancing army at the rate of 10 to 20 pounds per acre, late in the afternoon. If scattered without lumps or clumps at the recommended rate there will be no danger of poisoning live stock.

If wheat bran is not available an equal volume of coarse alfalfa meal or cotton seed hulls, coarsely ground or unground, may be substituted for the bran. When these substitutes are used it is necessary to sweeten the bait by thoroughly stirring a gallon of crude cane molasses into the water before mixing it with the bait. In order to make it more attractive to the worms.

Just now, the rank growing crops in wheat, rye and barley fields should be examined for worms. If they are found in large numbers, the infested areas or spots should be treated promptly with the poisoned bait.

TO HAVE SHRUBS THAT LOOK GOOD

To have good-looking shrubs, tie up the lower branches with a small rope, loosen the soil under the spread of the branches to a depth of about 2 inches, and scatter about a pound of high-grade fertilizer on the worked area, says N. R. Elliott, of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. If this can be done at the same time the plants are pruned, which should be done after blooming, he says they will make a good growth and set lots of buds for next year's flowers. The general tendency is to set shrubs and then never work or feed them, with the result that these plants are never as attractive as they should be.

Robert Shearer, Garrard county Utopia club member, is feeding five steers for the state cattle show in November.

LADY'S STOMACH WAS LIKE A GAS FACTORY; MEALS TURNED TO GAS

One lady said recently that her stomach used to be like a "gas factory." That is, when she ate a meal it seemed to turn right into gas. She was always bloated, had awful stomach gas pains, daily headaches and constant irregular bowel action. Now, however, this lady says she is FREE OF STOMACH GAS and she says the change is due to taking ERB-HELP. Her meals agree with her. No gas or bloating after eating. Headaches and constipation are gone. "Oh! what relief!" states this lady. "Why don't other gas and constipation sufferers get ERB-HELP?"

Wilma Beach and Eva Allphin spent Sunday night with their classmates, Miss Mary Jane Johnson of Owen County.

Mrs. C. D. Hughes, Miss Ella Roberts and Charlie Bollington. All visited at the Perry Alexander home Sunday afternoon, found "him on the sick list."

GRAVES FARMERS TO WRAP MORE TOMATOES

Members of a cooperative association in Graves county have signed up more than 500 acres of tomatoes for green-wrap production. This is four times as many as were grown last year, the first season for the association. Five hundred thousand plants were received April 28. Farmers were slow in signing up to grow tomatoes for canning, due to the difference in prices of green wrap and canning tomatoes last year. County Agent R. Hoover also reports that about 1,000 acres of sweet potatoes will be grown in Graves county.

NITROGEN FERTILIZER AVAILABLE

Ammonium Nitrate, the new high test nitrogen fertilizer is available to local farmers provided a cooperative order can be made up according to the County Agent's Office. The price will be around $60.00 per ton.

Several local dealers and farmers have expressed a desire to secure this material. Those who wish to be included in a cooperative order are requested to notify the County Agent's Office immediately, stating the amount they desire.

While it is setting late in the season, Ammonium Nitrate is recommended as a side dressing to the growing crop for tobacco and corn and as a top dressing where additional growth of pasture and hay crops is desired. The effect of the application is usually noted within a few days.

The little light at once became An animated tongue of flame
That murmured o'er and o'er Your name
In burning love.

And, as I thrilled, the taper grew Another throbbing heart into,
That burned and yearned in love
Of you.

With all its might.

COMBINES USED TO SAVE GRASS SEED

Using combines to harvest orchard grass seed is suggested by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Where combines are properly handled, yields of 100 to 200 pounds of seed to the acre have been reported. While many men would prefer to cut orchard grass seed with a binder and thresh it with a grain separator, the use of combines would help to save more seed. The college is urging farmers to harvest orchard grass seed wherever practical. The supply of seed is limited and the price considered good. Combine harvesters usually work on the 50-50 basis.

Arrangements are being completed for a frozen food locker to be built in Munfordville, Hart county.

AMMONIUM NITRATE IMPROVES BARLEY

Mistaking the distance a cyclone seeder would spread ammonium nitrate, Ike Martin of Hickman county left untreated strips in a field, thereby making possible a comparison between treated and untreated land. Where the nitrate was applied the barley is dark-green, with an abundance of foliage. On untreated strips, the barley is smaller, has less foliage, and is a yellow-like color. Farm Agent Warren Thompson says that many other farmers have had similar results. Sixty tons of ammonium nitrate were purchased by farmers in Hickman county, the largest part of it being used on row crops and orchards.

--REGISTERED JERSEYS-- PRODUCTION RECORDS

The measurement for profit is production.

General speaking, the higher the production of the individual cow, the greater the profit over feed costs will be. The average dairy cow in America produces 180 pounds Butterfat. The average production of Registered Jerseys tested by the American Jersey Cattle Club is 460 pounds fat. The dairy farmer should appreciate that a 400 pound fat herd is an excellent institution. His goal should be to own a herd that, as a minimum, produces 300 to 350 pounds fat.

Misses Opal and Wilma Beach will leave for Georgetown College Saturday, we will miss them from our midst but wish them success in their school work.

Revival at Concord will begin on Monday night after the 2nd Sunday in July. Rev. Curry of Warsaw will assist the pastor and wife in this meeting. A welcome is extended to all.

The farmers are putting up hay and setting tobacco, the ground is real dry at some places others have plenty of rain.

Clifton Webster and wife are in from Calif. for a few days visit, will return to service soon. Preaching at Concord Sunday and Sunday night, all attend that can.

CROP NOTES, BOONE COUNTY WEEK OF MAY 29th
Boone County has excellent prospects for hay, pasture, and fruit crops this spring. Alfalfa hay was out on many farms the past week.

Tobacco setting started on a large scale with excellent plants. Virgil Campbell in North Bend reported considerable setting of tobacco on May 13th.

The largest crop of peaches in years was seen on the farm of F. L. McGlasson and Sons, C. Liston Hemphill and son and Charles L. Hemfling. The apple crop over the county looks good with many trees setting light crops.

Commercial grape growers have good prospects this year. Herbstreit and Jergens of Constance,

The battle for the World is on!

NOW THAT the chips are down . . . now that our men are writing decisive history with their blood . . . There can be no halfway measures for us.

The greatest battle in the history of the world must be matched by the greatest war loan in the history of the world.

That's what Uncle Sam says . . . the same Uncle Sam for whom your brothers and sweethearts and husbands are fighting and dying this very minute.

They, in the front lines, are throwing in everything they have.

We, behind the lines, must do the same.

Remember, this is the battle for the WORLD. Our world. And we've got to win it. That's why Uncle Sam expects every dollar, like every soldier, to do its duty.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Did you hear that Tom is going to be inducted into the Army next week, Judge?"
"Yes, Frank told me this morning down at the barber shop. Our town's got a lot of men in the service now, Jim. In fact, all towns have. I was just reading in the paper where there are more than 10,000,000 men away from their homes in the armed forces. And, from all reports, they're doing a grand job bringing victory closer every day."
"We folks at home have a mighty big obligation to those 10,000,000 fighting men. We've got to produce the food to keep them well fed. We've got to keep them supplied with the ammunition and equipment they need to finish their job. We've got to help the Government pay for all these supplies our men need by buying more and more War Bonds. We'll have another big chance to do that by helping to put the 5th War Loan drive over the top, Jim."

"And, in addition, we must be sure that, while they're away and can't express their opinions, we don't go voting on and deciding any things that will displease them when they come back."

OUR FARM NEWS

SAYS LAND PRICES SHOULD BE IN LINE WITH FARM PRODUCTS

The urgent need of holding land prices in line with probable long-time prices of farm products is stressed in a statement issued by Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. There is always danger, he said, in taking the income for any one or two years as a basis of determining the price to be paid for farm land.

With the rise in price of land, Dean Cooper said it might pay prospective buyers to consider what happened in the inflation after the other war. He believes the pattern of the increase in land prices is similar in the two periods. But the present time, he thought, probably does not show the same high degree of speculation nor the large volume of purchases or sales. Dean Cooper explained that the Experiment Station made a study of what happened to land buyers in the Central Blue Grass after World War I.

In the years 1918 to 1920, inclusive, 7,000 farm sales were recorded in the seven counties where land transfers were studied. That number represented 19.7 percent of all farms in those counties.

"Bankers and other persons in close touch with the situation expressed the opinion that at least 50 percent of those persons who bought land just prior to 1920 became involved in financial difficulties and approximately 90 percent of those who bought in 1920," said Dean Cooper.

"While many farmers succeeded by great effort in retaining their property," he continued, "many other buyers suffered very large losses. One group that ran into difficulty, the average loss was 63 percent."

"But the loss to buyers was only a part of the story. There was the added loss to note holders, sellers and relatives."

"Many made purchases after the other war who did not lose but who had difficulty in holding on to their property because the evaluation was higher than the productivity of their land would warrant. Others made great sacrifices in order to hold their property."

"It is estimated that in Kentucky two-thirds of the sales of farms in the past two or three years have been made to farm operators. Often these have been owners of adjoining land."

"Farmers who expect to live from the income of their farms know that farming can only be financially successful when their investment in land is in accordance with the long-time price levels of farm products. High prices for products tend to obscure high land prices. The more early farmers enter the period after the war free from debt the more favorable their position will be."

GIVES SUGGESTIONS FOR CANNING PEAS

Green peas, one of the first garden vegetables, will soon be ready for canning. Mrs. Pearl Haak, foods specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, emphasizes the following points:

Check pint jars, rings and lids to see that they are in perfect condition. Wash in hot, soapy water and boil jars. War-time rings should be boiled in water to which a tablespoon of soda has been added to each quart. Rinse well and scald the lids before using.

Select only young tender peas and, if possible, can within the hour. Shell and wash peas, then cook three to five minutes, depending upon tenderness. Use only enough boiling water to cover. Pack in hot sterilized jars, cover with the water in which peas were pre-cooked, add a pint, and seal according to type of jar.

If a steam pressure canner is used, process pint jars 45 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. When the hot water bath method is followed, place the jars on a rack in a large container, having enough water to cover them by two inches. Begin counting time when water begins to boil and process for three hours. Complete seal for type of jar.

A leaflet, "Can Fruits and Vegetables for Victory," may be had from agricultural or home agents, or from the college.

It is estimated that at least 60,000 acres of corn will be planted in Logan county this year.

TEMPTING FATE

Once Too Often Costs You Plenty.

Many car owners know their front wheels are out of balance—know that they should be balanced for safety sake. They know that if they neglect this out of balance multiples hundreds of times and fight against the driving control and often loses the road.

Unbalanced wheels hammer at the front and bearings and set up tremble of the steering wheel which makes strenuous driving.

Unbalanced wheels are caused by changing tips—narrow wear of tread—addition of patches—improper mounting of tires—loss of balance weight. Your wheels should be checked regularly.

Save money—be safe—have a pleasant driving car by coming into our station and having your wheels checked and balanced at once. The service is speedy and the cost is low.

"That's the way I like to see them," said Gen. MacArthur when he saw the rows of dead Japs in the Admiralty Islands. In this war—the costliest, cruelest war of all time—our boys must fight with savage fury. Kill or be killed! And on how well each plays his part depends the lives of many of his buddies. Here on the home front, too, just cheering the attack on isn't enough.

That's why there's a Fifth War Bond drive on now, a drive in which you're needed to support the men on the fighting fronts who are facing the most treacherous forces Americans have ever met in combat. We on the home front can't let them down—and we won't. So resolve now to at least double your Bond buying in the 5th War Loan drive. This is the time to do better than your best.

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

THEODORE PRATT

THE STORY TOLD FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who is the proprietor of a modest general repair shop located in the alley back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in A. He is very dependent on his wife. He had thought the doctor who examined him would not overlook his dyspnea, his near-sightedness and his creaking knees. He believes there must be some mistake. Anyway, he breaks the bad news to his wife, Amy, who has always dominated him. It is quite a blow to her, too, for she is threatened with not having Wilbert around to order about. While leaving the house to get busy with the day's work, but forget to kiss his wife goodbye.

CHAPTER II

Mrs. Winkle, upon learning that her husband planned to join a general repair shop practically in their living room, decided it bitterly. She felt that being the wife of what she termed a handy man lowered her social standing. She declared she would have nothing whatsoever to do with the enterprise and would rather starve than to so much as glance at it. She took this decided stand despite the fact that she had a modest income from a small estate left by her parents and that on this account Mrs. Winkle could have managed, though their standard of living would have been sharply curtailed.

At the time Mr. Winkle still wore one leg of the trousers in his house so he proceeded on the basis that it was more respectable for him to provide, and more reasonable to eat well, than to have a social standing. He took his wife at her word.

He saw himself dying, painfully, gasping for water.

and built his shop across the rear of their property without an entrance or even a window on the house side. Mrs. Winkle had never visited him, even when she found it more comfortable not to stare. And from then on she developed into what he preferred to think of her instead of by any other word; a termagant.

Each morning Mr. Winkle marched out the front door quite as if he were going downtown to business. He walked the block around the corner, and then to the alley. Along this he went to his shop, where he worked until dinner time, and then retraced his steps. The alley in which his shop was not a depressing thoroughfare, but quite an attractive one. It was a dirt lane lined with trees and a number of private garages. Mr. Winkle's shop was no exception, but a substantial frame building painted a cheery blue, with wide double doors to permit the entrance of automobiles needing his attention and tall windows. Above the doors was a sign announcing:

THE FIXIT SHOP

We Repair Anything

Mr. Winkle had worried a little about the wording of this. Making his promise in the plural was more impressive, as if there existed a large staff of workers. The fact that there was no one except himself was perhaps deceptive. But he felt all right about it when he considered that he and the shop itself could be counted as two.

He lived up to the boast on his sign. He was adept at finding out what the trouble was with any mechanical gadget and, what is more, at putting it right. People from all over his section of town, and many from farther away, brought him their difficulties or called him in. He accepted—with one exception—any work that came along.

and span concrete floor, the shining lathes and other power tools, the clean benches with every screw driver in its proper place, and the work in hand left and waiting in good order for the day before.

Mr. Winkle and the other men of his age had assured each other that they would never be used as soldiers. They were of that lost generation between rounds of the world war, too young for the first session, and too old for the second.

Even after the draft registration for them, they had said the same things. "We can't stand the life," they proposed. "Marching all night and crawling on your stomach in a ditch is for the young fellows."

Yet Mr. Winkle had wondered, if there wasn't some plan for using them, why were they registered?

There followed a period of listening to every scrap of further information to be found in the papers, over the radio and in the magazines. Most of this was conflicting, with no one able to make up his mind. Finally a few bold facts became plain, at least in relation to Mr. Winkle's draft board in the town of Springfield. It began to call older men. Right now it had reached those married without children, but with wives who had independent incomes of their own.

Mr. Winkle met the first requirement. Mrs. Winkle lived up to the second requirement. Her small income, together with the fifty dollars a month allotment paid to the wives of soldiers, would be enough for her to support herself.

Sitting there in his shop, Mr. Winkle thought of his life in the background. It had not been much. Up until the time he was ten, he was known in his neighborhood for having won several fights. There was a certain group of boys he could bully and bluff, or lick, if it came right down to it. Then that prowess had come to a quick end. His teeth, growing in crookedly, were being straightened by that ignominious process of having wire bands put around them to draw them into place. Returning with home from school one day with two other boys, a discussion rose among them as to whether or not he could lick one of them.

During the experiment of proving he could not, the inside of his mouth was cut to ribbons by the copper bands—the main contributing cause of his humiliating and painful defeat.

From then on Mr. Winkle, boy and man, ceased to be a warrior. That was the extent of Mr. Winkle's fighting history. Now, belatedly, at forty-four—the moment made him think of his age as being only six years until he was fifty—it seemed as if it would have a future.

Why, he thought, this is impossible. It's really incredible.

Mr. Winkle wasn't in the least sure about how he would fight. It would be different if he were younger, or happened to be a great big strapping sort of fellow.

He wanted to uphold his country. He questioned not at all his country's calling upon him to do it. But he felt doubtful of what kind of soldier he would make.

He hoped there was no question about this matter in the mind of anyone who detected in him signs of not looking forward to going to war.

Mr. Winkle roused himself and began to work on a bicycle. The representative from the newspaper arrived in the middle of the morning. He was a tall, brash-looking young man with a wild mop of hair who introduced himself. "I'm Oswald, the reporter."

"The what?" asked Mr. Winkle, staring at him with assurance that he was not going to like Mr. Oswald. He was more than he cared for being interviewed.

Mr. Oswald set down the camera he carried and explained with broad patience. "Reportage, it's a contraction of reporter and photographer. Technically, I'm only the last part. But with so many reporters gone off to war, I got to be a little more of the man myself."

"Listen," he said as he opened his camera. "I got one divorced wife, two kids. I got one married wife, three kids. I haven't taken a vacation in three years except for the one I tried to enlist to get away from it. They wouldn't have me. I guess they figured if I got killed they'd have too much to support."

The reasons why men went to war, Mr. Winkle thought, were varied. Mr. Oswald regarded Mr. Winkle with some amusement. He seemed to think it a little funny that he was being drafted. When Mr. Winkle protested that his activity was somewhat premature, and that he might not be accepted by the Army, Mr. Oswald grinned and began ordering him to stand at different places about the shop. He proceeded to take a series of flashlight pictures, meanwhile asking questions in an indifferent, offhand manner.

"How do you feel about being a soldier?"

Mr. Winkle blinked as a flash went off in his face. "Why," he stammered, "I guess I feel all right."

"Do you regard it as a privilege to be the first of your class to be called on to defend the four freedoms?"

"Privilege?" Mr. Winkle repeated. The flashlight had blinded him momentarily and made him slightly dizzy. He could think only of the must be agreeable. "I expect I must."

"Listen," the reporter urged, "how about a smile on this one?"

Mr. Winkle spread his lips and exposed his teeth. He looked straight at the camera, holding his head a little high as previously instructed so that his glasses wouldn't reflect the light.

"Do you think any sacrifice is worth making to defend your country?"

Another flash went off. Mr. Winkle blinked and coughed unhappily. "Of course," he said. "Yes. Certainly."

Mr. Oswald gazed at him and then shrugged his shoulders, as if telling himself that nothing more could be done with this quizzical subject.

Quite suddenly he went away. Mr. Winkle worked on a bicycle, then on the motor of a washing machine. He ate his lunch, listened to the radio, and attacked the motor again. All the while he felt queasy about the visit of Mr. Oswald, the reporter, but at the same time wondered what he had concocted.

He learned sooner than he expected. Early in the afternoon he heard the newsboy calling his wares from afar and then at the end of the alley. Evidently the paper was cashing in on the hot news in Mr. Winkle's vicinity.

The boy appeared in the entrance of the shop, announcing excitedly. "Your picture's in the paper, Mr. Winkle! Right on the front page!"

Mr. Winkle could not overcome his resolve to wait until he went home just what The Evening Standard had said to say about him. And after all, it wasn't every day that you got your picture in the newspaper, especially on the front page.

He purchased a copy and, after the boy left, he looked at it. It wasn't as big as what the Russians were doing in Russia, or what the United Nations were doing around the Mediterranean, or what the U. S. Navy was doing in the South Pacific, but it was the next most important thing to those large events.

There was a picture of Mrs. Winkle standing outside their house, just as he had seen her last that morning, with Penelope at her feet. There was a picture of himself, the one where he smiled. The smile looked rather ghastly, and set and stiff, but to anyone who didn't know him very well it might have been taken for happiness. Most of all, above this exhibit, there was a sizable black headline which said:

WINKLE PROUD TO FIGHT

Mr. Winkle felt not only conspicuous, but misrepresented. He was glad to learn that Mrs. Winkle had made no comment, and in passing noted what a phenomenon this was. He was happy to see that Mr. Oswald had kept his promise of not mentioning his method of carrying on his work, but he was astonished to find what he had written.

"I'm proud to fight for my country," Wilbert Winkle, 44, of 711 Maple Avenue, first married selectee in the 38 to 45 age group to be called in Springfield, declared today. Winkle, who operates The Fixit Shop, went on to say that he is anxious to defend the four freedoms, which he regards as the privilege of every American today. "This," he stated, "is worth any sacrifice, if need be, my very life."

Mr. Winkle was keenly interested in learning if Amy's change of attitude had persisted from morning until night, or was simply the temporary result of the first upsetting event of the day.

Upon reaching home, he saw at once that its effect still had its hold on her. At least she was in some of a dither, a condition she had rarely entered ever since he had become a repair man instead of a respectable accountant.

Spunges Reach Immense Size—Gathering Difficult

In their natural state some sponges grow to gigantic size. One recently fished from a great sponge bed off the Bahamas measured ten feet in girth and weighed a ton when dried. Capturing such a monster is hard work. The fisherman has to detach its root with his harpoon, a long bamboo rod from 20 to 30 feet long, and then calls in numerous helpers to assist in the catch. When the gelatinous mass reaches the surface, a diver strips it of its trimmings.

A grave digger was hard at work. As he shoveled each spadeful of earth he became more and more absorbed in his thoughts, and before he knew it he had dug the grave so deep he couldn't get out.

Came nightfall and the evening chill, his predicament became more and more uncomfortable. He shouted for help and at last attracted the attention of a drunk.

"Get me out of here," he shouted, "I'm cold."

The drunk looked into the grave from which he heard the voice, and finally distinguished the form of the uncomfortable grave digger.

"No wonder," he said, kicking a little dirt into the grave, "ya haven't got any dirt on ya."

Bond Drive Opens Monday; Appeal Is Made to Everyone

This week marks the beginning of the FIFTH WAR LOAN DRIVE in which the citizens of Boone County are asked to purchase $600,000.00 in War Bonds. Banks can not subscribe for any bonds of this quota. All of it must be taken by individuals, firms, trust and corporations, except banks. Each precinct has been assigned a quota as its share of the county quota. Look at your precinct figures as recently published in this paper and then count up the men and women in your precinct who are able and willing to purchase bonds and you will soon see what your own individual quota should be, if your precinct reaches its goal.

With the invasion of western Europe just started and where many of our soldiers are falling, wounded and dying, as well as the same thing happening in Italy and the South Pacific, one would think that we, who are far away from this awful suffering and hardships, could do little less than lend our money to our Government at a good rate of interest in order to provide our soldiers with food, clothing, medicine, hospitalization, implements of war etc. These boys are bravely facing death for you and for all of us in order to preserve our homes and our country from the fate of those enemy conquered countries. They are not letting us down, we must not fail to support them.

When you get your check for your wool, lamb, milk, live stock, tobacco, (if you are a farmer) or your pay-roll check (if you are a defense plant worker), just remember that a part of the proceeds of this check is BLOOD MONEY. You would not be receiving these prices were it not for the war in which our young men are bleeding and dying by the thousands. THINK OF THIS, then go to your bank and buy more bonds than you ever bought before. You are not giving away anything, you are only lending your money at good interest with the principal returned to you at maturity or in the event you need your money you can always cash the bond.

A few patriotic citizens drove several miles to their banks last Saturday to leave their checks for good size subscriptions to be entered Monday on the first day of the drive. They said they wanted to be among the first to help start the drive. One man said he was glad to have this opportunity of subscribing, aside from the fact that it was the patriotic thing to do, he regarded the bonds the safest investment on earth. Next week will appear the report of the first week of the drive. Let's make a good showing. Be sure to get your subscription for coupon bonds in before June 26th so as to save paying any accrued interest. All coupon bonds are dated June 26th and will carry accrued interest after that date to be paid by the subscriber.

Above is the official Father's Day poster for 1944. The painting is the work of Herbert Bohner, famous poster illustrator. The original is in four colors and will be printed in these same four colors in many sizes and shapes and distributed throughout the country. ## Florence Man Saved By Clinging To Boat Initial accounts of the part played by northern Kentuckians in the invasion of the European continent were disclosed Thursday and told how Pvt. Eugene D. Lockwood, Florence, a member of an anti-aircraft gun crew, clung desperately to a half-sunken landing ship off the French coast for 10 hours as the big German guns directed their fire at the foundering craft.

Pvt. Lockwood and 16 other members of the crew were finally rescued by the Coast Guard. Pvt. Lockwood's aircraft crew was assigned to a landing craft-tank. Plates on the craft were sprung by the concussion when driving toward the French beachhead. The heavy fire from the German 88mm. guns had disabled the craft and it remained half-sunken for some time. Later, the landing craft sunk and Pvt. Lockwood and other members of the crew clung to particles of the boat which still remained afloat.

As they bumbled about in the rough waters of the channel, they were still the targets of the heavy fire laid down by the coastal guns of the enemy.

After 10 hours of what Pvt. Lockwood described as a "living hell," he and his crew were finally taken aboard a Coast Guard boat and returned to their base in England.

Safe again in England, Pvt. Lockwood is awaiting his new assignment.

Outing For Farm Bureau State Leaders

A summer training school and outing for county leaders of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation will be held July 15-20 at the F.A.A. camp near Hardinsburg, according to a statement released by J. E. Stanford, Executive Secretary of the Federation. Several Farm Bureau leaders from Boone county and from the other 87 counties having organized Farm Bureaus are expected to attend the session. Practically all of the staff in the state office of the Federation and the Kentucky Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company will attend.

Nearly all of the speakers and discussion leaders will be local county leaders. Only four out-of-state Farm Bureau leaders are expected to take part in the program, which will primarily deal with all problems common to county Farm Bureau organizations. The Associated Women will have an important part in the program.

All of the program will not be hard work. Plans are being made for recreational features, including outdoor games and other entertainment.

TRUCKMEN URGED TO KEEP TRUCKS RUNNING

The nation's truck operators were again urged by the Office of Defense Transportation today to intensify their efforts to keep their vehicles in proper repair so as to obtain many more miles of operation than would be required under normal conditions.

Strict adherence to a plan of systematic preventive maintenance and repair, the ODT said, should prolong the life of the average truck as much as three times its ordinary span.

The truck manufacturing industry is producing this year about as many new trucks as it has produced in the best of the previous years, the ODT said, most of them are for military use. The industry's available manufacturing capacity is large enough to produce trucks in quantity for military or civilian use, but not in sufficient volume to meet both demands, the ODT explained.

The 88,000 new trucks scheduled for civilian use the coming year, the ODT emphasized, will not be enough to supply all who desire new equipment, and most operators will have to make their old trucks last.

By following the ODT's preventive maintenance and rehabilitation program, truck operators can recoup their present vehicles so that they will have equipment just as reliable as a new truck, the ODT said.

Mrs. Thelma Smith is visiting Mrs. Louise Napier in Covington.

GULF STATION OPEN

The Gulf Service Station located in South Walton, has been opened and will serve patrons with Gulf gas and oil, car washing, and greasing. Robert Zapp is the manager.

BAPTIST VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

The Daily Vacation Bible School which opened June 5th will close Friday June 16th.

The average attendance thus far has been 102 each day. Friday the children will be taken for a picnic which will be at Mr. Albert Hunt's farm. Parents are invited to share this picnic with their children. There will be a basket dinner and refreshments will be served by the Sunday School.

Sunday night we will have our commencement when the children will take part and the handwork they have made during the school will be on exhibit. Services will be at 8:00 and the public is cordially invited.

A. J. C. C. Gives Classification To Local Herd

The American Jersey Cattle Club on last Saturday afternoon, June 10th, gave a permanent classification as to true Jersey type to the 223 cows in the registered herd, of Tom Dunlap of Walton. The permanent classification of each animal can be raised but not lowered during the life of the animal.

Each animal in the herd was judged and given permanent classification by an officially appointed American Jersey Cattle Club Judge, Prof. Forde E. Head of the Dairy Department at the University of Kentucky, served as official judge. A large group of local breeders were present to see the official judging of the animals. Six animals classified very good (next to excellent), the highest classification award which denotes perfection, nine were good plus and six good. The other two had previously been classified as good.

This is the first herd in the county to receive the official classification. The classification as to type is the same throughout the United States. Milk and butter production are determined through D.H.I.A. records. This herd has an exceptionally high production record with one cow in the herd producing 91.5 pounds of butter fat during May.

OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

RECEIVES LETTER

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Littrell of Verona received the following letter from their son-in-law Pvt. Jesse T. McMillan who is in Italy.

Dear Mom and Dad
I am now in Italy. The land where I am good, they have nice crops, the wheat and oats are about ready to cut and most of the garden stuff is about ready to eat.

We had a nice trip over here. There are some beautiful towns here or has been.

This is Sunday and wash day for the Army. We live in tents but I like it.

They work oren here instead of horses, they work good, can do anything we can do with horses. I like here better than in Africa.

I would like to be home and see you all, but I guess that won't be for sometime yet. Write whenever you can as letters look good to me.

Love as always,
Jesse McMillan

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Kannady of Verona, Ky., received a letter from their son Joe A. Kannady stating he had received the Advertiser and had read it "through and through."

Vernor Colston Cox has been spending a seven day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Colston and brother Logan, returning back to the Navy base Sunday.

KENTUCKY SOLDIER ACTS AS "EYES AND EARS" OF HIS UNIT

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, ITALY—At an advanced forward position on the Fifth Army front in Italy is a group of hand-picked men upon whose shoulders sometimes rest the failure or success of the infantry unit to which they are attached.

Selected for their ability to readily familiarize themselves with the methods of the enemy, they are the eyes and ears of the regimental commander. Always in front of the most advanced troops they detect and report German movements.

As the infantry advances the reconnaissance platoon carries supplies and ammunition to the men, knock out small pockets of resistance, locate enemy pill boxes and dugouts and oftentimes select routes of approach. And whenever they get a chance they round up German prisoners.

A member of the platoon is Private First Class Kircher M. Johnson, son of Mr. Bessie Johnson, 161 South Main Street, Walton, Kentucky.

"Eagle eye" Johnson as he is affectionately called, was a well known basketball player at Walton High School, was a star semi-pro ballplayer before entering the insurance brokerage business in association with his mother.

As the observer left on a recent reconnaissance mission, he remarked, "the sooner we polish off the Germans the quicker I'll get back to drink mint juice."

The men often find themselves deep in enemy territory and cut off from American lines but they always come through with vital information which has aided their unit in its drive toward Rome.

Forwarded for publication by field censors, May 28, 1944.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

First Phase of Invasion Ended
As Initial Foothold Is Secured;
French Hail "Liberation Troops"

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the Western Newspaper Union and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

This first picture came from French soil shows American doughboys, rifles ready, waiting through the surf onto the French beachhead. The photographer who made the picture was in the first group to hit the beach. Note the invasion craft in the background. Soundphoto.

THE INVASION:
First Phase Ended

The first phase of the Allied invasion of Europe was completed. To a tense world, supreme headquarters of the allied expeditionary forces announced this phase as the "securing of a foothold and the defeating of local German reserves."

Against fierce, last-ditch resistance of 10 hastily massed Nazi divisions, totaling nearly 150,000 men, allied forces were plunging inland on a 100-mile front of curving shoreline from the Seine Estuary near Le Havre to the Cherbourg area.

Allied forces are now in the second phase, which is one of defeating the German "tactical reserves," said headquarters. The third phase, which must be won before the Allied position is completely secure, is that of defeating the German "strategic reserves."

(Tactical reserves are those in or near the combat area; strategic reserves are those held in readiness at a distance.)

The Air Umbrella

Headquarters announced that 27,000 individual air missions were carried out in the two and one-half days following the dawn of D-day. Great air fleets, probably greater than those of D-day, hammered Nazi strong points, transport and troop concentrations within a 100-mile radius of the beachheads. Nazi fighter opposition was weak. The German high command had not yet thrown its long-hoarded fighter reserves into the battle for Normandy.

The battle was joined around Bayeux, first city of France to be freed from Germans, and Caen. A fierce tank battle raged in several wooded areas near Bayeux, where the Nazis were strengthened by parachute troops.

The navy supported foot troops with a gigantic bombardment of Caen. Nazi forces were attempting to hold the city as a pivot for counterattacks. But on the second day of invasion, the Germans were forced to admit that fighting ashore was being waged inside Caen.

Single Front

It became increasingly obvious that Allied positions were fast being welded together into a single front, stretching from Caen through Bayeux to just outside Caen, and some distance up the Cherbourg peninsula toward Valognes.

It was disclosed that the first forerunners ashore on D-day might have pushed ahead more rapidly than they did, but General Eisenhower's supreme command decided it was wiser to slow the advance somewhat while awaiting more adequate strength rather than make a risk having the spearheads choked off.

OBJECTIVE PARIS:

By Bastille Day?

Bastille Day, French national holiday, falls on July 14 and in the first days of the invasion of western Europe, veterans of the 1940 battle of France forecast that the Allies would be in Paris by that date to help the natives celebrate.

In New York the French language weekly, "France-Amerique," carried a column by Ernest R. Bauer, which indicated that French military veterans familiar with the terrain over which the battle was rapidly then fought predicted rapid progress through the beachheads to Paris—120 miles away.

Meanwhile in London Winston Churchill urged the house of commons to guard against "the idea that things are going to be settled in a rush."

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

TYPHUS: American medical troops have conquered the dreaded scourge of all armies—typhus. The disease has been brought under control by a new vaccine, and by a poison called DDT that kills the lice that transmit the germs. Brig. Gen. Leon Fox told news correspondents:

"Typhus has been removed from the death list of the U. S. soldier."

MORE FRUIT: The peach crop shows an increase of nearly 150 per cent over last year, according to reports from growers. William Graft, vice president of the United Fruit and Vegetable association, told dealers. The apple crop is expected to be at least 50 per cent larger than last year, and citrus prospects are much better. Graft said.

AIR FIELD:

Near Philippines

A base within bombing range of the Philippines fell to General MacArthur's forces when the Mokmer airdrome on Blak Island was stormed and captured on the 13th day of the invasion of the Schoutens.

The beachhead on Blak was established late in May. A frontal staff was repulsed, following which American forces got in behind enemy positions and swept to the air field from the rear.

The island also is within 800 miles of the Philippines to the north-west and is within good fighter range of Palau, Japanese western Carolines naval base guarding the approaches of the Philippines.

The island also has two other airfields desired by the Sixth Army invaders. The Americans immediately began a push toward the Borok airdrome a few hundred yards to the west.

INDUSTRY:

Must Take Initiative

Warning that industry must find its own work when contracts are no longer available, Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, told the house postwar committee, that:

"... it won't be the government's job to find work for each company in its present expanded position. It's impossible to find postwar markets for the 8,000 airplanes we now produce monthly."

Saying that he was 100 per cent in favor of government's assistance in postwar planning for industry, he said that he was against government "running" small business. He urged that companies now engaged in war production use their own ingenuity and initiative in planning their postwar programs.

He forecast a postwar "expansionist" period in which private enterprise rather than the government would provide the necessary "spark." Government pump priming would be at a minimum under such conditions.

Lookout

France-looking for trouble that came unexpectedly. Boulogne was one of the cities hit by sea and air bombings, paving the way for landing of Allied forces.

A German sentry pictured as he scanned the skies over Boulogne, France, looking for trouble that came unexpectedly. Boulogne was one of the cities hit by sea and air bombings, paving the way for landing of Allied forces.

FOOT SOLDIERS:

Pay Increase

In reply to a request by War Secretary Stimson, Chairman May of the house military affairs committee introduced a bill to increase pay of skilled infantrymen $5 to $10 a month.

Soldiers holding the expert infantryman's badge would get a $5 increase and those having the combat infantryman's badge $10. Cost of the increase would amount to between $5 and $71 million dollars yearly.

In asking for the legislation, Stimson said infantry casualties are the highest of any branch of service. In the North African campaign, including Italy, the infantry suffered 70 per cent of the casualties, although comprising only 18.6 per cent of the total forces.

FARM MACHINERY:

Restrictions Removed

Small manufacturers (employing less than 100 workers) can now engage in the unlimited production of farm machinery, equipment, and repair parts made entirely from surplus materials or materials with an A-4 preference rating.

This new arrangement, announced by the War Production board, is limited to firms employing not more than 50 workers in group 1 labor areas, or on the West coast. Elsewhere plants employing fewer than 100 workers may participate.

Manufacturers meeting these regulations can use surplus materials and component parts from inventory together with A-4 preference rating materials in such production.

TRAVEL BAN:

Because of the increased loads placed on the nation's transportation system by the invasion, Director of Defense Transportation J. M. Johnson has asked immediate cancellation of all nonwar conventions, trade meetings and all nonessential civilian travel.

An ODT spokesman said there were no plans to ration train and bus travel through priorities, but that reserved space may be commandeered by the military or the surgeon general for casualty cases.

Selective Service Auxiliary Branches Make Heavy Draft on Teaching Personnel; Higher Wages Necessary.

Recently, the fate of the Churchill government hung on school teachers' salaries. The opposition threatened to defeat a government-sponsored measure because it didn't provide for making women teachers' salaries equal to men's.

Today a report outlining what a simple reason for the crisis could be to raise the social status of teachers in Great Britain and make their profession attractive is before Parliament.

Any informed Englishman admits that the American public school system offers far more to the general public than the British system. At the same time, our own school system faces one of the greatest crises in its history and, likewise, some of the greatest changes. One simple reason for the crisis could be to raise the social status of teachers in Great Britain and make their profession attractive is before Parliament.

Folding Stands and Trays of Plywood

IT IS easy to make a whole set of these folding stands and plywood trays. Cut all the pieces at one session and then spend an evening putting them together. You are then ready for supper under the trees or on the porch.

Carry-a-tray parties are fun for everybody and very little work for the hostess. Each tray may be attractively set with luncheon mat, silver and glassware. Normal dishes. Hot foods may be prepared in individual casseroles. Guests set up their stands and eat where they please in twosomes or in groups and the novelty of the idea creates the informal atmosphere which makes any party a success.

NOTE—Mrs. Spence has prepared an actual-size pattern to guide you in cutting all the parts of these stands and trays with a complete list of materials required and illustrated directions for assembling. This is pattern No. 268 which will be sent for 15 cents, which covers cost and mailing. Address:

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Germany suffering from pre-invasion litter has been advised to take solid foot baths or cold showers to calm their raging nerves. (There may be no hot water.)

More than 60,000 men are needed for lumbering and pulpwood jobs before next fall if 1944 requirements are to be met, according to the War Manpower commission.

In Ontario alone there are more than 30 million tons of salt deposits, enough to supply the entire world for 100,000 years.

HELL DIVING'S HIS JOB ..LENDING IS YOURS!

WITH GUNS BLAZING and a prayer in his stout heart, this American fighter is hell-bent on destruction of our enemies. HE is not thinking of how little or how much he's doing to help win the war. For him, the chips are down; but his fighting spirit is as high as the heavens from which his plane is diving.

In cramped foxholes and disease-infested jungles, on sun-scorched beachheads—under and over the seven seas—other Americans are matching his courage. And their name is legion. They KNOW that war is a bloody business; that their lives, as well as yours, are now at stake. You cannot—you must not—let them down.

Is it asking too much of you to back these men up by buying more, and still more, War Bonds? There can be but one answer. You'll find it in your own heart.

And remember, too, as you dig deeper than ever before into your pocketbook or cash surplus, that the Fifth War Loan MUST raise 16 billion dollars. It is the greatest financing drive the world has ever known . . . to back up the greatest invasion drive the world has ever known.

And Here Are 5 MORE Reasons for Buying EXTRA Bonds in the 5th!

1. War Bonds are the best, the safest investment in the world!
2. War Bonds return you $4 for every $3 in 10 years.
3. War Bonds help keep prices down.
4. War Bonds will help win the peace by increasing purchasing power after the war.
5. War Bonds mean education for your children, security for you, funds for retirement.

EVERY COUNTY HAS A GREASE QUOTA

The War Production Board hopes that housewives and all eating places will skyrocket grease collection. The position of the Board is that Fat Salvage is a going and successful operation.
Points for fats will be continued indefinitely as far as we can see at the present time. The National collection has increased from 14,730,000 pounds in January to an estimated 20,000,000 pounds in May. These figures are gratifying but all states must bear down heavily to make the 1944 quota of 230 million pounds. There is a strong prospect that for 1945 the National quota will be raised to 400 million pounds.

Every county in Kentucky has been given a grease quota, and the people should ask if they are doing what has been requested.

Tank-Destroyer Unit Is Very Proud of Its Guns

Combat Team Confident; Differs Little From Battle-Tried Outfit

By Ernie Pyle

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND—I went but the other day with a tank-destroyer unit. They have been over here long enough to form an opinion of English weather but you can't print it in a newspaper like this.

It was the first time in ages I had been with a combat outfit which had not yet been in battle. There isn't so much difference as you might think. The really noticeable difference is that the newbies are so eager to get into the line that they are a bit nervous. They are a bit nervous. They are a bit nervous.

But outside of that they talk and act about the same as men who have been in combat. They are a bit nervous. They are a bit nervous. They are a bit nervous.

This unit has been training together for nearly two years. They don't yet realize what a terrific advantage that gives them, but they will realize it as soon as they are in battle.

They are a vast team of firepower composed of dozens of little teams, each one centering around one gun. They have done it so long they know something about it. They are a vast team of firepower composed of dozens of little teams, each one centering around one gun.

A typical gun commander is Sgt. Dick Shewalter, 533 S. Garfield St. Muncie, Ind. I have a special reason for mentioning him. For while I was talking with a group of soldiers he came up and introduced himself and said:

"I married a girl from your home town."

Now things like that are always happening to me, except that nine times out of ten the people are mixed up. People will come up and say, "Don't you remember me? I used to deliver papers at your house." And it will turn out they lived in a town I had never heard of, and were thinking of two other fellows.

When Sergeant Shewalter said he had married a girl from my home town I slightly arched my handsome eyebrows and said, "Yes?"

"Yes," he said. "I married Edna Kuhns."

"Why," I said, "I was raised with the Kuhns kids. They lived just across the fence from our farm. I've known them all my life."

"That's what I said," said Sergeant Shewalter. And then we left the crowd and sat on the grass, leaning against a rock.

Sergeant Shewalter worked in factories before the war. He has been commander of his gun for more than a year and a half. He is a small fellow, quiet, serious, conscientious, and extremely proud of his crew and of the way they take their responsibility.

One of Shewalter's best buddies in his crew is Pvt. Bob Cartwright of Daytona Beach, Fla. He is a cannoner—a small, reddish, good-natured fellow.

When we met I said, "What's that you've got in your mouth?" He grinned and said, "Chawin' tobacco." Which was just what I thought it was.

He manages to keep well stocked by trading stuff with boys who don't chew. Bob is very young. He didn't know much when he came into the army, but Shewalter says he's the best there is now.

As I said the boys are very proud of their guns. They say they've had fine training and lots of practice on moving targets. They say that on direct fire they can hit a moving tank at about a mile and almost never miss. They're anxious to get at it and get it over with and get back home.

They know it won't be easy on the other side. They're living rough now but they know it will be lots rougher pretty soon.

As they say, the show is had here compared to what it was in America, but they don't mind it too much because they know it's going to get worse.

They know they'll be on C and K rations, and they've had experience with them on maneuvers. But when I spoke of our best ration—the 10-in-1 field ration—they had never heard of it.

They have been working hard since they hit England. They've made long night trips and done a lot of practice firing and sometimes they have to work as late as 10 o'clock at night.

When I saw them they were making preparations for moving overseas. It takes a lot of work to get your equipment ready for an amphibious move.

They've worked so hard they haven't had time to get bored. There are some American outfits that have been here for two years without action, and there are Canadians who have been marching up and down for four years. Now they've kept from going out is beyond me.

The commander of the tank-destroyer battalion I have been visiting is Lieut. Col. Joseph Dealey of Sheboygan Falls, Wis. He used to run a wool-carding mill there. I like his attitude toward things. I like his attitude toward things.

When I first showed up he was perfectly courteous but he made plenty sure I had proper credentials and what not. As he said, they had had plenty of security preached into them back home, and this indeed is a critical period and he isn't taking any chances.

But once he had assured himself I was all right he called in his sergeants and told them to go around and tell their men they were perfectly free to show me any and all equipment they had and talk to me as freely as they wanted to.

As I told him later I don't think he need have bothered. For these boys, approaching war for the first time, guessed me so thoroughly on what war is like that hardly got a chance to ask any questions of them.

Maybe I'll have to worry some security regulations of my own just out of self-protection. Who the devil is reporting this war, anyway?

One company commander, Capt. Charles Harding, of Olmsted Falls, near Cleveland, had just had a letter from home telling him to keep an eye out for me. He figured that in a war this big our paths would never cross, but they did.

Another Ohio came up and introduced himself. This was Pfc. James Francis McClory of 6711 Guthrie street Cleveland. McClory what is aptly known in the battalion as a "character." He used to be a prize fighter. Being in the horny-handed world of pugilists, he has a great affinity for apes. There's an almost human ape at the zoo in a nearby city which McClory goes to see every time he gets a pass. He calls him "Alfred the Ape," and says he sure wishes he could take him back to Cleveland.

McClory used to work for the Cleveland Welding company, which made knuckles. When I asked him what he did he said, "Oh, I was just a bod knocker."

You can kid lots with McClory. When I went to write down his name I put "Sergeant" in front of it, and he said, "No no. I'd never get to be a sergeant if the war lasted 50 years."

So I said, "Well, 'Corporal' then." But he said, "No, I ain't even got sense enough to be a corporal."

So I said, "Well, we simply can't have you a private. What would the army of the world think with you only a private?"

So we compromised and made him a pfc.

McClory is one of those guys who are good for the morale of an outfit. He is always doing or saying something funny. And he is a good soldier. He is one of the kind who are fanatically loyal.

He has a great affection for his company commander, Capt. John J. Kennedy of 115 Fawcett road, Rosindale, Mass. Once when some gasoline caught fire McClory threw himself on the captain and knocked him out of the way, saving him from serious injury. Another time, when Captain Kennedy's mother was very ill, McClory took the last money he had and telegraphed home to his own parish to have a mass said for the captain's mother.

Thousands of men of high rank have labored endlessly. They are up early, they work all day, and they snore they go back to work far into the night. Soldiers can get one of them to take a day off.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

It's Victory Canning Time Again! (See Recipes Below)

Can What You Can

Markets are becoming green dotted with new vegetables like asparagus, spinach and peas. There are bits of bright red too, a welcome sight, those strawberries, raspberries and cherries.

They're good fresh, so use them in every way you can. But plan to put up some of the best produce in jars. Jams and jellies will come in mighty handy when you're point conscious about butter next winter. Jars of vegetables will put nutrition into those winter meals when canned food points are at a premium.

There's one rule about canning that you'd best remember when you put up those jars of fruits and vegetables: "Two hours from garden to kettle." That means using only foods at the peak of condition, for you get out of your can only what you put into it.

If vegetables turn brown in their jars and look unattractive as compared with the fresh produce, it's probably because of overprocessing (overcooking) or lack of fresh vegetables when you started canning.

When you overcook those bright red berries, they can't possibly be fresh looking or taste like a reasonable facsimile of the original product. Follow directions and cook just long enough, and the result will be well worth the effort.

Save Used Fats!

Now's a good time to put up conserve like grandmother used to make. This contains a mixture of fruits popular now:

Strawberry-Rhubarb Conserve. (Makes about 10 glasses)
1 quart prepared strawberries
1 quart prepared rhubarb
4 cups sugar

Wash and hull strawberries. Wash rhubarb and cut into 1/4-inch pieces. Mix strawberries, rhubarb and sugar. Cook mixture slowly until it is thick and clear. Pour into hot, sterilized jars.

Three-Fruit Preserves.
3 pints raspberries
2 pints strawberries
1 to 1 1/2 pounds cherries
Equal amount of sugar by weight, of all fruits

Combine all ingredients and boil 25 minutes. Add 1/4 cup lemon juice and boil 3 minutes longer. Remove from fire and allow to cool. When cool, pour into sterilized jars and seal. Although the preserves look thin when you finish cooking, they will thicken upon standing.

Lynn Says
Popular Observations: You like certain foods, but you'll like them better if you don't let them fall into a rut. Instead of serving these favorites the same way all the time, try these variations:

When the milk sours, use it in muffins. It spells extra lightness. Rice pudding is good with cream, but better still with chilled fruits in season—cherries, strawberries, raspberries and peaches. Spread lamb or ham patties with mustard before trying or broiling—you'll get good results.

Orange juice and grated orange rind in place of milk in baking powder biscuits is something to cheer about.

Good accompaniment with fish: Try beef cubes mixed with sour cream.

Tomatoes stuffed with cucumber, cottage cheese and sour cream, something new and surprising.

It Offends the Preacher

Got Off on Wrong Note

"Never mind your subject—keep your eye on your audience," was the somewhat cynical advice once given to a young orator by an old hand. But we owe some of the best stories of public speaking to those who forget to heed this prudent counsel.

The latest addition to their number occurred just the other day. A prominent clergyman was addressing some hundreds of middle-aged spinsters at a meeting of the National Spinsters' Pensions association. Exhorting them to fight for economic independence, he declaimed "You must fight and win and pass it on to your children."

Sunshine Strawberry Preserves.
8 cups strawberries
8 cups sugar
Juice of 1 lemon
Wash berries and put into preserving kettle with alternate layer of sugar. Add lemon juice and heat slowly to boiling. Boil gently 10 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and set in sun for three days. Seal with paraffin. While in the sun, a sheet of glass should be placed over jars to keep out foreign matter.

Save Used Fats!

Raspberry-Cherry Conserve.
3 cups cherries
3 cups red raspberries
4 1/2 cups sugar

Cook cherries in very little water until skins are tender. Add raspberries and sugar. Cook until thick and clear. Pour into sterilized jars and seal while hot.

Commercial pectin shortens the jelly-making process considerably and preserves the fresh fruit color and flavor in the finished product.

Ripe Sour Cherry and Currant Jelly.
4 1/2 cups juice
4 cups sugar
1/2 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, stem but do not pit and crush about 1 1/2 quarts fully ripe cherries. Crush about 1 1/2 quarts fully ripe currants. Combine fruits; add 1/2 cup water, bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over the hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full, rolling boil and boil hard 1/2 minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly. Paraffin while hot.

Early spring vegetables are coming out in the markets and in the gardens. They should be canned as soon as they are best, so that you will have the best possible results.

Since pressure cookers are unavailable this year, every homemaker should be able to get one for herself or the use of one as they are the best method for processing non-acid vegetables:

*Spinach.
Wash carefully and precook with just the water clinging to the leaves until wilted. Pack into clean, sterile jars, being careful not to press too tightly. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart. Fill to within 1/2 inch of top with boiling water. Put on cap, using manufacturers' directions and process 90 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or 3 hours in boiling water bath.

Asparagus.
Wash thoroughly, removing scales from stalk. Cut in jar lengths. Tie in bundles, place tips up in boiling water to cover lower fourth portions. Cover vessels tightly. Precook 5 minutes. Drain, pack into clean, sterile jars, tips up. Add 1/2 teaspoon salt to each pint jar and fill with water to within 1/2 inch of top. Process 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure, or 3 hours in hot water bath.

Green Peas.
Shell and grade peas, using only young, tender ones. Precook three to five minutes. Pack loosely in clean sterile jars to within 1 inch of top, adding 1/2 teaspoon salt to each pint jar. Fill with water in which peas were precooked to within 1/2 inch of top. Process 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or 3 hours in boiling water bath.

Life With the Tank Destroyer Units

English dogs have begun to attach themselves to the tank-destroyer boys, as they do to any and all camps of soldiers. These boys haven't actually adopted any of them as individual pets, because they can't take them along to the Continent. They say that in the States they had a number of pigs for pets. In that case you could have your pet and eat it too.

The top commanders who have tolled and slaved for months planning the second front have been under a man-killing strain of work and responsibility.

Thousands of men of high rank have labored endlessly. They are up early, they work all day, and they snore they go back to work far into the night. Soldiers can get one of them to take a day off.

The Strongest of Bonds—Your Dad and Your Country, Is the Slogan of Father's Day, June 18—Buy Bonds

WASHINGTON, D. C.—June 10.—The Father's Day which falls on June 18th, 1944, will be a different kind of celebration of this event than in days before the war. This year finds Pictured here is Ted R. Gamble, National Director of the Treasury's War Finance Division, and his son, Ted R. Jr. The youngster is holding a Father's Day rosette in his dad's coat lapel. The rosettes are made up of War Stamps. Girl Scouts and others will sell the rosettes on Father's Day, June 18.

American fathers away from home and family and by hundreds of thousands in uniforms of the Armed Services of our country. Many fathers are overseas.

So this year's Father's Day is America's "Salute to Our Fighting Dads." The National Father's Day Committee, in conjunction with the United States Treasury, is conducting a gigantic Father Bond Drive. There is an earnest and all-abiding awareness to push on to victory in the observance of this year's Father's Day. And every move being planned for the event is keyed to

FEED PRODUCTION PRESENTS SERIOUS 1944 PROBLEM

Feed production is presenting Boone County's most serious 1944 farm problem according to H. R. Foraker, County Agent. This is true not only of the county, but of the state and most parts of the nation. Farmers are urged to produce and save every possible pound of feed.

Livestock numbers in the nation have increased from 1932-42 ten year average of 132 million animals units to 160 million in 1943 to 171 million units in 1944. Feed surpluses have disappeared and feed shortages are here and in prospect for the next several months.

Farmers must meet the feed shortages with revised and improved production practices. The following recommendations are presented for general consideration with individual adjustments up to each particular farmer:

1. Plant the maximum amount of feed crops well fertilized and managed to produce maximum production.
2. Harvest every possible ton of hay and other roughage in such manner as to produce maximum amounts of high quality feed.
3. Fertilize, mow, and carry out best possible pasture production practices.
4. Cull low producing livestock closely. Sell roosters unless producing hatching eggs. Sell other unproductive livestock.

5. Practice disease control and careful sanitation in poultry, hog, dairy, and sheep production. Treat all sheep with Phenothiazine and keep the Phenothiazine-salt mixture before the flock at all times.

6. Sell hogs between 180 and 225 pounds in weight.

7. Prevent waste of feeds by proper feeders and feeding equipment.

8. Don't hesitate to pay time and a half over time or other reasonable expense of this means saving your crop.

9. Cooperate with your neighbors in saving of crops and other emergency work.

The over all picture presents a challenge to produce a maximum amount of feed crops and to bring the livestock production on the farm in balance with the feed production program. Most farmers the past week were exerting every effort to get their tobacco crops transplanted. This is both profitable and necessary. The hay making, corn planting and other feed production work is equally important.

SHEEP SHEARING CLOSES LABOR CRITICAL

The farm labor custom sheep shearing program is expected to close this week, according to Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant. All of the fifty-eight applications filed at the county office have been filled. Several times this number have been filled by direct application to the custom operators.

The general farm labor situation so far as securing new help is more difficult and critical than at this time last year. Farmers are and must cooperate to the fullest extent in the exchange of equipment, labor, and other resources if the maximum of needed food and feed supplies are produced. This cooperation must be fully appreciated and developed for a more wholesome rural agriculture. Those farmers who fail to meet their obligations in neighborhood cooperation will lose much of the joy of rural living and find themselves in a difficult situation when critical periods arrive.

Farmers who must secure seasonal or permanent help are urged to notify the County Agent's Office early as often considerable time may lapse before suitable help can be secured.

Ninety homemakers in Mason county are members of the Women's Land Army, working on their farms one to 11 months of the year.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Grownups Are Just Like Kids, Too

Ever notice that when you tell a youngster he can't do this or he can't have that—it's about ten to one he'll do it just out of spite?

I guess it's only natural for us Americans to resent any infringement of our liberties.

On the other hand, if you explain to the boy why he should not do it or how he'll benefit by not doing it, that usually settles the matter.

One of the chief functions of the Kentucky Committee, Brewing Industry Foundation is its educational, and self-regulation program that explains to the malt beverage retailers why it's to their advantage to conduct their business according to the spirit, and the very letter of the law.

From where I sit, the program is working. Kentucky's malt beverage business is being conducted as any business should be—in the interest of the general public.

HOUSEWIVES NEGLECT SAVING PAPER

The General Salvage Committee has announced from Washington that millions of pounds of waste paper are being lost daily because housewives have not been sold on the necessity of saving the little scraps, such as letters, envelopes, toothpaste boxes, gift wrappings, scratch paper and paper match covers.

The main reason why this paper is not recovered is because the housewife does not know how to bundle it. One of the simplest methods is to slip these odds and ends inside of folded newspapers. This is easy and simple and does not interfere with the stacking and tying of newspapers into bundles of even size.

The paper shortage is now so critical that some cities have passed ordinances prohibiting the disposal of any paper in garbage collected by the city. Such paper, including boxes, envelopes, cards, wrapping paper and letterheads, must be bundled and put in separate containers.

This county has a paper quota of 15 pounds per person each month. It is imperative that the community try to secure the quota.

ON KENTUCKY FARMS

For his tobacco, E. R. McKinney of Adair county turned under a heavy growth of vetch, some of the vines being 5 feet long.

The demand for home produced products at the homemakers' market in Christian county has been much greater than members are able to meet.

Approximately 150 acres of tomatoes for canning will be grown in Carroll county this year.

Ninety percent of the gardens in Harlan county have border plantings of rhubarb, sage, horseradish and mint or other herbs.

TOBACCO SETTING CAN BE SPEEDED UP

A new leaflet of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station describes ways of speeding up the machine setting of burley tobacco. It is one of several publications coming out of studies of ways to do farm work, being done by the Farm Economics Department of the Station.

On 10 farms where the Experiment Station men studied the setting of tobacco it was found that the time for setting an acre ranged from 6 to 17 hours for one man. By using the best methods found on these farms, two men setting and one man driving should expect to set four to five acres a day.

The leaflet describes methods used by farmers who get the setting job done in the shortest time and with the least effort.

FERTILIZER BOOSTS SOYBEAN HAY YIELD

Farmers are warned by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station not to drill soybeans and fertilizer together. It is suggested that soybeans be planted on land which already has been fertilized. If such land is not available, lime, if needed, will help the beans, even if applied now.

On four experimental fields which the Experiment Station has in Kentucky, soybeans grown in a rotation of corn, wheat and clover, produced an average of 2,230 pounds an acre on unfertilized land.

Superphosphate applied regularly in the rotation on corn or wheat, but not on soybeans, increased the yield of soybean hay 710 pounds to the acre on unfertilized land, and 1,714 pounds on limed land. Potash fertilizer used in addition to phosphate and lime gave a further increase of only 200 pounds. Stable manure or crop residues were returned before corn; otherwise a greater response to potash might have resulted.

HOMEMAKERS' CLUBS HAVE DENTAL CLINIC

Members of homemakers' clubs in McCracken county sponsored a county-wide dental clinic in which 923 corrections were made. The treatments were conservatively valued at $1,689. A total of 216 persons were treated.

MANY 4-H PROJECTS ARE UNDER WAY

A large number of 4-H Club members have been contacted during the last two weeks and every member contacted has started a project, according to O. D. Perkins, assistant County Agent. Getting a good early start with a project is very important. The member whose pig or garden is just as good or a little better than the average is always proud of his or her achievements. Parents and leaders can render a great service by encouraging 4-H Club members to get started early on their project and carry it through to completion.

LIVESTOCK NOTES FROM COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE

A dairy cow will require from 90 to 110 pounds of good pasture per day.

The Agronomy Department at the Experiment Station has found that 200 pounds of Ammonium Nitrate per acre applied in the spring doubled the yield of blue grass pasture.

Phenothiazine can be used as a good worm treatment for hogs. Beef cattle producers are facing a period with record numbers of cattle on hands. Economists call the situation uncertain. The cow and calf plan producing quality beef on good pasture and roughage is recommended for Kentucky as probably the safest beef cattle program.

KENTUCKY STOCK MEN FACE FEED SHORTAGE

A statement issued by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics calls attention to the serious feed situation in the state and in the nation as a whole. Reserve stocks of grains having been materially reduced, and about the whole country is dependent on current feed production.

It is pointed out that Kentucky farmers may not be able to bring in feed from other states, particularly if there is a short crop. Thus farmers in this state have before them the job of increasing the production of hay and grain, if they are to continue to keep large numbers of livestock. The college suggests that farmers plan carefully to use every bit of pasture, put up all the hay and roughage possible, and side-dress their corn with ammonium nitrate to increase corn production. Rye and other seeds should be saved this summer to sow cover and feed crops next fall for winter pasture.

To more nearly balance livestock production with feed supplies, it is suggested that herds and flocks be culled closely, and only the best stock retained. Hogs should be raised under sanitary conditions, sheep treated for worms, and chickens kept free of lice and mites. Poor producing milk cows often are not worth high-priced feed.

"From a wise management standpoint," the statement says, "each Kentucky farmer can well look into his individual farm enterprise to determine the kinds and quantity of livestock that will give the most returns for the feed and labor that are in prospect on his farm."

"I can't think of anything else you'll need for your Victory garden, Judge... you've got pretty nearly everything."

"I think so, too, John. Ever get your asparagus patch going?"

"I gave that up last year, Judge. Tried it six years in a row with no luck. Just haven't got the right soil, I guess?"

"Well, I think you're wise, John... no use keeping on trying things you know won't work. Just like prohibition. State-wide prohibition has been tried in this country seventy-two times in the last ninety years. It has been adopted forty-seven times in the past thirty-three years and discarded everywhere except in three states. Same thing was tried in eight provinces in Canada and in Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia but it was an admitted failure and universally abandoned."

"The reason is prohibition does not prohibit. All you get is bootleg liquor instead of legal liquor, plus no end of crime and corruption."

OUR FARM NEWS

FARM MANURES AND SOIL FERTILITY

Kenton Soil Conservation District, Julian M. Dyer.

Kenton County is important from the standpoint of the production of dairy products. Dairying is profitable and so many farmers in the county depend largely upon the dairy cow for a source of cash. In some sections of the West, dairying is often carried on for the market cream price which is much lower than our fluid milk price, when the only source of profit from dairying is the added fertility resulting from the manure. To such people this profit is appreciated because it represents the future of their business enterprise. The permanence of their crop yields depend upon the maintenance of soil fertility.

In Kenton County it is not uncommon to see manure piles behind the barns as large as the barns themselves. Some of these piles are larger than they were last year. They are presumably a necessary evil associated with livestock farming. Either our soils are too fertile and do not need constantly increasing supplies of new fertilizer or else we are not sufficiently interested in maintaining a permanent agriculture. One farmer was found milking in the open during a heavy rain, when asked why he didn't milk in the barn, stated the barn was so full of manure that he couldn't get the cows into the barn. One of our leading farmers recently employed a bulldozer to clean out the hallway of his barn from accumulated manure.

According to the 1938 yearbook of Agriculture, U. S. Department of Agriculture, "One Billion Tons of Manure, the annual product of livestock on American farms, is capable of producing three billion dollars worth of increase in crops. The value of this is three times that of the nations wheat crop or equivalent to $44.00 for each of the nations 6,800,000 farm operators. The fertility in this amount of manure would cost more than six times as much as was expended for commercial fertilizers in 1936. Its organic matter content is double the amount of soil humus annually destroyed in growing the nation's grain and cotton crops."

"Unfortunately, only a small fraction of the crop-producing and soil-conserving value of manure is actually saved. There are enormous losses of our manure through failure to save the valuable liquid portion, through loss of nitrogen in improper fermentation and drying, and thru leaking of the other nutrients from piles exposed to heavy rainfall. Considering all the losses it is probably safe to assume that only a quarter or a third of the full value of the manure resource of the country is now realized."

From the above it should be realized that manure truly is a source of profit and a basis for future yield. Under the conditions of war time with the manpower shortage it is of course made much more difficult to avoid losses from farm manures but with the demands for larger production for the war effort it seems the saving of our farm manures must be carefully watched. The best place to keep manure is undoubtedly about 6 inches under the surface of the soil. Since this cannot always be done the next best place is to keep it spread on the land, pasture land on this spots, or on cropland. With diversions, the use of contour rows, the loss from runoff water will be greatly reduced.

CONSERVATION NEWS

Farm plans were written up on seven farms during the month of May. They were: Nick Mikkelsen, near Hebron, George Spert and Abe Nichol's farm, North Bend road, Wilford and Lawrence Scott and Paul Mearns just north of Burlington, Cecil Dickerson, Beaver Lick, and Theodore Dunlap, Walton. Good farm practices agreed upon in these plans were: pasture improvement, additional water supply, woodland protection, construction of diversion ditches and terraces, contour plowing and cultivation, and row rotations and many others.

Kudzu crowns set out on Shirley Ferguson's farm, Cecil Dickerson's farm, Liston Hemphill's farm, Helen Tomlin's farm, and the Ware Bros. farm are doing well. Eight acres of these crowns were set out and as to how they come through the winter will determine whether these demonstrations will be continued.

Cecil Dickerson has three acres of tobacco set out on the contour. Terraces are under construction on the Abe Nichol's farm. Twenty-five acres of corn were planted on the contour on the Ware Bros. farm last week. All the cultivated land on the Helen Tomlin farm will be worked on the contour. These contour lines were laid out with a home made farm level made by Walter King. Everyone is urged to save all kinds of seed, especially Balbo Rye, wheat, blue grass, and orchard grass. Mr. Arnold, farm manager on the Joe Hizer farm, has a homemade blue grass seed harvester. Every farmer will profit by looking it over. Mr. Arnold states they gathered enough seed in one day to sow twenty acres. At the price of blue grass seed, this was worth $140.00.

NEW GARDEN RECORD FOR HARLAN COUNTY

More gardens were made in Harlan county in the latter half of April than in any similar period in the history of the county, says County Agent Gray H. Williams. Thirty carloads of fertilizer had been sold by May 1, most of it for gardens. Also 30 carloads of tomato seed had gone into Harlan county.

Good chickens are paying in Harlan county, despite high cost of feed, says Williams. More than 100,000 baby chicks were received in March and April, a new record in poultry raising.

4-H CLUBBERS TO ### RAISE ROASTER

For the fourth successive year, 4-H club members in Logan county have undertaken a roaster project through the co-operation of local hatcheries, who supplied 4,450 chicks and 8,900 pounds of feed. Last year, club members in that county helped out in the war effort by marketing 5,800 pounds of poultry meat. Then 1,700 pullets were left in the county for egg production. It is estimated that those numbers will be considerably increased this year. Roasters will be marketed October 1, at which time club members will settle their accounts with the hatcheries.

IN TODD COUNTY

A survey of herds in northern Todd county, reported by County Agent Stuart Brabant, shows that farmers made and average profit of over $100 a cow the past year. The average production was 235 pounds of butterfat a cow, and the average gross income $189. The highest record was made by Ernest Latham, who had an average gross income of $236 a cow and an average profit of $135 a cow.

The average number of cows per herd was a little less than nine, and the gross income per herd was $1,633, including cash sales, value of skim milk and home used products, and net livestock increase.

TEMPTING FATE

Once Too Often Costs You Plenty.

Many car owners know their front wheels are out of balance—know that they should be balanced for safety sake. They know that at high speeds this out of balance multiplies hundreds of times and fights against the driver's wheel and often leaves the road.

Unbalanced wheels hammer at C. Ford and business and safety. The shock of the steering wheel which makes driving dangerous.

Unbalanced wheels are caused by changing tires—uneven wear of tires, condition of potholes—damaging resulting of tire—loss of balance weights. Your wheels should be checked regularly.

Save money—be safe—have a pleasant driving car by coming into the station and having your wheels checked and balanced at once. Service is speedy and the cost is low.

"My boy is home again!"

THERE'LL be no empty place at the table tonight... no extra slices on the plate when Mom gets through serving the apple pie.

Bill's home again! Home... to tease the daylight out of Sis... to sit on the porch and talk with Dad... to dream great dreams on a hill-top poking up to the stars...

Bringing thousands of "Bills" back home for a few precious days of furlough is one of the Southern's most gratifying wartime jobs. For its reward is the eager grin of a serviceman... the tears of happiness that brighten a mother's eye.

But it's a difficult job... because it comes at a time when every piece of available equipment has been enlisted in the fight for Victory.

This summer, especially, will be a critical time for passenger travel on the Southern. Our services and facilities will be strained to the limit. Our regular trains and our stations are bound to be crowded as never before.

That's why we ask: "Please don't ride on a Southern Railway train this summer unless your trip is absolutely essential."

By patriotically foregoing an unnecessary trip, you can help some grateful mother... perhaps the mother of your boy... to whisper, "My boy is home again."

President

VERONA

A good rain is needed in this community. Very few people have finished setting tobacco.

Mrs. Lucy Brewster who went to the hospital last week is doing nicely and will be home soon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Spennenberg of Worthville spent a few days with their daughter Mrs. John Boyer and family last week.

Bro. Childers of Louisville has accepted the call to the Baptist church here and will be here Sunday June 18.

Mrs. Frank White and daughter of East Aton, Ill., are visiting her father Walter West and other relatives and friends in and around this community.

Mrs. Frank White and daughter and W. E. Waller and family spent Sunday with J. T. Lamm and their daughters and son and wife were here too.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wassom entertained on Saturday evening with a picnic for the Happy Twelve Club. There were about thirty-five in attendance and all enjoyed the evening and the delicious buffet lunch.

Vernon Sheller who is stationed in Samson, New York has been spending a few days with his wife at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Roberts.

STAFFORDSBURG

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hanna are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanna and son Jimmie Lee this week while Harley Conveles form a recent appendectomy.

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Binder and son Randall and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Rapp and son Shive were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Rapp.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gadker were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hanna.

Mrs. Daisy Richardson and Miss Helen spent Tuesday evening with Mrs. Augusta Stephens and daughters of Independence.

Didn't have so many at Sunday School. Hope all of the absentees are back next time and bring some one with you. You can serve the world more efficiently if you will come and study with us the lessons on building an enduring peace. Come let us work together and learn lessons of the great Teacher.

The young people of the church are planning a social for June 24.

Open kettle canning is wasteful for fruits and tomatoes. Yeasts, molds, and bacteria can get into jars from the air and other sources when food is transferred from kettle to jar and there is no further heating to destroy them.

For foods with little acid, and for meats, open kettle canning is dangerous because the food never gets hot enough to destroy bacteria. Limit the open kettle method say canning specialist to such preserving jobs as making jams, pickle, and other products that have enough sugar or vinegar to keep them from spoiling.

WALTON ADVERTISER

— NORTHERN KENTUCKY'S LEADING WEEKLY NEWSPAPER —

Devoted To the Interest of Boone, Kenton, Gallatin and Grant Counties—Kenton-Campbell Courier Consolidated With the Advertiser

Subscription $1.50 Per Year In Advance

WALTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1944

$112,246 Raised In Boone Bond Drive During First Week

Subscriptions in the FIFTH War Loan Drive the first week to last Saturday night amount to $112,246.00. This is $43,000.00 ahead of the first week of the Fourth War Loan Drive but is accounted for by the very large subscriptions the past week. Only 172 people have subscribed so far in this drive. From now on the Precinct Chairmen and workers must organize and make a house to house canvass in soliciting subscriptions if we reach our quota of $600,000.00 in Boone County.

If a subscriber desires to avoid the payment of accrued interest on coupon bonds he should subscribe before June 26th as the bonds are dated and bear interest from that date and any one purchasing these bonds after that time is required to pay the accrued interest. Go to your bank this week and enter your subscription and help make a good report for next week. The drive closes July 8th.

We do not see how anyone can read the accounts of the fighting fronts and look at the pictures of these invasions without wanting to buy War Bonds to the very limit. Over 3000 of our boys were killed the first few days of the invasion of western France. We will be hearing of the individual cases shortly, very probably right here in Boone County. Do you value money above human life? Make that subscription without delay and make it for more bonds than you ever bought before. You can always get your money back when needed plus interest. Help the soldier boys who are helping us.

MRS. KATHRYN HUEY DIES IN FLORENCE

Mrs. Kathryn Kennedy Huey, wife of Rev. O. M. Huey, retired superintendent of the Baptist Children's Home, Louisville, died Tuesday at her home on Lloyd avenue, Florence, She was 78. Her husband was superintendent of the children's home for many years before his retirement. Mrs. Huey was a member of the Erlanger Baptist Church.

STANDARD OIL SUBSCRIBES $2,000 TO BOND DRIVE

The Boone County quota in the Fifth War Loan Drive is nearer fulfillment today due to the subscription of $2,000.00 by Standard Oil Company (Ky.).

Mr. C. E. Nelson, the company's local agent at Erlanger, entered the subscription for Standard Oil, and received expressions of appreciation from the Committee.

Mr. Nelson, well known in this community, stated that the action of the Standard Oil Company was taken as an expression of the genuine interest of the organization in the success of the Fifth War Loan in Boone County and in the state.

KENTON BOND DRIVE RAISES $520,250

Bonds amounting to $520,250 were sold during the first week of the Fifth War Loan drive in Kenton county, according to a report Tuesday by William F. Burke, co-chairman of the drive committee. Of this amount $310,000 was in E. bonds.

Leaders of the drive said that if the volume of sales continues the quota of $4,800,000 will be reached.

DEMOCRATIC VOTERS TO MEET SATURDAY

All Democratic Voters of Boone County are called to meet in a Convention at the Court House in Burlington, Kentucky, on Saturday, June 24, 1944 at 2:00 P. M., Eastern War Time, to elect delegates to the Democratic State Convention, to be held in the city of Louisville, Kentucky, on the 27th day of June 1944.

Kentucky State Fair Chairman Name Helpers

ELLIOTT ROBERTSON

Elliott Robertson, State Commissioner of Agriculture, has announced appointments to the two key managerial positions for the 1944 Kentucky State Fair to be held August 28 through September 4 at Churchill Downs, Louisville.

E. L. Newton, oil operator and farmer of Owensboro, was appointed to the position of Fair Manager. Newton, past president of the Owensboro Lions' Club and active in city affairs in Western Kentucky, is President of the Hoosier Drilling Company and the Birk City Oil Company.

Ray Purdy, also of Owensboro, horse show judge and breeder, was named Horse Show Manager. Churchill Downs, home of the Kentucky Derby, selected as the site for the 1944 Fair, is ideally suited to the big event. The huge grandstand seating capacity and other facilities available on the grounds will make this year's Fair attendance at the Fair a real treat. State farm product and livestock exhibitors are urged to get in touch with the Fair office, which will be located at Churchill Downs, immediately for any details regarding exhibiting. The Fair Catalog and Premium List will be in the mail about the middle of July.

Unusual attractions are being billed for the 1944 Fair and will include many outstanding specialties in addition to the famous Johnny J. Jones midway shows. Featured, of course, will be the Grand Championship Horse Show under the direction of Mr. Purdy who has conducted horse shows in Western Kentucky for a number of years.

Closing Date For Subsidy Payments June 30th

The closing date for filing applications for March and April milk subsidy payments is June 30th, according to John E. Crisler, Secretary of the Boone County Agricultural Conservation Association.

A large number of producers have not filed for this payment and some have submitted their weights for March, but not for April. The payment for whole milk for the March and April period is 50 cents per hundred pound, and 8 cents per pound for butterfat or its equivalent.

Instructions have been received that producers who did not have sufficient sales for any previous period to amount to $1.00 may now combine any previous months weights for payment.

The milk subsidy payment has been approved for continuance through March, 1945.

Weights should be submitted for May and June, as soon as final weights for June are received, and not later than August 31st. The payment for this period will be 35 cents per hundred pound for whole milk and 6 cents per pound for butterfat or its equivalent. This will also be the same rate of payment for the July-August period, and then starting September 1st, it will be increased to 40 cents per hundred pound for whole milk, and 10 cents per pound for butterfat or its equivalent.

All producers are urged to promptly file their weights, so that the payments can be made at an early date.

LADIES AID OF THE METHODIST CHURCH MEETS

The Ladies Aid held its regular meeting June 17th at the home of Mrs. W. O. Rouse and Mrs. Howard Stephenson. After a bountiful dinner the president called the meeting to order. Mrs. Lottie Powers had charge of the program.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Evert Bedinger, Mrs. Allie Hughes, Mrs. Lottie Powers, Miss Fannie Bagby, Mrs. William Lancaster, Mrs. Scott Lancaster and son Bobby, Mrs. Mayne Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Vest, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hudson, John Brady Walton, Mrs. Grover Young, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stephenson, Mary Belle Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Rouse.

A MEMORIAL

Robert Chambers was born in Covington, Ky., August 28th, 1875. He died at his home, near Walton, June 9th, 1944.

When he was a little boy, his parents moved to Boone County, and in this county he spent the rest of his life.

Since boyhood he was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church, where he served for many years as deacon and treasurer.

He was modest in disposition, kind in conduct, industrious and resolute in his daily life—a good man, who "wore the white flower of a blameless life."

The large number of friends who attended his burial at Richmond Cemetery, was an evidence of the high esteem in which he was held by all who knew him.

W. L. A. Has 84 Members

Boone County has eighty-three women enrolled in the Women's Land Army for 1944, according to Mrs. Vernon Pope, County W. L. A. Chairman.

Mrs. Pope feels that Boone County has many more women who are eligible to belong to the program of work. All women who make a contribution to wartime production of food, feed or fiber on a farm are eligible to belong. This applies to non-farm and non-women performing agricultural tasks as well as to those on men who, by performing household duties relieve a farm woman for agricultural work. The purpose of the W. L. A. is to give farm women recognition for the part they are playing and can play on the agricultural front.

Boone members of the W. L. A. are spending one-eighth of their time working outdoors. Fifty-six are spending one-eighth to one-half of their time doing agricultural work, while twenty-seven are spending one-half to all their time working on the farm. Anyone eligible to join the W. L. A. is asked to contact Mrs. Pope or Mary Hood Gillespie, Home Demonstration Agent.

MRS. NETTIE FULLILOVE

Mrs. Nettie Fullilove life long resident of Walton passed away at Booth Memorial Hospital late Sunday following an illness of one month.

Mrs. Fullilove is survived by one sister, Mrs. Lucy Sonning, one brother, Wm. C. Guyton, both of Walton, one niece, Mrs. Genevieve Greene of Mississippi, two nephews, Wilford M. Rice of Walton and Clifford Holbown of Louisville, Ky.

Funeral services were conducted from Chambers and Grubb Funeral Home, Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. with Rev. Burton Garrett pastor of Walton Baptist Church and Rev. R. F. DeMolsey assisting.

Burial was in Walton cemetery.

Red's Charity Games Wednesday June 28th

Returning to Crosley Field for a night game with the Chicago Cubs Friday, the Cincinnati Reds will inaugurate one of the most exciting home stays of the season, a series of 18 games highlighted by a big twilight-night doubleheader with the Boston Braves, all proceeds of which will go to war relief.

Date of the charity twin bill is Wednesday, June 28. The Reds and Braves will start play at 6:30. The lights will be turned on for the second contest, which will get under way at about 9. Every-one-players, officials, and writers will pay to get into the park that night, to swell the total proceeds donated to the War Relief and Service Fund, a non-profit organization set up by baseball to handle receipts turned over to the various branches of service and the Red Cross.

Four games with the Cubs will start the long home stay. After Friday's no-catch contest, the Reds and Braves will clash in a single game Saturday and a twin bill Sunday, June 25. The series will mark Charlie Grimm's first appearance in Cincinnati since taking over management of the Cubs.

Then comes the gala war relief night with the Braves on June 28, and another night game with Boston, Friday, June 30. Following that, the hard-hitting New York Giants will meet the Reds in a single game Saturday, July 1, and a doubleheader Sunday, July 2.

Tickets for all these games are now on sale at the Red's downtown ticket headquarters, 307 Vine Street, where mail orders are being accepted.

WALTON FIRE DEPARTMENT TO MEET EVERY TUESDAY NIGHT

The members of the Walton Fire Department will meet every Tuesday night beginning June 27th. This is very important since plans and methods will be discussed which will be helpful.

Estimated School Per Capita Will Be $19 Next Year

School boards were advised by John Fred Williams superintendent of public instruction, that they should immediately prepare their budget for the coming school year and calculate their state per capita income on the basis of $19 for each pupil on the census roll.

The $19 figure is as yet tentative, awaiting official promulgation of the census on July 1, but preliminary indications are that the state per capita contribution will be at least that figure and probably a few cents over it, said Williams, or the greatest per capita contribution in the history of the state.

State contributions for education, exclusive of equalization fund payments, are based on the number of pupils residing within the districts. The constitution requires this method of distribution of funds, except that up to 10 per cent may be distributed on the basis of need.

Last year's contribution, including the $3,000,000 deficiency educational appropriation and amounts supplemented from the governor's emergency fund brought the total per capita contribution to $17.66.

Worms Injure Tobacco Crop

Wire worms have caused wide spread damage to newly set tobacco over the county the past two weeks, according to H. R. Farmer, County Agent. Many farmers report considerable damage.

H. H. Jewett, Assistant Entomologist of the Kentucky Experiment Station gives the following advice on wire worm and control: "The wire worms cannot be controlled by insecticide on a field scale and there is no chemical that can be put into the water used on the plants when being transplanted. At the Experiment Station, we have found that large plants will stand severe injury and recover if the soil is fertile and suitable for tobacco growing. In fields that have had as much as fifty per cent of the plants injured, not more than 3 per cent have died or needed replanting. The study of the life histories of wireworms shows that much of the damage stops about June 20."

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Thompson have moved to Erlanger, Ky., on Graves Avenue.

Harry Franklin Northcutt of Erlanger spent last week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jockey of North Walton.

RECEIVES LETTER FROM SON'S COMMANDING OFFICER

Dear Mrs. Dudgeon, I'm taking this opportunity in writing you about your son, Tec. 4 James O. Dudgeon. I want you to know I'm proud to have him in my company. He is a fine soldier and I know you are proud of him.—I am.

Being with a Bakery Company is just as important as any other branch of the service. We have a great mission to do and that is to bake bread and roast coffee. I assure you, we are all performing that mission to the best of our ability.

Your son's quarters are good and his chow (army term for food) is excellent.

There are times your son works many hours more than he should, but it is all for a good cause, to help win the war so they can return home sooner, to their wives, mothers, fathers, and sweethearts.

Your son is in good health and looks fine. Hoping for the war to end soon.

Yours very truly,

1st. Lt. Lewis W. Falor Q. M. C.

A MARINES PRAYER

The following prayer was written by Marine Carl M. Jones who is serving somewhere in the Pacific.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Jones of Walton.

Dear God, I can't pray and say all the things I want at the close of day; I know you'll be with me and always will, but I'll try to pray 'til my lips are still.

Dear God, bless my Mother, so sweet and true, for she's been through what I'll never go through and now this war and I'm far away; that's why I kneel and try to pray. Dear God help me keep the vows that I made, for the Sea of Trouble or temptation I'll wade. Give me the strength that my mother holds, and her prayers will keep me within Thy fold.

Dear God, bless my Father. I'm proud to be his son, for he's helped me in all this war can be won. He's back at his job and doing his part, putting everything he's got with all his heart.

Dear God, bless my wife, so pretty and sweet, guide her and keep her until again we meet. May our love stay as strong as when I went away. Please Dear God, it's so hard to pray.

Dear God bless my home, we're fighting to keep, where first I met you at my Mother's feet; My family is there and all that I own, be pleased, Dear God, bless my lovely home.

Dear God, when this war is over and through and this proud world bows to do homage to you. There will be Marines and more Marines who've come to say—Dear God, it's just me—I've learned to pray.

MRS. JOHNSON RECEIVES LETTER

Letter. Bessie C. Johnson received the following letter from her son dated June 8th.

Dearest Mother: Have not heard from you for quite a while, though I would drop you a few lines this day.

Mother I had the opportunity to visit Rome, it sure was a great day for us, and for Rome. The people sure were happy, they greeted us with handshakes, kisses and hugs also gave us lots of wine to drink. It is a very beautiful place, save the Vatican also the Pope.

I don't have time to write to each one, but you can tell them all hello for me. This is a beautiful place around here. Mother the flowers are so pretty, and the green fields are swaying, makes it look like the ocean waves.

Mother I don't have much to write about, thinking of you all the time just the same. I am still O. K. and everything is going on well at this writing. I feel good and have plenty at all times. Read the papers at home, it will tell you about what is going on in Italy.

Will close for this time. Hope to hear from you soon.

With lots of love,

Kreher

Hindus Have Great Variety Of Musical Instruments

The Hindus of India are believed to play more different kinds of musical instruments than are found in all other countries together, says Collier's. Because almost all of their earliest instruments have remained in use, these people now have several thousand, including some 300 varieties of orchestral drums.

In fact, their most popular is still the vina (a guitarlike instrument with seven strings) which was invented more than 1,200 years ago.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Alcohol base butadiene is expected to provide an important portion of the synthetic rubber used in the U. S. in 1944. One instance where alcohol and the automobile go well together!

Passenger car tire shortage is expected to continue well into the summer months, at which time synthetic tires may make their appearance in growing numbers. Their very extreme fire care is important now.

In 1910 crude rubber sold for an average of $2.06 a pound in New York. Since September 12, 1941, it has been fixed by a government agency at 22 1/2 cents a pound. In 1932 the average price was 34 cents.

Washington MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, D. C.

UNPROMOTED COMBAT FLIERS

One thing that grips the boys at the front is the way a lot of the desk officers in the war department and others here at home seem to get promotions more rapidly than the boys who are up on the firing line.

Some of them feel so badly about it that they aren't anxious to come home, though given opportunities of furlough, because they are out-ranked by their old friends at home.

For instance, most of the new pilots just arriving in England are second lieutenants. They haven't been on any missions at all. Meanwhile, men who have been in England for two years, and have been flying over Europe constantly, still remain second lieutenants.

"How many do you have?" asks some newly arrived pilot who has flown twice across the channel, each flight being a mission.

TIME-RATION PROBE

The Office of Price Administration is quietly probing several cases of time ration violations which promise to be sensational. They go right into some of the biggest tire companies of the country.

One of the big tire companies is being probed on a charge of having failed to void the time ration certificates turned in to them by retailers.

In other words, when a retail tire store or garage sells a tire, it has to send back to the tire manufacturer the certificate issued by the OPA ration board. However, the OPA is tracking down reports that these tire certificates, instead of being stamped as used, are going back to the dealers, or else remaining with the tire in the first place. Thus, they are able to sell more tires without requiring more certificates in exchange.

Another big company is being investigated by the OPA for buying up new tires of various makes from dealers and later reselling them through the company's own stores at considerable loss. Even though the tires made by this company, the loss was considered a good investment because it got motorists into the habit of trading with this company's retail stores.

There may be some startling news breaking on this soon.

GERMANY'S SMART CHOICES

U. S. experts who have studied the Nazi military setup to resist invasion fear that Hitler—who ever did the picking for him—was smart in his selection of German military leaders. Three of the best men in the German army have been given the job of commanding what the Nazis know is the death thrust at Germany.

No. 1 is Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt, considered the best strategist and over-all commander in Germany. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, immediately under him, is the best man for lightning moves and panzer tactics.

Finally, Colonel General Heinz Guderian is considered the best tank commander in the German army.

U. S. experts, who believe in looking facts in the face, classify these three as among the top military brains of Europe.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TO END?

It looks as if daylight-saving time were going to be abolished without giving the President a chance to block the repeal.

Several resolutions have been introduced to abolish war time, as a result of protests from farmers in agricultural areas. These are now before the Senate.

Representative Clarence Lee of California, and his Interstate Commerce committee, and it looks as if one of them would be reported out and passed.

If so, it cannot be vetoed by the President, for the original bill establishing war time provided that it was to end six months after the war, or upon a concurrent resolution by both houses of Congress.

This latter provision precludes a veto, since resolutions are not subject to being overruled by the White House. In fact, Congress has written his original daylight-saving bill in this form for the specific purpose of heading off the White House in case Congress wanted to abolish war time.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Congratulations to Lieut. Harry B. Paul Barnhart for bringing laughs to the boys in the South Pacific with his army show "Stars and Gipes."

Every day the state department condones foreign news developments for its officials both at home and abroad. It is one of the latest news summaries in Washington.

The navy is starting a school of government, similar to the army's at Charlottesville, Va., to train men to govern occupied territories. Some navy men are wisecracking that they don't need to train governors of occupation because the British take over all Pacific possessions as soon as we capture them. (The Solomon and New Guinea wars were largely British before the war.)

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

PAIN DETECTOR: An electrical device, said to be able to detect diseased organs of which the patient is unconscious, was demonstrated at the convention of the Gastro-enterological association meeting in Chicago. Dr. Lester Morrison of Philadelphia read a paper on the machine, and explained that it operated by the "derogative reaction" of the patient.

FACTORY WAGES: In April earnings of factory workers on an hourly basis reached a new high at $1.07 per hour, the National Industrial Conference reports. Because of a shorter work week, however, total earnings were somewhat lower, being $48.08 on the national average, down 7 per cent from March. Average work week was 45.2 hours in April.

OUR FARM NEWS

LAUDS COUNTY AGENTS FOR THEIR PART IN WAR FOOD PRODUCTION

Writing about county agent leadership in war food production, in the May issue of the Kentucky Banker magazine, W. A. Cole, cashier of the Lincoln National Bank at Hodgenville, Ky., reviews their part in World War I, and adds:

"They (county agents) are, in World War 2, again charged with the responsibility of helping farmers produce food, fiber and oil needed in the war program. This production has increased each year for seven years and the 1944 needs are greater than in any previous year. By this record county agents have proven their ability as leaders and tireless workers, for while they do not claim credit for all this increase they have been leaders in most of the increases made. The agents have technical training, practical farm experience and close working contact with farm people. They use information and local experience as well as the findings of the research laboratories and experimental fields. Being non-political and unbiased, they have gained the full confidence of the farm people, who have learned to turn to the county agent and home agent for all types of problems that confront the farm and home.

"Our farmers are called upon to produce the limit, and yet they must not permit the depletion and erosion of the soil through bad farming practices, which happened during and immediately following World War 1. Our county agents have been leaders in restoring to production much of this land which had been all but destroyed. With their guidance and leadership, this mistake need not be repeated.

BIG YIELDS WHERE FERTILIZERS USED

The results of using fertilizer of different types may be easily noted on a number of farms in Farm Agent James I. Stephens, Fleming county, according to W. P. Dye, Ewing, estimated that red clover growing on an untreated quarter-acre check plot, was not a third as good as on the area where lime and phosphate had been used. The line dividing the treated and untreated areas is sharp and easily seen, on the Will Alexander farm, Elizaville.

Excellent results have been obtained from the use of nitrate of ammonia on grass, grains and grass seed, declares the home agent. On the S. F. Fleming farm, twice the growth of bluegrass may be seen where the fertilizer was applied. Areas across an orchard grass field on the farm of W. P. Dye are plainly evident where the nitrate was used. On the Virginia Newman farm, nitrate of ammonia made vetch ready to plow two weeks earlier than where it had not been used. Barley on the J. M. McIntire farm made much denser and greener growth where the soil had been treated, while on the E. G. Howe farm, treated pasture carried twice as much stock as untreated pasture.

That sericea is a good soil builder is shown by a nitrogen test from a field after five or six years of growth on the S. P. Fleming farm. The field was set to tobacco this year.

HOME AGENTS CONFERENCE

Causes of spoilage in canning and job instruction training were major subjects of discussion at the conference of Kentucky home agents and the state home demonstration staff at Camp Elmhurst, Washington county. Special speakers were Miss Gladys Gall-up, Washington, Mrs. Frank L. McVey, Lexington, and Food Specialists Mrs. Pearl J. Haak and Miss Florence Imay.

An ordinance fixing the several Tax Levies of the Town of Walton, Kentucky, for the year 1944.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE TOWN OF WALTON, KENTUCKY, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1—That an ad valorem Tax of 49 cents on each one hundred dollars worth of property subject to taxation by the town of Walton, Kentucky, (except unmanufactured agricultural products, and shares of stock of State Banks and Trust Companies incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth) is hereby levied for the use of the general expense fund of said Town of Walton for the year 1944.

SECTION 2—That an ad valorem Tax of 15 cents on each one hundred dollars of the fair cash value of all unmanufactured agricultural products subject to taxation by the town of Walton, that are not actually on hand at the plants of manufacturing concerns for the purpose of manufacture, nor in the hands of the producer or any agent of the producer to whom the products have been conveyed or assigned for the purpose of sale; for the use of the general expense fund of the town for the year, 1944.

SECTION 3—That a Tax of twenty cents on each hundred dollars of the fair cash value, is hereby levied and imposed upon all shares of stock of State Banks and Trust Companies incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth and located in the town of Walton, Kentucky, for use and benefit of the general expense fund of the town of Walton, for the year, 1944.

SECTION 4—That an ad valorem tax of 26 cents on each one hundred dollars worth of property subject to taxation by the town of Walton (except unmanufactured agricultural products and shares of State Banks and Trust Companies incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth) is hereby levied for the year, 1944, for the purpose of paying interest on all outstanding unpaid Water-works Bonds of the town Walton, and creating a fund sufficient to pay off and retire all such Bonds according to their terms and provisions as to maturities.

SECTION 5—That a Poll or Capitation Tax of $1.00 be and the same is hereby levied upon all male citizens of the town of Walton, for the use and benefit of the general expense fund for year, 1944.

EXCEPT: (1) All citizens of this state who are seventy years of age or older are exempt from all Poll Taxes.
(2) Any Honorably discharged soldier, sailor or marine who has served ninety days or more in the military or naval forces of the United States who was a resident of this state at the time of induction into service, and who is totally disabled as evidenced by pension, certificate of award of compensation, is exempt from all Poll Taxes.

SECTION 6—That this ordinance be in full force and effect from and after its passage and publication as by law required.

Passed by the vote of 4 members of the Board of Trustees of the town of Walton, Kentucky, 9th day of June, 1944.
D. L. Lusby, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the town of Walton, Kentucky.
D. H. Vest, Town Clerk.

GEORGE JOSEPH... The Courier-Journal's nationally famous editorial cartoonist and caricaturist, lives in a world of laughter. He laughs... you laugh, and even the "oh-so-important-victim" laughs. Proof of this is found in files of treasured letters from Washington Cabinet Members, state and local personalities good-humoredly begging for George's originals of them.

Known to his colleagues as the man with the blackened forefinger, George used this very digit to perfect a flexible airbrush technique far superior to the usual stencil method. His sketches have been reproduced in leading publications in America and England. Working directly from photographs, our left-handed adventurer with an airbrush tickles the funnybone in the anatomy of art.

If you wonder how he dreams up such droll and amusing caricatures, you should watch George make faces... both ways. His impersonations from Hitler to Donald Duck, are complete with dialect and sound effects. This 210 pounds of "good humor man" blazes his wife's artful Syrian cookery for his size, but continues to eat of tasty Mihiel Mulfoot with Mhuma sauce over it. Because of two very flat feet, George got a flat-footed rejection from the Army.

The man who signs his sketches "Joseph" came to The Courier-Journal in 1937 from two years' study, and one of teaching, under the famous Paul Placchke, cartoonist at Louisville Art Academy. Remember the dog cover on Roto in April? The United States Marines are using this Joseph cartoon as a national poster to recruit draftees for war service.

Laugh with Joseph and you laugh with the world that searches for his funny faces in

TEMPTING FATE

Once Too Often Costs You Plenty.

Many car owners know their front wheels are out of balance—know that they should be balanced for safety sake. They know that if high speed this out of balance multiplies hundreds of times and fights against the driving control and often leaves the road.

Unbalanced wheels hammer at the front end and beat on set up trouble of the steering wheel which makes dangerous driving.

Unbalanced wheels are caused by skidding tires—poor wear of tread—addition of patches—improper mounting of tires—loss of proper weight. Your wheels should be checked regularly.

Save money—be safe—have a pleasant driving car by coming late for station and having your wheels checked and balanced at once. The service is speedy and the cost is low.

IS YOUR SUBSCRIPTION PAID?

On June 9, The Courier-Journal reprinted an article from the Kentucky Farm Bureau News, which sought to establish an attitude of unfriendliness on our part toward farmers, based largely on a supposed antagonism toward the Farm Bureau itself. The following editorial fully states The Courier-Journal case:

The Courier-Journal and the Farmer

The article which we reprint on this page today from The Kentucky Farm Bureau News encourages us to believe that the facts which we have presented in behalf of price control are rather effective. Otherwise, why this elaborate avoidance of the merits of the case? Why this effort to obscure the plain truths of economics and of history by endeavoring to make the reader believe that The Courier-Journal, in presenting these truths, is animated by a perverse bias against the Kentucky farmer and an abysmal ignorance of his problems? The allegation is, of course, as fantastic as it is malicious and will not stand a moment's examination by any well-informed Kentucky farmer.

In the first place, how could we be so stupid? Even if it were assumed that no idea was ever born in this office except as sense. If there is ignorance in this office—and we do not pretend to know everything—it is in any case never ignorance born of failure to try to understand or lack of either facilities or inclination for first-hand study. But we know that it is not ignorant to be mindful of the disastrous consequences of inflation, and we are convinced that it is ignorant, dangerously ignorant, to wave all this aside, as the Farm Bureau writer does, as a preposterous bugaboo. There was nothing at all imaginary about the crash of farm prices, including tobacco prices, that followed the largely uncontrolled war boom before.

We have never pretended that the farmer has had an easy row to hoe in this war. His difficulties and exasperations have been many, and his production record, in spite of them all, has been magnificent. Nevertheless, it would be absurd to pretend that on the whole he has fared badly under price control. One of the charts reproduced with this editorial shows where his income stands—it has about trebled since 1939—and let us not forget that, thanks to price control, there has been no such increase in the cost of things he has had to buy. The other chart is a grim reminder of what happened to farm income before—and, as late as 1939, farmers were still suffering the consequences.

The Courier-Journal is not unaware of the many important community services of the Farm Bureau, especially those of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, which we think has contributed much of value to farming in Kentucky. But we are not unaware, either, that the national leadership of the bureau follows a policy of resisting farm price control and of attempting to hamstring it at every turn. It is exactly the policy of the national labor union leadership, which, though relatively quiet on the subject at the moment, is undoubtedly out to hatchet wage control at the first favorable opportunity. We think the policy in each related to our own self-interest, that self-interest would indicate profound concern for the welfare of the farmer. Our own welfare is intimately and inextricably bound up with his. Agriculture is Kentucky's basic industry. Agriculture will be Kentucky's basic industry as far as anyone can see into the future. The Louisville community will not flourish, and neither will The Courier-Journal, if the basic industry of the state languishes—if the farmer is put upon again as he was for years following the other war. We don't think the point needs to be labored. We could not conceivably be so dumb as deliberately to cultivate the ill-will and oppose the honest and legitimate aspirations of the people who stand at the very source of everything we hope for, for this state, for this community and for ourselves.

In the second place, we think the record speaks on this point. We are not going boastfully to list here all of the enterprises in which this newspaper has engaged and to which it has devoted time, effort and money for the well-being of the Kentucky farmer as he has conceived it and as we have conceived it. It is enough to remark in passing that the first important public service undertaken by the late Judge Roscoe W. Bingham, after he became publisher of The Courier-Journal, and The Louisville Times, was in behalf of the tobacco farmers of this state, ground down by the postwar deflation of 1921. Judge Bingham spared absolutely nothing in that cause, and his deep and understanding sympathy with the farmer left an impress on the policy of The Courier-Journal which is still there and will always be there.

We think that most Kentucky farmers are aware of this. If there is bias in this office, it is bias on the farmer's side, growing out of knowledge of his struggle, knowledge of the odds he has often faced in the past, knowledge of his character and common

WORLD WAR I FARMER INCOME SHRANK

case is woefully, almost criminally, shortsighted, pettish to the real interests of both worker and farmer, and we have repeatedly said so.

We shall have to keep on saying so. We could not in good conscience do anything else, just for the dubious advantage of enjoying the favor of the Farm Bureau leadership or the labor union leadership. We shall, of course, continue to be misrepresented and called names by people like "F. B. Member," but we are not so ignorant as to believe Kentucky farmers are as ill-informed and unintelligent as that writer apparently thinks they are.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

"Social Protection" is Everybody's Business

Lem Martin buttonholed me yesterday.

"Joe," he said, "I've been reading that the Kentucky Committee of the Brewing Industry Foundation is interested in social protection throughout our State. Is that part of their business?"

"Lem," I said, "it is their business. The Kentucky Committee of the Foundation maintains that its job is to work for anything and everything that will benefit Kentucky and its people and make it a better place to live and work in."

"I suppose it's what a college professor would call 'enlightened self interest' but to me it's just plain common sense."

Now from where I sit, folks in Kentucky are mighty fortunate to have an industry with foresight enough to support an organization like the Brewing Industry Foundation, and a special State Committee, to carry out its ideals.

WAYMAN'S FAMILY REUNION

Sunday, June 25th, 1944

PLEASURE ISLE 3-L (LLL) Highway, State Route No. 17, about 8 miles South of Covington, Kenton Co., Ky.

THE WAYMAN FAMILY

Have decided to get together for the third time in the history of the Wayman's since the first settlement West of the Allegheny mountains in 1775. Aaren Wayman and his wife (Rosalin) Creek at Independence Hill. He bought 1000 acres of land for 30 cents per acre.

His descendants since that time have settled in various parts of the United States. We are using every means possible to notify every relative to the Wayman's so that they may be present at the Reunion at Pleasure Isle. Your name does not have to be Wayman to attend. Folks we know that we cannot enjoy ourselves as well as if all of our boys were home, but you know our Great Grand Dad (Aaren Wayman) did not have any easy time back in 1775. He made several attempts to cross the Allegheny Mountains in his covered wagon. He was turned back every time by the Indians, so he went back and started on horseback and outran the Indians. Crossed the Ohio River at Mayville, which was the County Seat at that time, bought his grant of 1000 acres for $300.00, had to do his own surveying. He also brought with him a bundle of apple and peach trees. He was a Distiller by trade. His purpose was hunting limestone water to make good Whiskey and Apple Brandy. In our prizes we will give a good prize for that recipe. Also any old relic that was used by Aaren Wayman's family. We are sorry he had all of these troubles, but we are glad he stopped in old Kentucky.

WE WANT ALL THE RELATIVES TO COME

Take time to have a good time sometimes, we are gone a long time. Bring your Family, Relatives, Fishing Tackle, Bathing Suit and FULL BASKET.

Prizes to the oldest, youngest and largest family present

What news will Gen. Eisenhower get from us?

You know now what we've heard from him.

We've heard that Eisenhower and his Americans have hurled themselves like a thunderbolt against the bristling defenses of Hitler's Wehrmacht!

We've heard that they are smashing at our foe — sparing neither steel nor sweat nor blood in one final, furious assault that marks the supreme military effort of this War!

And what news do Eisenhower and his men expect from us?

Men and women of America — what the Invasion is to our fighting men, the 5th War Loan is to us at home!

For us, as well as for them, this is the crisis — the time for tremendous, overwhelming effort! Make no mistake! The 5th War Loan will undoubtedly be the biggest, most vitally important financial effort of this whole War!

If the 5th War Loan is to succeed, each one of us must do more than ever before — must buy double . . . yes, triple . . . the Bonds we bought last time.

Our men expect to hear that we are buying double — that we are matching their sacrifice as best we can — that the American nation, soldiers and civilians together, is making one gigantic effort to win this War!

That's the news our men expect to hear from us.

Will you personally see that they get it?

And here are 5 More reasons for buying Extra Bonds in the 5th!

1. War Bonds are the best, the safest investment in the world!
2. War Bonds return you $4 for every $3 in 10 years.
3. War Bonds help keep prices down.
4. War Bonds will help win the Peace by increasing purchasing power after the War.
5. War Bonds mean education for your children, security for you, funds for retirement.

WALTON ADVERTISER

— NORTHERN KENTUCKY'S LEADING WEEKLY NEWSPAPER —

Devoted To the Interest of Boone, Kenton, Gallatin and Grant Counties—Kenton-Campbell Courier Consolidated With the Advertiser

Subscription $1.50 Per Year In Advance

WALTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JUNE 29, 1944

VOLUME 30—NO. 32

Advertiser To Make Big Improvement In Paper Next Week

More Correspondences Will Be Needed

The Walton Advertiser will start next week, the printing of all eight pages filled with all local news. Up until this time due to labor shortage the paper has had 4 pages printed in Cincinnati which contains only foreign news and fillers. This will give the paper much more space for all the local happenings which we feel will be of much more interest to local readers.

More Correspondents Needed

In order to fill this additional space in the Advertiser, we will need the cooperation of all our correspondents throughout this section. Anyone who has written news in the past are earnestly requested to write the news from their locality and if they cannot, they are asked to contact someone who would do this.

There are several communities such as Independence, Morning View, Crittenden, Florence, Richmond, and Nicholson, that we wish to get correspondence from. There are plenty more localities such as these that we wish to cover, so won't some public spirited person, help to build our section by reporting all news happenings.

STILL 68 LEFT

There are still 68 persons on our list who need to renew their subscription in order to escape the cut on July 1st. We must comply with the Postal Laws on that date by having only those that are paid in advance on our list. Let's not have a single one to take off on July 1st. What do you say?

LICENSE NOTICE

State Occupational license for the sale of soft drinks, ice cream, lunch, tobacco, billiards, theatre, expire on June 30, 1944. Please renew on or before that date to avoid penalty.

C. B. Benson
Boone County Court Clerk

BOONE'S QUOTA ON FIGHTING PAPER 1944

To satisfy the minimum needs of the Army and Civilian requirements, our nation must secure eight million tons of waste paper in 1944. Kentucky has been asked for 14,228,135 pounds a month. The quota for Boone County is 54,100 lbs. based on population 10,820—or about five pounds per person.

The demand for paper will continue to give more serious and probably the real "pinch" will come this fall. Many people are not alert to the situation. Consequently we expect an increase in the paper salvage from month to month, specially on the part of all communities who go into action with a determination to put over this important war cause.

Please make a desperate effort to increase the amount going out from your home.

Watch for collection dates.

County Chairman.

60 Acres Balboa Rye Grown In County

Sixty acres of Balboa rye is reported grown in the county the past year, according to the County Agent's Office. This new rye has been found superior for quick growth and winter and early spring pasture to all other crops.

It is hoped that at least 1,000 acres can be seeded this fall. The greatest difficulty has been in securing seed. Rye is open pollinated, easily crosses with other rye and the result is that some of the seed sold as Balboa rye has not been true to variety. The Farm Bureau plans to sponsor a special seed securing service to its members this fall.

Local growers of Balboa rye this year are: Harold Crigler, Hebron, B. C. Stephens, Grant, Hugh Stephens, Orville Hensley, O. Y. Kelley and J. C. Acres of East Bend, and Walter King of Verona. These growers have been encouraged to harvest seed for sale to their neighbors.

ERNEST WEBSTER

Ernest Webster passed away in St. Elizabeth Hospital, Thursday June 22 following a short illness. Mr. Webster and family moved here from Grant County about 20 years ago.

He was a member of Walton Baptist Church, a member of Walton Masonic Lodge, and was active in Boone County Fish and Game Protective Association.

He was employed as a signal maintenance man for the L & N Railroad.

He is survived by his wife Mable Webster, one daughter Ernestine of Walton, five brothers and one sister of Grant County. Funeral services were conducted at Walton Baptist Church, Sunday at 3 P. M. with the pastor Rev. Garrett in charge.

Palbearers were: Charles Carlele, Wm. Breden, Elmer Breden, Lennie Busby, Edwin Johnson, Dewey Benson.

Burial was in Walton Cemetery with Chambers and Grubbs in charge.

Farm Labor Shortage Acute In Boone County

Farmers of Boone County are facing an acute farm labor shortage, according to Will Smith, Farm Labor Assistant. Several farmers are facing an emergency in their farm operations unless help can be secured immediately. Every known available source of labor has been explored. The labor shortage is probably the most acute on record.

Many farmers have not gotten all their tobacco crop out due mainly to weather conditions. Cultivated crops are demanding immediate attention. Large numbers of farmers find themselves unable to harvest their hay crops and as a result are not cutting all of their hay. Many farmers are offering to loan tools and equipment for someone to harvest hay crops on the shares.

Dairymen who are unable to secure reliable help are in the worst predicament of all. Excellent wages are being offered for good dairy hands.

Those who may be available for full or part time jobs are urged to contact the County Agent's Office at the earliest possible date.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends for their kind expressions of sympathy during the illness and death of our beloved sister Mrs. Nettie Pulllove.

Mrs. Lucy Sanning and Wm F. Rice.

Kaub - Saalfeld Wedding June 24th

The marriage of Miss Margaret Kaub, daughter of Mrs. George Kaub, and Mr. Lawrence Saalfeld, son of Mrs. Anna Saalfeld, of Ft. Mitchell, was beautifully solemnized on Saturday morning June 24 at nine-thirty at St. Cecilia Church, Independence, with Rev. Joseph Lubrecht officiating.

The attractive bride, was never lovelier than in her wedding gown. She carried a bouquet of cream colored roses, tied with a white satin ribbon.

Miss Henrietta Kaub, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaid was Miss Rose Mary Hallenger. Both carried a beautiful bouquet of American Beauty roses, tied with a green satin ribbon.

First Sergeant John Saalfeld was his brothers' best man. After the ceremony dinner was served at the home of the bride to the immediate family, followed by a reception in the evening at the bride's home on Green road.

Later in the evening the bride and groom left on their honeymoon, the destination of which was kept a secret.

Upon their return they will reside in Covington.

REVIVAL MEETING

A revival meeting is now in progress at First Church of God on Sunset Ave. Erlanger, Ky.

The meeting continues through July 9th. Come hear the gospel as Christ preached it.

The evangelist is Rev. H. L. Murrell.

County Falling Short In Bond Drive; $284,996 In First Half

Pin-up for Those Not Buying Bonds

This American soldier took refuge under a truck during a Jap bombing raid on their positions on Rendova. A Nipponese bomb, however, had his number on it. Here you see the soldier gently removing his body from under the engine. When you are asked to buy War Bonds think of this picture.

From U. S. Treasury

Urgent Appeal To Small Subscribers

Subscriptions for the two weeks of the Fifth War Loan Drive, ending last Saturday night, amount to $284,996.00. This is less than half of the county quota of $600,000.00 and half of the time is gone. It must also be considered that several very large subscriptions are included in this total.

The number of people subscribing is very low, as only 439 firms and individuals have subscribed. This is a very poor showing in a county with a population of 10,000 people.

We are going to fall down this time on raising the County's quota?

Do we want the word to go out to our boys on the firing line that the citizens of Boone County are not interested in them? Really, can you sleep at night knowing that you have not done your part by purchasing War Bonds?

Some soldiers who are now fighting in foreign countries are saving their money and sending it home for investment in War Bonds. They are fighting and buying. What are you doing? The Drive closes July 31st. Do not delay that subscription. Let's have a much better report for next week.

Boone County has been allotted $60,000.00 of a $2,000,000.00 bond purchase made by the Federal Land Bank of Louisville in connection with the Fifth War Loan Drive. In announcing the purchase, A. B. Renaker, Secretary-Treasurer of the Boone County National War Loan Association, explained that the allocation to each county was on the basis of Federal Land Bank loans held by farmers in the county.

Large Delegation From Kenton Go To District Meet

A large delegation from Kenton County attended the North Bluegrass District Federation meeting which was held at Winchester, Ky., Thursday, June 15th.

The delegation was headed by the county officers, Mrs. J. C. Reynolds, president; Mrs. Scott Hamilton, vice-president; Mrs. Lee Riggs, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. R. C. Smith, county publicity chairman; Mrs. Ernest Hughes, county reading chairman; Miss Velma E. Beverly, Home Demonstration Agent.

Other delegates were: Mrs. Elmer Brady, Mrs. T. J. Nally, Mrs. O. C. Roberts, Mrs. Jess Weller, Mrs. Mary Threlkeld, Mrs. Mable Van Landingham, Mrs. Eugene Tomlin, Mrs. Robert Fessler, Mrs. Louis Reidel, Mrs. Dora Stamp, Mrs. George Morris, Mrs. W. B. Wheeler, Mrs. Ed. Kerler, Mrs. J. C. Westphalinger, Mrs. Charles Harrison, Mrs. C. R. Manship, Mrs. Vincent Rettig, Mrs. Edgar Arnett, Mrs. Jos. Domasko, Mrs. Wm. Enders, Mrs. Joe Brunck, Mrs. A. J. Schader, Mrs. Dan Markey, Mrs. E. A. Callen, Mrs. F. L. Nelson, Mrs. James Hiles, Mrs. Eva Alexander, Mrs. Chas. Weber, and Mrs. Kelly Hall.

District chairmen of the citizenship, reading, publicity and speakers' bureau committees gave reports on how farm women in Kentucky are meeting today's challenge through homemakers' clubs.

Four hundred forty-four delegates from the thirteen counties which comprise the North Bluegrass District attended the meeting.

NOTICE

Those having claims against the estate of the late Mrs. Nettie Pulllove will please present same properly proven, likewise any one indebted to her will please come forward and make settlement.

Wilford M. Rice, Executor,
Estate of Mrs. Nettie Pulllove.

Union Vacation Bible School at Christian Church

The Christian and Methodist Churches will begin their annual Vacation Bible School for the children next Monday July the 3rd, at 9 A. M. and all of the children that can attend are requested to be there for registration on time.

The school will be in session each day at the Christian Church from 9 to 12 A. M. and all the children of the community are invited to attend the Bible School. During the school we plan to have lots of play and good wholesome games and bushels of fun for each child and also a good picnic out of town at the close of the school. Our Bible courses will consist of three subjects that will be taught by capable Christian Teachers and we know that each child will profit by enrolling for this year's school. Parents see that your children attend.

Bernard Mylor Saves All Balboa Rye Seed

Bernard Mylor of Elridge Community plant to save all the Balboa Rye seed from his farm and seed all his Corn and Tobacco land this August to increase his feed for late fall and next spring.

Other farmers in the County are planning to save their small grain crop to have Cover Crop seed this fall. They believe the old saying "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" and will have their Cover Crop seed regardless if its scarcity. All Cover Crop seed should be harvested to prevent a seed shortage.

Farmers who can't harvest their Cover Crop seed should order now from their dealer. Give him a chance to get it before the supply is gone.

HOME NURSING BY THE RED CROSS

Home Nursing classes are now being given each week by the Red Cross on the following schedule: Rabbits, Monday; Florence, Tuesday; Burlington, Wednesday; Torsport, Thursday; Petersburg, Friday.

The first meeting at Petersburg will be Friday, June 30 at 2 P. M. (C.W.T.) at the Baptist Church. All who think they may be interested are invited to attend this first meeting, and then if they care to may enroll with the group for the course.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all of my friends who remembered me with lovely, cards, flowers and delicious candy during my illness. It was greatly appreciated.

SPEAKER ON TOWNSHEND BILL TO WALTON JULY 1

Clifford Sullivan will speak at the School Auditorium Saturday, July 1st at 9:00 P. M. (E.W.T.) in the interest of the Townsend Bill.

Everyone is invited to attend this speaking as this is a very important subject.

EDITOR RECEIVES LETTER

Dear Sir:
Just a few lines to let you know I am getting your paper, and that I enjoy it very much. I think it is a fine little paper and it is a good booster when you are down hearted and away from your loved ones.

Mrs. Rouse sent me the paper for a long time and I sure enjoyed reading it when I wasn't on duty.

I am in the Medical Training Battalion training for a hospital boat.

I have three more weeks here and then I go somewhere else for advanced training. I will get a furlough in the meantime before I take my other training.

In my tests and the studies are very interesting. I hope you folks think as much of Walton as I do for there are a swell bunch of people there.

I also wish you all the luck in the world. It is a hard go of things just now but things will be better when we whip those Japs and Germans.

Well so long, and may God bless us and give us victory in the end.

Yours truly,
Pfc. Wm. L. Roberts

MORNING VIEW MAN IS WOUNDED IN ACTION

Chief Quartermaster Carl Dudley Moore, 25, son of Oscar Moore, Morfio Road, near Independence, has been wounded in action in the Atlantic theatre of operations his father was notified last Tuesday.

Assigned to a sub chaser, he has been in the service for the past several years having made numerous voyages in enemy waters. He attended Withrow High School, Cincinnati.

Seaman First Class John Lawrence of Virginia spent a four day pass with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lawrence and family of Mt. Zion last weekend.

Mr. ad Mrs. R. Howard have received word that their son Pvt. Samuel W. Howard has arrived safely in England. Ray says that it is a wonderful place and that he likes it fine.

Lieut. and Mrs. Wilbur Bingham and baby of Camp Breckinridge, Ky., are spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bingham and other relatives of Mt. Zion.

Staff Sgt. Roger Collier of Georgia is spending a furlough with his wife and parents Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Collier and daughter of Mt. Zion.

Pvt. Lebus Stephenson arrived home Tuesday night on a 10 day furlough.

Friends of Sgt. Ben Johnson are glad to welcome him home. Sgt. Johnson who was wounded while fighting in Italy spent several months in hospitals in the United States before being given a furlough.

Word has been received that Glen Laws F2-c is now stationed at Everglades Bks., Miami, Fla.

JR. G. A.'S MEET

The Jr. G. A.'s of the Walton Baptist Church met with their leader, Mrs. Ira Harris at her home. We had a delightful covered dish dinner.

After lunch the meeting was called to order. There were nine members present.

We hope at our next meeting there will be many others present.

WHY TAKE HARSH LAXATIVES?

Simple Fresh Fruit Drink Makes Purgatives Unnecessary for Most People

Here's a way to overcome constipation without harsh laxatives. Drink juice of 1 Sunkist Lemon in glass of water first thing on rising.

Most people find this all they need—stimulates normal bowel action day after day!

Lemon and water is good for you. Lemons are among the richest sources of vitamin C, which combats fatigue, helps resist colds and infections. They supply valuable amounts of vitamins B<sub>1</sub> and P. They pop up appetite. They alkalize, aid digestion. Lemon and water has a fresh tang too—clears the mouth, wakes you up, starts you going.

Try this grand wake-up drink 10 mornings. See if it doesn't help you! Use California Sunkist Lemons.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Up to the beginning of last year, R. F. Goodrich produced more butadiene-type general purpose synthetic rubber than all other plants in America, including those owned by the government. The first U. S. commercial butadiene-type synthetic plant was set up by R. F. Goodrich in 1939.

Black derides, frequently called "iron ho", are sold to be the most popular exfoliant medium for rubber among the Indians of the San Blas region of Panama. No mention has been made of problems for brown derides.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. Navy Blasts Japan's Fleet But Enemy Refuses Showdown; Allies Push Forward in Europe

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This analysis was prepared by the staff of the Western Newspaper Union, and is not necessarily the opinion of this newspaper.)

Pacific—Circle indicates scene of big naval battle in which U. S. fleet clashed with strong Jap forces.

EUROPE: Last Stand

As U. S. Doughboys closed on the big French port of Cherbourg at the tip of the Cotentin peninsula about 75 miles from Britain, desperate German defenders, using on Field Marshal von Rundstedt's orders to resist to the last man, put up a bloody last-ditch fight, demolishing the harbor facilities to prevent their immediate use when the town fell. As the Yanks pressed in on Cherbourg, other Allied forces along the 100-mile-wide beachhead continued to probe deeper inland, meeting up with stiff Nazi counterattacks designed to curtail their advances.

Other Fronts

On other European fronts, the Russians reportedly launched a large-scale offensive against the Germans' big bulge on the north end of the 1,200-mile eastern battle line, while Allied troops chased the Nazis up the Italian peninsula to prepared positions guarding the northern flanks. Using strong tank and infantry forces, the Reds reportedly struck at German forces massed to retain the Nazis' last great foothold on Russian territory, even while they were continuing their drive through Italy, tottering houses from the southwest and east. Not only would the direction of the new big offensive point Red armies toward Warsaw and Berlin, but it would also serve to whittle down a potential Nazi springboard for an encirclement attack against Russian forces to the south.

BILL OF RIGHTS: For GIs

Estimated to cost from 3 to 6 billion dollars, congress passed and the President signed the so-called "bill of rights" for vets of World War II, designed to avoid the hardships suffered by soldiers of World War I upon their demobilization.

Under the "bill of rights," vets will be entitled to an unemployment compensation of $20 a week for 52 weeks during the 50 weeks after the war, if unable to find suitable work. Also available will be at least one year of schooling for vets whose education was interrupted by the war, with the government providing $500 for tuition and $50 monthly for subsistence, plus $25 for dependents.

For vets seeking to buy or repair farms or homes or establish small businesses, the government will guarantee 50 per cent of the loan up to a maximum of $2,000, and interest at 4 per cent and the amount repayable in 20 years. The veterans' administration also is authorized to spend one-half billion to provide hospital facilities for the care of returning servicemen.

PACIFIC: Japs Run Out

Venturing forth from its home waters, Japan's boasted Imperial fleet sailed within proximity of the U. S. Fifth naval force under command of Adm. Raymond Spruance offered a brave challenge to the enemy fleet close to its major bases, but the Nips broke off the engagement after suffering loss of 370 planes besides the four ships in two days of continuing action.

Meanwhile, U. S. ground forces met bitter opposition on Saipan, about 1,500 miles from the Japanese homeland, as they fought to extend their hold on the central sector of the island.

OPA: Vote Extension

By agreeing to allow revisions in ceilings of major textile items to reflect parity prices on cotton, Senate and House conferees paved the way for extension of OPA to June, 1945. The nation's farm bloc scored another victory in the act's provision that the President take all lawful action to assure parity on cotton, corn, wheat, rice and tobacco.

Whittling down a maze of amendments to the act, the conferees did provide for some changes in OPA, including:

1. Filing of protests against OPA regulations;
2. Adjustment of rent ceilings where they are higher or lower than the prevailing standards, or if landlords' costs or taxes have increased substantially;
3. Permission for retailers to carry higher priced goods in certain lines than they did in the previous period.

FOOD: Postwar Stocks

In order to avoid the glut of 1919, the government's surplus stocks of foods will be released through normal trade channels after the war, said M. Lee Marshall, War Food administration director of distribution, revealed.

Although original vendors would be given the opportunity to repurchase food stocks, WFA will only accept fair bids and sell in areas where particular types of commodities are scarce, Marshall said. With the termination of the war in Europe and the shipments of food overseas, there will be no need for the stockpiling of commodities, Marshall said. Coupled with military reserves, present food stocks should provide a large part of the needs of liberated people, who will have to eat while being rehabilitated.

LESSON

Lesson for July 2

ENTERING THE PROMISED LAND

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 1:1-9; 23:1-4. GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong and of a good courage; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.—Joshua 1:9.

The forward look is typical of God's people. They are always to go. They are to be like Israel, to whom came the word, "Moses is dead," but "now therefore arise and go"—under a new leader.

Our lessons for this quarter center around the experiences of Israel from Joshua to David, a period rich in historical data, much of it with most helpful spiritual application. It affords a real opportunity for effective teaching.

Moses was now dead, but that only brought forth—

I. God's Provision of a New Leader (1:1, 2).

God hurries His workmen at the end of their day of labor, but God's work goes on. The people who are attached to Moses and had learned to trust his leadership (even though they often murmured). With his death we might have assumed that there would be a lull, but that was not in God's plan.

The Lord works through men. He gives them abilities and uses them for His glory—often in a way which astonishes them and others. But let them not become proud, for God has someone to take their place when they are gone. They are not indispensable.

Sometimes people talk as though all the great leaders of the church had died, or were dying. Yet God has some obedient men who are ready to step into the gap.

Joshua was ready, when God was ready, and he stepped into leadership.

II. God's Promise of Victory (1:3-5).

The promise given to Moses was still good. God's promises are always good. They are the really stable thing in a trembling world. The question is, Are we ready to accept Him as His word?

If our love were but more simple, we should take him at his word. And our lives would be all sunshine in the sweetness of his love.

They were to step out by faith. The land was promised to them only as the sole of their foot should tread upon it. Israel never took on the full promise of verse 4. They lacked faith. Do we?

God honors those who believe Him and who move forward by faith to plant the foot of spiritual conquest in new territory. Some are doing it now. Are we?

The enemies of God's people were many and mighty, but they were not able to stand in the way of God's people when they were moving forward for Him. Here again, Israel failed. They did not drive them out, because they did not trust God at His word. The application of that truth to us is obvious.

III. God's Plea for Obedience and Courage (1:6-9).

"Be strong and of good courage." There is a side to the believer's character which calls for submission, for turning everything over to God, for being sweet and spiritual. All that is good and very desirable, but it can never be substituted for that other side which shows virile courage and fearless showdown to the cause of our God.

Joshua was made to realize—as we must too—that serving God (and especially in a place of leadership) calls for a measure of high courage unsurpassed in any other pursuit of man. It takes all there is of a man to be a real follower of Christ—be sure of that!

This courage, however, is not to be confused with a foolhardy bravery which is reckless and unthinking. No indeed, for it is based on the observance of God's law (v. 7).

Note (v. 8) the importance of meditating upon God's Word. (which is really a lost art in our day) means so absorbing the principles of the Word that our very lives are conditioned by them, and we are made ready to meet every problem in the light of its teaching.

IV. God's Purpose for the Future (23:1-4).

Passing all the great and stirring experiences of Joshua, we have now a glimpse of his closing days. He was counseling the people regarding the future.

It is the mark of a great man that he looks beyond the end of his own short existence and plans for the future. Many there are who are not concerned about what happens once they are gone. They have no vision, no concern about the continuity of life, in fact they come and go almost like the beasts of the field.

What about the future? Joshua reminded them that every blessing they had received, every victory they had won, everything had come from the hand of God. There and there alone was their hope for the future. And it was enough!

SUGGEST CANNING 100 QUARTS PER MEMBER OF FAMILY

Families who produce most of their food at home should can about 100 quarts of fruit and vegetables for each person, says the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, in reply to questions.

Here's about the canning and storing budget for one person: Greens 6 quarts, green beans and asparagus, 6 quarts; peas, 5 pints; tomatoes, 20 quarts; soup mixture 6 quarts; corn, 2 quarts dried; butter beans, 7 pints; navy beans, 3 quarts dried; sauerkraut and cabbage, 1 gallon and 10 heads stored and 2 quarts canned; squash and pumpkins, 5 stored; carrots and beets, 7 quarts; parsnips, salsify, turnips and onions, 2 bushels; potatoes and sweet potatoes, 4 bushels; apples, 1 bushel stored, 5 quarts canned; berries, cherries, grapes, plums, rhubarb, peaches and pears, 43 quarts.

Some homemakers find it difficult to figure out the number of jars of vegetables they can expect from a certain number of bushels of the fresh fruit.

Here is a chart of some common home canned vegetables which will be helpful to those homemakers with a canning arithmetic problem:

Beans, lima, in pods, 1 bu. (52 lb.) yield 6 to 8 qts.; Beans, snap, 1 bu. (30 lb.) yield 15 to 20 qts.; Beets, without tops, 1 bu. (52 lb.) yield 6 to 9 qts.; Peas, Green, in tops, 1 bu. (50 lb.) yield 16 to 20 qts.; Greens 1 bu. (18 lb.) yield 6 to 9 qts.; Peas, Green, in pods, 1 bu. (50 lb.) yield 12 to 15 qts.; Squash 1 bu. (40 lb.)

yield 16 to 20 qts.; Sweet potatoes fresh, 1 bu. (55 lb.) yield 18 to 22 qts.; Tomatoes 1 bu. (53 lb.) yield 15 to 20 qts.

CULL FLOCKS BUT KEEP BEST MALES

Keep the best cockerels, when culling the flock this month, cautions Stanley Caton of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Here are his suggestions:

"A good many cockerels will be sold this month from the flock of young chickens. It's time to do some selecting of prospective breeders. A good cockerel to keep will be fully feathered and big for his age. Don't sell the large, fully feathered ones and keep the remainder for breeders. That's improvement in reverse. If you have any slow growing, slow feathering pullets, eat or sell them, too.

"Last fall chickenpox broke out in a good many sections of the state. Pox can be prevented by vaccination. Pulletts 10 to 12 weeks of age are about right for vaccination. Use the 'chicken strain' for fowlpox vaccine. Directions for vaccinating come with each package of vaccine. Hatcherymen, drug stores or veterinarians can order vaccine. The cost is small and the protection great.

"Barley and wheat may be used to help out on the shortage of corn. These grains will be ready to feed this summer.

"Pasture is one of the greatest factors in a good summer feeding program. Sudan grass is a hot weather grass that can be used. Try some this year.

"Cull, cull and cull some more. Hens with yellow beaks, and witted combs should be sold. Culling saves feed and increases profits."

HEIP'S OTHERS CAN

Mrs. Hubert Straughn, Oldham county, is again planning to can around 1,200 quarts of vegetables and fruit. For the past several years she has put up more than 1,000 quarts, half of which is for her family of three, the rest for other people. With the money earned, Mrs. Straughn has made improvements in her home. She also helps her husband with the field work and grows the garden which produces most of the food she cans.

On the alert for new information as to canning methods, Mrs. Straughn, who is president of the Westport Homemakers' Club, never misses a canning demonstration, according to Home Agent Lila Hembree. Canning is not drudgery to this homemaker, Miss Hembree said, for she has learned the easy way to do it.

Mrs. Straughn has helped out in the wartime food emergency by taking her pressure cooker to the homes of friends and neighbors to assist in canning hundreds of food. She is also advisor to the 4-H club in her community, her 14-year old son belongs to those taking the second year of foodpreservation work. Then she cans at least 50 quarts for church orphans and for the county hospital.

TEMPTING FATE

Once Too Often Costs You Plenty.

Many of our owners know that their wheels are out of balance—know that they should be balanced for safety sake. They know that at high speeds this out of balance multiplies hundreds of lbs. of force on the tires, the driving control and other factors the most.

Unbalanced wheels hammer at the front and back end and set up a vibration of the steering wheel which makes driving dangerous. Unbalanced wheels are caused by changing tire—change a wheel of front—addition of patches—improper mounting of tire—loss of balance weight. Your wheels should be checked regularly.

Save money—be safe—have a pleasant drive by coming into our station and having your wheels checked and balanced at once. The service is safety and fun in one.

Why a Farmer Should Buy and Keep War Bonds

By O. G. Lloyd
Head, Dept. of Agricultural Economics
Purdue University

FOR more than 16 months farmers have enjoyed the most favorable exchange of farm products for Bond dollars in more than a quarter of a century. Based upon 1935-36 as 100, farmers have sold farm products at the average ratio of 140 for every $100 paid, including interest and taxes. This ratio compares most favorably with the decade 1920-29 with a ratio of 105 and especially with the decade 1900-09 when the ratio fell to 80 or an $11 loss compared to the base period of 100 in 1935-36.

Granting that the post war period price level will not fall lower than the level of 1935-36 for a long time, the advantage of exchanging war inflated farm dollars for War Bond dollars is obvious. Ordinary business transactions are made on a margin of less than 10 percent compared to this extraordinary exchange of 40 percent.

To obtain the 40 percent advantage of inflationary farm dollars, it is necessary to keep the War Bonds until prices are deflated to the 1935-36 level. In the meantime the interest paid on the investment will increase the value of the bond 3 1/2 percent or a War Bond costing $75 will be redeemed by the Government at $100.

During periods of stationary and of falling prices of farm products, which are probable during the next decade, farming will have a great demand for liquid capital which can be readily turned into cash for equipment and improvements. Such expenditures wisely made pay big dividends through more economical production which meets current demand. At such periods the wise farmer is not handicapped by operating capital if he owns War Bonds. Backed by the credit of the Government, War Bonds are so secure and so readily convertible into purchasing power that they keep the land itself as a means of providing ready cash. The discipline of following a budget which requires savings for investment promotes prudent spending of time and money. When the amount for spending is reduced in order to invest for private and public benefit, an increased satisfaction is gained by a new evaluation of current needs in terms of making the investment goals possible. It is little wonder then that such War Bond purchasers marvel that current needs are met about as fully as before and the Bond seems to be more of a gift than of a sacrifice of present wants. Savings for buying War Bonds are obtained, therefore, with the least friction of daily living when accompanied by judicious spending.

Farming is an occupation which offers an excellent example of the American principle of free enterprise. Farmers should buy War Bonds and keep them because their industry and efficiency have given them the highest production per man of farmers in any country. Without high production per man, there cannot be much to spend on current needs, much to save for purchase of War Bonds and much to give to any worthy cause. Now that high purchasing power of farm products is accompanied by high physical production of farm products per man, the income of farmers has been increased correspondingly and farmers are able and willing to buy War Bonds. Such purchases are not only a smart investment for high economic and patriotic returns, but farmers can avail themselves of the opportunity today because they do have the money to make the purchase of the War Bonds and should keep them in order to obtain the highest returns on the investment.

He's going back to finish the job—HOW ABOUT YOU?

IT'S NOW OR NEVER, AMERICA!
you must do more than ever before!

He's come back from the bloody battle of Iwo Jima. He's faced death every moment of the way. Will he say, "I've done my part. I'm through?" Of course not! For he is an American fighting man. He'll go back again and again—until the job is finished.

Your job isn't finished yet, either. Four times America has asked you to do something extra in War Loan Drives—and four times you have responded magnificently. But now the quota is bigger—because the fighting job is bigger! You must do more than ever before in the 5TH WAR LOAN DRIVE. Double your usual extra War Bond purchases. Triple them, if you can! Send your dollars out to finish the job!

'V' Is For Vision

Everybody has a part in the drive for VICTORY. Good eyesight is of vital importance. Eye strain and defective vision keeps a person below normal, when it is his or her patriotic duty to feel as well and strong as possible.
Come in today and have your eyes examined.

A WALTON LADY SPIT UP ACID LIQUIDS FOR HOURS AFTER EATING

For hours after every meal, a Walton lady used to spit up a strong, acidulous liquid mixed with pieces of half-digested food.
She says it was awful. At times she would nearly strangle. She had stomach bloat, daily headaches and constant irregular bowel action. Today, this lady eats her meals and enjoys them.
And she says the change is due to taking ERB-HELP. Her food agrees with her. No gas, bloat or spitting up after eating. She is also free of headaches now, and bowels are regular, thanks to this Remarkable New Compound.
ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP. Jones Drug Store.

THIS WEEK IN OPA

Celling Prices Set on Used Cars

All types of used passenger cars have been brought under price control effective, July 10, 1944, the Lexington District OPA Office announced this week.

Specific dollars and cents prices are set—according to model and body type—for 23 makes and about 6,000 models of passenger autos manufactured from 1937 through 1942. Older makes and about 6,000 models of models will be priced by reference to comparable 1937 models.
Two types of ceilings are set for each model and each body type the "as is" price and the "warranty" price.

The "as is" price is that paid for an auto when it is purchased from an individual, or from a dealer, just as it stands.

The "warranty" price is that paid to a dealer for a car that has been reconditioned and guaranteed.

For such sales, the buyer and seller must jointly fill out a transfer certificate and turn this in to the local Board to make sure the ceiling price has been observed.

Those contemplating buying or selling used cars will be able to obtain full information from their local Boards in a few days and all automobile dealers will be furnished with a copy of the regulation from the National Office.

No Special Gas For Vacation

Motorists contemplating extensive vacation trips in their cars this year were reminded this week by E. Reed Wilson, OPA District Director, that no special gasoline rations may be issued for vacation travel, and also that gasoline rations issued to B-and-C-book holders for essential driving may under no circumstances be used for vacation trips.

Mr. Wilson added, however, that it is permissible for motorists to use their A-book allotments for short vacation trips.

New Car Eligibility Restricted
Because of the small number of new 1943 cars available for rationing, action has been taken by

OPA to reduce the number of persons eligible to buy them by providing that, effective June 23, 1944, a person must need a car principally for one or more of the purposes included in the eligibility list. This list includes such persons as doctors, nurses, ministers, war workers and others engaged in work essential to the war effort or to public health and safety.

By principal use is meant that eligibility for a car cannot be established when the eligible use will be only a small part of the car's total use.

Living Costs Remain Stationary
According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, living costs have risen 26 per cent since the beginning of the war. This includes the sharp rises which took place before price control went into effect. During the past year, prices have remained virtually at a standstill. In contrast, during the 36-months of the last World War, prices increased 63 per cent.

TO CAN GREENS

Homemakers canning greens are advised by Mrs. Peral Haak of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics to cut both ways through a packed jar of greens, so as to permit the heat to penetrate to the center of the jar.
Pack greens loosely in pint or quart jars. Detailed directions for canning are given in a free leaflet called "Can Fruit and Vegetables for Victory," available from the college or from countyhome agents or agricultural agents.

NOW FOR THE BIG PUSH!

IT'S "ZERO HOUR"

ON THE HOME FRONT, TOO!

THIS IS IT! This is the big push you have been waiting for! This is the "zero hour"! Our fighting men are ready—ready to strike anywhere . . . anytime . . . anywhere . . . BAR NOTHING!

What about you? Are you ready to match this spirit with your War Bond purchases? Every bond you buy is so much more power behind the big push . . . the push that will send Hitler and Tojo into oblivion.

Get behind the invasion drive! Invest MORE than ever before! Double . . . triple . . . what you've done in any previous drive. The job is big—you've got to dig!

Back the Attack!—BUY MORE THAN BEFORE

THIS ADVERTISEMENT SPONSORED BY
Carrollton Tobacco Warehouse Co.

IF WHAT you did for the war effort today was an easy thing to do, it isn't enough. We cannot hope to give as much as the boy who gives his life . . . but we can do our utmost!

For instance, if you have not yet found yourself scheming and figuring on a way to buy extra War Bonds, it's a pretty good sign you aren't buying enough!

When your neighbor calls on you during the 5th War Loan to ask if you'll increase your purchases, say "Yes" . . . even if it takes a lot of scheming and figuring afterward to pay for them.

That's the way our men are doing their part . . . in the Pacific, in Italy, in England. Ordered to attack, they do not first consult themselves to determine whether it's safe or convenient or comfortable. They're thinking of you at home. To protect you, they attack first . . . and figure out how to do it as they go.

Uncle Sam needs your dollars to finance this war and he needs them now! Not just the dollars you can spare but every dollar you can earn that you don't absolutely need for food, shelter, clothing and the operation of the farm.

War Bonds savings mean more to the average farmer or rancher than to almost anyone else. For they form a financial reserve indispensable for the profitable and efficient operation of his business. War Bonds are safe, they pay a good return, they're easy to buy. When they mature, they mean new machinery and equipment, new conveniences for the house money for the children's schooling, funds for retirement.

The next time you pick up your paper or listen to the radio news, have a conference with yourself. "Am I doing as much as I can to help win this war? Am I matching what I can do with what the boys are doing over there? Am I investing every possible dollar in War Bonds today to make my future and my family's future more secure?"

Most of us haven't yet begun to do our best. Uncle Sam needs it now! BUY MORE THAN BEFORE in the 5th War Loan!

5 REASONS FOR INCREASING YOUR WAR BOND PURCHASES

1. The tempo of this war is hitting its highest point. Government expenditures for war are at the peak. MORE MONEY IS NEEDED . . . NOW!

2. In proportion to WHO HAS THE MOST MONEY, individuals are not buying their share of War Bonds. America must correct this situation.

3. War Bonds provide the farmer and rancher with the financial reserve he must have to survive the ordinary ups and downs of farming as a business.

4. Money will be needed urgently at a future date to replace and repair farm equipment, machinery, and buildings. War Bonds will provide it.

5. War Bonds are the safest investment in the world, return a good rate of interest, are easy and convenient to buy . . . from bank, post office, rural mail carrier or Production Credit Association.

Are You Ready?

• Your Fair wants every Kentucky farmer and breeder to be represented in one or more departments of this year's Big State Fair, which will be held at Churchill Downs—home of the Kentucky Derby. Don't put off getting your exhibit ready. Catalog and Premium Lists will be mailed in July . . . but write now if you would like further information.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS . . .

"I can't think of anything else you'll need for your Victory garden, Judge . . . you've got pretty nearly everything."

"I think so, too, John. Ever get your asparagus patch going?"

"I gave that up last year, Judge. Tried it six years in a row with no luck. Just haven't got the right soil, I guess?"

"Well, I think you're wise, John . . . no use keeping on trying things you know won't work. Just like prohibition. State-wide prohibition has been tried in this country seventy-two times in the last ninety years. It has been adopted forty-seven times in the past thirty-three years and discarded everywhere except in three states. Same thing was tried in eight provinces in Canada and in Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia but it was an admitted failure and universally abandoned.

"The reason is prohibition does not prohibit. All you get is bootleg liquor instead of legal liquor, plus no end of crime and corruption."

4-H And Utopia Fair To Held
August 19th

The 12th annual 4-H and Utopia Fair and County Picnic will be held at the Fair Grounds at Burlington on Saturday, August 19th according to an announcement of the 4-H and Utopia Club Council on last Tuesday evening. The largest, biggest, and best fair and picnic on record is being planned.

The fair and picnic is being held under war conditions and in an attempt to cooperate fully with the war effort to promote needed wholesome recreation and education in better Agriculture and Home Economics. All people of the county and their friends are urged to take part.

The fair this year and probably until the close of the war will be on a one day basis. However, the Council, with the limited facilities, is offering livestock and crops breeders and improvement organizations an opportunity to develop their own fair programs and will include in the fair catalogue all entries and premium awards of an approved nature, provided these organizations will be in charge of those phases of the exhibition program. The fair catalogues will be ready for printing around July 15th. Those who want to make special class entries should contact the County Agent's Office or members of the 4-H and Utopia Club Council before the above date.

The question of liquidating the indebtedness on the grounds to make ready for a large post war grounds improvement program, has received serious consideration. Everyone interested in the fair program is urged to advise the Council as to their desires on this matter. It is the desire of the Council that the entire fair and picnic program this year and in future years be of that type that best serves all needs of the county. The question of grounds improvement is discussed in another article. All who will be urged to reply to that article.

HICKORY GROVE HOME
COMING JULY 23RD

There will be all day services at the Hickory Grove Baptist Church Sunday, July 23rd, 1944. All members and former members and former Pastors are urged to come.

The Rev. R. F. DeMolsey, Rev. O. J. Steger and Rev. Roy Johnson will speak. Any other ministers present will be invited to have a part in the service.

Bring lunch with you, but if not convenient to bring lunch, come any how. You will be welcome and you will be fed, both spiritually and physically.

A. K. Johnson, Pastor.

NOTICE

Miss Martha W. Taylor, War Food Assistant, will hold a dehydrating or drying demonstration in the Circuit Court room at Warsaw Saturday, July 8th at 2:00 P. M. according to an announcement made by County Agent, J. T. Cochran. Foods to be dried will be placed in the dehydrator in the forenoon. Everyone interested in dehydrating or drying foods are invited to attend.

THEY DIED TO MAKE THEM FREE

This poignant picture made by an Army Signal Corps photographer shows a meeting Roman mother and her child gently and reverently placing flowers over the still forms of two American boys who paid the supreme price to liberate them from the Nazi and Fascist grip. Look at their faces and you will see that both mother and child realize that these Americans died for them. Remember this picture when you are asked to buy an extra War Bond through the Fifth War Loan.

Pond Building
Program Moving
At Greater Speed

The Boone County pond building program is moving with greater speed, according to the County Agent's Office. Nine bulldozers and power scrapers operators are now working in the county.

Farmers who need additional farm reservoirs or ponds to supply livestock water and who have not already contacted a good operator, should leave their names at either the County Agent's Office or with J. C. Acre at the Soil Conservation Service Office.

The County Soil Conservation Service has been rendering a special service to farmers in staking out the location, water level, and bases of the dams for farm reservoirs. This is an excellent and much needed service. In fact, it is one of the best and most profitable start in pond construction.

Farmers are advised and urged to use great care in selecting pond sites and making sure the machinery operators construct a good core trench throughout the length of the dam. Dirt will settle in most instances at least 10%. This means the dam should be high in the middle to allow for settling. A good spillway is just as important in most instances as a good dam.

O. I. C. SWINE BREEDERS TO HAVE STATE ORGANIZATION

The O. I. C. swine breeders will meet at the Experiment Station farm dairy Building, Lexington, Tuesday, August 8th, at 10 a. m. to discuss plans for a state organization. It is very important that all breeders be present at this meeting. For further information you may write C. D. McDannold, Route 1, Independence, Ky.

"Go to Church" is a good slogan, advertising a good habit. Why not?

Reds Engaged In Cat And Dog Fight
For Second Place

Engaged in a cat-and-dog fight with the Pittsburgh Pirates for occupancy of second place, the Cincinnati Reds are improving their position as the league race roars towards the halfway mark.

Having disposed of the Boston Braves and New York Giants, the Reds are to combat the Brooklyn Dodgers and Philadelphia Phillies on their home soil before starting off on the most extended trip of the season.

The Reds and Dodgers are to close their present series Thursday, July 6, at Crosley Field in a highly important night game. It is expected that this occasion will see catcher Ray Mueller establish a major league record for consecutive games received. If he is the Redleg maskman in all games scheduled before that time, the night game with the Dodgers will be his 134th in a row. The record of 133 was set by George Gibson, of the 1909 Pittsburgh Pirates. Thursday night's contest will start at 8 o'clock to enable the Dodgers to make train connections.

Philadelphia then comes in for single games Friday and Saturday, and a twin bill on Sunday, July 9, which ends the present home stay.

Several Reds are expected to participate in the All-Star Game at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, on Tuesday, July 11. The All-Star Game will be played at night this year.

Tickets for the Dodger and Phil combats are now on sale at the club's ticket headquarters, 307 Vine Street, where mail orders are being accepted.

TYRA JACKSON BONDUANT

Tyra Jackson Bondurant passed away late Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fannie C. Smith of Petersburg. Mr. Bondurant's passing followed a heart attack suffered while asleep.

He is survived by his daughter, a foster son, Morland Nixon of Petersburg. Two grandsons Russell Grant Smith, Petersburg and Robert Yelton Smith of U. S. Navy. Two brothers E. D. Bondurant of Washington Courthouse, Ohio and Stanley Bondurant of Blanchester, Ohio. One sister Mrs. Alice Eubanks of Florida. Two great grand children.

He was a member of Petersburg Christian Church. Funeral services were conducted at the grave side in Bellevue Cemetery, Thursday at 3 o'clock with the Rev. Nobel Lucas officiating. Chambers and Grubbs of Walton were in charge.

Hitler understands the situation better than some American experts; he knows that the Allies are working together.

Americanism: Poor boy, starting from nothing, making a little money and posing as a big business expert by screaming about the taxes he pays.

WALTON TAX PAYERS NOTICE

All Walton town taxes not paid by August 1, 1944, will be advertised for sale.

H. E. BRUGH,
Tax Collector.$513,798.50 Raised;
Saturday Last Day
Of Bond Drive

Total subscriptions in the Fifth War Loan Drive up to last Saturday night amounted to $513,798.50 of the county's quota of $600,000. 719 people are responsible for this total. We are falling considerably short on the number of subscribers in this drive, as the number subscribing is less than the number of soldiers from Boone County serving in our armed forces. It does appear that more people should purchase bonds than there are soldiers serving their country from Boone County. If you have not purchased a bond please go to your bank and do so before July 8th, when the drive closes, even though may be a small bond. We can do little less than match a soldier with a bond. This is the last week of the Drive and it is to be hoped our quota will be exceeded before Saturday night.

We have people living outside of our state who are so interested in seeing that Boone County "goes over the top" that they have made subscriptions and allocated them to our county. We would not need help if 20% of our population would purchase bonds.

We have a number of citizens who have subscribed liberally in every drive, even resorting to the borrowing of money to do it. When the boys come home they will want to know who stood behind them on the home front while they were facing gun fire on the battle front. What will your answer be? A full report of the drive will appear in this paper next week.

LARGE CROWD ATTEND
WOOL SALE WEDNESDAY

A very large crowd were in Walton on Wednesday of this week attending the Wool Pool sale. The wool clip is being sold to M. Sable and Co. of Louisville. The sale will also be held in Burlington Thursday, July 6th and Petersburg, Friday, July 7th.

WALTON STOCK YARDS
OPENING BEING HELD UP

The Walton Stock Yards which is ready for opening, is being postponed because of the extreme dry weather. The announcement of their opening will appear in the Advertiser the week before they open. The sale day will be on Tuesday of each week when they get started.

Sportsmen To Select Candidates For Game Commission

At meetings to be held this week in the 9 Congressional Districts of the State, "SPORTSMEN" will select five residents and citizens of their district, who are well informed on the subject of wildlife conservation and restoration, and recommend such person to Governor Willis for appointment to the Game and Fish Commission, J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, announced today.

Perkins pointed out that in the revised Game and Fish Code the law states that "the sportsmen in attendance shall select five residents and citizens of the district."

The word "sportsmen" is also defined in the Game and Fish Code as follows: "The word sportsmen as used in this act shall mean a resident hunter or fisherman licensed in Kentucky." Perkins pointed out that in the revised Game and Fish Code the law states that "the sportsmen in attendance shall select five residents and citizens of the district."

According to that definition of sportsmen, only those persons who have purchased their 1942 and 1943 hunting or fishing licenses may participate in the selection of their delegates for the Game and Fish Commission.

The first meeting will be held in the 5th District at Carrollton at 1 p. m., on July 5th. The second meeting will be held in the 6th District at Lexington on July 5th at 7:30 p. m. In the 3rd District at Louisville at the Armory on July 6th, at 8 p. m. In the 7th District at Prestonsburg on July 7th, at 1 p. m. In the 8th District at Ashland on July 7th, at 7:30 p. m. In the 9th District at Somerset on July 7th, at 7:30 p. m. In the 4th District at Middlesboro on July 10th, at 1 p. m. In the 2nd District at Bowling Green on July 10th at 7:30 p. m. And in the 1st District at Mayfield on July 11th, at 7:30 p. m.

Commissioned Ensign

JAMES G. DAY

James G. Day, son of Mrs. Sallie Day of Edwards Ave, Walton, has graduated from the Naval Air Training Center at Corpus Christi, Texas, and was commissioned an Ensign in the Naval Reserve on June 15.

He received his preliminary flight instruction at Oxford, Ohio, Iowa City, Iowa, and Ottumwa, Iowa. Ensign Day spent a few days at his home enroute to an advanced Fighter Base at Sanford, Florida.

Ensign Day is a graduate of New Haven High School.

Decision About 4-H
Utopia Fair Left
To Public

The 4-H and Utopia Club Fair belongs to the people of Boone County. The 4-H and Utopia Club Council is the official elected committee who donate their time and service in supervising the grounds and in planning for a better and improved Agricultural and Home Economics program among youth in the county. Such a program to best serve, must include the full cooperation of all the people and an expression of their desires.

Six thousand dollars have been spent in purchasing and improving the grounds. All but $1200.00 of this amount has been paid. This $1200.00 indebtedness must be paid before much needed additional improvements in livestock pens, buildings, a grand stand and show rings can be made. If the entire indebtedness can be liquidated before the post-war period, we will at that time be in a position to take advantage of surplus labor and materials to carry out a worthwhile new improvement program. People today probably have more money to contribute than they will later.

Everyone is urged to fill out the questionnaire below and mail either to the 4-H and Utopia Council or the County Agent's Office at Burlington before July 10th.

Question—
1. Do you favor in 1944 a sale charge of 25 cents for adults to apply to the Fair Grounds debt?—Yes or—No.

2. Do you think such a charge would be detrimental to:
(a) the attendance
(b) the spirit and good will of the people

Spence Is Candidate
For Re-election
From 5th District

Representative Brent Spence, representative from the Fifth District, is a candidate in the August Primary for re-election to Congress.

Rep. Brent Spence left Washington late Friday on a special train carrying dignitaries from this and other countries to Bretton Woods, N. H., for the United Nations monetary conference.

In letters to friends here, he explained that his presence at this conference will prevent him from returning to the Fifth District for a personal campaign in his behalf until July 17 or 18. The conference ends July 15.

Purpose of the important monetary conference is to further international exchange and stabilization and provide stabilization and financial assistance for the postwar stabilization, through an international bank.

In a statement to the voters of this District Rep. Spence says, "I have tried in the past five years as Representative in Congress to serve you to the best of my ability and will try to contact as many as possible before election day. But if I do not see all, I want you to know that I will appreciate your support."

OUR IMPROVEMENTS

Last week the Advertiser promised its readers some big improvements in the paper and we will list a few that we think will interest you:

We are printing all eight pages here and be sure to read every page as contains local interest stories. There is about twice as much local reading matter in the paper this week including about twelve new correspondents from various communities.

Our "Soldiers' Column" which originally appeared on page one will be on page two weekly thereby giving us more space for this interesting column.

A questionable improvement is a new column by Ye Editor called "Thinking, Doing, Seeing" which will appear on page two—when ever he does any thinking.

A regular "Rationing at a Glance" will appear weekly to give condensed reports on rationing.

A new column called "News from our State Capital" is also a new feature.

Again we wish to make an appeal to persons in the various communities that are not being represented in our columns to please write the news and send it to us weekly. The only request is that it reach us early in the week.

We have had several persons make some helpful criticisms in regard to our paper and we will try to work out all these as fast as we can, and if anyone else has an idea as to how we may improve our paper, we will appreciate your help.

Ye Editor.

THINKINGS DOINGS SEINGS

By Ye Editor

This little column will be written by Ye Editor from time to time, to express some of his intimate thoughts, seings and doings—written to give you maybe an idea, a laugh or maybe a tear.

There has been millions of words written about War Bond buying, and I will not try to repeat—but folks, can you imagine living in any other country and being happy—so let's lean our country the money it needs—that's not much to ask in return for our many benefits—Do it before Saturday!

Our new service board being reset on the school yard here will be a great improvement—thanks to the Girl Scouts!

One of the greatest injustices in the gas rationing that we have ever heard of occurred here in Walton—our man who brings the mail from the trains to the postoffice was operating a car which had been converted into a partial truck—the authorities made him buy a truck license and so he lost his A book and on making application for a T Book to supply his gas to carry the mail, he was turned down flat—We have heard that the mails must go through but how—Guess he'll have to get a horse and wagon!

For the last several weeks we have been trying to get people to pay their subscriptions in advance, in accordance with Postal Law, and we have had wonderful results—about 200 renewals and best of all about 100 new subscribers and what they tell us about our paper is very encouraging to say the least—We thank you and hope we can live up to your expectations. But here is the bad part—We had to remove a few from our list—that broke our hearts! Wish they would all come back as readers soon.

I believe Mrs. Dr. Maddox was more excited over the plane trip to Chicago than the children.

On my "hit parade" for June is this song, "Tain't A Goin' Rain No More"—have you got a better? My suggested song for July is, "Singing in the Rain."

WITH OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

Pfc. Masil E. Falls, the sister of James E. Falls, Walton, is now overseas and has participated in a course designed to bridge the gap between training in the states and soldiering in an active theatre of war. At one of the Air Service Command stations known as Control Depot Pfc. Masil E. Falls was carefully processed by classification experts who make certain that she was well fitted for the job assigned to her.

Security training, personal hygiene, a talk by a Special Service Officer informing her of facilities for healthful recreation and a lecture by the Chaplain are all in turn a part of the WAC's preparation for duties overseas.

Her next station will be one from which America's fighting planes take off to smash the Nazi war machine.

Before entering the Army she was cashier at the James Theatre.

Pvt. Albert A. Hunt of the 13th Armored Division, has returned to his camp at Camp Bowie, Texas, after a fifteen day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hunt, Verona.

He has been in the Service since last November and this was his first furlough, but he says, now that he has had a visit to his home and loved ones, he is ready to go 'across' and do his part.

Charles Holder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hall, 108 South Main, Walton, is receiving his initial naval indoctrination at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill. His "boot" training consists of instruction in seamanship, military drill, and general naval procedure. During this period a series of aptitude tests will be taken by the recruit to determine whether he will be assigned to a Naval Service School or to immediate active duty at sea. His recruit training completed, the seaman will spend a period of leave at home.

APPRECIATES ADVERTISER

Gentlemen:

Have meant to write and thank you for the copies of the Walton Advertiser which you have been sending to me. News of home and friends is always welcome and the Advertiser just fills the bill.

With best of regards to you and our many friends there, I remain Sincerely,
B. F. Stansifer, Phm. 3-C

James G. Day son of Mrs. Sallie Day of Edwards Ave. has graduated from the Naval Air Training Center at Corpus Christi, Texas, and was commissioned an Ensign in the Naval Reserve on June 15.

RECEIVES LETTER FROM HUSBAND

Pvt. Remley Williams writes his wife from somewhere in England.

It has been windy and cool here ever since we arrived. We are still getting plenty to eat and the cooks seem to know how to cook. I have had a cold but am much better now. It's 5 minutes after 7 now, that's 2 after 2 at home, time for Janet to take her nap.

It's a funny thing, as old as this country is over here, you never see any poor land, all the land looks rich, and the fields are clean as can be. They have some of the smallest trains over here you ever saw. The box cars are a little larger than a wagon bed and run on the left side of the track.

Simpson and I are going to church tomorrow.
Hope everyone is O. K. Kiss Janet for me.
Love to all, Rem.

SPARTA

James Bond

Died Sunday, June 25, James Bond, age 79, a native of Owen Co., son of the late James Bond Sr., of early pioneer ancestors of Kentucky. He was an extensive land owner and farmer. The deceased was three times married, first to Miss Achille Garvey of New Liberty, later to Mrs. Stella Hunt of Sparta, both of whom passed away about four years ago. He married Mrs. Libb Trapp of Indianapolis, Ind., who survives him along with a daughter, Mrs. Irvine Scott of Owen county; one son, Ralph, of Lexington, and five grand children.

The funeral was held Tuesday, 2 p. m. from the late home in Sparta after which the remains were laid to rest in New Liberty cemetery.

Harold Wilson

Died June 19, in General Hospital Cincinnati, Harold Wilson, 27, second son of Eliza and Maud Samuels Wilson from paralysis. He was employed in the office of Wright defense plant, and was stricken on Saturday. The deceased was born and reared here and was dearly beloved by all who knew him. The large assembly at his funeral attested to that.

The funeral was held Thursday in the Sparta Christian Church where he had been a member since childhood. He leaves to mourn the loss one brother, Lieut. Ernest G. Wilson of Shepherds Field, Texas, and a sister, Lieut. Martha Irine Wilson of Camp Crowder, Mo., his parents besides other relatives. He was a splendid young man of sterling character and possessed a brilliant mind and a heart of gold. The community loses a valuable citizen.

The funeral was conducted from the Sparta Christian Church by Rev. W. J. Clark. Burial was in Warsaw cemetery.

BOWEL CLEANING POWER OF ERB-HELP

One man recently took ERB-HELP three days and said afterward that he never would have believed his body contained so much filthy substance. He says his stomach, intestines, bowels and whole system were so thoroughly cleansed that his constant headaches came to an end, several pimply skin eruptions on his face dried up overnight, and even the rheumatic pains in his knees disappeared. At present he is an altogether different man, feeling fine in every way.

... and readers in 225,000 Courier-Journal homes chuckle gleefully as he "mugs" notables in the news

GEORGE JOSEPH... The Courier-Journal's nationally famous editorial cartoonist and caricaturist, lives in a world of laughter. He laughs... you laugh, and even the "oh-so-important-victim" laughs. Proof of this is found in files of treasured letters from Washington Cabinet Members, state and local personalities good-humoredly begging for George's originals of them.

Known to his colleagues as the man with the blackened forefinger, George used this very digit to perfect a flexible airbrush technique far superior to the usual stencil method. His sketches have been reproduced in leading publications in America and England. Working directly from photographs, our left-handed adventurer with an airbrush tickles the funnybone in the anatomy of art.

If you wonder how he dreams up such droll and amusing caricatures, you should watch George make faces... both ways. His impersonations from Hitler to Donald Duck, are complete with dialect and sound effects. This 210 pounds of "good humor man" blames his wife's arid Syrian cookery for his size, but continues to eat of tasty Mibahie Mulfoof with Mhume sauce over it. Because of two very flat feet, George got a flat-footed rejection from the Army.

The man who signs his sketches "Joseph" came to The Courier-Journal in 1937 from two years' study, and one of teaching, under the famous Paul Placchke, cartoonist at Louisville Art Academy. Remember the dog cover on Roto in April? The United States Marines are using this Joseph cartoon as a national poster to recruit draftees for war service.

Laugh with Joseph and you laugh with the world that searches for his funny faces in

The Bishop, who retires later this month, was lauded by nearly a score of distinguished speakers and honored by the dedication of a commemorative tablet.

CONTROL MEASURES FOR GARDEN INSECTS AND OTHER LEAF EATING PESTS

According to Kenton county Agricultural Agent, C. A. Wicklund the University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture, Extension Circular 359, CONTROL MEASURES FOR COMMON GARDEN INSECTS, Striped Cucumber Beetle, Cabbage Worms, Aphids or plant lice, Blister beetles, Colorado potato beetles and other garden insects.

See your local County Agricultural Agent for a copy of this circular.

Apply Control Measures Early When control measures are made in the stages of plant injury they are much more effective than when applied after the insects have done considerable damage. Be on guard and when the first signs of injury are evident the control measures should be applied for best results.

Other Leaf Eating Insects At this time of the season the web worms, tent caterpillars and bag worms are causing considerable injury to the foliage of trees, plants and shrubs. Inspect your plants once a week or at intervals and apply control measures before much damage is done by the insects.

Leaf-eating insects can be killed by spraying or dusting the foliage where the insects feed, with calcium arsenate, or other forms of arsenate poison. In the case of Web Worms the webs and clusers of worms should be destroyed in the early stages before they start to scatter and spread about the branches. If the early broods are allowed to develop and multiply, they will cause great damage later when the second brood of worms hatch.

GRAPE FOR THE HOME IN 1944 The home supply of grapes is more important than usual this year with the short crop of small fruits. For this reason steps should be taken to protect the grape crop from insect damage and from the Black Rot disease.

Leaflet 72, Grapes for the Home, published by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics Agriculture Extension Division gives detailed information for the production of grapes for the home.

The circular points out the use of Nicotine sulfate where leaf hoppers are damaging the grape leaves at this season of the year.

It is past the season for the Black Rot spray but the last Black Rot spray has not been applied yet it should help to reduce the rotting in case a rainy spell sets in before the grapes ripen.

The use of a spreader or stickler is important in keeping the spray on the grape berries.

Get a copy of the spray schedule and how to make Bordeaux mixture, from your County Agent.

NEEDS

"BREATHING SPACE"

Air space in back of your refrigerator and over the top is important...

Because the mechanism, which is usually at the base of the cabinet, requires free circulation of air so that heat removed from food compartment may be carried away.

Check your refrigerator's location. If air cannot flow freely from under the base... to the rear... and up the back... circulation is retarded.

Do this — move refrigerator or adjust surroundings to provide free air circulation. If possible, choose a location away from a hot stove, direct sunlight or other heat source.

News From The State Capital

Kentucky's reorganized State Highway Patrol will be given an intensive course of training during the month of July under the instruction of Walter Brock, Jr., of Lexington, who has had four years' experience with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Col. Roger Whitlow, director of the patrol, explained the course was designed to teach the men how to handle firearms, protect themselves hand-to-hand, give first aid, know the legal limitations of their work and other duties. Brock recently resigned from the FBI to enter the armed services, it was reported, but will have time to give the course.

The patrol consists of approximately 150 officers and men, of whom 50 to 60 per cent, including nearly all officers, have been taken on since the Republican administration came in.

Under the program supervised by Colonel Whitlow and Major E. L. Smith, 15 to 20 men will be brought to Frankfort each week in July from the field for a week's training and after that a selected number will be given an advanced course.

Resurfacing work on U. S. 227 through Scott, Owen and Carroll Counties, has been started, J. Stephen Watkins, Commissioner of Highways, announced today. This project is twenty-nine and a half miles in length, beginning approximately two miles west of Georgetown running through Owenton and ending approximately one mile southeast of Carrollton.

There has been a decided increase in the number of industrial accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board in May as compared to April. L. C. Willis, Commissioner of Industrial Relations announced today.

Accidents reported May totaled 1,326 as compared to 1,086 for April and the number of fatalities increased from 9 in April to 14 in May. There was a marked rise in male injuries from 977 in April to 1,242 in May while the number of female accidents dropped from 109 in April to 84 in May.

Frank K. Burgess, a native of Nicholas County, has received an appointment as Statistician with the Division of Public Assistance, Joshua B. Everett, Commissioner, Department of Welfare, announced today. Burgess, Registrar of Union College from 1939 to 1944, comes to the Kentucky Department of Welfare highly recommended from the Kentucky Female Orphan School, Midway, where he held a position of Registrar during the past school year.

The latest estimate of Kentucky population, made by the U. S. Census Bureau on November 1, 1943, shows a civilian population of 2,540,196, as compared with a population of 2,835,840 at the 1940 decennial enumeration. This is a decrease of 10.1 percent. Yet the birth rate for the State has not declined during that period. In fact, the birth rate for 1942-24.0 was one of the highest recorded since 1911 and was almost 5 percent higher than in 1940. The 1943 rate shows a decrease from 1942 but is not below that of 1940. J. W. Kelly, Director, Bureau of Public Health Education, State Department of Health pointed out today.

In contrast to the situation as relates to births, the death rate for the past four years has shown only slight fluctuation, the 1943 rate being 10.6, as against 10.5 for 1940.

Thus it is apparent that the incidence of births and deaths has in no way contributed to the decline in population. The population estimate of November, 1943, shows that every county in the State except three, Hardin, Henderson and Jefferson has experienced a decrease of from 1 to 25 percent since 1940.

Of the 300,000 loss in population, approximately 250,000 are accounted for by the number of persons in the Armed Service of the country. The remaining 50,000 is evidently due to a migration from Kentucky to the industrial centers in other States for employment. This conclusion is based on the fact that thousands of requests have been received by the Division of Vital Statistics for certified copies of birth certificates for persons born in Kentucky but now engaged in industrial work in other States. Many of these persons are known to be heads and members of families who retain their residence in Kentucky and whose employment is only of a temporary nature. Post-war adjustments will probably return a majority of these industrial workers and those in the Service to their homes and thus restore the usual population preparatory to a normal and natural growth.

YOUR INVASION!

FROM General Bradley, leading the invasion ground forces, right through every rank, American men now face a brutal, desperate, able enemy. For this invasion has only begun—before our fighters lies a hard and bloody task, one that demands all their courage, backed by all your faith in their ultimate victory.

That faith will be tested many times in the invasion—in grim struggles, setbacks, possibly even temporary defeats.

1. will be up to you to remember that early victories usually only mean more savage opposition from a foe made more bitter, more ruthless as the shadow of his doom grows larger—up to you to keep that faith in days and nights of gloom as well as in hours of triumph.

There is little that you can do to show that you realize what they must face, perhaps for many months. But one thing you can do—back the attack with every dollar you can spare! Let the Bonds you buy in this greatest of Drives be the measure of your belief in their ultimate victory!

Morning View

The Morning View Methodist Church is to begin Revival Services Sunday afternoon, July 9th at 3 p. m. and continue each evening at 8:15 p. m. through July 16th. Our Pastor Rev. Cardwell plans to have a different speaker each evening. Everybody welcome! Come and let's make it a real oldtime revival service, and fill every seat.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rees spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Rich and Mrs. Rees attended church services Sunday morning.

Mrs. Alberta Lockhart and son Richard spent the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Rich. She is recovering from a serious eye ailment.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Finnell sold their farm to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parr of Independence, Ky., formerly of Morning View. We regret very much to lose such fine neighbors, but are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Parr and family back to our neighborhood.

Miss Ruth Finnell celebrated her 17th birthday Saturday July 1st with a birthday dinner and had as her guest Mr. Steve Wern Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brooser and family of Florence, were pleasant visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fnnell and family over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hull and Mrs. Frank Hempling were in the city Thursday shopping.

Mrs. Mayne Bornwasser and her grand daughter, Janet Matthews, visited Mrs. Maude Fnnell Sunday.

Mrs. Ed Dunn of Detroit, Mich., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Cross and family.

In The WEEK'S NEWS

SUPER BOMBER IN EXCLUSIVE CONSTRUCTION PICTURES.

Five years of planning, testing and building—work that began even before the United States entered this war—went into the production of America's great Super Bomber, the B-29. The B-29 carries a greater bomb load, farther, faster, and higher than any plane in existence. Its armament is the most powerful ever put on a fighting plane: its size, speed, power, and ceiling greatest of any plane.

Here the editors of In the Week's News give you a glimpse of the enormity of the task of building these huge planes. An example of the size of the project is indicated by the fact that the Fisher Body Division of General Motors alone is utilizing eight of its huge plants for the construction of molder parts and assemblies. Top right, the mighty Superfortress is shown in flight; upper left, woman worker in Fisher's Eastwood plant, Detroit, welds a section of exhaust manifold; left center, a vertical fit demonstrates the size of the Superfortress. These four are made in the Company's No. 1 plant in Cleveland. Right center, a huge 2500-ton hydro-press stamps out parts for the Boeing-designed B-29 in the No. 2 plant in Cleveland.

Lower right, workers installing some intricate fittings in the engine nacelles as it seems final assembly. Lower left shows the giant size of the subframes of the Superfortress, completely assembled in still another Fisher Body plant.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

TAKING POSSESSION OF CANAAN

International Sunday School Lesson for July 9, 1944

Caleb, the son of Jephunneh belonged to the tribe of Judah which was also David's tribe, and Christ's tribe. As the representative of his tribe, he went with the eleven representatives of the other tribes to spy out the land of Canaan and report on both its resources and its facilities for resisting conquest.

After a forty-day investigation the twelve returned, all bringing enthusiastic reports of the productivity of the land, but announced that the cities were walled, the natives were physical giants, so towering and so strong that, by comparison, the Israelites looked like grasshoppers. Only two of the twelve, however, believed that they could go over and possess the land. They insisted that God wanted to give Canaan to Israel and would help them, if they would not rebel against him. The ringing challenge of Caleb's words, should have been sufficient to persuade the people, but, instead, they listened to the advice of the ten who were afraid to go into Canaan and thus condemned themselves to destruction and their children to another generation of wandering before entering the promised land.

For their valiant and courageous stand before the anger of the frenzied mob, God promised Joshua and Caleb that they should inherit certain portions of the land of Canaan. During the rest of his days, Caleb served as assistant to Joshua, Moses' successor. He accepted Joshua's leadership and served him faithfully and loyally. Caleb was a great joy to Joshua and to God because he "wholly followed the Lord."

After the additional forty years of wandering and the five years of conquest, Caleb, now eighty-five years of age, makes a request of Joshua for the land which God and Moses had promised him. To reinforce his request, he recalls the promise that God made through Moses to Joshua and to him that day forty-five years before, that the land on which his feet had trodden should be his inheritance and his children's forever; he reviews the evidence of God's continued favor upon him as witnessed by his advanced age but very vigorous years, even being strong enough for a war of conquest to defeat the inhabitants of the land promised him—the strongest and fiercest in the land. He did not shrink the hard tasks, he rather courted them. He believed that God, who had been with him all through the years would not forsake him now, but would help him.

We read that when Caleb finished his speech, Joshua blessed him. He, too, remembered the experiences recounted by Caleb and recalled the promises made to them by Moses, and, immediately designated Hebron as Caleb's inheritance. Thus do we see that God's best gifts come to those who trust, and work, and wait.

There are several outstanding characteristics of Caleb's which we would do well to consider. He was certainly courageous, daring to speak the truth although he was in the minority, remaining resolute in the time of defeat, awaiting his opportunity, and courageous enough to attempt a seemingly impossible task in his old age.

Another quality which Caleb possessed to an extensive degree was loyalty. He was loyal to his people, seeking their best interests always; he was loyal to his superiors, Moses and Joshua, carefully and efficiently executing every commission given him; he was loyal to his God, following him faithfully throughout his long life.

Caleb was also a man of integrity. He could be trusted; there were no question marks about him, no com-

Kentucky's Cumberland Falls State Park Calls Vacationists

By RUSSELL DYCHE
Director Kentucky State Parks

Two young ladies, each with several years teaching experience, were leaving duPont Lodge after a weekend at Cumberland Falls. One of them said, "When I get old and nervous, I'm coming here for a long vacation for what ails me. There is no better place for complete rest, if you want it; and relaxation in whatever recreation you need, hiking and swimming just as you want it." We all agreed. The crowd that was there that day testified that it is a wonderful vacation land for all age groups. Annual attendance figures show that it is the most popular vacation land in Kentucky.

Cumberland Falls, as a Kentucky State park, had its beginning in 1927, when Senator Coleman T. duPont and family of Delaware made an outright gift to the State of its 593 acres that had cost them $400,000.00. It was even then attracting visitors from most every state in the nation, who made their way over almost impassable roads and put up at the Brunson Inn on the brink of the falls. Improved roads and greatly expanded facilities made this wonderful available to thousands of people who could not or would not brave the hardships of the former modes of travel. Many miles of trails have been opened into all sections of the park and beyond. duPont Lodge, named in honor of that native of Kentucky who made it all possible, is a modern hostelry on the hill above the Falls, and many cabins are available to the public, as well as camping ground and ample parking space.

The ascent of the old Brunson Inn was changed to "Moonbow Inn" because in the mist of the Falls may be seen on bright moonlight nights, one of the two moonbows in the world. The other is in South Africa.

promise; he was an honest man—honest with his fellowmen, honest with God, and honest with himself.

Before we close this lesson, we want to make one more observation. Caleb credited his longevity to the fact that he had "wholly followed the Lord." This is not surprising, for, as Joseph Parker declared, "The religious man ought to be strong. The religious man is bound for the heaven of God, for immortality. Herin I would not hesitate to preach the religion of Jesus Christ in what may be termed its spiritual and satirical aspects. Christianity keeps the soul clean, pure and healthy."

TO INFANTRY

The War Department reports that twenty thousand enlisted men have transferred voluntarily to the Infantry and announces that lieutenants under 32 in other categories may transfer to the Infantry or, if physically qualified, the paratroopers.

THIRD FLEET COMMAND

Admiral William F. Halsey has been given command of the Third Fleet. His new command may include warships and men who served under him in the South Pacific but his new post carries duties vastly more important, including operations similar to those of the Fifth Fleet, under the command of Admiral Raymond A. Spruance.

BETTER LIPSTICK

Women can expect better lipstick because castor oil, used to give a smooth rich quality, is sufficiently plentiful, says the O.W.I., which points out that the oil is also used in hydraulic fluids for airplanes and military protective coatings.

Cumberland Falls and Spring Rain

Wartime restriction of travel greatly reduced the number of persons visiting Cumberland Falls, and then, as unexpected, yet perfectly natural trend sent the attendance curve upward. Persons from a distance made better use of their "A" gas books by spending their entire vacation of from one to two weeks, here; and often during 1943, both hotels and the cottages were filled. Early attendance and reservations indicate still more are coming this year.

Bus travelers may now make connection for the Falls at Cumberland Falls Station on U. S. 27 or at Williamsburg on U. S. 25. By appointment, the park's station wagon will pick up train passengers as they go daily to Corbin for supplies.

Interested persons may write Cumberland Falls State Park, Cumberland Falls, Ky.

ON KENTUCKY FARMS

A number of farmers in Shelby county who grew balbo rye this year harvested the grain for seed.

Surplus fruits and vegetables will be listed on a bulletin board in the home agent's office in Frankfort, with names of those wanting foods. The peach crop in Trimble county is reported as being heavy, and a great amount of thinning will have to be done.

Homemakers in Union county slip-covered 47 chairs and davenport to make them useful and attractive again.

The pressure of farm work in Fleming county caused much alfalfa and clover to be left too long before curing.

The acreage planted to hybrid corn in Elliott county is approximately four times as great as last year.

Mrs. U. S. Rogers of Carroll county is growing 33 different vegetables in her garden.

Prospects are good for a bumper crop of potatoes in Wolfe county, where the majority of farmers planted certified seed.

More than 800 acres of tomatoes are being grown by farmers in Hopkins county for commercial canneries.

Harrison Stidham of Leslie county sold 70,000 sweet potato plants to the farmers in the county.

It is estimated that women and children did half the work of transplanting the burley tobacco crop in Bourbon county.

Seventy-eight homemakers in Boone county, members of the Women's Land Army, are helping in the labor shortage here.

Five carloads, or 150 tons of ammonium nitrate were used by Henderson county farmers on pastures and hay crops, and as top dressing on small grains and corn.

About 35,000 acres in Logan county were planted to hybrid corn, 20,000 acres being Kentucky varieties.

In Laurel county, the American Legion Auxiliary has set aside a fund to aid in 4-H club work.

Henry Johnson of Harlan county picked 40 gallons of strawberries from a tenth of an acre.

Apples, beets, carrots and corn were among the foods successfully dehydrated by homemakers in Hickman county last year.

Merchants in Wolfe county who sold seeds in bulk report selling twice the amount they usually do.

Tires

Inspections not compulsory unless applying for tires. Motorists must keep old inspection record. Commercial vehicle inspections due every six months or 5,000 miles, whichever is first.

SHIPS INCREASED

To offset irresponsible rumors Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, of the Maritime Commission, says that the present ship-building program, calling for twenty million deadweight tons in 1944 will be increased rather than decreased.

"FLYING PIPE LINE"

Operation of the B-29 Superfortress planes from Chinese fields depends upon a "flying pipe line" which for many months has transported gasoline and oil over the "aerial Burma Road."

MANY SHEEP TREATED

Approximately 800 pounds of phenothiazine have been sold in Anderson county this year or enough to treat 60 percent of the sheep once. Farm Agent C. S. Bell says he has yet to find a flock owner who is not satisfied with the phenothiazine treatment.

SEEKS TO PROMOTE BETTER LIVESTOCK

At a recent meeting of livestock men at his farm near Loretto, John C. Peterson gave away 14 purebred boars in the interest of promoting the raising of better hogs in Marion county. Representatives of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and the national Duroc association discussed hog raising and conducted a judging contest.

PLANS FOR WATERERS

Automatic waterers save time and labor and promote sanitation in the raising of hogs. The Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics has free plans for barrel and concrete waterers that can be made on the farm at small expense. Ask your county agent or write to the college for these plans.

TON-TO-ACRE CLUB

County Agent H. M. Williams announces the organization of a ton-to-the-acre tobacco club in Owsley county. Thirty-three farmers enrolled at the organization, and 50 or more are expected to join. Twenty-five of the farmers are growing 41A or No. 16, the new improved disease-resistant and high yielding varieties. Other varieties include Mexican and Canadian tobaccos. All treated their plant beds and are using large amounts of fertilizer.

FLOCKS ARE PROFITABLE

Mrs. R. R. Anderson of Garrard county gathered 461 dozen eggs from 87 hens in four months, and sold them for $186. Neff Walton, also of Garrard county, sold 750 dozen eggs from 85 hens in six months.

Farmers in Elliott county harvested the best alfalfa crop in years.

Farmers in Allen county will harvest more balbo rye and vetch for seed than in any previous year.

OUR FARM NEWS . . . . .

RECORD WOOL CROP DELIVERY EXPECTED HERE

The Boone County Wool Pool is preparing for a record crop delivery this week July 6th, 7th, and 8th, according to H. E. White, president of the pool. Delivery will be made on Wednesday at Walton; Thursday at Burlington and Friday at Petersburg. The Pool usually handling 90 per cent of the wool produced in the county, is expected to exceed 95 per cent of the total clip this year.

John Neumeier of the M. Sable and Sons of Louisville will accept pool weights of each farmer at the local points and will pay each grower at the time of weighing. The County Pool is rated as having the highest quality wool produced in the state. Growers are urged to keep their wool dry in case of rain and to deliver the clip in the best merchantable condition. Growers are also urged to have their clips at the local receiving points not later than early afternoon at Walton or Burlington or before noon at Petersburg on the respective dates for those places.

PROCTOR URGES STRONG FARM BUREAU

Ruben Proctor, former Owen Co. Farm Bureau president and Assistant Secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, met with the County Directors last Wednesday evening. He cited the great advantages our farmers have secured thru the work of the Farm Bureau both State and National. He urged that every farmer be urged to join in building a strong farming organization to meet the post-war problems of agriculture.

Directors attending the meeting were: Floyd Slekman, president, John Crigger, secretary, George Heil, Florence, Walter Kling, Verona; H. E. White, Burlington. The directors expressed the opinion that Boone County should have at least 500 Farm Bureau members.

EIGHT APPLICANTS FOR FISH STOCK IN BOONE

Eight applications for fish stock have been received at the County Agent's Office. The two main species of fish that will be available this fall will be Bream and Bass. This combination is theoretically the best for balanced pond stocking.

Two to three hundred new ponds are being built in the county each year. Approximately fifty of these ponds would be suitable for fish stocking. A good fish pond should be six or more feet deep and cover at least four-tenths of an acre if fertilized, or three-fourths of an acre of water if not fertilized. Only ponds of this size or larger are recommended for stocking.

Applicants for state and Federal fish stock may contact Edwin Johnson, State Fish and Game Conservation Officer at Walton, J. C. Acree of the Soil Conservation Service or the County Agent's Office. Requests will probably not be filled until cool weather this fall.

NEW SHEEP PROGRAM HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

The new Phenothiazine worm control program is proving highly successful with farmers in all sections of the county, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Farmers who followed the recommended program have reported the most effective control experienced to date. Unfortunately, a few farmers failed to drench and others have failed to follow the drenching with the feeding of Phenothiazine, one part, and salt, nine parts. The complete program is recommended. Also failure to use a weather protected salt box has resulted in loss of this expensive material.

Reimbursement plans for the recommended treatment and the salt box are available on request at the County Agent's Office.

HARVESTS GOOD HAY CROP

Cad Sullivan of near Burlington reports he harvested approximately six tons of excellent alfalfa hay the first cutting from four acres of land. Mr. Sullivan applied four and a quarter tons of limestone and 500 pounds of phosphate per acre, and sowed fifteen pounds of seed per acre.

No hay crop pays better than alfalfa seeded with grass on good land that is properly treated. Boone County farmers could profit from three to four times the present total alfalfa acreage, according to the County Agent's Office.

BOYS HELPING OUT ON KENTUCKY FARMS

How large numbers of boys 14 to 18 years old are helping on farms in Kentucky—planting, cultivating and harvesting crops, caring for livestock working in dairies, and the like—is reported in a statement from the State College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The placing of boys for farm work is a part of the Kentucky Farm Labor Program, carried out by the Extension Division of the college, working through the county agents and home demonstration agents in all part of the state.

The college helped to secure more than 8,000 workers to pick strawberries and other fruit, set tobacco, put up hay and harvest small grain. One train-load of 134 men and boys from Eastern Kentucky went to Maine to work in the potato fields.

Men now are wanted to operate combines and threshing machines, as well as for many other kinds of farm work.

A circular published by the College of Agriculture discusses the use of boys on farms, including their training and wages. Many boys being recruited for farm work have had some experience with farming. Others need training, which means some patience on the part of the farmers hiring them.

The college knows of many instances where boys were developed into first-rate hands, when farmers took time to show them how things should be done.

Farmers in need of help should file their applications with their county agent.

ACRE OF BERRIES RETURNS $1,365

When S. A. Wurth of McCracken county sold 175 crates of strawberries from one acre at $7.80 per crate, he had proof that it pays to follow good methods of strawberry production. In the spring of 1943, he set out a half-acre each of Blakemore and Aroma berries on what he says was average creek bottom land which had been rather heavily fertilized the year before. He used healthy crownborer-free plants and cultivated frequently until September, then he mulched in December, used phosphate in the row when the berries were set, and ammonia nitrate at the rate of 75 pounds to the acre. Farm Agent Joe Hurt says the labor problem was met by the family's doing practically all the work.

GIRLS EXHIBIT CLOTHING

Approximately 100 4-H club girls in Fulton county who made articles of clothing in their club work, entered them in exhibits at Western and Cayce schools. Following the style shows, the Fulton County Homemakers' Club were hostesses at a tea to 400 of the parents and friends of club members.

BIG BERRY YIELD

T. A. Kellems, 74-year-old farmer in Bell county, picked more than 800 quarts of strawberries from a patch of less than a quarter acre. Mr. Kellems started his bed with plants he dug on a deserted farm on Pine Mountain.

MANY 4-H'ERS

More than 10 percent of Marion county's population, or 1,007 boys and girls, are members of 4-H clubs. The majority of the members are enrolled in gardening, canning or clothing projects.

FERTILIZER FOR TOBACCO

One hundred or more farmers in Spencer county have used 1,000 lbs. or more of fertilizer per acre of tobacco, according to Farm Agent Nevin L. Goebel. He says the large majority of those farmers treated their plant beds, and that about one-third of the plantings were of the root-rot resistant varieties.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The men overseas don't mind any words about the way they want to find this country when they come marching home... do they, Judge?"

"They certainly don't, Herb... and they shouldn't. They're doing a marvelous job fighting over there to protect our rights and they have good license to expect us to protect their back here at home. One thing they're mighty clear on is their stand on prohibition."

"Their position on that subject was stated very emphatically in a poll taken recently among American service men in England by the British Institute of Public Opinion. When hundreds of men were asked point blank how they would vote on prohibition, 85% of them stated, in unmistakable terms, that they would vote against it. There's no doubt about it, Herb... the men overseas don't want any action taken on that subject while they're away."

"And they're 100% right, Judge, because I know how I felt when I came home after the last war—only to learn that we had been over there fighting for so impractical a thing as Prohibition."

Boone County
Wool Pool Sells
49,776 Pound Clip

The Boone County Wool Pool members sold the past week, 49,776 pounds of wool to John Neumeier of Louisville for $25,362.20. The clip was the shortest in several years due to reduced numbers of sheep and light weight of the clip.

Clear wool netted growers 52 cents per pound and rejection wool 42 cents per pound. Eighty-nine and ninety-five hundredths per cent of the wool graded clear, 8.35 per cent rejections and 1.70 per cent special rejection wool. The per cent rejection was double that of last year with partially all rejection wool due to burs. The quality of the clip as a whole, was excellent. The increased amount of burry wool is credited to the labor shortage last year.

Walton, receiving point, received 22,533 pounds, Burlington 19,558, and Petersburg, 8,185 pounds. It is estimated that 95 per cent of all wool produced in the county was sold through the pool. This is the highest percent of the total wool produced on record.

Brothers in Service

Sgt. E. Cross

The two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cross, Morningview, Ky. are overseas with the armed forces, one in England and the other in the Hawaiian Islands.

Sgt. Edward V. "Boots" Cross which received his basic training at Ft. Bliss, Tex., was recently promoted to the rank he now holds. He is 20.

A brother, Cpl. Albert J. "Sonny" Cross, 23, formerly a student at the University of Kentucky and a graduate of Simon Kenton High School is now in the Hawaiian Islands.

Two cousins of Sgt. and Cpl. Cross are believed to be in the fighting in France. Mrs. Cross said. They are Thomas M. Cross and Elroy C. Perry.

Fire Destroys Dr.
Mann's Barn Sat.

A large dairy barn on the farm of Dr. H. P. Mann, of Piner and Bracht roads, Kenton county, was destroyed in a $7000 fire early Saturday.

A calf, said to be the only animal in the barn at the time of the blaze, was destroyed.

The fire is believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion in hay stored in the huge frame structure.

Members of the Independence Volunteer Fire Department were summoned. While firemen were unable to check the blaze, they prevented it from spreading to other buildings and Dr. Mann's residence.

A large amount of hay and other feed, as well as farming implements, were stored in the barn.

BREEDERS INVITED TO EXHIBIT AT FAIR

Livestock breeders and other Agricultural and Home Economics leaders are invited to plan and include exhibits in the 1944 4-H and Utopia Club Fair and Picnic.

The requirements for any approved premium to be included will be the rating of needed premium money and the notification of the 4-H and Utopia Club Council not later than Friday, July 14th so that premiums may be included in the fair catalogue.

Sponsors of cattle, horses, dogs and many other features have added to the fair and picnic and are welcomed. Those interested in these special features are urged to act promptly.

FISH FRY AT BIG BONE

The Barbecue Class of the Big Bone Baptist Church will hold their annual Fish Fry on Saturday July 29th.

Everyone is invited to come and spend the day.

Farmers Facing Feed Emergency

Farmers in most sections of the county are facing a livestock feed emergency program for this winter according to the County Agent's Office. Experiences of last winter have shown farmers great savings could be accomplished through more efficient use of corn fodder and small grain pastures.

Farmers are urged now to begin work to counteract the devastating effect of the present drought and to be better prepared for the coming winter feeding program.

Each farmer has his own individual feed problem. Below are a few general recommendations:

1. Fall, winter, and early spring pasture will produce better livestock with less hay than any other plan.

(a) Balbo rye for pasture will out produce all other small grains. Common rye or wheat are good. Vetch makes an excellent combination. Seed early and include pasture and meadow seed mixture of desired. Secure your Balbo rye seed now while it is available.

(b) 100 to 200 pounds of Ammonium Nitrate per acre will start growth and make small grain grow fast.

(c) Seed small grain early. The earlier the seeding, after August 1st the earlier the fall pasture will be available.

2. Soybeans, Sudan grass, millet and cane may still be seeded where there is a pasture or hay emergency and the ground is suited for seeding.

3. Many farmers have a good supply of straw for the first time in recent years. This straw if baled while it is in good condition, will sell almost as high as hay and will have some value as feed. Care should be taken to keep the quality of the straw high.

4. Sorghum meal is now available. Wise farmers will lay in their winter needs now. This important supplement can be purchased from most dealers at a price slightly cheaper than corn. Properly fed, it will make other feeds so much farther.

5. Hay—if you have hay or other feed, you can not harvest, notify the County Agent's Office. Several farmers have agreed to put up hay for other farmers on the shares. Hay harvested at the right time represents a considerable saving.

6. Close culling of unprofitable livestock and poultry.

7. Build farm reservoirs if additional water supply is needed. Build these reservoirs according to the specifications set up for a good reservoir by the College of Agriculture to insure success and economy.

Farm Labor Supply
Practically Gone

The available day labor or help supply for Boone County has been practically exhausted according to Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant. Efficiency in farm labor practices, planning and greater use of custom operated power equipment and custom work groups will help many farmers produce and save acres of land.

It has been found that through more careful planning and use of available labor saving practices on many farms, seventy-five per cent more work can be accomplished with the same amount of labor and less equipment. This phase of the labor program presents a challenge to every farmer in a war time emergency.

Custom operators with efficient power equipment can, in many instances, do five times as much work with the same amount of labor at a lower cost. Many farmers are using these custom operators to handle the overload to get through the normal peak labor loads periods and thereby are able to carry on their regular work without hiring additional labor. Local examples of this are custom plowing, planting and harvesting sheep shearing, hay baling, corn picking, combining, small grain, corn shredding and feed grinding on the farm. The form of operation on the farm, while representing a cash expense to the farmer, is expanding rapidly.

Examples of jobs in which custom operators are being asked to cooperate during the next few months include seeding of small grain cover crops early this fall, hay harvesting and baling, and corn picking. A new program under construction.

Nursing Classes Going Good

Home Nursing classes are going splendidly in Boone County. The attendance at Florence is around twenty, Petersburg fifteen to twenty, Rabun fifteen to twenty, and Burlington ten to fifteen. Raylorsport has decided to wait until fall when they are not so busy on the farms. The interest in these classes is fine and is stimulating to those who are promoting the work.

Mrs. Mary Hood Gillespie has done a great deal through her ability and home maker's groups to organize and keep up the attendance. The class members and Red Cross appreciate this very much and wish to extend to Miss Gillespie a hearty vote of thanks.

Drivers' License To Expire August 1st

A. D. Yelton, Clerk of the Boone Circuit Court announced that the Clerk's Office will expire August 1st, 1944, and all automobile operators are required to have these licenses before that time.

Burlington, Every day except Sunday.

All applicants for license must present their old license when applying for their new ones. Applicants under the age of 18 years must be accompanied by the father when applying for their license.

INDEPENDENCE MAN
WOUNDED IN ACTION

Pfc. Harold H. Schneider, 28, husband of Mrs. Dorothy Schneider, Independence, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Schneider, 1029 Forest avenue, Covington, was wounded in France on June 15, the War Department notified the family Wednesday.

A machine gunner and member of the 87th Airborne Infantry, veteran of the Sicilian, African and Italian campaigns, Pfc. Schneider was a graduate of Holmes High School and a former employee of the H. & S. Pogue Co., Cincinnati.

He has a brother, Storekeeper Third Class Walter Schneider Jr., who is with the Navy somewhere in the Pacific theatre of war.

Missionary Society Meeting

The Missionary Society of the Walton Christian Church met at the home of Mrs. Nick Welsh.

After a delicious luncheon the meeting was called to order by the new president, Mrs. Walter Whitson. Mrs. Lottie Powers was leader of the program on "The Nations of America" which was very interesting.

Members and guests present were Rev. George Caroland, Mrs. Lottis Powers, Mrs. Lula Howard, Mrs. Lydia Valandingham, Mrs. Claude Adams, Mrs. Pearl Bedinger, Mrs. Lola Bollington and daughter Betty Jones, Mrs. Mattie Griffith, Mrs. Elsie Neumeister, Mrs. Beale Moore, Miss Helen R. Gardner, Mrs. Jane Weber, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. Ada Lewis, Mrs. Pearl Bedinger, Mrs. Lulu Cunningham, Mrs. Ethylene Whitson and the host and hostess Mr. and Mrs. Nick Welsh.

The grand total of all bonds purchased by individuals, firms and corporations, including allocations made to Boone County from subscribers living outside of the County, at the close of the drive last Saturday night, is $1,033,886.35. The county quota of $600,000.00. This is the most raised in any War Loan Drive in this county.

This large oversubscription is because of several large purchases of bonds for which Boone County received credit.

One thousand and forty four subscribers are responsible for this large total. The only disappointing feature of the drive is the small number of people cooperating, as the number subscribing in this Fifth War Loan Drive is less than subscribed in the Fourth War Loan Drive when a less amount of bonds were purchased.

Boone County was expected to raise $200,000.00 in Series E sales but only $112,040.85 of the grand total represents E bonds.

While the drive closed July 8th on coupon bonds, the purchase of Series E, F and G bonds during the month of July will count on the Fifth War Loan.

The County Chairman desires to express his appreciation for the splendid cooperation of the local Chairmen and their loyal workers. These people have labored without hope of reward of any kind except in helping to provide the funds in winning the war and get our boys home as soon as possible. There are many others whose names do not appear in the county organization who have loyally stood with the organization while their money and help in putting these drives over. Without them our quotas could not be reached unless more people subscribe in these drives.

WITH OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

WITH NINTH AIR FORCE

"Scavenging" is the name Staff Sergeant Clifton Robinson gives his job with a service unit of the IX Air Force. Sgt. Robinson, Walton, Ky., clammers over wrecked and battle damaged planes removing salvageable parts in order that the fighters and bombers of the Ninth can keep our ground forces on an easier road to Berlin.

Sergeant Robinson, to keep his reclamation service moving at the necessary pace, must be a master mechanic, and must have a thorough knowledge of every working part on a plane. He must be able to remove, repair, and refit any given item on a ship, and on a bomber, these run up to the thousands.

He was, before his entry into the service, employed by the Rich Ladder Company in Walton. Mrs. Clifton Robinson lives on 26 High Street, Walton.

MOTHER AND SISTER RECEIVE LETTER

Below is a letter written by George Brittenhain to his mother and sister. George is somewhere in England.

Dear Mom and Blanche,
On Invasion day I spent an all day pass in London and had a wonderful time. I bought the first copy that came out about the invasion. Everyone was calm and going about their business as if nothing happened. I can imagine how the people in the states would react. I got the last pass to London, no more.

A Buddy of mine and I hired a cab to tour London, which took us about three hours or over. We drove through Wellington Arch, up Hyde Park and Park Avenue (The same as New York, where the wealthy reside.) We arrived at Buckingham Palace just in time to see the changing of the guard, a ceremony that tourists the world over come to see. Some of the royal family were in the Palace, as the flag was flying over it, which indicates someone is there. I saw the Houses of Parliament, went to No. 10 Downing Street and got to within 50 yards of Churchill's house. We drove over London Bridge and saw the famous Tower Bridge. I went in Westminster Abbey, but just drove by St. Paul's Cathedral. I saw Cleopatra's needle and the ship from which the North Pole was discovered.

I saw hundreds of blocks that were destroyed by the 40-41 blitz. Most of the shattered building have not been torn down, just the ones that were blown down. We rode through London with the top of the cab down and had an excellent view that way. I saw the Tower of London, where the two little princes were murdered. We drank ale in the Tiger Tavern built in 1500, across from the Tower and our names are on the registrar. I saw Charles Dickens's Old Curiosity Shop. I bought Blanche a leather vanity case with a hand painted picture of the Old Curiosity Shop immortalized by Dickens's on it. I got out in Piccadilly Circus and ate dinner at the Pam-Pam Restaurant.

My candle is getting low, so I must close.

Love,
George Wm.

EDITOR RECEIVES LETTER

Dear Publisher
To my regret I am asking you to discontinue the Walton Advertiser. I am moving to a different location soon and as soon as I am settled will send you my new address.It has been fully enjoyed by the Kentucky boys here other than myself. We are interested in what is appearing in the grand old state and I am especially interested in what is happening in my section which only the Advertiser can give. Your Reader,
Pvt. Earl L. Ryan

RECEIVES LETTER

Below is a letter from Jvt. John E. Hatterman to his family. John is stationed in New Guinea.

Dear Folks,
I guess you are getting ready for Commencement. Boy I wish I could be there. I can almost see you now. Did you have a class play this year, and what was it about?

I was very sorry to hear that the Walton skating rink burned down, for I have really had lots of fun in that place. I wish could all get back there again. We used to ride on our bicycles down there and it sure was fun. By the way I took a ride on a Jap bicycle yesterday it rides pretty nice like riding an English bicycle.

We didn't hit hardly any opposition on our beach landing. I think the Jap was afraid of us so they beat it.

We go on patrol now that is about all. There is a lot of fruit in the jungles but we don't know what is good. We ate something that looks like a mushmelon and it grows on a tree it was really good. There are also bananas and lemons that get bigger than oranges back there and also a fruit that looks like a cross between a lemon and a tangerine.

I just got back from chow we got vegetable soup, corn beef, and rice that wasn't so good. We had Australian biscuits that you need a sledge hammer to break. We had coco to drink it was good.

This is Sunday and I went to church this morning. They held it by the beach. There are more Catholics in our company than any other religion. It is plenty hot here and the coconut palms are dropping from the sun. A person has to be careful not to let coconuts hit you on the head when they fall or you won't be able to tell about it.

Send me some mail also the Walton Advertiser. The first chance I get I will send you some Jap cigarettes.

Your brother,
Jack

IN SAME CONVOY

Glen Berkshire of the U. S. Merchant Marines arrived home last Thursday evening after having made a trip to England and Scotland. James Harold Coyle S 3-c arrived home on Friday morning. They were in the same convoy but did not know it until they arrived home.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Very few persons enjoy hard work. Editobia is a disease that results when an editor bites himself.

No battle is a triumph to the loved ones of an American which is slain. There are very few people whose words are as good as their bonds. One explanation for the failure of men is the number of sidelines they carry.

Religion is not a commodity that one can buy over the counter at a bargain price.

The best way to avoid another war is to maintain sufficient strength to deter aggressors.

Whenever a "friend" tries to cut you in on a profit that looks good be smart and pass it up.

One of these days the people will tire of politicians and then it will be bad for politicians.

After the war you can expect speed and more speed, on the highways, on rails and in the air.

Men who brag about their incomes talk softly when the collection plate comes around.

If you have any idea that you are important try to get at the bottom of your hallucination.

A vacation-at-home, recommended this Summer to Americans, is one substitute that costs less.

We wonder if there are Americans foolish enough to believe the propaganda that comes from Berlin.

Theodore Roosevelt used to denounce hyphenated Americans; Teddy's words would not be amiss today.

Advice: Watch that Victory Garden because the dope is that vegetables will be scarce next Winter.

Our own idea is that it is foolish to require a two-thirds vote of the Senate to ratify a peace treaty.

The Red Army apparently takes the war seriously and intends to contribute to the defeat of Herr Hitler.

A safe rule, during political campaigns, is not to believe anything you hear and about half of what you see.

Be on your guard against newspaper headlines that sell newspapers without accurately telling you about the news.

SEAMAN DROWNS; DOG DOESN'T

Baltimore, Md.—While several young merchant seamen were taking a busman's holiday from their vessels by going for a ride in a small rowboat, one of the youths plunged into the water to rescue a collie dog who had taken to the water for a swim. The youth was not seen again but the collie dog swam to the pier, shook himself briefly and the police took him to the station house.

PRIORITY

Railroads have been authorized to refuse passengers, cancel reservations and take whatever action necessary to assume space for "invalid troops and their attendants," under orders of the Office of Defense Transportation.

AVERTS TRAGEDY

Chicago.—When the motorman of a streetcar fainted and slumped to the floor just as the car reached an intersection, the trolley shot ahead through a red light and headed for a huge truck. Myron Morrison, 14, quickly stepped to the controls, shut off the power and applied the air brakes, stopping the car inches from the truck. Morrison then admitted his lifelong ambition to become a streetcar motorman.

A SAMPLE

Sleiger, Ill.—In order that her husband, stationed in England, might see the clothes she had made for their first baby, Mrs. Martha Robbins sent him a miniature layette of clothes made from the same material as those she had provided for the baby—complete even down to the fancy embroidery.

"SYMPATHETIC" ROBBER

Chicago.—When Private Lawrence Rosenblum, 20, reluctantly handed over $82—all he had—to a motorist who had given him a ride and then held him up, he plaintively remarked "I'll never get home to Troy, N. Y. now." The sympathetic robber asked him the fare to Troy and, on being told it was $12, handed Rosenblum back about one-seventh of the amount he had taken.

OUR FARM NEWS

FARMERS URGED TO ADVISE OF SURPLUS LABOR

Farmers or others who know of surplus or available labor are again urged to notify the County Agent's Office, according to Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant. Several men have been secured the past two weeks by this means.

We have many farmers who are still badly in need of help. Several of these farmers are offering good wages. The farm labor problem can not be solved by one man but through the cooperative effort of all our people.

FARM BUREAU PLANS PICNIC

Boone County Farm Bureau members are planning for an out-of-doors picnic and fish fry on either September 9th or the 16th. Plans were made at the quarterly meeting held at Burlington on Monday afternoon of this week.

Free fish and coffee will be supplied all who attend. State Farm Bureau and county speakers will appear on the afternoon program.

The Farm Bureau passed resolutions approving state Farm Bureau action on farm support prices.

Mrs. Walter King of Verona was appointed to represent the County Farm Bureau at the State training meeting to be held at Hardinsburg on July 15th through the 20th.

All we can say about the Nazis who do not believe that Germany is doomed to defeat, is that they are hard to teach.

4-H CHAMPIONS TO BE SELECTED

County 4-H champions will be selected in all major Agricultural and Home Economics projects this fall, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The champions will compete for district, state and national championships.

The county champion will receive special honors at a district banquet to be held at Latonia on Saturday, October 14th.

County champions will be selected on their project work, record books, and leadership contributions to community and county.

KENTON COUNTY AGRICULTURAL NOTES

DRY WEATHER CUTS FEED CROPS

Plan NOW For Supplementary Feeds
Feed production for livestock is a serious problem this year. Farmers still have time to plant 90-day corn, soybeans, millet, sorghum, cowpeas, sudan grass etc. on land where tobacco and early corn was not planted.

Land that was planted to wheat and on which the grass and clover has been killed by the drought can be disked up and put into balbo rye or other small grain for fall or early spring pasture. Grasses can be seeded in the fall.

Seed Balbo Rye in Lospedez This FALL

Additional pasture can be obtained by disk Balbo rye into fields of Lospedez the later part of September. Where fields have Lospedez and grass in the field the rye can be disked into the ground in the fall to get extra pasture and if the pasture is not needed in the spring the balbo rye can be harvested for grain and the Lospedez will follow after the rye has been harvested.

Plans should be made for all cultivated land to be seeded to small grain for pasture to increase the feed supply.

Locate Balbo Rye Seed Early

According to present reports there will be a limited supply of Balbo rye seed available for seeding this fall. Farmers who have used Balbo rye for pasture reports that it provides much more pasture than other small grain pasture. It comes earlier and will give considerable more yield of pasture per acre. The yield in grain is also greater than other rye. If you have not grown Balbo rye for early pasture try a few acres this fall and learn more about its value as a pasture crop.

FISHING REPORTED GOOD IN JUNE

Fishing in Kentucky waters was good during the month of June and the first of July, according to reports received by J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish.

Bass fishing was fair at Herrington Lake in early June and new light fishing was excellent at times during the month. The latter part of June and the first of July saw some "white bass" fishing being done by anglers. All sorts of live artificial baits were used to entice the fish to the hook.

Stream fishing has been good in spots. Rains have been sporadic, keeping some streams muddy and others clear and low. Some sections have not had rain for 6 weeks while others have had too much. Pollution has curtailed good fishing in several streams from "slip" being run into the streams.

Boone County boys, now overseas, enjoy reading the Walton Advertiser and we consider it a privilege to send it to them.

ON DYNAMITING AND ILLEGAL SEINING IN KENTUCKY

J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, says the following about dynamiting and illegal seining of the streams, in the commonwealth:

"Our streams should be protected from dynamiting and seining. People who catch fish in this way are law violators of the worst sort. They sneak out under cover of darkness or else have someone on the lookout for a law enforcement officer. When a stick of dynamite explodes in a hole of water every living thing is killed—little and big fish alike as well as all the crayfish and all other animal foods. Many of the fish that are killed cannot be found, so they are left to rot. It is sickening to even think of it. When a hole is seined, every law of decency and good sportsmanship is violated, to say nothing of the Game and Fish laws. Many times the little fish and animal foods are dragged onto the sand and gravel bars and left there to die. Nests are often destroyed—silt and fifth cover the eggs—and the nest of a fish may contain as many as 10,000 eggs.

"Think what it means to take fish from a stream in such an illegal manner! No good sportsman would be guilty of such a violation. He would rather leave the fish to make nests and their eggs to hatch.

"A good sportsman always observes the 'creel' limit, and is careful to return undersized fish to the water. If these rules were not broken the fish restocking program carried on by the Division of Game and Fish would show better results. We would soon have finer fishing in all our streams, ponds and lakes."

DROUGHT CAUSING OFF-SEASON FOREST FIRES

Extra caution with the use of fire in Kentucky's woods and fields was urged today by State Forester H. B. Newland. Since June 26th the Division of Forestry has suppressed eight fires, and each day without rain increases the danger. It has been necessary to retain lookouts and guards to their posts in some localities. Light showers which occurred in some forested areas last week had little effect on the fire danger, he said.

Kentucky's forest fire seasons normally occur in the fall and spring, from mid-October to early December and from March first to late May. Off-season fires like the present outbreak usually occur only during severe drought. Forest fires which burn now do much greater damage to timber and young growth than those which occur in the spring and fall. This is the first time since 1930 that fires have occurred during the first half of July; then fires were fought throughout the summer months.

Every person was urged to observe these simple fire prevention rules when in woods or fields:

1. Smoke only in safe places; crush out your smoke—dead out—before discarding it.
2. Break your match before throwing it away; then pinch it to make sure it is cold.
3. Drown your campfire before leaving it; stir, then add more water.
4. Extinguish all small fires you see. Report others immediately to the nearest ranger or state fire warden.

FISKBURG

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Judge, I've had a lot of calls for that book you took out last week. 'Tell the Boys Back Home'. How did you like it?"

"Fine, Sarah, fine... it's just the kind of book I like to get hold of... I enjoyed every word of it. Wish I could have been along with the author myself... actually living with the men right on the fighting fronts. He got mighty close to them and they certainly opened up their minds and their hearts to him."

"There were lots of new things in the book I hadn't seen in any other reports from front-line writers. But there was one question the men asked the author that I have seen time and time again in these stories. That was 'Are you going to put prohibition over on us soldiers again... and without getting our vote?'"

"I noticed that, too, Judge, and I think the least we can do for those fighting men who are doing so much for us is to respect their wishes on that subject."

Good News for the Livestock Farmer!

I reckon you've heard how Kentucky brewers are cooperating with the Government in relieving the shortage of high-protein livestock feeds.

From what I hear they plan an annual output of half a million pounds of brewers' dried yeast and 30,000 tons of brewers' dried grains—both highly effective and economical protein supplements.

Brewers' dried yeast, I'm told, contains over 40% protein and is very rich in the vitamin B complex—this latter being especially good for poultry. The dried grains contain over 25% protein and are excellent as a supplement in the dairy ration.

In view of the fact that such a small quantity of either is required to improve the feeding formula, this sounds like a lot of feed to me.

And from where I sit, it's just another evidence of the genuine desire of Kentucky brewers to render a worth-while service to their State.

Federal Restrictions On "Blacktop" Road Work

The Department of Highways is definitely restricted by Federal regulations of the War Production Board as to what may be included in its program of maintenance, construction and reconstruction of roads at the present time.

Maintenance—Under the restrictions: rules and regulations of the War Production Board, the Department may maintain the roads that it has in its system, which maintenance included the resurfacing of bituminous roads or roads that have already been "black topped." These restriction definitely prohibit the "blacktopping" of traffic-bound surface, except with the specific approval of the War Production Board. The "blacktopping" jobs that have recently been advertised for letting and contracts for which have been awarded include only sections of roads that are now under state maintenance and that have heretofore been "blacktopped."

Application has been made to the War Production Board for the authority to apply "blacktop" treatment to a limited number of sections of existing gravel or traffic-bound roads where the traffic now is too great to maintain economically the roads in their present condition. Of such applications submitted, only one has, as of June 22, 1944, been approved.

Construction and Reconstruction—Definite limitations are set up by the War Production Board on the construction and reconstruction of roads. No construction or reconstruction project in excess of one mile in length and costing $10,000 or more, or five miles in length, costing $25,000 or more, may be undertaken except with specific prior approval by the War Production Board, and then only if such projects do not involve the use of critical materials.

General—The restrictions of the War Production Board are far-reaching and, under such restrictions, the Department of Highways can not hope to undertake to do any construction or reconstruction of consequence. It should be kept in mind that construction or reconstruction equipment, materials and manpower are definitely limited during the present emergency. The policy of the Department will be to maintain the existing highway system in the best possible condition for the duration of the war, at the same time making any improvements that financial and physical limitations permit, in line with the Federal regulations of the War Production Board and with the remainder of the war, the Department will continue with its postwar planning in the creation of a reservoir of completed plans and specifications for work that we know must be undertaken when the war ends.

Every Street in Berlin Bombed

Raids by Allies Have Left Their Marks Everywhere In the City.

ALGIERS—As early as last February—and there have been many Allied raids since then—Allied bombs had left their marks in every Berlin street and Berliners dated their time before or after November 21, when the first 1,000-bomber raid came, a member of the French resistance movement who spent three months in the German capital, said recently.

The reporter was handsome, 24-year-old Jean Roy. He reached Berlin on false papers supplied him by the French underground. After his arrival, the confusion following Allied raids and the help of a highly placed prewar acquaintance combined to get him genuine papers as a staff member of "Jesus Payot"—a weekly newspaper published in the interests of Nazi collaborationists.

For three months, in peril of his life had the propaganda ministry or the Gestapo caught up with him, Roy attended foreign office press conferences. He visited prisoner of war camps, traveled through Germany from Hamburg to southern Bavaria, and once lunched with Dr. Paul Schmidt, interpreter for Adolf Hitler.

Escapes from Berlin.
He left Berlin in late February. Thirty-seven days later he was in Algiers.

"In Berlin, everything is either before November 21 or after November 21," he said. "That was the date of the first terrible thousand-bomber raid. Up to the time I left, 30 per cent of the town had been destroyed. It must be much more now."

He expressed doubt that bombing will break German morale, but it is wearing down German productive capacity and war potentials. Hamburg is in worse shape than Berlin and the failure of authorities to build "bunkers" sheltering the loss of life there and in the Ruhr much higher.

"But the German civilian is now too numbbed, too much worn down by overwork, fatigue and suffering to do anything except what he is told to do," Roy added.

Roy said the big public "bunkers" have proved "remarkable" in keeping down the deaths in Berlin and maintaining the city as a working organism. He arrived after the first big raids, and only 10 of the "bunkers" existed, but when he left there were from 300 to 3,000 people.

The Hit Kills 500.
"The biggest are built in three tiers, with alternating layers of concrete and steel over the top and between each tier," he said. "I heard of only one case, in the Potsdamer Platz, when a direct hit broke through the top tier and killed 500 people. The top tier is generally reserved for 'Aussiedler,' foreign workers of all kinds—the one below that underground for German men, and the bottom one for women and old people."

"Where they would put Jews, I don't know. I did not see a single Jew in Berlin all the time I was there, although 'Fuer Juden Verboten' signs are still up. They have all been deported to the east."

In describing the damage done to Berlin before he left in February, Roy said that "not a street has escaped the bomber; every third building in Unter den Linden has been hit, although the Aldon hotel, the former American embassy and the Brandenburg Gate still stand. The Bristol hotel is a wreck; and closed. In the Wilhelmstrasse, part of the foreign office is down, but the propaganda ministry and Hitler's Chancellery are little damaged."

Meat, Roy said, is scarce in the Reich.

"Throughout three months in Germany, I never knew what kind of meat I was eating," he said.

Blackjack Silent 'Cure'

For Japs, Says Marine
FAIRMONT, W. VA.—When Pfc. Lawrence Woodward, with the Marines on Bougainville, comes to close grips with the enemy he likes to dispose of him with as little noise as possible, his father, J. F. Woodward, said.
Some time ago, the father said, the marine wrote for a hunting knife and when it was sent to him word came back that it hadn't proved exactly to his liking, because the enemy "always squeaked when struck." The son asked for a blackjack.
The father sent him one and a letter from Bougainville indicated that this weapon is working out quite satisfactorily. "One pop, no squeal, no Jap," the son wrote.

Gelatin Dessert Used

By Marine on Bandages
WASHINGTON—From the Marshall Islands comes the story of a marine medical officer who, lacking the sort of paste usually employed with fracture bandages, turned to the use of ordinary gelatin dessert. Swabbed in a layer of bandages, the gelatin works well, reported Lieut. J. W. Stevens. He offers patients their choice of flavors, with raspberry reported the favorite, and orange, a close second.

FARMERS NEED CAREFUL ANALYSIS OF LABOR NEEDS

sideration is the organization and training of local groups of young boys under the supervision of a work leader to prime tobacco for farmers on a contract basis.

Neighbor and neighborhood co-operation has been and will continue to remain one of the greatest contributions to the war farm labor program.

Farmers are urged to plan and foresee their farm labor needs. When they see they will be unable to meet their farm labor requirements, they are urged to notify the County Agent's Office at the earliest possible date.

REGULATIONS FOR TROT LINE FISHING IN KENTUCKY WATERS

J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, today pointed out that no person shall take fish by the use of a trot line, hook line, set line or throw line with hooks attached to the line, or to leaders in such a manner that the hooks may be brought closer than thirty-six (36) inches apart, or by use of more than one such line in such a way as to bring the hooks attached to one line closer than thirty-six (36) inches to the hooks attached to the other line. He pointed out that this act of law was set up to prevent the snagging of fish by putting hooks close together across the stream of body of water to be fished.

The new law also states that no person shall use, in taking fish, any line treated with a substance designed to attract animal or plant life, or insect life. Prior to the enactment of this law during the past spring, some fishermen treated trot lines with a substance which attracted aquatic life to said lines and the aquatic life in turn attracted various species of fish and these, in feeding on the aquatic life, became entangled in the hooks, placed close together, on the trot lines.

CIGARETTES

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, who doesn't smoke, has distributed one million cigarettes to soldiers in Normandy and will distribute others. The General made the purchase with money he had saved since his triumphant return from North Africa.

COLD STORAGE

One of the greatest problems in connection with food relates to the scarcity of cold storage room for the vast quantities that the government is buying. The situation is further complicated by the retention of many Allied merchant ships in British ports to rush supplies across the Channel. Tonnage will be withdrawn from western hemisphere trade routes, which might cause shortages in imported products.

War seen as big aid in developing nation's merchant marine.

Game Population Reaching New High In State

Game populations of almost every species of importance from the hunters' and trappers' standpoint are apparently reaching a long-time high, according to J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish.

Perkins states that, "Judging from reports received at the central offices of the Division from interested persons throughout the state, all species of game are on the increase. Reports indicate a large number of quail and the calls of that particular game bird can be heard in almost any direction both in the country and in quite a few of the towns. Large numbers of doves are noted in practically every section of the state. Squirrel hunters say that the little bushy-tailed animals are as plentiful as fleas on a dog's back, and rabbits are showing a decided increase if numbers on the highways are any indicator. The same holds true for fur-bearing animals such as raccoon and opossum."

A $11,000 MISTAKE

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Arrested after a radium detector pointed out his house as holding radium, Alex F. Csonka, 29-year-old molder's helper, admitted that he had taken $11,000 worth of radium but insisted that he thought all he had taken was a plumb bob.

A PRODUCTION RECORD

Ambler, Pa.—Lena, the foxhound belonging to Lieut. Comdr. W. Newbold Eby, Jr., has what is believed to be a record, giving birth to 23 thriving pups in one litter. Two foster mother have been acquired to help Lena feed her brood.

A DISAPPOINTMENT

Louisville, Ky.—After maneuvering a mop handle through a bedroom window of a home here, a thief snatched a pair of trousers. Fumbling through the pockets he found his loot—one glass eye.

REALLY?

Centralia, Wash.—Police officials almost faint when a man asked where he could pay his fine for running through a stop sign. Asked for his ticket, the man declared, "Oh, I didn't get a ticket. Nobody saw me, but I think I ought to pay."

LATE BUT APPRECIATED

Princeton, Mo.—Red roses which Pfc. Grant Tilly called to his wife from London for her birthday arrived three months late but she appreciated them even more—she was in a hospital recovering from an operation.

War will not end Japanese menace, Australian says.

WATER BATH CANNER

EASY TO MAKE
Any Homemaker with fruits and tomatoes for canning this year, should find little trouble lining up right equipment. Half a million enamel-iron water bath canners were manufactured this year. If a commercial canner is bought, be sure it is deep enough for 3 or 4 inches of water above jar tops. Many more canners are being improvised from materials at hand according to Mary Hood Glaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Here are pointers for making a water bath: Get out a big kettle metal pail, wash boiler, ham boiler or lard can. Any clean vessel in which water can be boiled will do. provided it has a good lid, is big enough to hold several jars without touching, and deep enough for water to boil up actively over jar tops. Since jars must stand on a rack, and canning starts with at least an inch or two of water over the jar tops, the container must be at least 3 or 4 inches taller than jars used.

The rack for canning may be wire, wood, or old jar rubbers. Its duty is to keep jars from touching hot metal on the bottom and to let water circulate freely under jars. A wire basket or rack can sometimes be bought. Or a rack for cooling bread or cake may serve, or strips of wood may be fastened to make lattice rack, but don't use pine for this, since the resin would boil out and get on jars. Old jar rubbers may be tied together and used for the rack. Use three thicknesses of rubbers.

The water bath is the best method to be used in canning tomatoes and fruit. This method may be used for canning other vegetables. Don't shorten the time of processing. Follow the rules and count from the time the water boils vigorously. Be sure that the jars have at least one to two inches over the top during the whole canning process.

● THINKINGS ● DOINGS ● SEINGS

By Ye Editor

Here are a few of the comments on our paper last week:

Mildred Rice, Walton postmaster: "The Walton Advertiser is now like a real paper."

Walter Vest: "The 'Agrivator' (the calls it) does not aggrivate me any more."

Russ Hall: "You certainly made a big improvement."
Mr. J. B. O'Neal: "I could hardly get through reading it, it had so much in it."

Mrs. J. W. Berkshire: "There is plenty of news around here to fill an eight-page paper."

Allen Conner: "I can spend an evening reading the paper now."
Powers Conrad: "What are we going to have next—a dally."

These comments and many more like them will make us work our heads off to try to do better—thanks!

The young boys of our town are crying for some form of wholesome recreation—it seems to me that in order to keep our boys out of "mischief" we ought to have some kind of entertainment to keep their minds and bodies busy during the long "winter" evenings.

Going over $400,000 "over the top" in the Bond Drive is a great thing for our county—the leaders deserve the praise for their untiring efforts.

The kids have surely been enjoying rides on the motor bike of R. E. Brugh's lately—but we think that "Rug" was enjoying it as much as anyone.

What more can a person ask than several friends who he can depend on when the going is tough—rich or poor, the person who has true friends is the luckiest person in the world.

Wednesday afternoon setting here looking out watching the rain come down—boy, what a grand feeling! I guess it rains on the unjust as well as the just.

According to the bank statements this week, everyone seems to have money—All of them showed an increase in deposits—thats good!

Who wants to start a good discussion on some subject—we would like to have an honest-to-goodness good argument on most any subject—you name it and we'll take the other side—that's just human nature.

Successful strategy involves the patience to wait until you have the superiority.

News From The State Capital

Joshua B. Everett, Maysville banker and business man, resigned as state welfare commissioner July 5, and was succeeded by Deputy Commissioner John Quertemous.

The change, first important one in Gov. Simon Willis' Administration, was ascribed to Everett's health and other personal matters. He explained he found it impossible to spend all his time in Frankfort.

In an exchange of complimentary letters, Gov. Willis named Everett to a vacancy on the Welfare Advisory Board and retained him as chairman of the new Kentucky Youth Guidance Commission which is to formulate a report on juvenile delinquency and other problems for the 1946 General Assembly.

"There is every reason to believe that the postwar period will see the greatest era of highway activity in the history of the Commonwealth," J. Stephen Watkins state commissioner of highways, said recently.

Watkins said that the overall picture of work to be undertaken by the State Highway Department at the close of the current conflict would include the following points:

1. The reconstruction of existing State highways to standards suitable for modern traffic.
2. The expansion of State highway system to include greater mileage.
3. The provision of a limited national system of superhighways with adequate access to urban areas.
4. Attention to the tertiary or county roads which are sometimes referred to as land service roads and which are tributary to the main routes of the primary and secondary systems.

Kentucky's revenue during the fiscal year just ended was $30,138,987—off $1,000,000 from the previous period, but more than $800,000 above estimates.

The biggest drop in income was in whiskey taxes, but individual income taxes soared to a new high and revenue from amusement and cigarette levies also topped the 1942-43 year.

Figures for the 1943-44 fiscal year ended June 30, subject to minor corrections, showing the following comparisons with 1942-43, the latter years' total being given first:

Beer consumption taxes, $1,467,785 and $1,624,486; distilled spirits consumption, $3,050,739 and $2,468,363; distilled spirits production, $1,105,654, and $1,251,561; corporation income, $3,708,425 and $3,351,590; individual income, $4,202,836 and $4,110,486; inheritance, $1,314,379 and $5,501,697; franchises, $1,510,205 and $1,328,529; amusements, $863,199 and $1,072,445; cigarette, $2,495,706 and $2,876,684.

While distilleries turned from whiskey making of war alcohol production with a consequent fall of revenue there, the income from licenses for sale of whiskey increased with $468,280 collected from that source, compared to $433,386 the previous year.

Commissioner Moore explained that revenue from corporation income taxes during the calendar year of 1943 exceeded that of 1942, but differences in deferred payments caused a drop when reported on a local basis.

During the last week in June, officials of the Federal Food and Drug Administration and of the Food, Drug and Health Division of the State Department of Health, met in Louisville for a two-day discussion of plans for joint inspection work in Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee. John W. Kelly, Director, Div. of Public Health Education, announced. The discussion covered inspection work in dairy products, poultry slaughtering, eggs and egg products, food and other cereal products, bakery sanitation and drugs as well as other food products, including fruits, vegetables and canned products. Definite plans were made for cooperative work between each of the States and the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

The Louisville Electrical Workers made arrangements for the children of the Kentucky Children's Home to attend the launching of two L. S. T. Naval Craft at the Jefferson Boat Works, June 16, and June 20. This was an appreciated invitation and the children enjoyed the launchings very much. Joshua B. Everett, Commissioner, Department of Welfare, said today.

During the month of May there was released on parole seventy-one men from the Kentucky State Reformatory, twenty-one from the Kentucky State Penitentiary, and two from the Women's prison, making a total of ninety-four. John P. Jarvis, Director of Probation and Department of Welfare, announced today.

The State Teachers Retirement System bought $100,000 Government bonds early in the Fifth War Loan drive and has applied for another $100,000 to bring its total to slightly more than $4,000,000 before the current drive ends Saturday, July 8. Announcing this, Executive Secretary N. O. Kimbler, said the average in-War may be glorious for nations, as many men assert, but it is hell on individuals who have to suffer for their fellow-county-men.

OPA This Week

TUBES AND TIRES

All new tubes—automobile, truck, tractor and implement—are now removed from rationing. Present inventories and production are adequate to meet the demand which has been about a million and a half per month for the past two months, OPA announced.

It is no longer necessary to apply at the local War Price and Rationing Board when a new tube is needed. A good tube properly inflated prolongs the life of a tire and indications are that tires will continue to be rationed for several months.

High-grade recapping material is now available and motorists can get good service from their present tires if recapped in time. The July quota of tires is 450,000 higher than June but there is no hope of removing tires from rationing before early in 1945, according to OPA.

USED CARS

Used car ceiling prices go into effect July 10. Before a car is bought or sold, the ceiling price should be determined by going to the local War Price and Rationing Board.

A Transfer Certificate must be executed by both buyer and seller and the Certificate must be filed with the local Board when application for gasoline is made.

ALFALFA HAY

Maximum prices on alfalfa hay effective July 3 through October 31, have been announced by the OPA.

Producers may receive $22 a ton for ungraded alfalfa hay, according to the new regulation. An additional $5 a ton may be added to the price if the hay is baled by the single-compensated method.

When sales are made through a dealer, $6 a ton may be added to the original price.

Certain premiums may be added to the price if each lot of hay is accompanied by an official grading certificate.

Ceiling prices on alfalfa hay were fixed to curb the rising prices and to prevent resultant price rises of livestock, OPA said.

COST OF RATIONING AND PRICE CONTROL

Congress has voted to extend the Price Control Act another year. Here are some interesting figures on the cost of OPA during the last fiscal year. Rationing, price control and rent control cost the American people an average of $133 apiece.

Rationing cost 41 cents per person and price control, 28 cents. Rent control cost 28 cents per tenant, or 11 cents per person. The cost of keeping the public informed on all price, rationing and rent regulations was 2 cents per capita. Local War Price and Rationing Boards were allotted the remaining 51 cents per person. If sugar had advanced 2 cents per pound in the past year, it would have cost the American people more money than it cost to administer the entire Rationing and Price Control Program.

Perhaps you are one of those who really need to wear glasses, but don't because you fear they will detract from your appearance. If you are careful to choose glasses that are becoming and have them expertly ground and fitted, they will turn tired eyes into clear sparkling ones that not only look better but are better.

SUCCESSES AND FAILURES OF ISRAEL

LESSON TEXT—Judges 2:1-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Proverbs 14:34.

The success or failure of both nations and individuals is ultimately determined by their attitude toward the law of God. He is always right and true. The constant factor in a world order that swings wildly from one extreme to another, is His law, which is perfect and eternal.

God is no respecter of persons. Even Israel, His own chosen nation, found that observing God's law meant blessing, and failure to do so brought judgment and sorrow. No man is great and powerful enough to ignore this rule—and none is exempt from its operation.

I. Remembering God Brings Blessing (vv. 6-9).

Although Israel had not fully obeyed God's command, and had been rebuked by an angel of the Lord for their failure (Judg. 2:1-5), they had come into a measure of their inheritance under Joshua.

They now possessed that inheritance and entered into enjoyment of it (v. 6). It is one thing to have an inheritance, but another thing to claim it and make use of it. Countless Christians have never taken out their inheritance in Christ. All they have is the earnest (Eph. 1:14) or "down payment."

God never meant that any child of His should live a poverty-stricken spiritual life, or should go halting on first one side and then the other. He has made provision for a full-orbed, strong and joyful life. Why not enter upon your full inheritance in Christ now?

As the people of Israel took possession of the land, they went forward in the way of blessing as long as Joshua, and the elders who remembered God, kept them steady and true. We have here an excellent illustration of the power of a godly example. It is far stronger than we think.

II. Forgetting God Brings Backsliding (vv. 10-13).

The fact that a people has been highly privileged and has been exalted to a place of power and honor will not save it in the day when God is forgotten. Israel no longer had God-fearing men to bring it back to God, and so began its awful drifting away from God.

We Americans are rightly proud of our great land, its mighty resources, its fine past and promising future. But wait—what is the future to be? Oh, we say, the most glorious days are ahead. They may be, but only if we, like our forefathers who established this nation, recognize God. If we do not, America will go the way of the forgotten empires of centuries past, and that in spite of all its past achievements and its present promise.

Let us always remember that America is not some vague entity apart from us, for we, and you, and I, are America, we determine what it shall be, and how it shall relate itself to God. Let us be sure that no one we know ever forgets God.

It is a significant thing that the leaders of our nation so often come from Christian homes, but it is sad that they are so frequently not Christians themselves. Their lives are shaped by the teaching and influence of godly parents who reared them, but what will their children do if they are not brought up in the fear and admonition of the Lord?

Forgetting God is bad enough in its immediate results, but just ahead there is great and certain disaster.

III. Forsaking God Brings Judgment (vv. 14-18).

God not only will not hold a backsliding nation guiltless, but will bring judgment, even if He has to turn over His people to a despoiling nation. He has instruments of individual and national chastisement, and He is ready to use them.

Notice that wherever they went the Lord's hand was against them. There is no place to flee from the presence of God. Anyone who thinks he can do it, should read Psalm 137:12. It can't be done. That is a comfort to the believer, but it is not a little disquieting to the unbeliever.

God, however, always remembers mercy in the midst of judgment (Ps. 101:1). He sent judges to deliver Israel when He was sure of their repentance (v. 16). "If there was ever a time when nations needed deliverers, it's now. The systematic looting of subjugated peoples, the deliberate murder of multitudes of Jews, the mass executions of many innocent people in reprisal for some patriotic act of resistance, are evils that cry to heaven."

"If men would call on God not merely for deliverance but in real repentance for sins committed 'perhaps the God who delivered Israel would send deliverance to suffering people still' (Arnold's Commentary)."

Well—why not call on Him now, in earnest repentance and faith. Will you do it?

RAILROADS

Hauling more freight, more civilian passengers, and more members of the armed forces than ever before, the country's railroads are nearing their maximum capacity. Organized troop movements require "constant service" of more than half of the sleeping cars and almost one-third of all day coaches. In addition, personnel on furlough require accommodations on regularly scheduled trains.

Any sort of light, whether flash light, spotlight or car light leaves the animals and birds helpless to the guns or nets of the violator.

There is also a state law, listed in Carroll's Kentucky Statutes, section 1308, as follows: "If any person shall draw or shall on a public highway fire or discharge, except in self-defense, or defense of property, a deadly weapon, he shall be fined not less than $50 nor more than $100 or imprisoned not less than ten nor more than 50 days or both."

MANY SEE GAME AND FISH MOVIES THROUGHOUT STATE

A total of 23,765 persons, both old and young, throughout the state of Kentucky, saw the wildlife moving pictures of the Division of Game and Fish during the 12 months period from July 1, 1943-July 1, 1944. J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division, announced today.

The pictures were shown as part of the educational program sponsored by the Division and were presented by James J. Gilpin, Supervisor, Conservation Education.

School students and teachers, totaling 19,600, heard Gilpin explain the program of the Division and the value of conserving the natural resources, especially in time of war, and saw colored moving pictures of hunting and fishing in Kentucky, work of the Division and some of the projects which the Game and Fish in the state have undertaken in order to improve hunting and fishing in their petular section of the state; destruction to soil by erosion; damage done by pollution in the streams of the state; and loss to the individual and to the war effort by widespread forest fires. In addition to shows presented in schools, Gilpin appeared before 3,725 persons at Game and Fish Club meetings, and 440 persons at civic club meetings.

He also attended several work shops sponsored by the University of Kentucky; Eastern State Teachers College, Union College and Sue Bennett College where he conducted programs for the teachers on conservation of wildlife; water; soil; forests and minerals. This phase of work was carried out with the hope that the teachers would go back to their classrooms and pass on such information and instruction to their students last year and the years to come.

Field work was curtailed to some extent through an executive order to cut down on consumption of gasoline and use of automobiles.

UNLAWFUL TO HUNT BIRDS AND ANIMALS WITH A LIGHT

It is unlawful to hunt birds and rabbits with a light, J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, pointed out today.

The Game laws of Kentucky state that any person who hunts birds or rabbits with lights or other means used to blind said birds and rabbits at night shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof before a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be fined not less than $15 and not more than $100 for each offense.

Any sort of light, whether flash light, spotlight or car light leaves the animals and birds helpless to the guns or nets of the violator.

There is also a state law, listed in Carroll's Kentucky Statutes, section 1308, as follows: "If any person shall draw or shall on a public highway fire or discharge, except in self-defense, or defense of property, a deadly weapon, he shall be fined not less than $50 nor more than $100 or imprisoned not less than ten nor more than 50 days or both."

Fall Food Supply May Be Bright

Boone County farmers are experiencing the most discouraging home garden and food production program since the drought of 1930-34, and 36, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Many farmers are reporting they will not get back the potato seed they planted last spring. This means that many families may be short of canned foods this winter unless attention is now turned to the fall garden.

The fall food supply may be bright if weather conditions change and attention to fall food production is given during the next two or three weeks. A few timely jobs that are worthy of immediate consideration include:

1. Now is good time to plant fall crops of Irish potatoes. Cobbler's Green Mountain, Bull Moose, or Buckskins are all good fall varieties. Small, uncut seed pieces do better in dry weather.
2. Plant bunch beans and corn regularly until August 1st.
3. All of the fall green crops including kale, mustard, spinach Chinese cabbage, lettuce and also peas; beets, and perhaps others should be planted around August 1st to the 10th.
4. Cucumbers, beets, late cabbage and tomatoes may still be set out.
5. Apply liberal applications of complete fertilizers in the row for most of the late crops.
6. If favorable weather hits, some excellent fall crops may result.

Remember, the quitter always loses.

Meat Supply—Hogs, cattle, and lambs have all suffered serious setbacks due to drought and burdensome market supplies. Certainly this year with the present relative low price of all livestock on the market, every farm should plan for an abundant supply of meat this winter.

Special prizes and awards are being made this year to the farm families doing the best of jobs of producing, storing, and canning their 1944-45 winter food supplies.

COOKED A FINE DINNER; THEN THREW IT TO DOG

One lady recently stated that she used to throw her own dinner to the dog most of the time. It made her sick just to look at anything to eat. She was swollen with gas, full of bloated, had head aches, felt worn out and was badly constipated. Finally she got ERB-HELP and says she now eats everything in sight and digests it perfectly. Bowels are regular and normal. She is enjoying life once more and feels like "some other woman" since taking this New Compound.

ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP! Jones Drug Store.

Local Man Receives Medals For Many Famous Missions

Davis - Monahan Field, Tucson, Arizona—Technical Sgt. Therman L. Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wolfe, Route 1, Walton, was presented the Purple Heart, the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal by Brig. Gen. Albert Hegenberger, chief of staff of the Second Air Force, at formal ceremonies held in Tucson recently.

T-Sgt. Wolfe received the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal for participation in an aerial attack on Shortland Harbor in January 1943.

Sgt. Therman L. Wolfe

The bombing mission secured three direct hits and six near misses on an enemy transport of 18,000 tons. The anti-aircraft fire was so accurate and heavy that the windshields of the B-17's were broken by anti-aircraft fragments. Returning from the mission, his formation fought off enemy fighters, shooting down two of them.

For extraordinary achievement while participating in 24 operational flights totaling more than 208 hours, T-Sgt. Wolfe was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of an additional Distinguished Flying Cross.

T-Sgt. Wolfe received the Purple Heart for wounds received in February 1943.

He is now an instructor in the combat crew section at this heavy bomber training base.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our sincere appreciation to all relatives, neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us in the death of our beloved wife and mother Mrs. Mable Peebles.

We also wish to thank the donors of the beautiful flowers, the Rev. R. S. Moore, and the undertakers, Chambers and Grubbs, for their kindness and efficiency during the services.

Lewis F. Peebles and family.

FOUR HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT MONDAY

Four persons were injured, none seriously, in an auto accident near Florence late Monday.

The injured were: Mrs. Margaret Scott, of 716 Crescent Avenue, Covington, and her son, Joseph Scott Jr.; Mrs. Elvada Foster, Taylor Mill pike, Kenton county, and John Workman, Taylor Mill pike, Kenton county.

Bernard Scott of Devon, driver of one car, was driving north on Route 25, police reported. John Workman was the driver of the other car.

Mrs. Scott and her son were said to be returning from a visit with her husband who is in a hospital in North Carolina. He is recovering from injuries suffered in a train wreck near Jellico, Tenn., earlier this month.

Pond Building Men Meet at Burlington

Bulldozer operators cooperating in the Boone County pond building or farm reservoir construction program met at Burlington last Tuesday evening, according to County Agent H. R. Foraker. Earl Welch, Agricultural Engineer, advised the operators on principles of construction found by the College of Agriculture to insure the most satisfactory earth dams for farm reservoirs.

The operators agreed to cooperate with the County Agent's Office and the Soil Conservation Service in the construction of improved dams. Because many farmers with relatively small jobs have been unable to secure bulldozer services, the operators were encouraged to clean up requests on each road as they leave for another section.

Farmers who want pond dams built are urged to notify the County Agent's Office or J. C. Acree of the Soil Conservation Service Office by mail or telephone and also to contact the operator when he arrives in your neighborhood. This is important in the road routing of the equipment. ### 3 BOONE COUNTIANS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Three Boone Countians, enroute to their employment in a Cincinnati war industry, were injured, none seriously, early Thursday in an accident on Columbia Parkway, Cincinnati, in which a motorcycle patrolman was fatally injured.

Patrolman John Neal Jr. suffered a fractured chest when his cycle fell in a collision with the defense workers' auto at the intersection of Martin street and the parkway.

The three injured Kentuckians, Vernon Tuttnam, 58, and William Lea, 51, both of Hebron, and William Eggleston, 42, of Burlington, suffered face cuts.

Ernest Collins, Route 1, Burlington, driver of the auto, and Robert Hughes, 42, of Burlington, escaped injuries.

SQUIRREL SEASON

The annual squirrel season in Kentucky will begin August 1 and end September 15, reopen again November 24 and end December 31, John M. Perkins, director of the Division of game and fish, announced today. Perkins said that sportsmen have reported an abundance of squirrels this year. The present bag limit of six squirrels daily will continue in effect.

Hickory Grove Home- Coming Sunday, July 23rd

There will be all day services at the Hickory Grove Baptist Church Sunday, July 23rd, 1944. All members and former members and former Pastors are urged to come.

The Rev. R. F. DeMolay, Rev. O. J. Steger and Rev. Roy Johnson will speak. Any other minister present will be invited to have a part in the service.

Bring lunch with you, but if not convenient to bring lunch, come any how. You will be welcome and you will be fed, both spiritually and physically.

A. K. Johnson, Pastor

BIG BONE BAPTIST CHURCH FISH FRY

The Saracra Class of the Big Bone Baptist church will hold their annual fish fry on Saturday, July 29th at the church.

This event has in past years drew a large crowd from various sections of the county, as well as adjoining territory, and no doubt a large number will be present for this event.

Citizens from Boone and surrounding territory are cordially invited to attend.

Jersey Breeders To Sponsor Co. Show

Boone County Jersey breeders are sponsoring the first adult dairy show to be held in the county in twelve years, according to Robert Youell, chairman of the Jersey Show Committee. Competition will be open to all Jerseys in the county and all owners of good cattle are invited to compete.

The Jersey show will be held in connection with the 12th Annual 4-H and Utopia Club Fair to be held August 19th. All funds for the show are contributed by local breeders. A special feature of the show will be an aged cow production class in which production will count 50% and type 50%.

Members of the Show Committee are Robert Youell, O. W. Purdy, C. H. and Harry Tanner, Dr. E. L. Crudginton and Sheritt, Jesse Wilson, and T. P. Dunlap.

The 4-H and Utopia Club Council hopes that other breed owners will develop exhibits in the future and that the show will grow to represent all agricultural interests in the county.

TOWNSEND SPEAKING AT SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

There will be a speaker from Newport, Ky., to speak at the school auditorium in the interest of the Townsend Club on July 22 at 9:00 p. m. Everyone is invited to attend.

Sixty-five acres of hybrid corn have been planted by 4-H club members in Knox county. Mrs. V. P. Hatfield of Grayson county earned 55 quarts of peaches from trees three years old.

The Chairman of the Grant County Blood Bank, Wm. W. W. W. has reported that their Blood Bank is going to fall short of its quota of blood this quarter unless they receive more donors.

He is asking that the people of Walton and surrounding community come to Williamsonstown on August 1 or 2 or 3 between 3 and 5 o'clock to give their blood.

Anyone between the ages of 18 to 60 can give. Anyone under 21 must have the written consent of their parents.

We cannot promise a way for everyone but, we will try. If you have a car and will use it for this worthy cause let us know.

At least 60 people are needed to do the "Patriotic Duty" the only request is that you eat nothing for four hours before giving your blood.

If you will give to this cause just call Powers Conrad, phone 23 and say "I will give my blood for the boys who are giving their life."

How Farmers May Earn Payments

A. C. Cooperators have been advised this week what practices they could still carry out to earn the balance of their 1944 allowance. The most important one of the practices is the use of limestone which can be ordered as grant of aid or used on a commercial basis. The credit as well as the deduction where it is ordered as grant of aid is $2.75 per ton. Dealers have delivered a large number of the orders that have been made and prospects for delivering all orders this year are favorable. Producers are urged to order early, so that the orders can be cleared thru the State Office and back to the dealers, so that the late fall rush may be avoided.

The two grant of aid materials that have been used in the past few years to earn a large part of their allowance are, namely, phosphate and vetch seed. Both are used on a limited basis. Only one-fourth as much phosphate will be available this fall as previous, and only one-seventh as much vetch. Orders are being taken for both on a limited basis. Phosphate obtained through the State Office and used on grass and clover crops with or without small grains as a nurse crop only but not where cut for grain, will be given a credit of $25.00 per ton. Vetch seed as a winter cover crop will be given a credit of $4.00 per acre.

Scattered showers has helped some sections of the County but farmers are still dry. Feed is going to be a problem this winter. J. L. Reffett, of Napoleon Community, reported he intended to cut his corn while green and feed the cows because it would not make corn for grain. Farmers looking ahead report they are cutting every acre for hay they can get any feed from. Even poor quality hay is better than nothing. Other farmers are still sowing soy beans and cow peas could be used to an advantage. Sowing a catch crop now may save the feed situation on the farm yet. All is not lost on the farm yet said a community leader yesterday. It looks dark some times but so does the battle field in France but there has always been a break and our boys have made the advance. We here must do likewise and stay by our job like they stay by our guns.

All of the twelve clubs helped in this citizenship project, according to Mrs. Vernon Pope, County Citizenship Chairman. Following is the number made by each Homemaker Club: Bullittsville, 3; Burlington, 2; Constance, 1; Florence, 2; Hebron, 1; New Haven, 1; Petersburg, 4; Rabbit Hash, 2; Taylorsport, 1; Verona, 2; Walton, 2; Walton (colored) 1.

CANDIDATES CHOSEN FOR GAME AND FISH COMMISSION

Meetings in the nine Congressional Districts of the State have been completed and names of 45 men will be turned over to Governor Simon Willis from which list he is to pick a 9-man Game and Fish Commission within 30 days.

All district meetings were well attended by the sportsmen and lists of capable men were turned in from every district. The sportsman had charge of the meetings and picked their own men and they are well satisfied with the results.

PLANS FOR SIX DAY FAIR; HORSE SHOW

The Kentucky State Fair this year resumes its place in the spotlight of the nation as sponsor of the country's finest horsemanship. Ray Purdy, recently appointed manager of the horsemanship by Elliott Robertson, Commissioner of Agriculture, has established offices at Churchill Downs in Louisville and has completed arrangements for a six day show beginning Monday, August 28 and ending with the $10,000 Grand Championship Stake Event on Saturday night, September 2. The catalog containing the premium list and dates and times for the various events will be in the mails within a few days.

Any information needed with regard to the classes can be obtained by writing Ray Purdy, care of the Kentucky State Fair, Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky. All other departments of the State Fair now have offices at Churchill Downs, also and may be reached by addressing Mr. E. L. Newton, General Manager of the Fair.

4-H LEADERS AND CAPTAINS TO BE VISITED

All 4-H leaders and captains in Home Economics will be visited in the next two weeks by the Home Agent, Mary Hood Gillespie. A report sheet will be given to each for keeping accurate records of project work.

Due to limited travel, 4-H community tours have been omitted this year. The Agents do plan to visit all leaders and captains who will contact all members. Leaders will give special assistance this summer to those planning to have an exhibit at the 4-H and Utopia Fair, August 19th.

Scattered Showers Help Farmers Some

Scattered showers has helped some sections of the County but farmers are still dry. Feed is going to be a problem this winter. J. L. Reffett, of Napoleon Community, reported he intended to cut his corn while green and feed the cows because it would not make corn for grain. Farmers looking ahead report they are cutting every acre for hay they can get any feed from. Even poor quality hay is better than nothing. ## BAPTIST TRAINING ASSEMBLY JULY 12-18

The First State Baptist Training Union Assembly will be held at Clear Creek Mountain Springs, Pineville, Kentucky beginning Saturday night, August 12 and closing Friday night, August 18. The Assembly is fostered by the State Baptist Training Union Department, with Secretary, Rev. Byron C. S. DeLaMetrie in charge.

SON BORN

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Allee Anderson, DeMossesville, July 4th a nine pound baby boy. The baby one has been named William Elmer. Mother and baby are doing nicely.

1944 Fair Premiums Largest On Record; To Have Gate Charge

The 1944 Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Fair and County Ponic Premiums will be the largest on record. Open classes in dairy cattle, sheep, poultry, garden, field crops, fruits, and Home Economics will be featured for the first time. The horse and pony show classes have been increased.

The Council, after a thorough survey of public opinion, voted last Friday evening for a gate charge of 25 cents for adults sixteen years or over as a contribution to the grounds improvement program. Children under 18 will be admitted free. The Council was advised by leaders that the people's desire was for better improvements that could eventually service all needs of the county so far as a fair was concerned. Such a program can not be achieved until sufficient buildings to accommodate the people, show rings for exhibits, and barns and sheds to house livestock and other entries are secured.

The County Ponic feature of the fair will be stressed until sufficient equipment to put on a full fair program can be secured. The Council urged full cooperation of all the people in working toward a long time goal.

MRS. CAPP SMITH

Died July 16, on Sayersville Road Mrs. Capp Smith, age 44. The deceased was twice married first to Charlie Stamper deceased, second to Capp Smith who with one son survives. She was the mother of ten children some of whom are quite small, making it a very sad death as the little one need her care. The daughter of the late Andy Jones and wife of Owen County early in life she gave herself to God becoming a member of Sparta Baptist Church where she remained a constant member thru-out life.

A kind and benevolent neighbor a good wife and mother.

The funeral was held from Carlton Funeral Home Tuesday by her pastor. After which the remains were laid to rest in Warsaw Cemetery.

The heartfelt sympathy of an entire community is extended the family in their great sorrow.

UTOPIA CLUB TO MEET AT FAIR GROUNDS

Boone County Utopia Club members will have a special meeting at the Fair Grounds this Thursday evening, July 20th at 9:00 P. M. to discuss plans for the 12th Annual 4-H and Utopia Fair, August 19th.

The club invites all older youth interested in Agriculture and Home Economics to meet with them and to assist in planning for the fair.

FARM BUREAU BUY 700 BUSHELS BALBO RYE

The Boone County Farm Bureau has contracted for the purchasing of 700 bushels of pure strain Balbo rye seed. The seed will be ready for delivery in the next two weeks. The price of the seed will be around $2.75 per bushel.

The Farm Bureau is interested in securing this seed in that it offers a reliable source to secure a pure strain of the seed. Farm Bureau members who pool their cash orders will receive the seed at actual cost. The rest of the seed will be handled by local dealers.

This seed should prove a valuable source of seed stock for next year. Farmers interested in securing seed may leave their orders at the County Agent's office or with their local dealer who is interested in handling this seed.

RECEIVING FINAL TRAINING

Lubbock Army Air Field, Lubbock, Texas—Arriving here with Class 44-H, Aviation Cadet Stanley L. McElroy, son of Mrs. Hazel Leemoore McElroy, Walton, began the final period of pilot training at this advanced two-engine school of the Army Air Forces Training Command. After a few more weeks of intensive training on the ground and in the air, he will receive the coveted silver wings of a bomber pilot and become a flying officer in the Army Air Forces. Cadet McElroy was a railroad agent at Walton.

LAAP is located on the flat plains of West Texas. It was chosen early as an ideal location for the training of future pilots of the Fortress, Mitchell, Marauders and other multi-engine aircraft. Hundreds of combat bomber pilots who graduated from this field have distinguished themselves in all theaters of war. More than a dozen LAAP graduates were decorated for the "suicide" raid on Wake Island December 23, 1942 and almost a score of LAAP pilots took part in the equally daring raid on the Ploesti oil fields of Rumania. The field, second oldest two-engine school in the Central Flying Training Command, is under the command of Col. Ralph E. Holmes, a command pilot with 17 years experience in the Air Forces.

Pvt. "Bill" Adams of U. S. Marines returned to Oceanside, California, after a brief furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Adams of Nicholson Road.

OPA This Week

RESTURANT PRICES SET

The nation-wide restaurant pricing order issued June 29 will become effective July 31, the OPA has announced. It will require restaurants, bars, cafes, clubs, caterers, soda fountains and boarding houses to post prominently the highest prices charged during the week of April 4-10, 1943 for 40 basic food and beverage items. These lists must be posted by August 16, 1944.

A list of the 40 specific items on which posting will be required in the Lexington District as well as other information regarding the pricing order, will be released by the Lexington District OPA Office next week.

SHOE INVENTORY ORDERED

Every shoe dealer in the country will be required to take a complete inventory of all the rationed shoes in his stock, regardless of the number of pairs this stock consists of, as of July 31, 1944, OPA has announced.

The OPA has announced that these forms will be mailed direct to all dealers and, also that they may be obtained from any District Office. It is necessary for each dealer to be very explicit and give all information asked for, as OPA states that future ration regulations are to be formulated by information obtained from these sources.

The dealer will mail the original to the Inventory and Control Branch Office of Price Administration, Empire State Building, New York 1 New York, not later than August 5, 1944. The duplicate he will detach and keep for his records.

CANNED MEAT PRICES REDUCED

Prices of all canned meat are reduced by approximately ten percent of the cost of the raw meat ingredients used in the manufacture of these items, the OPA announced this week. The reduction is effective July 15, 1944.

Consumers will benefit accordingly. Retail prices are fixed on a percentage mark-up basis over net cost; consequently, when the net cost is reduced, retail prices are correspondingly reduced, OPA pointed out.

CABBAGE PRICES UP SLIGHTLY

Retail ceiling prices for cabbage during the rest of the summer will be slightly higher than the June prices, OPA said in announcing maximum prices for cabbage for the period from July 1 through September 30.

Retail prices in the highest price stores in Kentucky will be about 6 cents per pound.

FRESH PEACHES UNDER PRICE CONTROL

Fresh peaches for table use have been brought under price control for the first time by OPA.

Producers will receive prices ranging from $2.16 per bushel up, while wholesalers and retailers will receive fixed cent-per-pound mark-ups.

Retail ceiling prices will vary according to the source of the peaches and the distance transported, and should range from 14 1/2 to 18 cents a pound for the season.

POTATO PRICES ANNOUNCED

Nation-wide prices for the entire 1944 potato crop, beginning July 1 and continuing until the end of the marketing season, have been announced by the OPA.

The price in Kentucky for the period of July 15 through August 31 is $2.70 per hundredweight f. o. b. the country shipper or producer. The retail price will be about five cents per pound.

BOMBERS

The Willow Run plant, which turned out its first bomber September 30, 1942, has produced more than 5,000 Liberators and is now turning out the four-engine bombers at the rate of one an hour.

FLOWN HOME

Unaware that the pilot training program had been discontinued two score women who went to the Army field in Texas at their own expense were flown to their homes by the Army Air Forces.

Keep the Condenser Clean

The condenser of your electric refrigerator looks something like the radiator on your car and serves a similarly important purpose.

The condenser's job is to cool the refrigerant and dissipate the heat it absorbs from the food compartment. On some models, it is vertical and fan cooled; on others, it is horizontal and cooled by convection. Usually it has fins attached to the coils to increase the cooling area.

Dirt and dust deposited on the condenser interfere with its cooling efficiency and increase the running time of the motor, resulting in higher operating costs.

To prevent this, clean the condenser periodically. A bottle "rush" or the suction hose of a vacuum cleaner are ideal tools for the job. Keep the entire machine compartment clean—a clean piece of mechanism lasts much less frequently than a dirty one.

CAUTION: Be sure refrigerator is disconnected at wall outlet before you start to clean machine compartment. Otherwise, refrigerator may start up and injure you.

Boys and girls, parents, leaders and friends are requested to attend meeting most convenient. All meetings are to be at 8:00 p. m.

LEAFLETS DEAL WITH HARVESTING TOBACCO

How tobacco growers can save both time and money in harvesting their crop is explained in two new leaflets announced by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics Lexington.

"Priming Tobacco" explains the importance of removing, or priming, the lower leaves as they ripen, leaving the rest to mature for late harvesting. Priming may be done any time after the bottom leaves mature and begin to yellow or burr at the tip.

"Though priming is practical for all tobacco producers, it is especially useful to those who have 2 or 3 acres or less. By putting in a little more work on harvesting, farmers can increase their income from tobacco," declared Russell A. Hunt, specialist at the college. He further pointed out that returns of $100 to $150 more per acre have been reported where priming was done.

Time-saving methods for the tobacco cutter are shown in a dozen or more illustrations in the second leaflet, "Cutting and Spearling Tobacco." Prepared at the college, it was made after specialists had studied the methods of a number of workmen who cut 1,000 or more sticks, day after day. The drawings and photographs were made from a moving picture film taken of one of the most expert workmen cutting and spearling tobacco.

Both leaflets are free and may be had from the college or from county or home agents.

BIG GRAIN CROPS IN BOYLE COUNTY

Grain crops in Boyle county were among the best in the history of that region, according to Farm Agent John C. Brown, wheat the best ever produced, and balbo rye yielding 19 to 30 bushels to the acre. Seed for sale includes 14,450 bushels of balbo rye, 7,726 bushels of Thane wheat, 1,500 bushels of Fulwin oats, 9,940 bushels of orchard grass and 14,000 bushels of bluegrass.

PASTURE MAY SAVE TON OF HOG GRAIN

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station says good pasture may replace as much as a ton of grain and a quarter of a ton of protein supplement, in feeding hogs. Alfalfa and clover rank at the top of the list of hog pastures, but winter pastures from early seedings of small grain, especially balbo rye, furnish forage which is relished by hogs of all ages. Farmers are urged to have at least a sixth of an acre of pasture throughout the year for each gilt brood sow and boar, and a third to a half of an acre for each litter of growing and fattening pigs.

MAKES GARMENTS FROM FEED BAGS

How Mrs. R. C. Powell of Fleming county has made garments and household articles so attractive they would never be recognized as having been feed bags, is told by Miss Kathryn Schreyer, county home demonstration agent. Mrs. Powell made five house dresses, two night gowns, 12 aprons, two sun bonnets, three night shirts, three pairs of pillow cases, two mattress covers, two dozen towels, a quilt, six blanket covers, and awnings for a screened-in back porch.

FAMILIES SOLVE LABOR PROBLEMS

Women, boys and girls relieved the labor situation in Grant county this year by helping in field work. Farm Agent Robert Hume relates that teams of women tobacco droppers manned mechanical setters or drove the team drawing the setter. They also pulled plants. In the majority of instances, families solved their own labor problems.

EWES AVERAGE 11 POUNDS OF WOOL

C. E. Powell of Marshall county sheared an average of 11 pounds of wool from 27 western ewes, which, Farm Agent H. E. Rothwell reports, is at least four pounds above the average for native ewes in the county. At present prices, that is approximately $54 more wool for the flock.

ORCHARD GRASS AND ALFALFA YIELD WELL

C. B. Wilson and sons are among Henry county farmers who are getting good returns from a mixture of orchard grass and alfalfa, says County Agent W. B. Howell. They have been getting 25 bushels of orchard grass seed and 18 to 20 tons of mixed hay to the acre. This year they also pastured 40 hogs on 11 acres of the mixture until about 10 days before time to harvest seed.

SMALL CHICKEN FLOCK RETURNS GOOD PROFITS

Cooperating with County Agent John R. Watlington in demonstrating the profitability of chickens, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shelton of Logan county turned in the following record: In March, 1943, they started 608 chicks, and on Oct. 1 they housed 248 pullets which had cost them an average of 54.7 cents each. On May 6, this year, they sold the flock. From October 1 through May 6 receipts totaled $1,386.53, and expenses, $469.18, leaving a profit of $917.35. Deducting $135.85, the cost of the pullets, left a net profit of $781.70 from the small flock.

Griffith Bros., in Crittenden county, farrowed 69 pigs from eight sows in houses on a hillside with the loss of only one pig from over-laying.

HIGH SCORE FOR KENTUCKY WOOLS

The National Wool Marketing Corporation of Boston, Mass., which handles the pooled wool of Kentucky recently made this report:

"The first appraisals of the Kentucky pool yielded 61 cents a pound on the quarterblood and 61 and one-third cents on the three-eighths blood. 'The wool was very choice in every respect, and the shrinkage was in every respect as low as 38 percent on the quarterblood.

"Indications point to a much larger tonnage pooled in Kentucky than in previous years."

WORK METHODS OF FARMERS STUDIED

When economists of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station began studying the best methods of doing farm work, they found some men faster and better workers than others. Some farmers knew how to get work done and how to do jobs quickly and efficiently.

"Workers differ greatly in the amount of work they get done under substantially the same conditions," says the annual report of the Experiment Station. "Some farmers use as much as 35 man-hours an acre in gathering corn, while others get the job done with only two man-hours an acre. Some men strip 407 lbs. of tobacco a day; others only 25 pounds.

"These variations are mainly due to differences in the way work was done and the equipment used. By studying operations in hay-making, tobacco pulling, setting, cutting, housing and stripping, and in certain other operations, increases of 25 to 70 percent in the output an hour of a worker were attained.

"The coordination of tobacco cutting and housing crews was studied to discover how best to relate the movements of the workers so as to avoid unnecessary delays, loss of time and motion, and to secure the maximum accomplishment of the few. Because of faulty organization and methods used, one crew was wasting 75 percent of its total time. Some crews had succeeded in eliminating nearly all avoidable lost motion."

"SICK" ANIMALS ARE OFTEN JUST UNDERFEED

Underfeeding is often responsible for animals appearing sick, according to the examination of stock taken to the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Hogs from 288 herds were delivered to the Station last year. In 40 herds the actual cause of sickness and death was found to be lack of proper feed. Post-mortems showed no signs of disease of any kind.

Some of the hogs had been getting too little feed; others improper feed. Feed deficiencies were especially noticeable in herds fed wheat or distillery slop in drylots. Lack of vitamin A and animal protein was shown in the pigs of 10 sows that farrowed in the fall, after having been on bluegrass pasture and ground wheat all summer.

The sows were in good flesh and appeared healthy, and yet their milk did not nourish the pigs. When the sows' feed was changed to yellow corn and tankage, no further losses occurred among the pigs and all soon were in normal health.

BUY BROWN SWISS

Nineteen Brown Swiss cattle were recently taken into Harrison county from Minnesota. Henry Brinker, bought 12 head; Hanson Peterson, four head; the Kentucky Cardinal Dairy, two head, and Aubrey Lemons a heifer.

TILTED PENS SAVE PIGS

Harvey Thrasher, farmer in Hancock county, had unusual success with pigs at farrowing time when tilted pens were used. He lost no pigs by over-laying, although previous losses had been as high as 25 percent.

INTERESTING RAILROAD FACTS

The volume of passenger traffic on the railroads of the United States was approximately 25 per cent greater in the first four months of 1944 than in the same period last year.

The L. & N. Railroad hauled 2,022,247 tons of fertilizers of all kinds in 1943, an increase of 590,700 tons over 1942.

Employees of Class I railroads who had entered military service up to May 1, 1944, totaled approximately 260,000.

As of July 1, 1944, 5,227 employees of the L. & N. Railroad had left the service to join the armed forces.

Railway tax accruals amounted to $1,850,000,000 in 1943, or an increase of 54 per cent above 1942.

Total freight revenue of the L. &

N. Railroad in 1943 amounted to $151,547,292.26, as contrasted to $136,695,523.15 in 1942.

The volume of railroad passenger traffic in 1943, measured in passenger-miles, was more than twice as great as in 1918, during the first World War.

TO TRY FRUIT GROWING

A number of farmers in Johnson county are turning to fruit growing as a way of bringing in good returns for the acreage involved. The apple crop this year is reported as good, although the peach crop is light.

It is estimated that 85 percent of the corn planted in Owen county this spring was hybrid seed.

The Never-Ending Miracle of Southern Timber

WOOD has always played a vital role in the progress of civilization... for homes, factories, furniture, paper, airplanes, ships, farm implements, industrial equipment and other things. New discoveries will provide even greater opportunity for postwar development and employment.

Our southeastern states consistently produce about 30% of the softwood and 50% of the hardwood of the United States—could supply even more if needed. In L & N territory alone, over 2,000 establishments handle timber products of every description. This output in 1942 exceeded $200,000,000 in value, of which over $42,000,000 was paid for labor. Last year the L & N moved 113,000 carloads of these wood products, and otherwise contributed importantly to the development of southern timber resources. Thus we see the practical application of American Free Enterprise... what it has accomplished... how men of vision and courage built businesses of their own, and at the same time benefiting their neighbors and adding to the progress of the South.

The immediate purpose of The Old Reliable is to help win the war. This done, its energies will be again directed to the development of an even greater Southern industry—a goal it has pursued throughout more than 94 years of service.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS?

The War Manpower Commission seeks 15,000 to 20,000 men "with the muscular equipment of football players" to work in foundries and forge shops. Chairman Paul V. McNutt admits that work done in a foundry is tough but says that it isn't as bad as fighting in the Pacific or on the battlefields of France.

TEXTILES

Chester Bowles, Price Administrator, says that "a substantial part" of the increased prices for cotton textiles, required under price control legislation, will be absorbed below the fabrics and clothing reach the retail stores. Price increases at mill levels amount to between $25,000, 000 and $50,000,000, but the OPA chief says that they "will have relatively little effect on the cost-of-living."

ment. Many farmers have become discouraged toward getting equipment but an attempt is going to be made to take care of all requests. It would be helpful if old requests would be renewed.

The A. A. A. is making payments of 15 cents per cubic yard of dirt put in an approved dam. The payment comes out of the soil building allowance. Farmers who plan to request this payment should notify the A. A. A. office.

Operators are using different types and sizes of equipment. Prices are ranging from $6.00 to $8.00 per hour. Farmers are cautioned to have a thorough understanding with the operator before work begins. Farmers desiring special service in staking out their dams should contact Mr. Acree at the S. C. S. Office. The County Soil Conservation Service is offering an excellent soils program at no cost to the farmer.

LADY'S STOMACH WAS LIKE A GAS FACTORY; MEALS TURNED TO GAS

One lady said recently that her stomach used to be like a "gas factory!" That is, when she ate a meal it seemed to turn right into gas. She was always bloated, had awful stomach gas pains, daily headaches and constant irregular bowel action. Now, however, this lady says she is FREE OF STOMACH GAS and she says the change is due to taking ERB-HELP. Her meals agree with her. No gas or bloating after eating. Headaches and constipation are gone. "Oh! what relief!" states this lady. "Why don't other gas and constipation sufferers get ERB-HELP?"

PATRIOTS SUPPORT RATIONING

The OPA is moving to tighten control over ration currency by establishing verification centers throughout the country. These will receive ration coupons, count and examine them for counterfeits and evidence of abuses.

It is admitted that ration banks, which have attempted to do this work, have been overburdened, but several types of evasions have been discovered and special efforts will be made to eliminate them.

There are reports of the use of counterfeit coupons, especially in regard to sugar, which is in demand for illegitimate distilling and gasoline, where the use of counterfeit coupons has developed into a major wartime racket.

The OPA will continue to require endorsement of coupons, thus tracing delivery to a dealer and a scientific screening will be used to detect bogus coupons. Deposits of coupons will be checked to insure accuracy and proper endorsement. If unendorsed, invalid or counterfeit coupons are discovered, the dealers will be required to make them good.

While it is probably inevitable that a nation with as many people as there are in the United States should have a percentage of chislers and cheats, the frauds and abuses that have developed in the rationing system are a reflection upon the patriotism of the American people as a whole.

We call attention to the new plan for the benefit of the people of Boone County in hope that it will serve two purposes: (1) Encourage patriotic Americans to abide by rationing regulations and (2) discourage the small minority of selfish, uncooperative individuals from attempting to take advantage of other citizens.

It is vitally necessary that the rationing programs work effectively. The success of our war effort may well depend upon the proper handling of available supplies and their distribution upon a just basis. Every time an individual gets more than his, or her, share, the war economy suffers, the reserve pool is unfairly drained and the possibility of increased quotas becomes more difficult.

Compared with the sacrifice and privations of our fighting men, the American citizen on the home front has been asked to do very little in this war. The Government has levied no capital tax to finance the struggles which, if successful, will preserve and protect property rights.

It has definitely requested specific cooperation in the use of certain scarce commodities, establishing fair and just rules for their distribution. Certainly, the home front patriot cannot do less than cheerfully cooperate in this respect.

Who wouldn't give a pint of blood to save their son's life—yet the Red Cross has to appeal vigorously to get people to give blood to the Blood Donors service—is it because of neglect or do you just put it off—Call Powers Conrad right now and ask for particulars—and save some boy's life!

A young man of Walton did his good deed for the day by towing a broken down car in—then went out with the man's daughter and had a wonderful time—that's what I call the "golden rule."

Make it a habit to come in the Advertiser office when in town.

We're Proud of Our Fire Department

"Your outfit looked mighty fine in the parade," I told Ed Carver, our fire chief. "Everything polished within an inch of its life, and the men pert and snappy!"

"That's how it should be," said Ed. "We have Thursday turned inspections...and surprise inspections in between!"

That sort of supervision is well repaid in the efficiency of our town's fire department. Reminds me of our Kentucky brewers.

They watch all the time, not because they're looking for things to be wrong but...well, just an ounce of prevention!

The brewers' self-regulation program is just a form of vigilance that protects everybody. Like the fire department's inspections, it keeps things the way they ought to be.

From where I sit, most people approve of the way the brewers run things these days.

HE PLAYS THE FIELD OF SPORTS

... round the clock and round the calendar, Ruby Reports in timely sequence to thrill Sport Page enthusiasts

EARL RUBY... Sports Editor of The Courier-Journal, is the envy of most sporting males. It's a great life, Earl agrees, though a bit strenuous at times. No arm-chair philosopher, he actively covers the Sports front. Buster then a bird dog on opening day of quail season, Earl takes to the field and points up significant features of hunting, fishing, racing, baseball, high school and intercollegiate basketball and football... In fact, every sport engaged in according to established rules, receives his attention. That's why we rarely see Earl hatless... he's always on the run!

Editor of America's most complete Sports Section outside the three major metropolitan centers, Ruby says it's people who make sports interesting... however, he likes to give readers an occasional flashback to the origin of main sporting events.

A native son, Earl began doing spot reporting in 1921, after school hours at De Pout Manual High, continuing through years at University of Louisville and Jefferson School of Law. Then Ruby took a flyer as Sports Editor of The Ashland Independent before returning here as full time sports writer. His natural interest, experience, and the law of averages, eventually led to the "big chair," which Earl now ironically finds no time to occupy. Popular features of "Ruby's Report" are "Kentuckianities," always checkroll of names, and "Questions and Answers" which, measured by the mailbox, pulls the most box-office.

Only a fraction of his letters break into print... the rest are answered personally by the Sports Editor himself.

WOMAN'S PART IN NATIONAL LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Judges 4:1-9, 13-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?—Ezekiel 3:14.

Women of our day have unprecedented liberty of action and almost limitless opportunity to show their ability to meet responsibility and to accomplish great things. They are measuring up to that opportunity both in the armed services and in the multitude of tasks they are creditably carrying on in civilian life.

To those who seem surprised at their response to the nation's need, the church could well testify that women have always served well in those things which count most for God and country.

I. A Woman Can Rule (vv. 1-5). God has established an order in the world which places woman where she best fits—in the home. There, under the guidance and with the help of her husband, she exerts her most powerful influence in the rearings of children. That is her normal, most effective and most blessed position.

But all too often conditions in the world are not normal, and woman, like man, is thrown out of the customary orbit of existence. Deborah faced such a day. Israel had sinned and been given over to the chafing hand of the Canaanite. Then God heard their repentant cry and was ready to send a deliverer—as He did in the case of each of the judges. Apparently no man was ready to take up the responsibility, or willing to thus serve God, and so He called Deborah. She sat under her palm tree and Israel came to her for judgment.

She typifies many women who have been the leaders of their people, and her story has been an inspiration to women in the church. May many more be encouraged to take up the weighty problems of moral and social righteousness, in which the men of our nation (and others) do not seem to care or dare to attack!

II. A Woman Can Lead (vv. 6-9).

Barak was a man of ability. Deborah gave him full credit for his capable service (5:1, 12), but evidently he lacked that initiative which would send him into conflict with his people's enemies. Without Deborah he would not go (v. 8), under her leadership he was willing and courageous.

It is easy to ridicule Barak, and no doubt he deserves some measure of censure, but let us not be too severe on him. When the records are all in, it will be known that many of the tests of courage, the high and noble decisions, the victories in the fields of science and culture, and particularly those things that have been accomplished in and through the church, were the result of the leadership of some woman.

Many are the distinguished national and spiritual leaders who have said that all they were and had accomplished they owed to their mothers. One speaks with high appreciation of a noble and inspiring wife.

Think also of the many social and religious causes which have been largely carried on by determined and sacrificial women. Yes, a woman can lead, and often she must lead out to get the men to follow.

Not all the pursuits of life are lived out in peace or in preparation for war. The time comes when battle must be joined, and then we see that.

III. A Woman Can Fight (vv. 13-16). True it is that it was Barak who led his army, but he went out at the word of Deborah. Here was the responsibility for strategy, for the determining of that important D-day, when the blow must be struck.

The courage of women in the battles for country makes an inspiring story. Not the least of that courage has been shown by those who have quietly stood "by the stuff at home, who have bravely parted with their cherished loved ones, who have borne the dark hours of loneliness, uncertainty and often of heart-piercing sorrow. They shall not be without their reward (see I Sam. 30:24).

This is the place to say a further word of appreciation of the women of the church who have fought such a valiant fight against liquor, social degradation, vice, evil politics, etc. "Hats off to them!" May they be encouraged to go on.

Then too, one might say a word of sad and earnest admonition to those countless women who have used their great freedom in our day as a license to live wicked and ungodly lives. They do not have the courage to stand against the loose moral standards, the common acceptance of intemperance, the immorality of the day.

Christian women have the golden opportunity of setting a fine pattern of useful living now. Let them make the most of it, for the glory of God.

PLANES

American aircraft plants turned out only 8,042 planes in June, compared with 8,902 planes in May, according to the Aircraft Production Board, which said that the slump was regrettable but not dangerous. Schedules on all four-motored combat craft were exceeded. Most of the slump was due to "difficulties with certain parts" in plants making trainers.

PRICE INFORMATION

Information concerning ceiling prices may be obtained from the Price Clerk of your local War Price and Rationing Board.

PLANES FOR SALE

Surplus Government owned planes are beginning to flow into the hands of civilians, according to the Defense Plant Corporation, which discloses that 2,376 have been sold. The planes are "surplus" basic, primary and advanced trainers, and a few other types. The OPA has set a list price of manufacturing cost less eight per cent per year for depreciation, plus any modern equipment on the plane. Sales are made through regional offices of the Civil Aeronautics Association.

TEACHERS

The National Education Association says that the nation faces its greatest teacher shortage, with 70,000 trained instructors lacking, although using 170,000 teachers last year who were new on their jobs. In addition, 100,000 teachers are said to be in the armed forces.

GERMANS

Recently, a flying fortress, making a forced landing in Spain, was found to contain a crew of nine Germans. The fortress appeared to have been patched together, with parts from planes that crashed in German territory.

67 BILLION FOR WAR

Representative Clarence Cannon chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, points out that the $67,000,000,000 appropriated during the recent session of Congress for war purposes represented a decline of about $47,000,000,000 from the record high mark of 1943.

REFRIGERATOR

The War Food Administration plans to store lard, eggs and other perishables in an old limestone mine near Atchison, Kansas. Refrigeration equipment will be installed to provide 12,000,000 cubic feet of storage space, about ten per cent of the public cooler space in the country. Estimates are that use of the mine will save the Government as much as $3,400,000 a year in storage bills.

U. K. WORKSHOP PLANS POSTWAR EDUCATION

Educators from every section of Kentucky have been attending a workshop at the University of Kentucky this summer, to map intensive post-war plans for education of the youth of the commonwealth.

Enrolled in the workshop have been 35 school officials and teachers and four representatives of Kentucky organizations, the latter group having been invited for purpose of "getting the layman's point of view."

The post-war planning committee of the Kentucky Education Association has been operating the workshop at the University of Kentucky, and expenses involved were met with funds provided the University by the General Education Board of New York City, for the express purpose of conducting such a post-war planning workshop.

MAGILL URGES HOME CANNING OF PEACHES THIS YEAR

Families who would have peaches to eat next fall and winter should not overlook home canning, says W. W. Magill, extension fruit man at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. With the government planning to take 64 per cent of the commercially canned peaches, civilians will get only two-thirds as many canned peaches as they usually buy. Also it is likely that a large number of points will continue to be required. Therefore says Magill, those who would have peaches to eat should do a lot of canning.

The peach crop for the country as a whole is good, it is said. There will be price ceilings, but peaches probably will not sell as high as they did last year, Magill states. Kentucky peaches will begin coming on the market about the last week in July and the supply should continue rather heavy for a month, he added.

BOOKS

The War Department is vigorously eliminating textbooks from Army education courses to comply with Congress' recent restriction on the dissemination of political information. Old and popular books are being withdrawn and new books of a political character are not being purchased for distribution.

SHOES

Some 7,000,000 pairs of odd-lot shoes have been freed of ration points reduced in price and offered for sale through the country until July 29, 1944. The authorized sale price is twenty-five per cent below the retail price on June 1st, 1944.

SERVICE BAR

The Army has authorized a service bar to indicate each six-months period of service overseas. The bar, worn on the left sleeve just above the cuff, is a four-inch rectangle of cloth, with gold-colored edging.

Crop yields in Oldham county will be increased this year through the use of 100 tons of ammonium phosphate.

The sale of bluestone in Simpson county jumped from 800 pounds in 1943 to 2,100 this year, when two-thirds of the tobacco beds were treated.

Although farmers in Bell county reduced their seeding of korean leaved peas and soybeans by 20 percent, they used 40 percent more fertilizer.

CONSERVATION TOUR MADE IN GALLATIN COUNTY

An inspection tour of the work projects of the Gallatin Soil Conservation District was made Monday afternoon of this week. The highlights of the tour showed progress made by some Gallatin County farmers in Soil Conservation practices which were the direct result of educational meetings and campaign carried on by all the Agricultural agencies of the county. Namely: Vocational Agriculture, County Agent, AAA, and the Gallatin Soil Conservation District.

At Alphin Brothers and Noel Robinson in the Concord communities outstanding jobs of laying out Contour Cultivation was reviewed on very rolling land. These crops which were laid out on the contour were holding the moisture from recent rains and were growing exceptionally well.

An inspection was also made at Alphin Brothers of small diversion ditches which were constructed with team and Martin Ditches.

A visit was also made at the farm of E. J. Schirmer at Bridge where drainage of high productive cropland has been a problem in the past. Here all head water from the river hills was controlled by means of diversion ditches and terraces at the foot of the hill and the flat bottom land was drained by means of wide shallow open ditches which can be easily crossed with farm tools and the same time be maintained by plowing and kept free of weeds by mowing or cultivating. A one year old seedling of Serecia Lespedeza was seen at the farm.

The tour was conducted by the District Supervisors and the following agencies and business men were present: Mr. John Koon, Vocational Agriculture teacher; J. T. Cochran County Agent; William Crammick Farm Security; Richard Waldon and M. D. Gray, AAA Committee; C. V. Raymond, District Supervisor; Earl Spencer County Judge; L. E. Gex, W. K. Crouch, E. W. Collins, Frank Gardi and Hub Ferguson, District Supervisors; P. A. Whitehead and D. W. Orcutt, Williamstown, Ky., Conservationists.

SUGGESTS CANNING OF CULL CHICKENS

Shortage of feed is causing farmers to cull flocks to get rid of cullers and even some other chickens. Canning the culls is advised by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics as an economical and thrifty way to provide variety and goodness in winter meals. Plump hens 1 to 2 years old are ideal for the purpose. They have more flavor and better texture after canning than do fryers and broilers.

Cut the towel into the usual size pieces, then steam in a small amount of water until heated through, or brown in chicken fat. Use a teaspoon of salt for every pound of sterilized jars and process in a pressure cooker for 1 hour at 15 pounds pressure, or for 90 minutes at 10 pounds pressure.

Although a pressure cooker is recommended for canning chicken the hot water bath may be used if these directions are carefully followed:

Use only pint or quart jars, sterile and hot.

Cover the jars with at least two inches of water during the entire processing time.

Do not count time until the water comes back to a rolling boil after the jars are in the water bath, then boil both pints and quarts for 3 hours.

Keep the water boiling vigorously throughout the entire processing time. Remove jars at end of processing time and complete seal immediately. When a jar is opened for use, boil the meat in the liquid in which it was canned for at least 15 minutes before eating it.

History Full of Fights for Rome

Since Eighth Century B. C. City Has Been Fought Over Many Times.

CHICAGO.—Rome, in her 3,000-year history as a cross-roads, successively, of Latium, the Roman empire, and the Italian empire, many times has fought strangers battering at her defenses or watched them march through her streets.

Rome was only a poor village of straw huts when, possibly in the eighth century B. C., Sabine people from the central mountains began to dispute the right of the hills and plains near the lower Tiber with the tribes which had come down from Tuscany about two centuries earlier, says the Chicago Tribune.

The Etruscans, a relatively advanced people who had come to Italy from Asia, gained control of Rome probably in the sixth century B. C. The Etruscan kings, the Tarquins, were ejected about 509 B. C., but Rome was attacked again and again by the Etruscans and their allies and probably was captured and held for a time by Lars Porsenna of Clusium, an Etruscan prince, around 508 B. C.

Had Peaceful Spell.

The city had a relatively peaceful time for the next century, when her power and prestige flourished, but in 390 B. C. she barely escaped destruction at the hands of the Gauls. The Roman army was defeated and the city lay at the invaders' mercy. However, they halted to celebrate their victory for three days and the Romans improvised defenses. The Gauls withdrew after seven months but had sacked most of the city.

Soon after this siege, Rome recovered and became greater than ever. Most of Italy was consolidated under her rule and her influence grew, in the second and third centuries B. C. she fought three wars with Carthage and emerged in 146 B. C. the undisputed mistress of the western world.

For several centuries, Rome's dangers came principally from within. The change from a republic to an empire and the contests for power among the city's own elements resulted in occasional civil commotion.

The third century A. D., however, was rich in signs of the relative decline of the city. Increasing misery among the people, and a serious diminution of the vitality which had extended Rome's sway over a huge portion of the known world, prepared the way for a gradual breakup of the empire.

Barbarians Break In.

Reforms were instituted and collapse was postponed, but barbarians swarmed in from the north and the fifth century were breaking in. Alaric and his Visigoths sacked Rome in 410. Attila the Hun descended into Italy as far as Lombardy in 452 but Rome was spared. Vandal invaders under Gaiseric (Genserich) captured Rome in 455 and the empire died.

From the end of the empire to 1870 internal dissensions and external wars gave Rome more than her share of turmoil.

Probably the city's most dreadful experience during this period came in 1527, when 30,000 German and Spanish troops overran the city. The French entered Rome in 1798, partly with the cooperation of Romans, who welcomed them as an end of democracy and liberation. In 1808 French troops again occupied the city to depose the papal authorities because of Napoleon's hostility to them.

The entry of Italian troops into Rome on September 20, 1870, was the first important because it signified the first unification of Italy in modern times. An occupation of the city no less important in its bearing on history took place 62 years later. This was the Fascist "march on Rome" of October 30, 1922, which ended the constitutional monarchy.

Sitting on Jury Painful

For This Keeper of Bees

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. — Judge Leon R. Yankwich asked the panel of veniremen if they knew any reason why they could not sit as jurors.

"Yes," spoke up one of the group, Paul J. McDonald, and the judge asked why.

"My friends told me the smart thing to do was to get a box of bees and raise my own honey," McDonald explained. "I got a big box. Next day my bees were gone. It seems they were looking for a place to swarm."

"Well, I was bent over, with my head and shoulders in the bee box, looking for honey (optimistic fellow!) when they came back, and—I hope your honor appreciates my position."

"Painfully clear," agreed the judge. "Excused."

Her Kindness Is Repaid

With Interest in Full

KEMMERER, WYO. — Back in 1900, Mollie Huhlburt, an Arlington (Ore.) school teacher, gave three chickens to a boy circus ticket agent. Recently, Mrs. Mollie Huhlburt Scott, now teaching at Diamondville, received $97.50 from one of the trio, Sidney Searie of Condon, Ore., who explained that it was the compound interest on the original dollar.

Sidney was always good in arithmetic, Miss Huhlburt remembers.

CONEY ISLAND PLAN $1,000.00 IMPROVEMENT

"America's finest amusement park" is planning to spend approximately $1,000,000 on a post-war program of improvements. Edward L. Schott, president and general manager, has disclosed. Of this amount, about $250,000 will be spent in remodeling the steamer Island Queen, streamlining the big boat, making it more commodious and providing greater comfort for its patrons. A big new roller coaster at the park also is included in the plans.

In the meantime, Coney is providing a well-rounded program of entertainment and recreation. Its 1000 free picnic tables in the beautiful picnic grove are constantly in demand for family picnic parties. Its fine swimming pool, reputed to be America's largest recirculating water pool, is celebrating its twentieth anniversary. Dinners at the Clubhouse and the popular-priced cafeteria are attracting many, particularly those who like to dine well.

Rollin Caldwell of Adair county recently purchased four heifers and a bull as a foundation registered Aberdeen-Angus herd.

Twelve tractors have been operating 12 to 30 hours a day in Powell county, where practically all fertile land is in hay or corn crops. More than 11,000 pounds of bluestone were sold in Fayette county.

PRIMING TOBACCO INCREASED YIELD

Russell Hunt advised Boone County tobacco growers in a meeting at Burlington Tuesday, July 11th to prime their 1944 crop of tobacco. Priming will increase the yield of high quality market leaves and yield of ripe tobacco per acre.

Priming can best be done by boys and girls from 10 to 15 years. Women do an excellent job. The lower leaves should be primed when they are ripe and before they fire.

Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant, is planning to train groups of boys to do priming on a contract basis. The price will be around 8 cents per stick. Farmers who will be unable to prime their tobacco and would like to use this service should notify the County Agent's Office as soon as possible.

For Third Year Store Closes For Vacation

The Quality Sample Shoe Store, 627 Madison Ave., Covington, announces that they will close for one week, as has been the custom for the past three years, for vacation. Store will be closed July 24th and reopen on Monday, July 31st.

The management of this store lay claim to the honor of being the first store in Northern Kentucky to adopt this method of group vacationing. During this vacation period, it has been the practice to strip the windows of all merchandise and donate this window space to War Bond drive or some other War effort. Again this year the Management gladly offers this space in behalf of any War display. So they say goodbye to their many satisfied customers for just 1 week, and will be rested and ready to serve you on Monday, July 31st with Quality Shoes, for your Valuable Ration Stamp.

Reds Clash With Cardinals In First Home Game

One of the most exciting events of the entire season is scheduled for the night of Friday, August 4, at Crosley Field, when the Reds clash with the powerful St. Louis Cardinals. It will be Shrine night, and potatoes of that order will put on one of their colorful shows. Shrine Night, an annual event, always produces plenty of fun.

That game will be the first of two with the Cards, as the teams clash in a single game Sunday, August 6. Games between these two clubs are always packed with drama.

The Eastern teams will swing into Crosley Field starting August 9, and the Reds are to meet them in sixteen games. The Braves will be the first to appear, and they will play the Reds a ladies' day game August 9, a night game August 10, and single games on the two days following.

Met Otis New York Giants appear in a Sunday twin bill August 13, ladies' day affair August 14, and a night game the 15th. Then come the Dodgers for a single contest August 16, a ladies' morning game starting at 11 o'clock on the 17th, a night tilt the 18th, and a single afternoon brawl the 19th.

The Phils will close the long home stay, supplying the opposition in a Sunday doubleheader August 20 and a twilight-night twin bill Tuesday, August 22.

Mail orders are being accepted now for stadium contests. Just address the Cincinnati Reds, 307 Vine St.

RECENT MARRIAGES

Miss Emma French Peabody and Mr. Drexel Swango, both of Crittenden were married on Sunday at the Christian parsonage with Rev. Geo. Caroland officiating.

Miss Eva Lee Seabree of Crittenden and Mr. George (Jack) Coyle, of Walton, were married Tuesday at the Christian parsonage with Rev. Geo. Caroland officiating.

INDEPENDENCE VOLS
OPEN OUTING FRIDAY

The annual outing and dance sponsored by members of the Independence and Community Volunteer Fire Department will be given Friday and Saturday evenings on the Court-house grounds at Independence.

The program will include socials, novelty booths, refreshments and music by the Kentucky Colonels.

Herman Schoborn, general chairman, will be assisted by Goebel Armstrong, Charles Dorsey, Al Jaeger, Bill Goodridge, Lisle Beard, Ralph Edwin, Carl Holzerder, T. Merzhon, Russell England, Charles Wilson and members of the Women's Auxiliary.

HOMECOMING AT

The annual home coming services held at Hickory Grove Baptist Church, Sunday was well attended. Six former pastors were present and gave interesting talks. A delightful dinner was served on the grounds.

Pond Building
Program Organized
For County Farms

The County Agent's Office and the Soil Conservation Service have secured the cooperation of five bulldozer operators to follow a planned route so as to eventually reach all farmers in the county wanting farm reservoir on pond building services, according to the County Agent's Office.

The present planned scheduled route of the operators is as follows:

1. Marshall Bros.—Cross the East Bend Road to the Burlington-Bellview Road to Bellview. First of the week, this outfit was working at H. E. White's farm and from there to the Raymond Goodridge farm.

2. Webster—From Burlington to Petersburg, through Idlewild. First of the week at L. W. Guiley's farm. Route probably to Denzil Carpenter's farm.

3. Mosies—Bullittsville to North Bend, Mill Lucas farm to J. L. Jones, Jr. farm.

4. Veel—Verona territory, the first of the week at Joseph A. Huey's farm at Union; from there to Verona.

5. Walter Esterkamp—Union and Big Bone territory.

Mr. Taylor of Grant County was working on the T. J. Carr farm of near Verona on Tuesday of this week.

The operators have different sized equipment for which they are charging from $6.00 to $8.00 per hour with one operator charging $9.00 per hour. Four of the five operators cooperating in the planned program have two outfits each. All of these operators have promised to take large and small farmers as they come down the road and to cooperate in a better pond building program.

Farmers desiring pond building allowance at the rate of 15 cents per cubic yard of dirt put in the dam, he should first contact the A. A. A. office.

If the farmer wishes to secure A. A. A. payment on the soil building allowance at the rate of 15 cents per cubic yard of dirt put in the dam, he should first contact the A. A. A. office.

The county offices can give specific recommendations on the last point.

Perkins stated that relative to the shortage of shotgun ammunition for hunters, contact had been made with the War Production Administration by Game and Fish officials throughout the United States and latest information indicates that ammunition would be released some time during the month of July.

All hunters were urged to buy their licenses regardless of whether they had the opportunity to hunt or not because the money received from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses is used by the Division of Game and Fish to carry on its program of restoring fields, woods and streams and of improving of hunting and fishing conditions generally throughout the Commonwealth.

ALL DAY MEETING AT RICHWOOD CHURCH

There will be morning and evening services at the Richwood Presbyterian Church, Sunday July 30th.

Following the 11 o'clock morning service a picnic lunch will be served on the grounds. All are invited.

All members and friends of the church are invited to spend this day with us.

Local Pictures To Be Feature of Advertiser

The Walton Advertiser, always striving to give you the very best in a country newspaper, has purchased a complete photo engraving outfit. This equipment means that we will be able to have all the local pictures that we have space for. And there will be no charge what-so-ever from now on to have some of your loved ones put in our paper.

Of course, as with all parts of our paper, we need your help to make it good. You should be the one to bring the pictures you want in and we will gladly use them.

Can Use Only Negatives
Here is the only request that we have to make, and that is that you bring us the negative of the picture and not the picture itself. We will not harm the negative in any way and will return it to you.

Soldier Pictures
We would especially like to have a number of pictures of soldiers from this section in the paper each week. The boys in the service that get the paper will enjoy seeing their picture and the picture of their friends in the paper. We would certainly want to honor them in this way.

TIN - PAPER COLLECTION
SCHEDULED AUGUST 4

The salvage committee of Walton announces that there will be a collection of old paper and tin cans on Friday, August 4th at about 10 a. m. They advise people to be sure that paper is tied in bundles securely and that the tin cans are clean and flattened, and put in some kind of container. The citizens of Walton are urged to cooperate with this as we all know how important these little things are to the war effort.

Squirrel Season
In Kentucky Opens
On August 1st

Nimrods are making last-minute check-up on guns, ammunition and wearing apparel in anticipation of the opening of the squirrel hunting season which begins August 1 in Kentucky this year.

According to the most recent information received by officials of the Division of Game and Fish: Conservation Officers; hunter and farmers, squirrels are plentiful generally over the state and this should mean that Kentuckians will enjoy one of the best hunting seasons for the little bushy-tailed animals in years.

Hunters are required to purchase a $1-county hunting license if they do their hunting in one particular county, if they purchase a $3-state-wide hunting license then they are free to hunt in any or all of the counties of the state, J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, pointed out.

Perkins stated that relative to the shortage of shotgun ammunition for hunters, contact had been made with the War Production Administration by Game and Fish officials throughout the United States and latest information indicates that ammunition would be released some time during the month of July.

Kentucky Fishing Licenses
Sold July 1942-43

Fresh-water anglers fishing for food as well as for recreation brought $10,024,329 in revenue to the 48 States from the sale of 8,028,674 fishing licenses during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1943, according to a tabulation submitted to the Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes by the Fish and Wildlife Service, and received today by J. M. Perkins, Director of the Kentucky Division of Game and Fish.

Of the 8,028,674 licenses sold, 7,283,777 were purchased by residents and 744,897 by non-residents of states. It is shown. Reports indicate that 1,601,392 combination hunting and fishing licenses were sold by States having license systems which require sportsmen to buy combination licenses in order. The Service points out that their statistics do not include the vast number of anglers who are permitted to fish without State licenses along the seacoasts and in tidal waters.

Compared with the preceding year when 8,423,218 licenses were sold for $10,731,040, the 1942-43 totals indicate a decrease of 394,544 in licenses and $708,711 in fees.

The Division of Game and Fish of Kentucky sold 86,423 licenses for a total revenue of $87,641.00. Of the total licenses sold $2,113 were resident and 4,310 were non-resident fishing licenses, Perkins pointed out.

NONE ENEMY DIRECTED

After investigating 16,295 instances of suspected sabotage, the FBI reports 1,738 cases of deliberate destruction in the last fiscal year but says that none of them was enemy-directed.

Too Busy on War Work

The program to start plans for the reconversion of the automobile industry to civilian production received something of a set-back recently when nine leading concerns protested to the War Production Board that they were too deeply engaged in war work to consider present preparations for the manufacture of passenger cars at a future date.

WITH OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

JOHN E. ROBINSON WRITES TO EDITOR

Below is a letter we received from John E. Robinson, who is in Navy Sick Quarters, Wesley Memorial Hospital, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Meadows:
I want to thank you for sending me the Advertiser every week. I certainly enjoy the column "With our boys in the Service."

Through it I hear from many of the fellows whom I used to go to school with and be with in Walton. It seems that the old town is still plugging along as usual. I certainly would like to be home several months after I had gone in Service and I did not have the pleasure of making your acquaintance, but I will see you later.

This last issue, I received, was certainly full of news about the folks at home.

Thanking you again very much and I am looking forward to each and every issue in the future.

Sincerely yours,
John E. Robinson.

IN TRAINING

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Littrell received the following letter from their son, Russell Littrell, S 2-c who is stationed at Alameda, Calif.

Dear Mother and Dad:
How is everything back home? I am well and like here very much. I am being transferred to another station at Holister about 80 miles further south.

The weather here is comfortable most of the time a breeze comes in from the bay and when it is cloudy it is chilly and disagreeable.

Our barracks are clean and have marble floors with brass seams. We have steel lockers with plenty of room in them and double deck beds. Well, I can say for living quarters this place can't be beat. Flowers are plentiful around the barracks and a flower garden with three acres in it. It sure is beautiful.

Oakland is just across the bay from here. A friend and I are going over there to church tonight. I go to San Francisco quite often the boat rides are nice.

Well Mother it is almost muster time so I will have to close. Hoping to hear from you soon. Here is all my love and best wishes, may God bless you all.

Your son,
Russell

LETTER FROM SGT. CAMPBELL

Somewhere in France
Dear Mr. Meadows,

Through this letter I will endeavor to thank you and try to tell you how much I appreciate your sending me the Advertiser. It's a great paper and I really love to receive it because although I get plenty of the news from home in the form of letters there is quite a bit left out that I gather from your paper. I have received three copies this week and I don't think there was a word in any of them I didn't read. I absorbed it all and really did enjoy it.

I have been in France since the moment anyone else has been here. Our outfit, the Engineers were selected to be among the first to hit the beach and clear it of attacks. It was quite a job assigned to our unit but when the time came every man there did his utmost and we completed our job in record time. From 4 hour until four hours later we worked hard to clear it for more troops. There is many a story that could be told from that eventful morning that will probably never come out, but in all it was a great bunch of Americans who finally did the job.

Thanks again for the paper.

Yours truly,
Morgan

GRADUATES FROM NAVAL TRAINING SCHOOL

Graduation exercises recently held at the Naval Training School (Radio) on the Northwestern University campus, Evanston, Ill. saw Bluepacket James A. Johnson, 18 son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Johnson, 120 Main St., Walton, Ky. receive recognition as eligible to qualify for the petty officer rate of radioman third class.

Selection to the specialty school is based on recruit training aptitude test scores. The completed course of study included the use, operation and maintenance of radio equipment and operating Navy radio transmitting and receiving equipment. The theoretical phase included electricity and radio fundamentals.

The newly graduated man is now awaiting further duty orders to sea or to some shore station.

COMPLETES PARATROOP TRAINING

Pvt. Stanley Sallee son of W. R. Sallee of Walton, Ky., has won the right to wear Wings and Boots of the United States Army Paratroopers. He has completed four weeks of jump training during which he made five jumps from a plane in flight, the last a tactical jump at night involving a combat problem on landing.

Jumping at The Parachute School has been steadily developed to a recognized war science. There is less than one percent chance of injury while jumping at the school.

In addition to producing jumpers, Parachute Specialist Training is given to qualified men in Communication, Demolition, Riggers and Sewing Machine Maintenance, vital skills for Airborne troops.

OPA This Week

MORE GAS FOR SERVICEMEN

The OPA has announced that effective July 25, a member of the armed services on leave or furlough for a period of three days or more will be entitled to one gallon of gasoline for each day of his leave up to a maximum of 30 gallons. No ration will be issued for leaves of less than three days.

To receive his ration, the member of the armed services should apply to the War Price and Rationing Board having jurisdiction over the automobile he expects to drive, and present proper leave or furlough papers.

NOT NECESSARY TO ADVERTISE

Local War Price and Rationing Boards have been advised it is not necessary for persons who lose War Ration Books to advertise for their recovery before replacement books are issued, the Office of Price Administration has announced.

FOOD FOR TEMPORARY FARM WORKERS

Farms, ranches and other non-institutional employers of seasonal workers have been authorized by the Office of Price Administration to obtain allotments of rationed foods for feeding temporary workers hired for terms of employment ranging up to 60 days. This action becomes effective July 26, 1944.

Farms or ranches seeking allotments of foods for seasonal workers employed 60 days or less should make application for the allotments to their local War Price and Rationing Boards.

"Good Soldier"

The proudest title in the Army

IT CONSISTS of two simple words.

Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it

This title is simply:

"Good Soldier."

It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army.

For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC...

"They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

OUR FARM NEWS

HERE'S SOME WAYS TO REMOVE STAINS

Be on the alert for fruit stains on clothing and household articles and, if possible, remove them before they dry, says Miss Dorothy Thirkield, clothing specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Stains which become set usually require a strong remover, sometimes bleaching the color or injuring the fabric.

To remove fresh peach, pear, plum or cherry stains on cotton or linen, first sponge with cool water, then work glycerine into the stain. Let stand several hours, then apply a few drops of vinegar and rinse thoroughly. This method is also successful on wool or silk, while colored, for any kind of fruit stain.

Stubborn fruit stains on any fabric may require the use of a bleach made of a half teaspoon of sodium perborate to a cup of hydrogen peroxide. The clothing specialist warns, however, that the bleach should be tried on a seam, as it might remove the color. Sponge the stain with the solution immediately after it is mixed, then rinse thoroughly with water. If the stain persists, dampen it with water, sprinkle with powdered sodium perborate and allow it to stand a half hour when it should be thoroughly rinsed with water.

Other fruit stains than peach, pear, plum and cherry may be removed in most instances with boiling water. However, this method must not be used on wool, silk or rayon. Stretch the stain over a bowl and then pour the boiling water over it from a height of three or four feet as it strikes with force. If the stain persists, apply lemon juice and place in direct sunlight.

DAIRY COW INCOME BEST IN 25 YEARS

Clifton Norman of the Sharpe community in Marshall county, who has a herd of 13 cows, reports the largest income per cow from May 15 to June 15 that he has ever had in his 25 years of dairy experience. His milk checks for that period were $405, not including his subsidy payment. Farm Agent H. E. Rothwell is advising dairymen to save all the roughages possible, and to make early arrangements for a grain supply, so that production will not suffer.

DISEASE RESISTANT BLUEGRASS STUDIED

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station's program for the improvement of bluegrass includes the study of diseases that have been causing much damage in the state. These are leafspot, smut, rust, rot, and mildew.

Thirty-eight strains of bluegrass with good growth habits were tested in the greenhouse for reaction to mildew and leafspot. Six strains were found resistant to both diseases. It is believed that eventually a large number of strains of bluegrass will be found that are resistant to most if not all of the disease now in Kentucky.

Approximately 7,000 bushels of balbo rye were harvested in Davies county, most of which will be used for seed within the county. Rollin Caldwell of Adair county is establishing a registered Aberdeen-Angus herd.

PEACH CROP GOOD; CANNING SUGGESTED

Homemakers who expect to enjoy the flavor of canned peaches this winter are advised by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics to can their own supply. Military demands are such that there will be few commercially canned peaches for civilians. However, there is no limit to the amount one may put up at home. The crop is estimated to be considerably above the average, and 60 percent greater than a year ago.

Peaches are not difficult to put up. The mold which sometimes forms on canned fruit will be avoided if the filled jars are processed in the hot-water bath for 15 minutes. Here are the directions as given by canning specialists at the college.

Prepare jars by careful examination for nicks and cracks, test covers and wash jars thoroughly, then sterilize while the fruit is being prepared. A bushel of peaches will take from 18 to 24 jars.

Can only fresh, firm, sound fruit. To make peeling easier, blanch by dipping the stainer or cheesecloth bag containing the peaches in boiling water, then in cold. Slip off the skins, cut the fruit in half and drop into salt water to keep from turning dark. Use a tablespoon of salt to a quart of water.

Simmer the peaches for three to five minutes in syrup made of 1 cup of sugar to 2 cups of water. Pack hot into sterilized jars, cover with boiling syrup, leaving a half-inch head space and adjust lid according to type used.

As bacteria causing mold may enter jars while they are being filled, it is necessary to process them in the hot-water-bath for 15 minutes; then complete the seal.

Specialists advise against turning any jars upside down to cool. Place them so air can circulate between them without being in a draft.

COMMON DISEASES

PLAGUE CHICKENS

In a study of the causes of sickness and death among chickens in 400 flocks the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station found preventable common diseases and nutritional disorders responsible for most of the losses. Sixty-nine percent of the deaths came from disease, coccidiosis, worms and nutritional disorders.

Says the Station's report: "Reducing or eliminating losses due to any of these conditions requires no expenditure for medication. Correct feeding and sanitary precautions will effectively control them."

In many flocks the birds were found to be suffering with nothing more or less than underfeeding. In some flocks there was a combination of underfeeding and disease or parasites.

USING NITRATE ON WHEAT PROFITABLE

How three Henderson county farmers harvested $6 worth of wheat for every dollar invested in ammonium nitrate is told by County Agent H. R. Jackson. Yields were boosted an average of 12 bushels an acre by the application to 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate to the acre in March. More than 100 tons of ammonium nitrate were used in Henderson county last spring, some of it as top-dressing for wheat.

WHEAT YIELDS WELL

Martin Baskett of Henry county harvested 90 acres of wheat that totaled 2,250 bushels, or 25 bushels to the acre. The good yield was due, Farm Agent W. B. Howell believes, to the use of Thorne variety seed drilled in with 4-12-4 fertilizer, on land that had had a liberal application of lime and phosphate in recent years.

On 12 acres of balbo rye and vetch, O. B. Lucas of Crittenden county pastured 300 hogs last winter, then cut a full crop of grain for seed. At pressure canner clinics in Hickman county, 85 pressure canners were tested and put in good condition for the canning season.

FARMERS URGED TO SEED GRAINS FOR FALL, WINTER FEED

Farmers whose feed supply was reduced by drought are being urged by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics to "sow every possible acre in small grain in early fall or even late summer."

Rye and barley can be sown in August and wheat in early September, to furnish grazing in October and November. If the winter is mild they will provide feed all winter. Where possible to obtain seed, it is suggested that balbo rye be sown.

In some instances it still may be time to sow sudan grass, which furnishes a large amount of grazing in a favorable season.

The college again is stressing the value of alfalfa. The first cutting of alfalfa is nearly always good, and in an emergency alfalfa can be used for pasture in summer. Alfalfa sown in August, along with a few pounds of timothy or other grass seed, will make a crop of high-quality hay the next year.

Where full seedings of alfalfa can't be made, it is suggested that 5 or 6 pounds of alfalfa seed and 8 or 8 pounds of timothy seed be used to the acre. Timothy sown in August will make a crop the following year, particularly if nitrogen fertilizers are used in the spring.

In seeding small grains, the college is recommending that phosphate fertilizer be used on all but high-phosphate land, and it may even be profitable to add 100 to 150 pounds of ammonium nitrate to the acre on land of only moderate fertility, it is stated. If the land is moderately fertile, it is better to delay the use of nitrate until early spring, so as to provide more spring pasture.

FISH FOR THE NEW POND

J. M. Dyer, Soil Conservationist

If you were fortunate in having a pond constructed in time to have it filled or partly filled so you might well be interested in stocking it with fish for home food supply. It is said by our wildlife division that for farm ponds we should use bass and bream fish in the proportion of 15 bream to 1 large mouth bass. The pond should be fertilized with a good grade truck fertilizer such as an 8-8-4 using from 800 pounds to 1,000 pounds per acre of surface water. The actual size of the pond should be measured so as not to over stock. To many fish in a pond is like putting too many livestock in a pasture. It should be understood why fish should be fertilized. Naturally fish do not eat the fertilizer any more than cattle on a pasture eat fertilizer when it is applied to the pasture. But just as the fertilizer causes the grass to grow in the pasture so does fertilizer in a pond cause tiny water plants to grow which is the natural food for young bream fish and the bass eat the bream; so indirectly the fertilizer makes big bass just as fertilizer on pastures makes big beef steaks.

And speaking of steaks, when it is so hard to find one, we could manage a lot better if we had enough fish to provide the farm table occasionally. We are told it is not expensive to expect from a well fertilized pond from 150 to 225 pounds of fish each year per acre of water surface or from 3 to 4 pounds each week throughout the year.

If a pond is well fertilized, it should be stocked at the rate of 100 bass and bream fingerlings per acre. If the pond is not well fertilized at regular intervals it would be unable to support perhaps more than 25 to 30 bass and 400 bream, per acre depending largely upon the fertility of the soil in the drainage area of the pond.

Fertilizer is scattered on the surface, by hand around the edges of the water, at the rate of 100 pounds per acre for each application beginning some time ahead of stocking or early in the spring if fish are already stocked. These applications should be repeated from 8 to 10 times during the year depending upon the natural fertility of the soil in the drainage area.

Then Kenton County Soil Conservation District will be glad to assist cooperating farmers in securing these fish free of charge direct from the hatcheries in so far as the supply lasts.

ON KENTUCKY FARMS

O. M. Kingston of Hopkins county had an average yield of 38 bushels of Thorne wheat to the acre on 47 acres.

In Oldham county, 125 tons of ammonium nitrate were used this spring, a considerable amount being used on pastures and orchard grass.

J. B. Martin of Lee county reports the best crop of alfalfa he ever grew, despite the dry weather.

Four horse-drawn tobacco setters were bought by the farmers of Clay county this year, the first to be used in the county.

The drought in Anderson county has done little damage to hybrid corn, although the feed situation generally is critical.

Calwell county farm women helped in the harvest of grain by riding combines and by tying sacks of wheat, rye, oats, and barley.

Since meat rationing started, Mrs. Carlos Norris of Muhlenberg county has built up a good rabbit business.

R. V. Fiers of Livingston county who wormed his hogs twice with phenothiazine, stated he made more money on the herd than any he ever raised.

The Never-Ending Miracle of Southern Timber

WOOD has always played a vital role in the progress of civilization... for homes, factories, furniture, paper, airplanes, ships, farm implements, industrial equipment and other things. New discoveries will provide even greater opportunity for postwar development and employment.

Our southeastern states consistently produce about 30% of the softwood and 50% of the hardwood of the United States—could supply even more if needed. In L & N territory alone, over 2,000 establishments handle timber products of every description. This output in 1942 exceeded $200,000,000 in value, of which over $42,000,000 was paid for labor. Last year the L & N moved 113,000 carloads of these wood products, and otherwise contributed importantly to the development of southern timber resources. Thus we see the practical application of American Free Enterprise... what it has accomplished... how men of vision and courage built businesses of their own, and at the same time benefiting their neighbors and adding to the progress of the South.

The immediate purpose of The Old Reliable is to help win the war. This done, its energies will be again directed to the development of an even greater Southern industry—a goal it has pursued throughout more than 94 years of service.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

When You Get Good
Rules, Stick to 'em

Joel Shaw came by, after a day's fishing, to make a contribution for my supper. Seemed pleased with his catch.

Not much of a fisherman myself, though I sure enjoy fish. So I got asking him how come the fishing always seemed consistently good around here.

Joel tells me it's because the fishing and hunting are regulated. Sportmen themselves, he says, fostered the regulations and get mad as hornets when somebody breaks the rules.

Now I thought that was a good idea, and I told him so. But it eggs a lot further than just game and fish.

For example, the right to have a glass of beer but restricting its sale to clean, decent places.

Which is why folks approve the self-regulation job being done by the Brewing Industry Foundation.

From where I sit, it safeguards a personal right folks want to keep intact.

WCKY Opens Contest To Find "Miss Greater Cincinnati"

Trip To Atlantic City Awaits Winner; Local Girls Invited To Enter

Girls of this community were invited today to compete for the titles of "Miss Greater Cincinnati" and "Miss America, 1944."

Radio Station WCKY, Cincinnati, is sponsoring the current contest for the third consecutive year to find a successor to Miss Joan Hyldoft, winner in 1943, and again is pursuing the policy of aligning the competition with the war effort.

Contestants will take part in a number of patriotic enterprises before the finals are held Aug. 21 at the RKO Albee Theater, Cincinnati. Single girls between the ages of 18 and 28, who live within a 50-mile radius of Cincinnati, are eligible to enter.

Winners of the "Miss Greater Cincinnati" title will receive a complete wardrobe and will be sent by WCKY to Atlantic City, N. J., to compete for the national crown. Winner of the "Miss America" title will be sent on a 90-day War Bond selling tour of the United States, and will receive a $1,000 War Bond, a diamond wrist watch and more than $3,500 in cash prizes.

In addition, the "discoverer" of "Miss Greater Cincinnati," that is, the person or group nominating the entrant who wins the title, will receive a cash prize of $50 offered by WCKY. If the entrant later becomes "Miss America, 1944" her discoverer will receive an additional $100 from WCKY.

Winner in 1943

Further information and application blanks may be obtained from Wells F. Bruen, WCKY promotion manager, Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati, or at any RKO theater.

DINNER PARTY GIVEN BY MISS CROUSE

Miss Barbara Crouse entertained Friday evening with a dinner party for a group of her friends at her home in Walton.

The Crouses are expecting to move to Frankfort, Ky., and Barbara said she would like to have her friends together for a farewell party.

At eight o'clock dinner was served and afterward a scavenger hunt was held. Each couple was given a slip of paper with a number of articles to find in Walton.

Billy Wynn, Emma Lou McElroy and Bennie Elliott won the hunt. Their prize was a large box of chocolates.

After everyone had settled down and discussed their luck on the hunt some delicious punch was served. About two hours of dancing followed which everyone enjoyed.

As midnight rolled around the party came to a close with everyone complimenting Miss Crouse on the party but expressing sorrow of her departure from Walton.

● THINKINGS ● DOINGS ● SEEINGS

By Ye Editor

If your son or friend was sick and needed medicine, and the medicine cost you nothing to get—there would be no question what you would do—yet the most essential medicine that your fighting sons need is blood plasma and all you have to do to supply them with this most needed medicine, is to give to pint of your blood—it seems to me that our government shouldn't even have to ask to get this, they should be run over with applicants.

You wouldn't think that the people of the United States, including some of those in Boone County, are carelessly throwing away around $200,000,000 a year, but statistics seem to indicate that this is correct.

With $22,160,029,257 of currency in circulation, financiers estimate that individuals hold more than $16,000,000,000 and that at least half of this amount is being hoarded by possessors.

It requires little calculation to see that the owners of this money are losing around $200,000,000 a year in interest by not investing their money.

We would not advise individuals to take risks in the investment of their funds but every person has available a safe and secure method to receive interest payments on surplus funds. This is to buy war savings bonds.

Marriages seem to be the order of the week—they have kept us awake several nights lately with the rattle of tin cans—but I guess we can stand it if they can.

Buy bonds regularly: the war goes on even when war bond drives end.

FUNERAL SERVICE

VERONA

KENTUCKY

Every soldier boy, bride, baby or anyone else who desires may have their picture in the columns of the Walton Advertiser without any cost whatsoever—all you have to do is bring us a negative (not a picture) and we will use it and return to you undamaged in any way—this is just a service to our readers that we give in order to promote a better paper—won't you help us by bringing in your negatives—Let's have several soldier's pictures each week.

The human body can stand a lot of punishment if the worker likes his work.

It is strange how tired a man can be on Sunday morning, about church time, and how quickly he can recover by mid-afternoon, if something turns up.

The nation may have much to be thankful for when Thanksgiving day arrives.

Who can remember when the penant races were the most vital questions of the Summer?

There has been so much good news from the various war theatres that we are apt to get the idea that we cannot have a reverse.

The war has crowded much new out of the newspapers of the nation and it will never be missed.

BALBO EYE NOW AVAILABLE

Gulley and Pettit, Burlington, on Tuesday of this week secured 200 bushels of the Farm Bureau contracted Balbo rye for delivery to Boone County farmers. The rye will sell for $2.75 per bushel.

Farmers desiring this rye and especially those who plan to grow it for seed next year should make their purchases immediately as a large part of the seed is already sold and the supply is expected to last only a short time.

The Farm Bureau has no money involved either in the purchase or sale of the seed. Balbo rye of pure strain has been practically impossible to get in the past. The Farm Bureau contracted for one grower's entire production only so that seed of this variety of rye could be available to local farmers this year.

BUD ABBOTT . . Director and Conductor of WHAS midnight run, is known to listeners in every state, province, in Canada, the Caribbean area and on ships at sea as the man behind the mike when "Kentucky Calls America." From his ardent audience Bud counts fan letters by the thousands while other folks count sheep . . and features reading fifty of them each night between request recordings.

As America awakened to the needs of war, night-shifters and up-late G.I.'s dialed WHAS to catch hourly government newscasts. Proof of Bud's popularity is the eating of it. Says he, "I live on the fan of the land." Between mouthfuls of cake, fudge, fried chicken, lemon meringue and orange cream pie, his colleagues agree. Two taxi drivers, hearing their nocturnal snoreman express need of black coffee to keep awake, rushed in with steaming beakers. A farm listener in Pennsylvania sent fifty day-old chicks when Bud "aired" his ambition to become a gentleman farmer.

Female fans yearn to know Bud better . . many write him nightly, beg for photographs, autographs, dates and personal mention on the air. If they could see their dream talking, they'd find he has deep brown eyes, hair and mustache to match. By JANET B. STONE

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

"MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL BARTON KITTRIDGE announce the engagement of their daughter Sarah Chilton Kittridge to Craig Harrison III of West Branch Road. The wedding date has been set for—"

"Kit's hands crashed on the typewriter keys. Never in the three years since she had taken over the society desk of the Clarion Courier had a story been more difficult. Sarah Chilton Kittridge and Craig Harrison III! Clarion's glamour boy number one, the papers called him. A series of eastern schools, travel, vice president of the Harrison factories. The desire of every mother with an eligible daughter, the hope of each of those daughters. Yet Craig was well-liked. Easy-going, good-natured, a bit on the spectacular side."

"It ripped the paper from the machine, viciously squeezing it into a hard ball. She aimed at the basket and hit Barry Bradley as he came through the door. 'Ye gods, Kit, won't you ever learn to throw straight? See, you hold a ball this way.' His fingers gripped an imaginary missile."

"The pride and joy of the sports department played his brother Bobby Feller, does he? If a girl could throw straight she might be anything else, but with you she'd be O.K."

"Do I detect a trace of sarcasm from our Kit? It doesn't become you, darling. What's cooking with society today?"

"Nothing. Go away, will you? I've a deadline in an hour and no lead."

"You can always dig up the Harrisons, you know. They're good for a line or a column any day. Always reliable Harrisons, I call 'em."

"That's just what I was doing when you came in."

"Um, and what has Mamma Harrison joined this time, or is it our white-haired boy who is in the news again, you keep him on your page, sister. My mug is particularly about the company they keep."

"I'm announcing Craig's engagement."

"No foolin'! So somebody hit the jackpot. Who?"

"Kit hesitated a moment and her voice was low. 'Sarah Chilton Kittridge.'"

Barry stared at her. His voice, usually so strong, was uncertain. "You're kidding."

"Am I? Look at the paper in your hand."

Barry unfolded the crumpled sheet. "Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barton Kittridge announce the engagement of their daughter, Sarah—" he read aloud, "easing himself" to the corner of Kit's desk. The pain in his eyes made Kit wince. "So Sarah Kittridge is marrying our glamour boy? I suppose I should offer congratulations. I thought I knew the Kittridge gal pretty well. Seems I'm wrong. What a laugh! It doesn't make sense, Sarah Kittridge and Craig Harrison. What's she really like, Kit? You ought to know."

The girl raised her dark eyes to look deep into Barry's stormy gray ones. Her voice was weary. "I don't know, Barry. She's twenty-four, has had a good education, traveled a bit. Rides well, plays rotten golf, dances divinely I've been told. Not much to look at."

"I thought her very pretty."

"Did you? Well, if you care for that type."

"I do. Very much."

"Oh!"

"And this guy, Harrison, Barry probed, 'what about him, Kit, is he a stuffed shirt?'"

"Not at all. He's all right when you know him. Too much money, perhaps, but he's worked hard for honors at school, tennis titles . . ."

"Well, he can give a girl whatever she wants."

"What d'ya mean, maybe? Position, houses, furs, jewels, cars. What more could a girl ask?"

"What more is there?" Kit walked over to the dirty window looking out on a brick wall.

"Think she's in love with him?" Barry's voice continued.

"I suppose so. Sarah Kittridge has never missed much. Perhaps she's old-fashioned enough to think she owes her family a good marriage. Perhaps she wants to have a home and children. Perhaps she—"

"Kit dropped. Her small hands covered her face. The slim shoulders shook with sobs."

"Barry was on his feet in an instant. He swung her around to face him. 'Kit, don't cry. Look at me, darling. Slowly he tilted her head back until their eyes met. 'You crazy little fool. You darling idiot. And I'm the world's prize dope.' His lips met hers in a kiss. Some time later Barry held her away from him. 'Say, gal, you've a deadline to meet. Come on, let's write the story and get out.'"

"But I haven't a lead," wailed Kit.

"Oh, haven't you? I'll draft it for you. You type it. Ready?"

"Yes," Kit's voice quavered.

"Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barton Kittridge announce the engagement of their lovely daughter Sarah to Harrison Bradley. The wedding date has been set for—"

"For when, Barry?"

"Just write 'darned soon,' darling."

News From The State Capital

Kentucky Beer Licensees have been told by Charles F. Brown, Jr., commissioner of alcoholic beverages, control, that the ban on beer sales at dance halls, roadhouses and other places outside corporate limits would be rigidly enforced.

In a circular letter addressed to all retail beer licensees, Brown said the department will follow:

"Any place commonly known as a roadhouse (as used in statutes) is hereby defined," Brown wrote, "as being any public place outside an incorporated city or town patronized by the public for purposes of amusement, such as dancing, the playing of music, juke boxes, pinball machines, slot machines, or games of any kind; but does not include bona-fide restaurants, groceries, general stores, filling stations, or other establishments where the form of amusement is permitted."

The 1944 act forbids the sale of beer on premises used as a retail package liquor store, dance-hall, or roadhouse outside of incorporated cities or towns except in counties which contain a city of the first, second or third class and which maintains a county police force.

Creamery plant field men throughout Kentucky recently met in the Auditorium of the State Department of Health Building, Louisville, to discuss the best methods of constructing and operating cream buying stations in the State. In attendance were 43 representatives of butter manufacturing plants in Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois.

Emphasis was placed on adequate waste disposal, the importance of adequate and complete washing of cream cans used by patrons, and the necessity for proper cooperation between creamery field men and State and local health officials in the matter of sanitation. As a result of the meeting, a plan of cooperation, based on careful study of the State Food Sanitation Law as it applies to cream buying stations, was set up.

A 12.4 per cent increase in state toll bridge collections in June over the same month a year ago was reported by J. Stephen Watkins, Commissioner of the State Highway Department.

Toll collections last month amounted to $68,580 as compared to $61,039 in June 1943, according to the report. Ten of the 12 toll bridges registered gains with only the Tyrone and Livermore spans showing decreases.

A 5.4 per cent increase in automobile traffic across the bridges and a 13.6 per cent increase in truck traffic were recorded.

YOUR REFRIGERATOR MOTOR
Twice Each Year

If you have the open or belt-driven type of refrigerator unit, the motor should be oiled twice each year. Sealed unit models need no oiling.

A light motor oil should be used, but never use oil as light as sewing machine oil. S.A.E. 20 or 30 weight oil in the best grade available at your filling station is recommended. Oil should be fed slowly into the oil cups supplying front and rear bearings until both cups are filled. The two bearings are the only parts of motor that require oiling. Over oiling can damage a motor as well as under oiling, so do not oil oftener than once each six months. Tag motor with date last oiled or paste date inside unit compartment. Then you will know when it is time to oil again.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for July 30

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

GIDEON'S FAITHFUL FEW

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:4, 19-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—There is no restraint in the Lord to save by many or by few.—1 Samuel 14:6.

Man power is said to be the secret of victory. Our nation is concerned about the shortage of man power in critical manufacturing centers. The armed forces are calling for more and more men and women.

That will all make it a little strange to study and teach the lesson for today, for here is the story of a crucial military campaign in which the leader, Gideon, was told by God to cut down his forces. This happened again and again, until he had less than one per cent of his original force, which was none too large, humanly speaking.

What singular thing was going on? God was at work and He did not want Israel to look to the arm of flesh, but to Him.

Three questions are raised and answered in this interesting story:

I. Quantity or Quality? (7:4-7).

The Lord is looking for men to do His work, but He cannot use men who are afraid or careless. This was the lesson Gideon learned, and it applies to our day as well.

When Gideon started out he had 32,000 men (Judg. 7:3). Not willing that they should glory in their own strength and knowing that many of them were cowards at heart, the Lord told Gideon to let those who were afraid, go home. When the mob had left there were only 10,000 left.

How sad it is that so many are "fearful and afraid" (v. 3) when it comes to going into battle for the Lord. They sing cheerily, "Stand up, stand up for Jesus, ye soldiers of the cross; let courage flow with danger," etc.; but when the bombs of Satan begin to fall, or the bugle calls for an advance into the enemy's territory, they have disappeared to places of comfort and safety. What good are such soldiers? The Lord told Gideon to send them home; perhaps the church should do the same.

Then came the second test which appears in our lesson. Those who took the comfortable and easy way to drink (v. 6), were not alert and ready. Down went the number to 300; but these were men who were ready to obey, who were alert and courageous.

The church needs to learn that large numbers are not the answer to her problems. God is interested in numbers, be sure of that, but He is more concerned about quality than quantity. Let us get more people who are truly regenerated into the church, and not just more people.

II. Man's Power or God's Power? (vv. 15-18).

Strange as was the plan for recruiting, the plan of battle was even more unusual. Lights, broken pitchers, and trumpet blasts are hardly the accepted weapons of warfare, nor does the method sound like military strategy.

This was no time for the questions, for logical arguments, for the usual organization of war, for now God was about to work. He was ready to show His power quite apart from the ability of man and He had a right to work as He would.

Wise and blessed is the church which knows that there comes a time when the thing to do is to put plans aside and let the Lord work. No one will question the value of organization and proper church "machinery," but we need to ask ourselves whether we have not become so organized that we impede the work of God.

Observe on the other hand that it was "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon"—not just the sword of the Lord. God is all-powerful. We must not hinder His glorious working. But He uses through men, do not forget that! He used Gideon, and He used Gideon's little band.

God's power must accomplish God's work, but that power flows from the world through yielded and obedient men.

III. Running or Standing? (vv. 19-21).

The enemy "ran and cried and fled." The word of the Lord and of Gideon had put them to rout. Well may the enemies of God be terror-stricken when He begins to work through His servants.

All this was done "by faith," for we find Gideon's act of turning "to fight the armies of the aliens" listed among the exploits of faith (Heb. 11:24).

Now, see what Gideon's host was doing while the enemy ran (v. 21). "They stood every man in his place." No need for frantic hurry with them, no fear, no excitement.

God works that way. Remember the children of Israel at the Red Sea! The water ahead, and Pharaoh's host to the rear. What to do? "Fear ye not, stand still and see the salvation of the Lord." (Exod. 14:13).

Perhaps the word is coming to us just now—Trust God rather than the power of man! Stand still and see what He will do, for His own glory! (1:24).

GENEVA CONVENTION

Brigadier-General G. M. Bryan, Provost-Marshal in charge of prisoners of war, declares that the United States is adhering to the Geneva Convention in the treatment of war prisoners and that our men, now captive in Germany, are receiving treatment in conformity with the convention and that there is every evidence that medical attention has been excellent.

U-BOATS

The June report on submarine activities, issued by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, gave no detailed figures but asserted that merchant vessel losses to undersea raiders "reached almost the lowest figure of the entire war." Moreover, for every merchant vessel sunk, the Germans lost several times as many U-boats.

PCA WAR GROWTH EXPLAINED, POST-WAR PLANS DISCUSSED

The wartime increase in number and amount of production credit association loans to Kentucky farmers was traced to an informed membership and the cooperative principles upon which the association operates, as a conference beginning Wednesday night, July 19, at the Kentucky Hotel. Attending the meeting were farmer directors of production credit association with central offices at Louisville, Elizabethtown, Williams-town and Owensboro.

P. L. Kerr, president; E. R. Raymond, secretary; Howard Garlaugh, vice president; C. D. L. Kemeser, treasurer, of the Production Credit Corporation of Louisville, led conference discussions.

Plans were discussed for handling the credit needs of returning veterans who are qualified for and interested in farming. Some production credit association in Kentucky have already made loans for this purpose, and other Kentucky associations feel a responsibility to be prepared when the need comes.

Representing the Northern Kentucky production credit association with members in Boone, Campbell, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant, Kenton, Owen and Pendleton Counties, were A. Threlkeld, C. Liston Hemphill and Leonard C. Taylor.

C. Liston Hemphill, director of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association, was elected to represent the associations at this conference on the 1944-45 district committee.

I. C. Smith, director of the Falls City production credit association, was elected alternate. At eight other conference delegates and alternates to the committee will be elected.

WARNS NAZIS

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in condemning the mass killing of Jews in Hungary and the "cold-blooded" murder of the population of a Greek village, warns the Germans the perpetrators of the outrages will be inexorably punished by the United Nations.

Specialists Meet Farmers

Dairy - Feed Program

Boone County farmers will hold a dairy-winter feed program meeting on Wednesday, August 9th, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Prof. Fordyce Ely, head of the dairy department, and William Johnstone, crops field agent from the College of Agriculture, will advise with farmers at the meeting.

The drought has brought about serious feed problems and has added to the already feed shortage. The morning program will be devoted to a tour of successful alfalfa fields. The afternoon meeting will be an out-of-doors meeting at a leading dairy farm.

LAGS IN SPOTS

War production lags in spots, according to Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the WPB, who says there is cause for worry over steel and that other trouble spots are heavy tire production, artillery, shells and tanks.

COUNTY AGENTS TELL OF DROUGHT LOSS

County farm agents in conference at the University of Kentucky reported many thousands of dollars in destroyed crops and pastures as a result of the summer's drought.

The weather has caused heavy damage particularly to corn, alfalfa and clover, while livestock is being sold in large numbers because of a lack of feed, the agents said. They described farmers in some areas of the state as becoming "desperate."

WALTON STOCK YARDS STOCK CHANGES HANDS

A. C. Johnson announced this week that he had sold his interest in the Walton Stock Yards to A. F. Childress of Walton. Mr. Johnson said the change was made due to his health.

Mr. Childress, who has recently located here, was a prominent lawyer in Pikeville, Ky., for many years and is taking a very active part in the civic and religious affairs of our community. He will assume the duties of bookkeeper at the Stock Yards.

LANG'S RESTAURANT OPEN

The noted Lang's Restaurant in Covington which suffered a severe fire recently, has been reconditioned and is now open for business with its usual high quality foods.

LIEUT. CONRAD HOME FOR FEW DAYS LEAVE

1st. Harold S. Conrad is home for a few days, having an enjoyable visit with relatives and friends before going back over seas. Harold was overseas for 43 months and says "It's just an old routine in going back over."

He was in Pearl Harbor, Midway, Guadalcanal and New Zealand before returning to the states in October. Since that time he has been in various schools. He is now training at Camp DeJeu, N. C.

He leaves his best wishes for good health and luck to all.

SECURES HELP OF PROFS.

ELY AND JOHNSTONE

The Gallatin County Extension Service has secured the service of Professor Ely and Wm. Johnstone, of the University of Kentucky, for a meeting at Joe Smith's farm on Dry Creek Road, just out of Walton, on August 7 at 1:30 P. M. The purpose of the meeting is to assist farmers with their feed and dairy problems.

The farmers and their families are invited to attend the meeting and to take part in the discussion.

HOME CANNERS URGED TO TAKE SAFETY QUIZ

Boone County home canners are urged to stop, think and check up on their standing as canners who steer clear of hazards. Here is a quick quiz in which canning specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture list 12 questions. "Yes" answers down the line are the goal for safety first:

1. Do you avoid oven canning, because of hazard of exploding?

2. Do you inspect jars to be sure there are no cracks, bubbles, or other defects? These are danger spots where the jars may give way later and break.

3. Do you try out jar tops, making sure you know how to adjust the kind you have correctly? Some types require looser adjustment than others and steam will build up in them so they break, if too tight during canning.

4. If you are using the 3-piece type of jar top, do you take care to leave enough "give" to allow air in the jar to escape during canning? With this type, the metal screw band must be screwed down over glass lid and top-seal rubber so loosely that the threads are just meshed in enough to hold top in place during canning.

5. Do you avoid burns on your hands by picking up hot jars with a thick cloth or good strong tongs?

6. Do you turn saucepan handles so they don't come out over stove edge?

7. Do you watch a boiling water bath canner, so it doesn't boil over and maybe put out a gas flame?

8. Do you make sure a steam pressure gage is clear and clean, so that steam can escape from pet cock freely?

9. Do you make sure you have enough water in a steam pressure canner, so it won't boil dry?

10. Do you slide any canner away from heat rather than lift a hot, heavy container?

11. Before opening a steam pressure canner, do you let pressure drop to zero, wait a minute or two open the pet cock slowly?

12. When lifting a steam pressure canner lid, do you tilt the far side up to protect you from escaping steam?

The new U. S. Department of Agriculture home canning bulletin has arrived in the county according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. Anyone desiring this bulletin may contact the County Extension Office in Burlington.

PASTURE MAY SAVE TONS OF HOG GRAIN

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station says an acre of good pasture may replace as much as a ton of grain and a quarter of a ton of protein supplement, in feeding hogs. Alfalfa and clover rank at the top of the list of hog pastures but winter pastures from early fall seedings of small grain, especially balbo rye, furnish forage which is relished by hogs of all ages. Farmers are urged to have at least a sixth of an acre of pasture throughout the year for each gilt, brood sow and boar, and a third to a half of an acre for each litter of growing and fattening pigs.

Farmers in Magiffin county are raising as many chickens this year as last, despite feed prices.

D. W. Miller drove Russell Millers milk truck Sunday while he was visiting his son at an Army Camp in Indiana.

ON KENTUCKY FARMS

It is estimated that Nelson county farmers will sow around 10,000 acres of fobalto rye this fall.

To relieve the equipment shortage in Meade county, farmers listed 58 pieces for sale with the county agent.

Farmers in Madison county used more than twice as much bluestone on their tobacco as a years ago, and five times that of two years ago.

In Logan and Simpson counties, more than 6,000 chickens are being raised by 777 Negro 4-H club boys and girls.

A hayfield that produced 2,000 bales on the farm of Ray Neely in Logan county in 1943, was completely destroyed by army worms this spring.

In Robinson county, where interest in beef cattle is on the increase, three farmers recently bought registered bulls.

Mrs. Edd Paxton of Edmonson county has cleared around $3 on each of her hens this year.

Six turkey producers in Harrison county have increased their flocks from 50 to 100 percent this year, all raising the bronze broad-breasted type.

Increases of fertilizer used for small grains and row crops in Caldwell county have almost doubled over that used in 1943.

Thirteen 4-H club members in Jefferson county are fitting 14 Angus and six Angus-Hereford calves for the fat cattle show in November.

In Oldham county, 115 homemakers are acting as advisers to neighbors who are learning to can. Pulaski county farmers planted more than 1,200 bushels of hybrid seed corn, or about 60 percent of the entire crop.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Mary and I were just saying, Judge, how lucky we are here in America that we have so many natural resources to help win the war."

"That's right, Jim. When war broke out we had oil, we had steel, we had food, lumber, aluminum...practically everything we needed. There's one thing we didn't have...rubber. The enemy had that."

"But that didn't bother us for long. Soon American brains and industry had synthetic rubber by the tons rolling out of plants. That filled a critical need...you can't win a war without rubber."

"I was very much interested the other day in reading a statement made by a high government official on synthetic rubber. In it he said it is fair to regard the rubber manufactured to date as being almost solely the product of the beverage distilling industry."

"He also said that, in his estimation, the tremendous contribution of distillers' industrial alcohol to the synthetic rubber program had not received the recognition which it deserves."

"We certainly learned something today, didn't we Mary?"

Fair Catalogues Being Distributed

The twelfth Annual 4-H and Utopia Club Fair catalogues are now being distributed. Catalogues may be secured from the County or Home Agent's Offices or from members of the Council.

Plans are being made for the 1944 fair and county picnic to be the best on record. Committeemen are wholeheartedly accepting responsibilities for jobs assigned and all report they are interested in working for Boone County to have the finest and best.

Judges for most of the departments have already been secured. Breeders and sponsors of special exhibits are preparing extra equipment for the display of their products.

The 25 cents admission charge for adults was through error not mentioned in the catalogue. Children under 16 years and 4-H Club members are admitted free. Receipts collected will be used to improve the grounds.

Reds vs Cards In Night Game

As the Reds conclude their semifinal tour of the East in a successful manner, Cincinnati fans are awaiting the big doings of Friday night when the Reds meet the swaggering St. Louis Cardinals in a night game that promises to be one of the season's highlights at Crosley Field.

It will be Shirine night, and fans who have attended similar occasions in the past know what that means. Potatoes of the order will parade in a gala, forty-minute show starting promptly at eight, and the game will start at the usual nine o'clock hour.

The Cards will also meet the Reds in a single game Sunday, with play starting at 2:30. Then the eastern clubs will make their final invasion of Cincinnati, meeting the Reds in sixteen battles.

Boston will be the first to appear, coming in for a ladies' day game on August 9, a night game August 10, and two single games on the following days. Then the New York Giants show for a Sunday double-header, August 12, a single game August 14, and a night game the 15.

The Dodgers will appear against Bill McKeen's boys in a single contest the 16th, a ladies' day morning game at 11 A. M. on the 17th, a night game on the 18th, and a single till the 19th. Then the Phillies whip up the long home stay with two successive twin bills on August 20 and 22. The latter affair will be a twilight night attraction, starting at 6 o'clock.

Tickets for all these games are now on sale at the Reds' ticket headquarters, 307 Vine Street, where mail orders are being accepted.

GOSHEN CHURCH REVIVAL

The Goshen Christian Church, Piner, invites you and your friends to attend their revival services, August 6-18, at 8:30 (E.W.T.) each evening. Bro. Digby, the pastor, of Transylvania College, will have charge of the services.

Diamond Jubilee Sunday

St. Mary Church, Morning View, will celebrate its diamond jubilee Sunday, August 5th, with a homecoming and picnic.

CHURCH HOMEcoming MARKS 75TH YEAR OF ITS HISTORY

The 75th anniversary of St. Mary Church, Morning View, will be observed Sunday, August 5th with the annual homecoming and picnic on the grounds of Camp George W. Hill which is located half-a-mile from the church.

The frame church was erected in 1869 for the purpose of serving as the parish of the southern section of Kenton county and part of Pendleton county.

Rev. Francis B. Donnelly, the present pastor of the church, has been head of the church for the past three years. Rev. Donnelly also serves as pastor of St. Matthews Chapel at White Villa which is open only during the summer months.

Erected on one of the highest points in Kenton county St. Mary Church overlooks the Licking River valley. Six years ago a furnace was installed in the church to replace two large coal stoves which were used to heat the large frame building. Within the last six years the kerosene lamps in the church were replaced by electric lights. The white church was given its last coat of paint 35 years ago.

The annual outing of former members of the church is one of the principal fund-raising events of the church which now has but a membership of 28 families. At one time the church had a membership of more than 100 families.

John Beck is general chairman of the annual outing, James Gordon and James Dwyer are co-chairmen of the committee in charge of the affair. Mr. Beck said the program will include a country style chicken dinner, games, music and amusement for children and adults.

PAPER DRIVE AUGUST 3rd.

Save your scrap paper for Victory. Paper drive on Thursday, August 3rd, by Petersburg 4-H Club members. Remember, club members, more paper and more points for our club. Harriett Jarboe, Pres., Petersburg 4-H Club.

AUTOMOBILES KILL RABBITS AND OTHER WILDLIFE

J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, requests all motorists to give more protection to the rabbit and other wildlife on the highways of this state. Thousands of rabbits and other animals and birds are being killed by motorists with a little care, this rate could be cut down considerably.

Now In Hawaii

Pvt. Bernard W. Lightner, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Lightner, Independence, has been stationed in the Hawaiian Islands for the last five months according to his parents. He was inducted in May 1942, and received his basic training at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

MRS. LENA WELSH HENSLEY

Mrs. Lena Welsh Hensley passed away early Sunday at the home of her daughter Mrs. Alta Gerald of Covington.

Services were conducted at Petersburg Methodist Church, Tuesday at 2:00 p. m. with burial in Petersburg Cemetery.

Mrs. Hensley formerly lived in Petersburg and was the widow of Clay Hensley, coal dealer of that city. She is survived by three sons, Ernest of Petersburg, Clifford of Louisville and Claude of Covington.

Four daughters, Mrs. Hubert Bruce of Houston, Texas, Mrs. Alta Gerald of Covington, Mrs. Millard Sullivan of Burlington R. R., and Mrs. Ray Barnes of Burlington R. R. Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to take time to thank all the neighbors and friends for their kindness showed me and my mother during the illness and death of my little son, John Allen Stone.

I also want to thank Rev. Garrett for his comforting words in our sorrow. I want to thank the people for their beautiful flowers and also, Chambers and Grubbs.

His Mother and Grandmother, Mary Fields Stone and Mrs. Dora L. Fields.

EVERETT L. AYLOER

Everett L. Ayloer formerly of Walton died at Russell, Ky., Tuesday August 1st at 6 p. m.

Funeral services will be held at the Baptist Church Thursday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Robert Gullick officiating.

Mr. Ayloer was a prominent farmer and resident of Boone County for many years, before moving to Russell he was also in the grocery business in Walton.

He leaves his wife Mrs. Mable Ayloer, one daughter Mrs. John Gilpin and several grandchildren all of Russell, Ky.

Chairman Brugh Gives Details On Ration Ruling

Distribution of the new ceiling price posters on which each eating establishment in Boone County will display its ceiling prices for 40 basic menu and food items was begun today by the local Price Panel.

The District Advisory Council made up of six leading Kentucky restaurant, cafe and hotel proprietors helped select the 40 items that will be posted on this chart. Mr. R. M. Wheeler, Lexington, Kentucky, owner of Canary Cottage Restaurant, is Chairman of the District Advisory Council and is also a member of the Regional Advisory Council.

War Price and Rationing Board Chairman R. E. Brugh explained that "an item" is the usual name of a standard meal of an la crate serving—for example: "roast beef lunch" "P-bone steak dinner," "chicken salad," "egg sandwich."

Establishments which do not serve all of the 40 selected items must post the April 4-10, 1943 prices of those they do serve, and the April 4-10, 1943 prices of enough other items to fill the poster. If the establishment does not handle as many as 40 items, then the poster should be filled with all the items that are offered.

These posters must be prominently displayed in each eating establishment by August 16, 1944. In addition R. E. Brugh explained, each proprietor must fill three copies of the April 4-10, 1943 prices of the items on his poster with the War Price and Rationing Board by August 23, 1944.

A Tribute to Our Children

TO PUBLISH PICTURES OF LOCAL CHILDREN

Pictures of the children of this city and surrounding community are to be printed in this paper as a special tribute to our young citizens. Tomorrow the responsibility of guiding the destinies of the world will be placed upon their shoulders. All are invited and urged to participate in this featured event. Among our children are those destined to fame and fortune, so let's not omit any of them!

Every parent should cooperate to make this a colorful and inspiring exhibit. You can cut out and keep these pictures of your children, subscribe to, or be a subscriber to this newspaper, to have your pictures taken and run in this featured event. That is necessary is that the children be brought by their parents to the photographer on the date and at the location mentioned below. Proofs of all poses will be submitted to the parents, and sets of approved poses will be prepared, identified, written up, and printed in this paper.

The Studio will also take pictures of adults and family groups, and submit proofs without charge, but these pictures will not be published in the paper.

If photographs are wanted for yourself it will be necessary to arrange for them direct with the Studio when proofs are submitted for examination because they cannot be obtained through this paper.

Remember, all children must be accompanied by parents or guardians.

HERE IS THE TIME AND PLACE TO HAVE YOUR PICTURE TAKEN FREE OF CHARGE.

Brent Spence Described As "Farmers Friend"

Congressman Brent Spence was described as "a faithful friend of the farmer—one who keeps a capable and trained eye ever watchful of our interests" by State Senator, Alvin Kidwell, of Sparta, as he urged residents of the Fifth District to vote for Rep. Spence in the Democratic Primary Saturday.

"I know you are busy, but I deem it vitally important that you plan to visit your voting booths Saturday and return to the halls of Congress a man who has not only given you loyal representation in the past, but is equipped to do so in a much greater manner in the future," Sen. Kidwell said.

He pointed out that "Representative Spence has worked diligently as a member of Congress and now holds the important position of Chairman of the powerful House Banking and Currency Committee. This is one of the most important committees in the National House of Representatives. In addition to the work Representative Spence can do for us as its Chairman, his position of great influence makes it possible for him to accomplish many other things through contact with other committees.

"Brent Spence is the first Kentuckian to serve as Chairman of this Committee. Many other great statesmen have served in that position, including James C. Garfield, who later became President of the United States. I need point to but one of the many fine things Representative Spence has done for us to prove his loyalty to duty in behalf of the farmers.

"When the OPA began to place ceiling prices on tobacco, Representative Spence used his influence to have these prices increased, and to have them placed on tobacco by grades instead of an over all price. That was what gave us better money for our crops during the last two years.

"But, that isn't all. In May of this year during an emergency price control hearing before Representative Spence's Committee, our Congressman Spence served notice one night on the OPA authorities that he expected an answer from them the following day on what they were going to do about tobacco prices for the coming winter. And, my farmer friends, Representative Spence did what he said he would do.

"As the hearing proceeded, Representative Spence placed the matter squarely before these OPA men by saying: 'there is another question I want to ask. The cash crop of the farmers in Kentucky is largely tobacco. I have heard some members talk about the hardship of raising cotton, but if there is any crop that takes sweaty, arduous, unremitting toil to raise, it is tobacco.

"The Kentucky people for many years have had a pretty hard time of it. Last year, I think, under the rulings of the OPA and the price on grades of tobacco, the tobacco growers did fairly well. They would like to know, though, that the prices will not be depressed by reason of the rulings of OPA lower than they received last year on the market.

"I want to know what you are going to do about tobacco."

Yes, that was your Congressman Brent Spence looking after your interests in Washington. Now, let's see what the answer was. One of the OPA men assured Representative Spence that "they should be as well off this year as last year on the price. And, what did he say? 'We have no present intention of lowering the tobacco price as against last year.'"

Senator Kidwell continued, "I say to you, what more could the people of the Fifth District ask of a Representative in Congress? This is positive proof that Brent Spence is ever wide awake to grasp any situation where he can be of help to the farmers, and to everyone else.

"This year's election for Congress in the Fifth District can be summed up in a very few words. It is simply, do you want a reliable and experienced man to look after your interests during these trying hours, or do you want a man who gives you nothing but a desire to hold public office?

"Would you turn away your family doctor after he had served you many years and become a specialist in treating your ill? I know you would (Continued on Page Five)

WITH OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

AN AIR SERVICE COMMAND DEPOT (SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND)

WAC Private First Class Masil E. Falls, sister of Mr. James E. Falls of Walton, Kentucky, is now serving as a Personnel Clerk in the Administrative section of the largest Air Service Command depot in Britain.

She is one of thousands at this depot where America's fighters and bombers are assembled, modified and repaired to support our Allied armies battling in France.

Before entering the Air Forces in July 1943 she was employed as a teacher by the Kenton County School in Covington, Kentucky. WAC Pfc. Falls attended State Teachers College in Harrisonburg, Va.

She has a brother Guy M. Falls, in the Merchant Marines.

MR. AND MRS. A. C. JOHNSON RECEIVE LETTER FROM SON

Dearest Mother,
Heard from Ella Mae again today, sure was glad after waiting so long. I also wrote to Jimmy and sent my present address.

How are you? I ask you every time I write but by the time you receive them you could get sick. I'm trying to make the letters as interesting as possible although I don't succeed very well.

Tell Dad to take care of himself, and if he does take a trip, Phoenix of Tucson would suit him I'm sure most of it is farming country. It is about as pretty a place as I ever saw. It's plenty warm here now, but awful damp which makes it bad.

I'd like to see Coney Island now, but probably nothing but women around, and I'm getting used to doing without them now, all but one or two. (You mainly).

Sure glad Johnnie is getting home again one of us should, drop in now and then.

As you know by now you can send stationary and candy or cakes which we'll enjoy an awful lot here.

There are natives here, black of course, but don't see many of them. As you know I can't say where I am (censor you know).

Bye Now,

Good pastures save up to 18 percent of the feed in growing and fattening hogs. Each sow and litter fed on pasture requires 13 to 21 bushels less corn and 330 to 550 pounds less supplement than similar sows and litters fed in drylot. Early fall or late summer seeding of rye, barley or wheat make excellent fall and winter pastures for pigs. It takes about an acre of pasture for each two to three litters of shots full-fed from weaning to marketing.

GASOLINE

Because of increased production of aviation gasoline the stock pile of civilian gasoline was reduced 1,500,000 barrels in thirty days. It has gone down 4,350,000 barrels since April 1.

WHAT CAN BE DONE TO AVOID ANOTHER FARM DEPRESSION?

Ways of avoiding another farm depression, such as occurred in the 30's, are discussed in a bulletin prepared by economists of 13 midwestern states, the United States Department of Agriculture and the Farm Foundation of Chicago. J. H. Bonduant, representative of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station on the committee, copies may be had by writing to the Experiment Station at Lexington.

Recalling the depression after the first World War, with its aftermath of wide-spread farm debt, mortgage foreclosure, increased tenancy and unstable conditions, the committee says "the present war is almost certain to create situations, that will intensify still further some of the problems farm people meet in buying and paying for farms."

Some suggestions follow:

1. The way should be kept open for tenants to become farm owners.
2. Continuous operation of the home farm by succeeding generations of the same family should be encouraged.
3. Measures should be taken to discourage land price inflation.
4. Farm mortgage terms should encourage the ownership of farms by those who operate them.
5. Steps should be taken to improve landlord-tenant relations.
6. Tenure arrangements should be developed which will safeguard and improve the soil, the basic farm resource.
7. Plans need to be developed for the postwar adjustment of rents and wages.
8. Improvements should be added to many farms, both owner-operated and tenant-operated, to encourage the most efficient operation.
9. Families now living on inadequate farms should be encouraged to locate on better farms or to obtain better employment.
10. Post war back-to-the-land movements should be carefully guided.

ACRE OF ALFALFA VALUED AT $120

E. H. Rothwell of McCracken county estimates that an acre plot of alfalfa on his farm will be worth from $120 to $140 this year for pasture and hay. Since the first of April, he has grazed 18 head of hogs on that cut a ton of hay. Farm Agent Joe Hurt says that $25 is the average return for an acre of forage crop in that county.

FULWIN OATS O. K.

Fulwin oats again proved its superiority over Winter Turf oats in Owsley county. On the farm of Conley Pierson, a 10-acre field was sowed to these two varieties. Farm Agent H. M. Williams says that the Fulwin oats withstood the winter better. It was 10 inches taller and it produced more than twice as much.

Dairying returns in Metcalf county are three times greater than they are two years ago.

In Hardin county, Fulwin oats yielding 72 bushels to the acre and balbo re yielding 25 to 30 bushels are reported.

COLLEGE SUGGESTS FILLING EVERY JAR

Save food by putting up even a jar or two at a time is the urgent appeal from the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics to homemakers of the state. In ordinary seasons, homemakers wait to can until they have a generous supply of vegetables on hand, but with gardens producing little, every bit must be saved.

Vegetables ready at the same time, as carrots, beets and string beans, may be canned in the same canner. Any combination may be processed in the hot-water-bath, as the individual jars may be removed as soon as they have processed their required time. However, when the pressure canner is used, only those foods which require the same number of minutes for processing should be canned together.

A second appeal from the college is to use the right methods so that not a jar will spoil. Either a pressure canner or hot-water-bath may be used, but in either case, there are certain steps to follow if the food is to keep. The directions are given in the leaflet, "Can Fruits and Vegetables for Victory," which may be had from the college, or from county farm or home canning.

Even canning is not approved by the college. It is dangerous in more ways than one. Even though the oven registers 250 degrees or higher, food inside the jars stays at about 212 degrees or below, which is not high enough to kill harmful bacteria in beans, corn and other vegetables containing little acid. In addition, oven canning may result in an explosion causing the loss of the food, damage to the oven and injury to the canner.

FERTILIZER BOOSTS INCOME FROM LEAF

On the Agricultural Experiment Station farm at Lexington, Ky., in 1943, applications of 150 pounds an acre of fertilizer nitrogen increased burley tobacco yields 837 pounds an acre, valued at $430. Quality of tobacco as well as yield, was improved by the use of fertilizer. Where no fertilizer was used the tobacco brought $30 a hundred pounds, and where nitrogen fertilizer was applied it brought $45 a hundred.

LETCHER ORCHARD PRODUCES

Nando Cornett of the Blackey community in Letcher county has an orchard of 80 apple trees to be proud of, notes Farm Agent Hugh Hurst. Mr. Cornett reseeded seedlings to which he grafted the varieties he wanted. Now he has trees bearing from summer to late fall. The apple crop in mid to late fall. The apple crop in average.

MANDATORY ORDERS

Because six clothing companies refused to accept their share of contracts to manufacture field jackets for troops in Europe the War Department, under legislative authority, has given them mandatory orders. For 152,000 jackets. Eighty-six other manufacturers voluntarily accepted contracts for 4,448,000 jackets.

MORE HYBRID CORN

In a canvass of seed dealers, County Agent G. H. Karnes found that 1,640 bushels of hybrid seed corn were sold in Marion county this season. This is enough seed to plant about 80 percent of the county's corn acreage, or 12 percent more than last year and 66 percent more than in 1941. Extensive growing of hybrid corn will materially increase the feed supply in Marion county, says Karnes.

The use of mechanical milkers is helping meet the labor problem in Grant county, five having been installed on dairy farms recently.

Approximately half of the homemakers in Carroll county are said to be helping produce food by working on farms.

Homemakers' clubs in Hart county have contributed $100 to a health fund for a trailer for taking x-ray pictures in the tuberculosis campaign.

SPORTSMEN SPENT $13,598,423 FOR HUNTING LICENSES 1942-43

Sportsmen spent $13,598,423 for 5,091,187 hunting licenses during the 1942-43 season, the Fish and Wildlife Service reported to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. Upon the completion of a summary based on figures supplied by the States and received by J. M. Perkins, Director of the Division of Game and Fish. These totals represent a decrease of 441,167 in licenses and $333,551 in fees compared with the preceding year, it was announced.

Total license sales also include 1,471,254 combination hunting and fishing licenses which were sold by States having a license system that makes it necessary for sportsmen to purchase combination licenses. Many of the license purchasers were no doubt anglers who did not wish to hunt, but the number is not known.

Federal migratory-bird hunting stamps, commonly called "duck stamps," were issued to 1,380,092 sportsmen for use during the 1942-43 season. This figure is only 87,126 less than the number sold during the preceding year. The Federal stamps, at $1, each are required of all waterfowl hunters over 16 years of age, in addition to State licenses. The total paid for State licenses and Federal duck stamps amounted to $14,978,515.

Licenses authorizing the trapping of fur-bearers were granted to 2,440-214 persons, at a cost of $328,907. However, many of them were combination licenses which the holders obtained in order to hunt or fish, it was pointed out.

The Division of Game and Fish of Kentucky sold 77,051 licenses for a total revenue of $138,122.00. Of the total licenses sold 75,381 were resident and 1,670 were non-resident hunting licenses. Perkins pointed out. A total of 5,065 Federal Duck Stamps were also sold in Kentucky during the 1942-43 hunting period.

Why Farmers Should Buy and Keep War Bonds

by R. R. Renne
President
Montana State College

BUILDING financial reserves, paying off debts, helping to fight dangerous inflation, and patriotism, are all good reasons why farmers should buy and hold War Bonds.

A good financial reserve is an important part of sound farm management. War Bonds are safe investments and are almost as liquid as cash. Thus, they comprise an excellent financial reserve for unexpected needs and emergencies. After the last war prices fell rapidly, as they have after every major war, and thousands of American farmers lost their farms because they could not weather the economic storm. No other factor is more essential for continued satisfactory farm operations, through good years and bad, than adequate financial reserves.

In addition to unexpected needs for emergencies, farmers need adequate reserves to finance repairs, replacements and improvements around the farm. Difficulties in obtaining needed materials and labor for these expenditures cause farm buildings and equipment to wear out faster during the war period than in peacetime. If farmers can wait until some time after the war ends to make these repairs and improvements, their dollars should go farther than they will immediately following the war, and better quality materials will probably be available.

Moreover, too rapid or forced cashing of War Bonds immediately after the war could create a serious situation and contribute to post-war inflation. Also, holding Bonds to maturity makes it possible for the farmer to increase his investment by one-fourth through accumulated interest. Still another reason for having a good reserve in the form of War Bonds is that funds will be available for the boys when they return, to assist them in getting established in peacetime pursuits.

Many farmers still have long-term mortgage debt outstanding against their property.

Investment in War Bonds now makes it possible for the farmer to help finance the war and at the same time accumulate the funds which will enable him to liquidate his debt in a lump sum after the war. Systematic purchase of War Bonds furnishes a very orderly and sure way of accumulating the necessary funds for liquidation of debt that requires large lump sums for settlement.

The extremely heavy expenditures required to carry on modern total war creates high purchasing power, which combined with shortages of materials and labor, cause serious inflationary threats. Most farmers can remember the very high prices which occurred during the last war and the very low prices and depression which followed. With the present scale of operations much greater than during the first war, it is imperative that widespread inflation in general prices and in land be prevented. Using surplus funds to purchase War Bonds helps reduce inflationary pressure in commodity markets and, at the same time, helps finance the war.

Building financial reserves, paying off debts and fighting inflation comprise adequate reasons for buying War Bonds. However, there is still another major reason why farmers should invest in War Bonds until it hurts and this is the patriotic reason. We are engaged in a very serious struggle to preserve democracy and our way of life. The sooner we can win this war the fewer lives of our sons and daughters will be lost. Our youth are making great sacrifices on the battlefronts all over the world, and it is up to each one of us on the homefront to give all we have. Large sums of money are needed for winning the war and if we will all buy War Bonds to the limit of our resources voluntarily, we can help finish the war at an early date.

U. S. Treasury Department

HIGHWAYS

It is estimated that at least 10 per cent of the 331,624 miles of main highway lines in the nation is in need of rebuilding. In normal years 5 per cent of primary state highway mileage is reconstructed but, under the pressure of war time conditions, there has been little reconstruction. Road-building since 1941 has been confined almost entirely to work on highways that serve war needs.

DRAFT

The House Military Affairs Committee reports that present draft policies can be expected to meet current needs and that the country's manpower pool of youths under 26 years will probably be adequate for the duration of the war.

Make your Electric Fan Last!

You'd find it need to get along without your electric fan these scorching hot days, so give it the care it needs to last for the duration:

- Lubricate regularly according to manufacturer's directions. Some fans use oil, while others have grease cups which should be filled once each season. If in doubt as to proper procedure, consult dealer from whom you bought fan or call at our office.
- Tighten set screws in fan blade hub; also nuts holding fan blade guard.
- Keep blades clean as accumulated dirt unbalances the blades and cause vibration and bearing wear.
- Always turn off fan by means of switch. Yanking on cord can loosen wires in plug and cause a "short".
- At end of season, clean fan and wrap in newspaper to protect from dust and dirt until needed again.

Remember, no new fans have been made in over two years. Don't take any chances with the one you have. Proper care means longer wear and less repair.

RATION BOOKS LOST
The Ration Books No. 3 belonging to Joe Wells, Grover Wells and Minnie Wells were lost recently and anyone finding them, please return to owner at once.

GALLON-A-DAY
A gallon of gasoline for every day of his furlough is the new OPA regulation for service men but no ration will be granted for leaves or furloughs of less than three days. The new rule replaces the previous five-gallon-on-a-furlough and is considered fairer to the man who gets only one long furlough.

There are some people who go to church rarely - when they die.

STATE REVENUES

A study of state tax revenue by the Department of Commerce reveals that the states collected $5,094,000,000 in 1943, or 24 per cent more than the $4,075,000,000 collected in 1942.

Excluding the $1,172,000,000 collected for the employment compensation, the revenue of the states was $3,923,000,000, an increase of only six-tenths over 1942.

Corporation taxes increased 24.1 per cent, individual income taxes from motor fuel dropped 17.5 per cent, motor vehicle and drivers' possessive licenses tax fell 4.8 per cent and general sales taxes increased 6 per cent.

Brent Spence Is the Farmers' Representative In Congress!

He Worked For Higher Tobacco Prices

Read The Record:

Congressman Brent Spence, who asks for your vote for renomination in Saturday's Primary Election, has had the interests of the farmers of his District at heart, and he has looked after their welfare.

When the OPA moved to place ceiling prices on tobacco, Rep. Spence was actively on the scene to represent the farmers. As Chairman of the House Banking & Currency Committee, which has jurisdiction over the OPA, he saw to it that the prices were put on tobacco according to grades instead of an overall price ceiling. The OPA established the prices the last two years, and Rep. Spence caused them to be increased both years.

A record of hearings before the House Banking & Currency Committee in May of this year, shows how Rep. Spence acted again to make certain that tobacco prices continue to be the highest possible.

With Rep. Spence questioning Chester Bowles, OPA Administrator and James F. Brownlee, Deputy Administrator for Price, the record reads:

REP. SPENCE ASKED:

"There is another question that I want to ask. The cash crop of the farmers in Kentucky is largely tobacco.

I have heard some members talk about the hardships of raising cotton, but if there is any crop that takes sweaty, arduous unremitting toil to raise, it is tobacco.

"The Kentucky people for many years have had a pretty hard time of it. Last year, I think, under the rulings of the OPA and the price on the grades of tobacco, the tobacco grower did fairly well. They would like to know, though, that the prices will not be depressed by reason of the rulings of the OPA lower than they received last year on the markets.

"I want to know what you are going to do about tobacco?"

MR. BOWLES REPLIED:

"Mr. Chairman, they should be as well off this year as last year on the prices. There should not be a lower price. There is some work being done on grading, checking into grading, the way the grading is done, and maybe Mr. Brownlee would like to add to that and discuss it more fully with you."

MR. BROWNLEE ASSURED REPRESENTATIVE SPENCE:

"We have no present intention of lowering the tobacco price as against last year."

KING-TAYLOR MARRIAGE

The marriage of Miss Mildred Catherine King and Cadet John Meier Taylor was the event of last Wednesday night at the Richmond Presbyterian Church with Rev. Will Smith officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns and greens and high bouquets of garden flowers and softly lighted with many candles.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter King of Verona, a graduate of the Walton-Verona High School and is a sophomore at the University of Kentucky. She devoted much time in the Radio Department of the University.

Mr. Taylor is a cadet in the United States Naval Reserve and at present is stationed at Athens, Georgia. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Taylor of Union, and a graduate of New Haven High School and was a junior at the University of Kentucky at the time of his enlistment in the Navy.

Mrs. Stanley Ransom was the organist and accompanied Mrs. Olivia Willis as she sang in her sweetest voice, "I Love You Truly."

As the organist played Lohengrins "Wedding March," the bride entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. Her dress was made of white pebble crepe and her filmy veil was crowned with a Dutch cap of Antique lace. She carried white gladioli. Her attendants were Mrs. Roselle Chapman Yates as Matron and Miss Jean Charlotte Pennington as Maid and both girls carried bouquets of old fashioned garden flowers tied with red, white and blue ribbons.

Mr. Taylor had as his best man, Private LaVerne Ryan, U. S. Army and Mr. David Earl King acted as groomsmen.

Simplicity was the keynote of this lovely affair and will be remembered by all who witnessed the marriage as one of the most beautiful of this season.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Walter King of Verona, entertained with dinner, the bridal party of the forth coming wedding of their daughter, Mildred Catherine and Mr. John Meier Taylor. Those who enjoyed the rehearsal dinner were, Mrs. Olivia Willis, Mrs. Roselle Chapman Yates, Miss Jean C. Pennington, Pvt. La Verne Ryan, Mr. David E. King, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Taylor, the bride to-be Miss Mildred Catherine King and the groom-to-be Mr. John Meier Taylor.

On Saturday evening the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Pennington was the scene of a joyous occasion, celebrating the marriage of Cadet and Mrs. John Meier Taylor.

About fifty friends gathered to "shower" the happy couple with beautiful gifts and good wishes. After the gifts were opened the young folks "chivored" the bride and groom with noise and pranks long to be remembered, not only by the bride and groom, but by everyone who was there.

Supper was served and enjoyed by all. At a late hour folks left, wishing the bride and groom a long life of happiness together.

Old Gallatin County Landmark Changes Ownership

The old picturesque red brick home of Mrs. Ina Wilson changed ownership when the present owner sold it recently to Everett Johnson, a Gallatin county farmer. The house was built in 1810 by Haratio Turpin of brick burned on the premises by Turpin's slaves. The farm was a part of the land held and sold to farmers from the Crosley tract, a syndicate who purchased 2400 acres in this part of the state. It has been remodeled by a former owner, Frank Turley, who placed the steep gables on it thus giving it the appearance of Stogue's Church beneath whose shadows Gray wrote his famous elegy. It is considered one of the most beautiful and picturesque country homes in the county. Near by is to be seen the family burying grounds of the Turpin's early pioneer stock of the county, some of whose relatives are still living within the bounds of Gallatin county.

This spot is enclosed within a stone wall of Kentucky limestone still in a good state of preservation, gigantic oak spread their leafy branches forming a canopy over the graves, while their roots penetrate the rugged mold of these sturdy pioneers who are awaiting the resurrection morn. Mrs. Wilson will move to Madison, Ind., where she will reside in the future.

Lt. Giles Riley who has been stationed in the state of Texas, is home on a furlough with his parents, P. L. Riley and wife, since being returned from overseas where he spent twelve months. He has made 51 bombing raids over enemy territory before returning to the states. Upon returning to duty he will be sent to New Mexico as an instructor.

John O'Brien and wife sold recently to Glenn Craig of Lamb, Ind. his house and lot in South Sparta.

Fred Grimes and wife sold their property on Sparta-Sanders road to John Robinson and wife, consideration $1000.00.

Ed. Thos. Bickers the genial bus driver for Gallatin county schools, has established a radio and electrical work shop in Warsaw and will be able to take care of any radio and electrical jobs that are brought to him.

Magic Words

By J. J. O'DONNELL

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

THE Coast Guard officer shook his head. "The British are careful when they hire."

Mark swung the launch to avoid the big ferryboat. "I get to know the crews better than the officials."

"Maybe I need training as a ship chandler," the officer grinned. "You're sure this cook is a spy?"

"No sir. I only told the commandant I was suspicious."

"And you also said the man knows it."

"Can't prove it, but those accidents came too fast."

The officer said: "Once a week some housewife in Norfolk reports a spy. We're used to it."

Mark's nostrils flared. "So I'm crazy? But being gassed is no joke. When I jumped off that chain I went looking for the cook—all the way down to the hold. When I opened the bulkhead door I smelled gas. You know—they get rid of the rats that way. All of a sudden the door started to slam, and I had to hit it with my shoulder quick—or be locked in."

"That would have been curtains for you."

"Right—and my lad was on the other side of that door."

"What did he say?"

"Got kinda red and stammered something about the door should be closed."

"Listen, son, you haven't much to go on. I'm doing this because I'm on assignment. Has he filed his order yet?"

"The captain has to O.K. it. I'm to pick it up today."

"All right. While you talk to him I'll ask the captain to help me search his cabin—and I hope you're right."

"You can see those flags from here."

The stocky, kindly captain shook his head. "Nothing there, boy," he said.

Mark's eyes were pleading. "But I know there's something wrong. Did you look well?"

"So well we didn't pass up so much as a tobacco crumb."

Earnestly Mark said: "Captain, do you know the skipper of that British tanker yonder?"

"Indeed. He served under me as first mate."

"Please, sir, we've got to make this man give himself away. A friend of mine in that crew has been all over the world. He'll be able to wigwag a message. If I'm wrong the signal won't mean anything."

"Mystery, eh? Come along then, we'll have a try."

When they returned to the freighter, Mark turned anxiously to the captain. "Is your mate still checking that list of provisions with the cook?"

"I fancy he's finished now."

"Good, that means he hasn't seen the Coast Guard officer. Will you please keep out of sight, sir?"

Mark swung on his heel and hurried to the mate's cabin and met the cook at the door. He tried to appear casual, though the words began to trip over his tongue. "Oh, hello—say, while I was waiting, I saw somebody on that tanker wigwagging."

The cook sneered. "Kid games, eh? He stalked up to the deck—then he froze. 'Who is that man in uniform?'"

Mark dropped his voice. "That's a Coast Guard officer. Said he had to see the captain right away."

The suspect slipped behind a ventilator. "Know what he wants?"

As if he hadn't heard, Mark said: "You can see those flags from here. Can you tell what they say?"

The man's black brows came together as he looked. Mark watched his body stiffen and his eyes shrink to pin points. He whirled to run and Mark sensed his purpose. He yelled breathlessly: "Captain—quick, grab him!" But the wary skipper and two crewmen had him before he reached the companionway.

Mark ran up excitedly. "Captain—his shoe. The sole's loose."

It took only a second to extract the tell-tale identification card. As they dragged the culprit away the Coast Guard officer turned to Mark. "Son, how did you trap him?"

Mark grinned expansively. "Just had my friend say, 'Officer coming to arrest you. Destroy your papers.'"

"But surely he didn't fall for that—anybody could read it."

The captain's eyes twinkled. "Not the way this lad did it. Seems his friend is something of a linguist. He said it in German."

News From The State Capital

Commissioner of Industrial Relations, L. C. Willis, announced that a total of 1,362 accidents occurred in business and industrial establishments in Kentucky during the month of June, 1944, an increase of 36 accidents over the total number for the month of May. Of this number 1,246 accidents were among male employees, and 116 among females. The number of fatalities decreased from 14 in May to 12 in June.

Deaths through June this year, including both urban and rural, totaled 209 as compared to 184 in 1943. The toll by months, with 1944 fatalities listed first, was: January 43; February, 32; March 32; April, 39; May, 35; June, 28, 19.

Traffic fatalities for all of 1943 totaled 422.

Kentucky property assessments were increased $158,269,354 under revisions imposed this year by the State Tax Commission, according to tabulations on the 120 counties released by the State Revenue Department.

The total property assessment for 1943, as applicable to 1944-45 taxes is $2,224,247,320 as compared to the 1942 assessment of $2,067,977,966. Not included in the total are franchise property and distilled spirits, which would considerably boost the total figure.

The 1943 assessments include $1,374,361,622 or real property, $328,- 753,838 on tangibles and $518,726,-888 on intangibles.

Kentucky distillers have purchased permits for the production of 3,400,000 gallons of distilled spirits during the August production "holiday." It is reported by the State Revenue Department.

Permit sales through Tuesday, July 18, amounted to $170,000 at the current state tax rate of five cents per gallon of production.

SHORT COURSE FOR POULTRY RAISERS

War and post-war problems of practical poultry raising will be considered by the 20th annual poultry short course which the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics will hold August 7 to 11. All men and women interested in raising chickens are invited to attend without charge.

In giving the course, members of the faculty of the college will be assisted by Dr. A. B. Godfrey of the United States Department of Agriculture; G. S. Vickers, field manager of the Ohio Poultry Improvement Association, and Dr. D. C. Warren of the Kansas State Agricultural College.

Problems of breeding, feeding, disease control and general management of flocks will be considered throughout the five days. The annual meeting of the Kentucky Poultry Improvement Association will be held at the close of the course.

ATHLETES FOOT GERM

How To Kill It

The germ imbeds deeply. Can't be killed unless reached. Many liniments and ointments do not penetrate sufficiently. Ask any druggist for Te-o solution. Made with 90% alcohol, it PENETRATES. Reaches more germs. APPLY FULL STRENGTH for itchy, sweaty or smelly feet. Your 35c back tomorrow if not pleased. Locally at Jones Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

Oney Gilford of Robertson county thrashed seven acres of wheat averaging 33 bushels to the acre in land that was in tobacco last year.

To Ask A Man For His Vote, Is To Ask Him For His Trust! Will You Put Your Trust In Me For Two Years?

(Mr. Ed Wimmer, pictured with his Sound Car, is 44 years old. He has two children, a boy 3 and a little girl of six. Mr. Wimmer resides in South Ft. Mitchell, just out of Covington, and attends the South Ft. Mitchell Baptist Church. He has been Editor and Publisher of the paper, "Forward America," for the past 13 years. He was in the candy manufacturing business when the great depression of 1932 liquidated so many small enterprises. It was then that he took up his fight for the small farmer and small businessman, and for better wages for workers so that farmers and businessmen could sell what they produced and distributed, at a profit.)

If the above Sound Car did not appear in your Community: If I did not contact you personally, or if you failed to see the war films which I have been presenting, it was only because there were not enough days or gasoline coupons, for me to reach you.

Through the financial help of our many friends, however, we DID get copies of "Forward America" into every home in the 5th District, and the daily and weekly newspapers have carried much material pertaining to the issues I have raised in this campaign.

I hope that somehow I have made you understand, that my main reason for running for Congress, is to get into Washington and make my fight for a return to Jeffersonian Democracy... where it will do the most good.

Jefferson's idea of a Nation of free men, was based on the belief that, "widespread, independent ownership of farm, home and enterprise, with local control over local affairs" was the only safeguard against either economic or political tyranny. The further we got away from this philosophy, the deeper we got into unemployment, high taxes, bankruptcy, greed and political graft.

You have heard a lot about "banking and currency" lately, but have you heard that the money printing schemes of Wall Street Bankers is the biggest racket on earth? And have you heard why it is allowed to continue? Have you read anything in the political propaganda recently that advocated a return to Constitutional money? Have you heard anything said about "cartels, monopolies, high interest, protected farm prices, or elimination of Government red tape so the farmer could sell his seeds instead of making out useless reports?

Some day soon, (pray God), millions of our men will be coming home. They will need help, jobs, a chance to go into business for themselves. A chance to become important in their communities or be successful farmers. There will be many aged people shoved aside in the great scramble for these jobs, and the greed of the great corporations will have to be curbed.

I believe we are on the threshold of a great new adventure, but we cannot hope to find peace and prosperity unless we deserve it. Wrong has been upon the Throne, and Truth upon the Scaffold, far too long, and if we fail to unite and reverse this condition NOW, we shall pay a terrible penalty.

If you believe that I will lend my heart and hand to the job ahead. If you believe I will make a real fight for the principles and ideals brought forth by the Founding Fathers, I earnestly and sincerely, solicit your vote on Aug. 5th. (SIGNED)

POWER THROUGH SELF-DISCIPLINE (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 1:1-7; Jeremiah 18:1-10; 1 Corinthians 9:24-27; 1 Thessalonians 5:22.
GOLDEN TEXT—And every man that serveth the master must temperate in all things.—1 Corinthians 9:25.

Discipline — that word doesn't sound exactly attractive, does it? It makes us think of punishment for wrongdoing, when in reality it is a very helpful word that means teaching. Disciples learn, and thus are disciplined, so that life becomes safer, simpler, and more efficient.

When the Morro Castle caught fire, there was time for everyone to escape, but 134 out of the 500 on board perished because they fought each other. When the President Coolidge sank in the South Seas 4,000 soldiers escaped alive. What made the difference? Discipline, that's all, but it was enough.

There are many kinds of discipline, and all have their important place in preparing men to live well ordered and useful lives. The disciplined life has power to meet trials and temptations. We find in our lesson three kinds of discipline:

I. Home Discipline (Prov. 1:7-10). The training received by the child early in life from his parents is of the utmost importance in forming character. Children should learn the true standards of life, and be held to obedience to them if they are later to walk in the right way.

It is here that they most effectively learn the danger of the use of intoxicants and the importance of keeping their bodies clean and strong for the service of God and country.

Some parents (possibly misled by attractive, but false theories of education) think that the correction or punishment of a child is not to be permitted. They assume that they are being kind to a child by not limiting his development, or trying to direct it. These are the people who "curse their children with kindness," which is in fact the greatest of unkindness.

Only a fool (v. 7) will despise the instruction of his parents, and only a fool of a parent will fail to give that training which is like "an ornament of grace" (v. 9) in the life of the young man or woman.

But the discipline of the home needs the support of

II. Social Discipline (Jer. 35:5-10). The social order, which concerns our relation to our fellow men, disciplines each of us. It makes many and what sometimes seem burdensome demands of us in order that we, as well as those around us, may have the privilege of living ordered and useful lives.

Wise is the man or woman who draws from his fellowship with others that helpful training which gives him stability and grace.

The Technicians made a vow that they would not drink intoxicants, and as a tribe they stood by that vow even when tested by Jeremiah. (Note that we say tested, not tempted. He knew they would stand.)

Fine family traditions have great value in guiding and controlling young people. We should, like the good man Jonadab (v. 6), establish a tradition of abstinence from intoxicants which will make all of our descendants say, "No one in our family ever drinks."

The training of home and of society has one great goal and that is

III. Self-Discipline (1 Cor. 9:24-27; 1 Thess. 5:22).

In the life of every one of us there should be that determined purpose that life shall not be lived in careless disorder, or be permitted to run out at loose ends.

We are all running a race (v. 24), and it is for so to run that we may achieve success. We cannot run with uncertainty (v. 26), we must know where we are going.

We are fighting a fight, and at times it is a desperate, life-and-death struggle. We must not beat the air (v. 26), but strike home the telling blows which will bring victory over our enemies, the world, the flesh, and the devil.

To do this calls for training and self-discipline. It means bringing the body and its demands into subjection. The man who runs in a race does not destroy his chances for victory by using intoxicants, or other detrimental things. Surely we who run the race for Christ must be even more determined that self shall be disciplined for God's glory.

The standard for the conduct of the Christian is higher than is commonly supposed, for he withdraws himself from "every form of evil." The disciplined believer knows that sin is that—what looks comparatively innocent often wears a false face covering real wickedness, or it is the first step on a downward path. To start on that way is to invite disaster. A striking example of this is the social drink—the fashionable cocktail—the friendly glass. Abstain is the word—"abstain from every form of evil."

New Homes Top After-War List

Electric Appliances Among First Things Women Will Require.

WASHINGTON. — Washing machines, electric irons and mechanical refrigerators, in that order, are called for in the postwar plans of most housewives, but a large number prefer to build or buy a house before shopping for appliances, a nationwide survey of consumer requirements has shown.

Conducted by the Office of Civilian Requirements, the survey, embracing 11 major household appliances, concluded that, contrary to most expectations, there will not be a wild buying rush when things are available and that the public is willing to wait.

Release of the survey coincided with these developments:

1. William Y. Elliott, newly appointed director of the Civilian Requirements Office, said he and his associates were "looking to the production of only those items which are necessary to the civilian economy so that the need for the ordinary necessities in human living can be met."

He made it clear that frills were out and would stay out for the duration.

No Sewing Machines.

2. The War Production board announced that resumption of manufacture of sewing machines—No. 7 on the public's list of wants—must be postponed indefinitely because of shortages of manpower and parts.

The OCR's survey showed that after washing machines, electric irons and mechanical refrigerators, the public wants cooking stoves, electric toasters, radios, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, heating stoves, electric fans and water heaters—in that order.

Indicating that there will be no general buying rush when civilian goods are available again, 56 per cent of those interviewed said they would not buy immediately even if there were plenty of all items in the stores. The others said they would.

Forty-two per cent of the 4,488 families interviewed said they wanted one of the items most in demand because the old one was unsatisfactory; 56 per cent just don't have one now. Difficulties with commercial laundry service were the main reason for wanting a washing machine.

Radio Tubes Major Concern.

Elliott declared that providing radio tubes and batteries for farm radios was now a major concern to the requirements committee because of "overwhelming" military demands for the facilities needed to manufacture them.

He reported "ground gaining" on production of infant's and other essential clothing, short for many months.

Substantial gains, he said, have been made in getting production of laundry and dry cleaning equipment. He agreed that further deterioration of these services would "breed absenteeism" in war plants, particularly among women workers who are also homemakers.

One out of every 10 families interviewed planned to acquire a home after the war before buying appliances, with 71 per cent already saving their money for this purpose.

Four per cent of the potential home owners planned to spend $9,000 or more; 9 per cent will spend less than $1,000; 14 per cent will spend between $3,000 and $4,000.

Nazi Clandestine Radio

In U. S. Balked by FCC
WASHINGTON.—George E. Sterling, chief of the Federal Communications commission's radio intelligence division, revealed that the clandestine radio station operated from within the German embassy at the outbreak of the war was located and jammed by the FCC before it had ever made contact with Germany.

State department orders prevented an immediate raid on the embassy because of possible reprisals against our diplomats interned in Germany, Mr. Sterling told the house FCC investigating committee.

Larger Belly Tanks Now

Boost Range of Mustangs
A FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND.—American Mustangs, the world's fastest long range fighters, now are equipped with larger belly tanks, giving them an even greater range, it was disclosed.

The new cigar-shaped detachable tanks, carried one under each wing, increase the total gas load by 66 gallons. They are jettisoned when they are empty or when enemy fighter planes are engaged.

The new tanks enabled the P-51s to fly a 1,400-mile round trip to Poland recently.

Open Classes To Be Special Fair Attraction

Open to the world classes will represent special attractions to large numbers of Boone County people this year. Fourteen major classifications for open class entries are listed according to the 4-H and Utopia Council.

Open to the world classes in which everyone with entries is urged to compete include special recreational events, baby show, canning, sewing, flowers, cooking, vegetables, field crops, tobacco, poultry, Jersey Cattle, sheep, ponies, and saddle and draft horses. The Jersey Cattle and sheep classes are the only ones limited this year to Boone County.

It is hoped that a complete fair program for all Boone County products can be developed as soon as local committees and interests are ready to sponsor their special exhibits. Everybody is urged to make plans to attend and take part in Boone County's own fair and county picnic on Saturday, August 19th.

OWENTON GARAGE BURNS, $36,000 LOSS ESTIMATED

A fire at the Davis-Gaines Motor Co., Owenton, Ky., caused damage estimated unofficially at $36,000. Defective wiring was said to be the cause of the blaze.

Fire companies from Williams-town, Warsaw and Owenton fought the blaze.

4-H'ers Help Boost Milk Production

To meet wartime needs, U. S. milk production during the first half of 1944 was 61.6 billion pounds, which is an increase of 14.2 percent over the 1937-41 corresponding period average. Rural boys and girls in Kentucky contributed appreciably to this increase through participation in the National Kraft 4-H Dairy Production Activity.

"In this activity," State Leader 4-H Club Work, J. W. Whitehouse said, "4-H'ers learn good milk production methods and demonstrate them to others as a part of the Food Fights for Freedom program, and thereby contribute to the improvement of the dairy industry in their own community."

Outstanding records of milk production and demonstrations, Mr. Whitehouse added, are rewarded with medals, War Savings Bonds, National 4-H Club Congress (Chicago) trips, and college scholarships respectively to the highest ranking and second place county participants, eight state top ranking members in low classes, 10 sectional winners, and six national champions.

Voters in the Fifth District selected Rep. Brent Spence of Ft. Thomas and Olin W. Davis, Dayton, in Saturday's primary balloting as opposing Democratic and Republican candidates for Congress in the November general election.

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Paducah, Democrat, and Commonwealth Attorney Jas. Park, Lexington, Republican, received the party's nominations for the fall U. S. senatorial race.

Rep. Spence scored a victory over Ed Wimmer of Ft. Mitchell with returns from 356 of the district's 373 precincts giving him 9543 votes to 3978 for Mr. Wimmer.

575 4-H Utopia Members Compete

Five hundred and seventy-five Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club members are making plans for competition in the twelfth Annual 4-H and Utopia Club Fair, Saturday, August 19th, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. These members are carrying 888 projects that will be eligible to compete in special 4-H and Utopia Club classes at the fair.

Boys and girls are the men and women, farmers, and homemakers and leaders of tomorrow. They have been the driving force that has kept our county fair and picnic program going during the years. They will also be a major factor in building bigger and better fairs and county picnics in the future.

Parents, leaders and neighbors are urged to give full cooperation and help to our boys and girls in getting their exhibits to the fair. Regardless of what happens, they will be there and will be the greatest attraction in making both the fair and county picnic a success.

GUEST SPEAKER AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Your Baby's Picture To Be Printed Free; Photos Taken August 17th

The Walton Advertiser wants a picture of every baby girl or boy in this trade territory so it can have a cut made and the picture published in this paper. To be certain that we receive a late picture and a good one, that will portray your baby just as it is now, we have made arrangements with the Wolz Studio of Des Moines, to come to Walton on Thursday, August 17, and take these pictures free of charge.

The studio will be set up in the Waltonian Hotel and open to take these pictures from 1 to 8 p. m. on this date. A representative of the above mentioned studio will be here with all the necessary studio equipment, ready for taking pictures of the youngsters. There are no strings to the offer of your part. You don't have to be a subscriber to the Advertiser and it is not compulsory that you buy any pictures of your baby after they are taken.

We just want the pictures taken of all the youngsters that we can get, and the more the better. Parents of the children will be given the opportunity to buy pictures if they wish—it is entirely up to them.

So fathers and mothers of Walton and surrounding communities should remember the date and place, Thursday, August 17, at the Waltonian Hotel. Bring your child in and have his or her picture taken. You'll be mighty glad afterwards if you did and mightily sorry if you didn't. For where is there a father or a mother of a little tike who wouldn't be proud to see his or her picture in the Advertiser?

PICTURES FOR "POP"
The Advertiser has long been interested in presenting pictures of men and women in service along with any others of local interest, and at this time are endeavoring to obtain pictures of local children for publication later on.

This plan should be especially interesting to wives of war men in foreign areas who wish to send a picture of the baby but who fear that the picture might be lost in the mails. Three or four hundred Advertisers are mailed regularly to men and women in the service who will certainly appreciate seeing pictures of their own children in the hometown paper.

There is no age limit, however all children must be accompanied by their parent.

Can you imagine some statesman suggesting, after the war, that we sink our warships, junk our aircraft, and depend upon the good nature of all peoples to prevent another war?

BIRTHDAY DINNER AND FAMILY REUNION AT WARSAW

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Satchwell and family were pleasantly surprised Sunday August 6th, when relatives arrived for a joint birthday dinner and Sisson family reunion in memory of Mr. G. W. Sisson recently deceased father and grandfather of the family. Both Mr. and Mrs. Satchwell have birthdays in August. Those attending the dinner were Mrs. Omer Aha and family, Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Baker, Mrs. Henry Sutton and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Kenney, Mrs. Lula Satchwell, Jane Sternberg, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Herndon and children, Mrs. Edward Rea and house guest, Miss Carmel Clark, Mrs. Buford Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Robins and children, Rose and Bobby Dickerson and Miss Clara Sison who was home from the University of Kentucky for the weekend.

Everyone enjoyed a pleasant day with relatives and friends but the presence of R. R. Sisson only brother and of the four boys serving with the armed forces over seas was greatly missed.

Trigg county farmers harvested a crop of 7,500 acres of wheat, more than double that of last year.

They are the only pair you'll ever have. To you they are beyond price and should therefore be given the most exacting care.

WITH OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

MALCOLM IN CALIFORNIA

Below is a letter received from Malcolm Simpson, who is stationed in San Pedro, Calif.

Dear Mark and Staff—

I have intended to write you ever since coming to Calif., but somehow I haven't gotten around to doing so until now.

Have received two issues, I think of the Advertiser since the change, and it really is quite an improvement and I mean it. All printers, I think, dislike "boller plates" and I've always doubted if the subscribers ever read the stuff. Changing from 12 to 13 ems was no small job, was it—but it is one way of getting all old type reset. The paper looks good. How is the press and folks coming along—in their usual manner?

I also noticed you had gotten quite a few new subscribers—and that's fine. Keep up the good work!

I arrived here on June 20 and there are from 800 to 1000 men on the Base, and of that number between 300 and 400 are sound Men. Here we are placed in Component Groups, eventually take some training, get some officer, go to San Bruno, near Frisco, and then depart for some Pacific Island. I don't know of course how long I'll be here, but at present it seems I may be around for a few months.

At present I am a Barracks Master At Arms and have charge of our storage room. I put in 6 to 8 hours a day and get liberty every night and every weekend. It's not a bad spot at all, but I would much rather be in the East.

California may be O. K. but I can't see the place. It's chilly, damp and foggy each morning. The sun shines from about noon on, and in the evening it gets quite cool again. Most "unusual" weather, I am told here. Traveling isn't so easy. Train and bus service "stinks," and any form of amusement you choose seems to be higher here than in the East.

I did see some beautiful scenery on the way out, ranch land, snow-covered mountains, orange groves, etc. There are some pretty homes, mostly Spanish, and there are a lot of beautiful flowers—where water is supplied.

It seems I've rambled enough for this time, so maybe I should say adieu. Give my regards to all.

Sincerely,

An Ex-printer,
Malcolm

FATHER RECEIVES LETTER

Mr. E. B. McClure of Verona received the following letter from his son Eldon who is somewhere in Italy. The letter was written July 20.

Dear Dad:

Well how are things with you? I am fine and hope you are well. I am still working every day. We have a lot of work to do but we are getting it done rather fast.

I have received all but one box that you and Grace sent. It will probably be along one day very soon. The people over here have already cut their wheat and are now thrashing it. I suppose people back home are cutting grain now.

Have you cut any this summer? There is a lot of this country very good land and I believe a person could raise almost anything if he were not so dry. It seldom rains here.

I met a friend of Pet's the other day. He is a dentist from Chicago and he has promised to work on my teeth in the near future.

I had a two day pass recently and visited Rome and I found it much nicer than any other part of Italy I have seen. It is very clean and a much better class of people live there. I saw many interesting places. Excuse me for the food the people in Rome hardly know there is a war.

Well Dad, take care of your self and I hope to be seeing you before too long.

Love

Eldon

Letters received from Wm. Cluser by his wife states he is settling along nicely. After completion of training at Camp Wheeler, Georgia and Ft. Meade, Maryland, was in Ireland and England and arrived in France on D-day plus four. He celebrated his birthday en route to France and August thirteenth will be the sixth anniversary of his marriage to Emma F. Morris of Verona, Ky.

Pvt. Cluser is assistant squad leader, being the oldest man. He was formerly employed by the Wright Aeronautical Plant.

Says he hopes to be home for Christmas, and to tell his friends hello.

Cpl. Reed Hudson, 30, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hudson, Union was wounded in action in Salpian, his parents were informed recently by the War Department.

Serving with the Army, Cpl. Hudson has been stationed on overseas duty for 26 months.

OUR FARM NEWS

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR PLANS PROGRESSING

"We are making great progress in all departments of the Fair," announced E. L. Newton, Manager of the Fair, "and entries are exceeding our greatest expectations. The response of Kentucky farmers and breeders to invitations to exhibit at the Fair indicates a record participation."

Of special interest to breeders of purebred animals is the emphasis which is being put upon the various livestock classes to be judged at the 1944 Fair. The catalog and Premium List, which is now in the mails, contains all information on classes and dates and times for judging. Write for any information you need if your catalog has not been received.

Aside from the educational exhibits and the judging of livestock, many special attractions have been planned. Special feature attractions will be staged in front of the grandstand both afternoon and night. There will be no extra charge for admission to these shows inasmuch as the one admission paid at the gate will admit visitors to all special attractions at the Fair. The military camps in Kentucky and the Army Air Forces are providing the most complete war exhibits ever presented in the state. These will be a feature of the Fair everyone will want to see. Military bands and a marching band produced by members of the armed forces will top the week's festivities.

Johnny J. Jones and his exciting midway attractions will be on hand again this year. There'll be rides galore for young noddies and the excitement of the side-shows will be present. Ernie Young's spectacular stage extravaganza will be a feature before the grandstand. His stars include Selden, the stratosphere man, whose death-defying drive into the grandstand will thrill the most stout-hearted spectators present; the Three Valentines, America's foremost flying trapeze act, performing double passes, double twisters and loop-the-loops on the high trapeze; the Gibsons, a thrilling knife throwing act; and many other exciting features that will appeal to everyone.

DATES OF FAIR

HORSESHOW CHANGED

Entries in the 1944 Kentucky State Fair Horseshow came in in such numbers that the State Fair Board decided to make this year's show a six day affair, running from August 26 through September 2 instead of a four day show as previously planned. The new dates make the Grand Championship Event which climaxes the show, fall on Saturday night, September 2.

Ray Purdy, Horseshow Manager, has contracted for the services of George Swinebroad of Lancaster, Kentucky as announcer throughout the six day show. George is a favorite throughout the nation as an announcer and his presence will add much to the enjoyment of the spectators.

FISHING 50c FAIR DAY

The Fair Grounds Lake will be open for fishing on Fair Day, August 19th according to the 4-H and Utopia Club Council. Through suggestions of several fishermen, a uniform charge of 50 cents for the day will be charged for those wishing to fish.

The importance of the Luftwaffe suggests that allied airmen have gone a long way in making good their boasts about the value of air power.

KENTON COUNTY FARM NEWS

By C. A. Weyland, County Agricultural Agent

INVESTIGATE BEFORE YOU BUY

Reports are coming in about unscrupulous high-pressure salesmen calling on farmers and urging them to buy products before they have time to investigate the merits of the products offered.

One product that is being sold to livestock farmers is pulverized ground limestone under the name of Calcium Carbonate. This product is being sold in 50 pound bags as a mineral for livestock and the analysis shows about 40% calcium carbonate and nothing else.

The ground limestone (calcium carbonate) which is available or can be ground from our native Kenton County limestone, analyses 80 to 87% calcium carbonate or higher. Local ground limestone (calcium carbonate) therefore, is worth twice as much as the product that is being sold as calcium carbonate. It pays to investigate before you buy.

MINERALS FOR LIVESTOCK

The University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture, Extension Division, Lexington, Kentucky, has a Circular No. 360, Minerals for Livestock, which gives information about minerals for livestock.

Bone-meal is an excellent material where calcium and phosphorus is needed. Where good legume hay is fed and which was produced on land that has been limed and phosphated, this should carry the minerals normally needed by livestock, without the need of extra minerals. Details about the need and use of minerals are given in the circular.

RAIN OF UNTOLD VALUE

J. T. Cochran, County Agent of Gallatin County.

The rain that fell on Gallatin County last week was worth a lot of money if the increased yields could be determined. Then, too, the attitude of the farm people and their happiness has improved about as much. But the rain was too late for some crops and the farmer must try and try again to do the best he can. The rain does make possible the seeding of Cover Crops, and early seeding will result in fall pastures. Every farmer should seed Cover Crops for pasture as soon as he can. Putting every acre of unplanted crop land to cover crop is one way of getting early fall pasture. Where crops failed is an ideal place now.

Seeds are scarce. Order now and let's not forget to set aside some of our Cover Crop to harvest for seed. Before our county can successfully sow Cover Crops as it should it must produce the seed. The cost of seed prevents many a farm from having the crop but if the farm produced some seed it would always have the seed at a price that could be used. Gallatin County can't expect to really use Cover Crops and follow the practice of one farmer who said he needed to buy 300 bushels of rye and wheat and 1000 pounds of vetch. Figure his cost. How many farmers can afford to spend such for seed to turn around? But if he harvests art for seed figure his saving on seed cost or add the same to income. Therefore, sow cover crops on all cropland and save enough seed for the next years cover crop program for the farm.

FARMERS SECURE BALBO RYE SEED

Six hundred bushels of Balbo rye seed have been delivered to approximately thirty-five farmers the first part of this week, according to the County Agent's Office. Approximately 100 bushels remained unsold at that time.

The Farm Bureau Committee was well pleased with the response that farmers gave in purchasing seed of that improved variety. It is hoped that many growers will save seed so that there will be ample local supply next year. Farmers expecting to produce seed next year are cautioned not to grow other rye close by the seed field as rye is easily cross pollinated and mixes with other rye.

IS YOUR SUBSCRIPTION PAID?

FALL GARDEN SEEDING TIME

Fall garden seeding time is here according to the County Agent's Office. Action must be secured in the next few days or the best dates for seeding turnips, kale, spinach, mustard, peas, radishes, Chinese cabbage, and lettuce will be past. Early maturing sweet corn, beans, and beets may also be seeded.

Early gardens have suffered greatly from the drought. There is a possibility that late gardens may pay off good this year.

Good seed bed preparation and application of fertilizers will greatly aid to the chances of success.

All Boone County families are eligible to compete for honors in the 1944 home food production and preservation program. Good fall gardens may add greatly to the winter food supply.

WOULD COVER STATE IN FORESTRY CONTEST

An effort is being made to have every Kentucky county represented in the Tom Wallace Forestry Award contest this year. The farmer doing the best job in forestry development and woodland conservation in Kentucky and Southern Indiana will receive $200, with a second prize of $100. W. E. Jackson, extension forester at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Lexington, is chairman of a committee of judges. Interested farmers should see their county agent.

To obtain information for farmers who plan to grow forest trees, 10 acres of woodland were fenced against livestock at the Western Kentucky Experiment Station at Princeton. From a special three-acre woodland management tract within the 10 acres, mature trees were cut, furnishing 39 saw logs from which 5,858 boards of lumber and 34 cords of firewood were obtained.

Also the underbrush and such undesirable species of trees as cedar, dogwood and redbud were cleared out of the three acres, and white oak seedlings planted at the rate of 500 trees to the acre.

Other plantings at the Substation include loblolly pine, short-leaf pine and black locust seedlings. The locust were set in contour furrows and the pine at random in an eroded area.

DIVISION OF FISH AND GAME SOIL EROSION BUINS GOOD FISHING

Thousands of fishing sites that once were the joy of fishermen are providing less sport and are yielding fewer fish this year than ever before as a result of soil erosion.

In all parts of the country muddy waters and silt are diminishing the stock of fish. The reason is plain. Eggs laid by game fish cannot survive when streams are full of mud and erosion debris. Also, blanketing of the bottoms of streams with ooze and silt is destructive to food supplies, such as insect larvae, worms and small plants.

The decreased supply of game fish in our streams has not come about suddenly. Unwise use of the land over a period of years, resulting in an excess run-off of rainwater, which washes tons of soil into the streams, has been steadily cutting down the rate of propagation.

There is another reason why soil erosion can be blamed for spoiling once-popular fishing locations. Many species of fish will thrive only in deep, clear, running water, and when silt fills stream channels the fish leave, because they cannot live in the sluggish, muddy waters of shallow streams.

Until there is more general control of soil erosion fishing conditions will not improve greatly. Unless silting of stream channels is stopped, there is no reason to expect that the fish can be brought back and stock restored in any great number.

The farmer, as well as the fisherman and then under all will benefit by controlling erosion and all should be heartened by the knowledge that a real effort is being made in this State to improve their sport.

NITROGEN FERTILIZER INCREASES YIELDS

The application of 150 pounds of nitrogen fertilizer per acre increased tobacco yields 837 pounds per acre on the Experiment Station farm in 1942. Many crops have not grown well as the result of the drought according to the County Agent's Office. The side dressing of late crops with nitrogen fertilizer will likely have two effects on the crops. First, it will likely give marked increase in growth and yields and second, it may delay maturity or ripening especially if the soil is low in phosphate and potash. Farmers in many instances, with

FRUIT AND GRAPES BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

The 1944 peach and grape crops in Boone County are much better than last year. The apple crop, however, will be smaller according to reports received at the County Agent's Office.

Herbert and Jergens of Constance, and William Moore of Hebron both commercial growers, report the best grape crops ever on their vineyards.

The peach crop has suffered some-from dry weather, but is still one of the best crops to be produced in the county. Charles L. Hemphill of Taylorsport is one of the largest of the commercial peach producers in Northern Kentucky. He expects the 1944 crop to average between $3.00 and $4.00 per bushel which will be about half the price per bushel paid for the 1943 crop. This will be good news for the housewife.

An unusually good small grain crop is reported from Breckinridge county.

Interviews hot off the bus make homespun entertainment for WHAS radio listeners

TED GRIZZARD... the casual conversationalist you hear at four-thirty every afternoon, finds a nugget of news and nonsense in every person he "interviews". The big Irishman claims people as his hobby and vocation... and, unlike Sinatra, his fans fall in all age groups. Rated high on listener charts by Hooper and Crossley, he has built up huge followings on southern air, ribbing public and sponsors alike.

Giving out over a Lexington station for seven years on what is known as a "dead air" program... (one not pulling mail), the other suddenly went editorial on Ted when he dropped a hint at his last broadcast that he was pushing on... probably to California, did not have a sponsor, and that only written recommendations carried any weight when applying for a job on radio. Over eight hundred letters poured in... representing every level of listener audience. Ordinarily Grizzard says that the most ardent response comes from children, religious-minded folk and sports fans.

A big, red-haired Irishman with merry blue eyes, Ted takes his stand in the bus terminal at the same hour daily, approaches travel-ridden people from everywhere, engages them in conversation, and within a few moments brings up some item of interest to listeners. Significant example is the interview with a woman whose conversation failed to sparkle until he asked what unusual dishes she had cooked. "I once baked a cat," she answered, "when I was a child."

In demand by Rotary, Lions, Kiwanis, Exchange Club and The American Legion, Ted ad lib his way through unheeded programs nimbly leading his audience in a merry chase, at once exciting and informal.

Giggle with Ted Grizzard as he "lays 'em in the aisles" of busses... just for fun.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Good morning, Doc. Your good wife tells me you're working night and day now that so many of the younger doctors are in the army." "That's right, Judge, and I'm glad I'm still able to do it. Had a long letter from Harry... that bright young fellow I was broken in to take over my practice. He said the boys in the service are getting the best medical care of any armed force in our history. They really should with all those brilliant doctors and plenty of supplies to work with." "Speaking of supplies, Doc, not many people realize that a large part of the alcohol required to make the medical supplies that are being used right this minute to alleviate pain, combat infection and save human lives, is produced by the beverage distilling industry. For nearly two years this entire industry has been working night and day producing nothing but alcohol for the government's program." "Nobody knows better than I, Judge, what an important contribution to our war effort that has been."

News From The State Capital

The Kentucky Department of Education will be represented at an eight-state conference of school officials to estimate operation of a school lunch program for the next school year. John Fred Williams, superintendent of public instruction, said he might attend the conference in Atlanta on August 10 in person, or that some other member of the department might be designated to represent the state.

Other states participating will be Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina and Virginia.

The State Highway Department has awarded a contract for grading, draining and traffic-bound slag surfacing of 2,391 miles of the Slayersville-Prestonsburg road in Magoffin county to the Kentucky Road Oiling company of Frankfort, on its low bid of $89,895.12.

The Highland Construction Company, of Louisville, with a low bid of $8,823.84, received a contract to grade and drain eight-tenths of a mile of the London-Barbourville road in Laurel County.

Bids on blumonium resurfacing of a group of Daviess county roads and of another group in Boyd, Fleming, Greenup and Lewis counties were rejected as too high and the projects were ordered re-advertised.

The Division of Probation and Parole has held a three-day (July 24, 25, 26) in service training institution for all State Probation and Parole Officers. Dr. Walter C. Reckless of the Ohio State University conducted the institute, assisted by Mr. John J. Jarvis, the Director of the Division. The Parole officers were given detailed instruction in all phases of Probation and Parole Work with special emphasis on supervision practices and investigational procedures. This institute followed one conducted by Mr. Jarvis and his staff during the first week of April for the new Probation and Parole Officers.

Dr. Reckless has conducted a number of institutes throughout the country, especially those for the Federal Probation and Parole Officers. He is regularly in charge of training students for parole, probation and correctional institute work at the Ohio State University's school of Social Administration.

The Officers evidenced a great deal of interest and enthusiasm. It is believed that the results will be very beneficial and far reaching.

It was announced today by J. Stephen Watkins, Commissioner of Highways, that at the close of business on July 31, 1944, the sale of round trip tickets for Class A-1 (Passenger Automobiles) and Class A-2 (Farm Trucks) units of traffic would be discontinued on the Toll Bridges in Project No. One, and in lieu thereof books of non-transferable commutation tickets would be offered for sale.

An automobile Speed Trend Study, has been recently conducted by the State Highway Department. H. St. G. T. Carmichael, Jr., Director, Div. of Planning, announced today. The study was conducted by the Traffic Survey section of the Highway Planning Survey as a part of its cooperative program with the Public Roads Administration and reveals the following points of particular interest:

The Average speed of all observed vehicles was 40.5 miles per hour or 4.9 miles per hour faster than the average speed in the summer of 1943.

Only 19.5 per cent of observed vehicles were traveling at speeds of 35 miles per hour or under.

Only 73.5 per cent of all observed vehicles traveling at speeds of 45 miles per hour or under, leaving 26.5 per cent traveling at speeds in excess of 45 miles per hour.

Since this study confirms the fact that a large number of vehicles are traveling in excess of the national speed limit of 35 miles per hour, and a substantial number in excess of the legal state speed limit of 45 miles per hour, and indicates that the trend in highway speeds is definitely upward, it is suggested that the Highway Patrol give consideration to taking an possible remedial action.

The Division of Public Assistance of the Department of Welfare, has just conducted a study of the causes of blindness of the 1,720 people who have received assistance since the beginning of its operation of the Aid to the Needy Blind program. Josiah B. Everett, Director, Department of Welfare, announced today. The study was directed by the state agency with the advancement of Federal Social Security Board and the consultative service of the American Foundation for the Blind. The data was taken from the reports of the examining ophthalmologist and assembled by Dr. Robert Sory, Supervising Ophthalmologist.

The study revealed that the average of blindness was 30.3 years, while the average age of the recipient of assistance was 51.6. This would indicate that 1,720 recipients of assistance had perhaps needed assistance for twenty years before they received it.

FLIGHT STOPS
Aircraft manufacturers believe that thousands of flight stops, immediately adjacent to highways, will be useful in developing cross-country flying. The Public Roads Administration has expended several million dollars to build large runways along coastal highways for the Army and Navy but these are suitable for heavy military planes rather than light private craft.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration, however, opposes flight stop construction and recommends that 2,900 small airports be built near downtown sections of cities to serve the needs of private fliers.

SMALL GRAIN BETTER WHERE NITRATE USED

How ammonium nitrate increased yields of wheat, barley and rye for three Hickman county farmers is told by Farm Agent Warren Thompson. All had check plots where the fertilizer was not used. On the farm of Amos Ward, Clinton, Ky., the wheat fertilized with 50 pounds of ammonium nitrate to the acre was three times as tall, the heads twice as long, and the yield five times as great as where it was not used. From his 30-acre field, Ward harvested 25 bushels of wheat to the acre. Ike Martin, also of Clinton, increased his yield of barley 12 bushels to the acre through the use of ammonium nitrate. On the unfertilized plot, the yield was 20 bushels to the acre, on the fertilized area, 32 bushels. H. C. Sams of Fulton, Ky., found it paid to use ammonium nitrate on baldo rye. From the plot where no fertilizer was used, he harvested 16 bushels to the acre, while the fertilized land produced 24 bushels per acre.

WARTIME shortages, rationing, delays, substitutions and higher prices unavoidably affect nearly everything you buy these days, but there's one big exception—your household electric service.

Despite unprecedented war production demands, there is still ample electricity for all essential civilian needs... instantly available at the flip of a switch... unchanged in quality... and at the same low cost as before the war.

Although manpower and material shortages have made the task of rendering good electric service increasingly difficult, it's still dependable... still cheap... still the biggest bargain in your household budget.

THE PRIEST IN THE LIFE OF ISRAEL

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 2:37-38, 35; 4:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—For every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in things pertaining to God.—Hebrews 5:1.

Failure to observe God's law inevitably brings disaster. That is true in the family, and in the nation. It follows even though the man who sins is in a high and favored position in God's service.

Our lesson which brings before us the work of the priest in Israel also reminds us of the sacred relationship of father and son. These are important matters inviting our careful study.

I. A Holy Calling: (2:37, 38).
Eli was the high priest in Israel, an office ordained of God, and by Him established in the household of Aaron. The priest was to stand between God and man, there to seek His forgiveness for the sins of the people, and His grace and mercy upon them. He was to teach them the law of God and to seek for them divine guidance. He was subject to special laws, and had great privileges of service.

Such a man must not only be holy himself, but unusually diligent about properly rearing his sons who would follow him in this office, which was by God's ordinance an hereditary one. He had to be both a good minister and a good father. Eli was the former, but he failed as a father. In the New Testament, Christ becomes our High Priest (Heb. 7:26; 9:11), and those who minister for Him are to bring men to Him—the "one Mediator between God and Man" (1 Tim. 2:5; Heb. 9:15). In this new covenant the minister has a high and holy calling, but it also is made clear that all believers have the liberty to come boldly to the throne of grace (Heb. 4:16); hence they too are called "a holy priesthood" (1 Pet. 2:9).

II. A High Responsibility (2:29, 30, 35).
As already suggested, Eli was evidently a man of personal piety and integrity in office. We honor him for that, but we regret his failure to properly rear his sons who were to succeed him.

It is not enough to meet one phase of our responsibility before God and then, because of our faithfulness there to seek to justify weakness elsewhere. One sometimes hears the expression, "But he is such a good man," as an excuse for failure, but it just will not do.

Eli did demonstrate with his boys, but he waited until it was too late or did it in such a way and at such a time as to be ineffective. His failure at this point is declared (v. 29) to be a placing of his sons above God in his thinking.

What a solemn warning to indulgent parents! "Not to rule and restrain our children, to give them their own way, is to honor them more than God. Ere we think it, weakness becomes wickedness in ourselves and in our children too." God has "made every parent . . . a king in his home, that he may . . . command his children in the way of the Lord" (Andrew Murray). God will not permit such sin and failure to pass unnoticed. He will set aside those who fail Him (v. 30) and bring them into judgment. He has others who are willing to serve Him (v. 35). Evidently young Samuel was the one in mind here.

It is both significant and encouraging to note that in the midst of the wicked and immoral surroundings created by Eli's son, God had the tender voice of His own planting—the life of the boy Samuel, growing up in the temple. He was already hearing God's voice and learning to obey the call.

III. A Heavy Judgment (4:12-18).
The Israelites went out to battle against the Philistines. Meeting defeat, they thought to gain victory by bringing the ark of the covenant into battle, and who had the ephrontery to appear as "priests" with the ark but the wicked sons of Eli. Swift and awful was the judgment of God. Not only was there defeat, but the ark was lost to the heathen Philistines, and the two sons of Eli were killed. When Eli heard the news of what had taken place, he too fell and died. Here was the tragic end of a life that had begun with promise, and all because of weakness, failure and sin.

There is a pointed lesson here for us. The people of Israel depended on the ark itself, an outward symbol of godliness, when they had no spiritual life in the heart—and they went down to failure. Will we go through the motions of religious exercises, talk about to pray, appoint men who please our itching ears (1 Tim. 4:3) to preach to us, and then go on our careless, worldly, indifferent way, supposing that our formal religion will save us? Paul tells us in 1 Timothy 3:1-5 that "having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof" is a sign of the "last days," of "perilous times" which have come upon us. May God save us!

Coming Home

By MARY W. KING
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

MRS. PALFREY HOWARD II reached for one of the new genealogy volumes, and drew it from the shelf. There were five more records of her family and Palfrey II; a surprise gift for her soldier sons when they should come home with their fighting achievements to be added to the family records.

It was a proud old room, the library. Palfrey II viewed it from celestial regions, if at all, and the boys—one in Australia, the other on Guadalcanal—had not seen it since their mother had assembled the ancient family furnishings and hung the ancestral portraits.

As she opened the book, the cupboard door of her memory unlatched and a familiar chuckle slipped out. "At it again, old girl!" The chuckle and question were as natural as when Palfrey II had been a round earth dweller.

"I know Palfrey, that pride in our New England lineage always amused you." Mrs. Palfrey answered aloud. "But surely the boys will care after this war. It's the thing they are fighting for!"

"Did you speak, ma'am?" the voice of her maid asked from the doorway.

"No, Mollie. What is it? Oh, you have lettered I hope they are from the boys!" She rose eagerly. "They are, Mollie! That's Pal's writing. The other's from Win! I'd know his scrawl in Egypt. How wonderful to hear from them both at the same time!"

"It is indeed, ma'am. I hope you'll be findin' them both fine."

Mrs. Palfrey used a pebbled wire hairpin to slit the envelopes, ignoring the antique ivory cutter. Her lips moved as she read the first paragraph of each letter almost audibly. The maid lingered. "They are both safe, Mollie," Mrs. Palfrey announced soon, with happy tears in her eyes. She would read Pal's first—Palfrey Howard III, with the troops in Australia.

"Dear Mother:" (the letter ran)

"I'm O.K. Hope to come home on furlough, if our commander can arrange transportation. I've been in hospital. I'm all right now and I'm coming back to help finish this job as soon as I can carry a gun. Got a load in my shoulder, but it won't be long now."

"I have a surprise for you, Mother. I'm married to the sweetest Australian girl on the whole continent. Her name is Sidna. You'll love her, Mom. We might blow in any time. You'll be nice to Sidna, won't you? I'll have two weeks and then off to wherever Uncle Sam needs me most. We figured it this way, Sidna and I—we've both kept clean and straight, so we think we ought to raise some pretty fine kids to grow up in the new world, once we get it set for them. Some fresh blood in the family, eh, Mom?"

"Here's hoping we see you soon. I want you to know Sidna because we plan to settle in Australia when we've finished mopping up."

"Love,"

"Pal."

The sheet dropped from Mrs. Palfrey's hands. Pal married! To an Australian girl! Planning to live in Australia! With trembling hands and half dazed, she drew out the second letter. Winthrop—her baby—bearing her father's name.

"Dear Mom:

"Pal got word through to me and we hope to come on the same transport. I'm slated for a furlough, too. I've been in hospital but the Japs didn't get this baby. I'm fine. Just wobbly, that's all."

"Say, Mom, do you mind if I bring a couple of my buddies home with me? They're getting out of hospital too. Swell guys—Able Levine and Mike O'Hara. Able's my bombardier, and Mike's my gunner. And boy, what a job we did on those little yellow bugs! They don't come any finer than Able and Mike. We're brothers forever. I want to show them what a home and a swell mother are like. They don't remember either. We could all stand some of Mom's cooking. See you soon we hope. Of course we can't be sure."

"Love,"

"Win."

Able Levine! Mike O'Hara! Mrs. Palfrey was stunned. "We're brothers forever." She gazed into the leaping flames. Palfrey Howard III, whose ancestors had founded this country, married to a girl of unknown parentage. It did not occur to her to concede pioneer stock to a girl of another country. And Winthrop—fraternizing with the sons of immigrants!

The fire burned low. At last Mrs. Palfrey's jeweled hands were clasped, and she prayed softly, "Oh, God, I think that the boys are safe. Nothing else matters. But, God, help me to be as big as my boys!" She rose resolutely and rang for the maid. "You know, Mollie," she said, "I'm not so sure the boys will like this room after all. I think we'll bring back that etching Win always liked, and the lake pictures." "That's more warm'n," the girl answered simply.

A half-hour later two messages winged into space in the hope that in some way they would reach her boys. One read, "Can't wait to get my arms around you and Sidna." The other, "Certainly bring Able and Mike." Both were signed "Mother."

Staffordsburg

We are sad to report the rather sudden death of one who had lived among us for many years. Mrs. Ora Ballinger went to join her husband among those who preceded her to the "Better Land" some three years ago. Reared in the Hickory Grove neighborhood where she was born some 61 years ago the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bird as a young woman she became a member of the Hickory Grove Baptist Church. About 40 years ago she was united in marriage with Charles A. Ballinger and to this union were born two children who survived the parents. These children are Geo. F. Ballinger of Atwood and Mrs. Kline Gordon of Dry Ridge. Also surviving are two grandchildren, Joyce and Charles Gordon. Funeral services were held Monday at 2 p. m. from Staffordsburg Methodist Church where she placed her membership several years ago. A good neighbor a true friend and a loving mother she will be remembered where ever known. She also leaves one sister Mrs. Betty Hageman, two brothers Wiley and Gene Bird.

Mr. and Mrs. Att Hoffman have as guests their grandchildren Sandra and Howard Hoffman of England.

J. B. and Ronald Losey are visiting their aunt Mrs. J. T. Stone of Walton.

Mrs. Ezra Elmore has as guests on Thursday her nephew Clifford Winston and family of Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Lebraun Richardson and children were guests on Sunday of Mrs. Clyde Richardson of Frankfort who had visited relatives here during the past week.

Mrs. Paul Watson received word Thursday that her son Lieut. Billy Durr who was coming home on furlough was stricken with appendicitis. He was rushed back to camp where he is in a very serious condition. His mother and grandfather John Klim are at his bedside and report him slightly improved.

Wayne Richardson who has enjoyed a furlough of several days left Monday for his new camp in Texas.

Mrs. Mattie Griffith, Miss Mary Lou Jones, Miss Harriet Ayler and brother Harley spent last Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Dave Miller and family.

Friends of Clifford Moore will be glad to know he is doing nicely following a major operation.

Misses Mattie Marie Miller, Mary Lou Jones and Harriet Ayler are visiting their aunts Mrs. Mattie Griffith, Mrs. Myrtle Fields and Mrs. Madge Holden.

SEE COUNTY AGENT ABOUT THE USE OF CROP FERTILIZERS

The Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics has placed in the hands of county agents throughout the state special information about the grades of mixed fertilizers approved by the War Food Administration and their use for crops grown in Kentucky. Of interest just at this time is the application of fertilizers for small grains and pasture and meadow crops.

In seedling grains on tobacco land that was heavily fertilized for that crop, the college says it is probable that no fertilizer will be needed. Other lands may need fertilizer, depending on their deficiency in nitrogen, phosphate and potash.

Most county agents are equipped to test soils, or representative samples may be sent to the Experiment Station at Lexington.

For alfalfa, most Kentucky soils need liming. They also should be tested for potash deficiency.

The use of fertilizer is recommended in making new pasture seedings, and for many old established pastures. In fact, most pastures and meadows would benefit from applications of fertilizers.

Concerning the fertilizer situation, the college says:

"Fertilizer supplies of phosphate and potash will be larger than in 1943-44. Supplies of nitrogen may be as large. Fertilizer demands, however, may exceed the supply. Greater assurance of obtaining the fertilizer wanted in 1945 will be provided by placing orders fairly early and taking delivery when the fertilizer is available. Most fertilizers, particularly mixed fertilizers, when stored in a dry place will remain in good mechanical condition until used later in the year.

"Supplies of straight phosphorus and potassium fertilizers should be larger in 1944-45. Ammonium nitrate may continue to be an important nitrogen fertilizer."

4-H MEMBERS LEAD HAND AT FARM WORK

More than 400 4-H club boys and girls in Breckinridge county are helping solve the labor problem in that county. From 9 to 16 year old, they have done hundreds of hour of work. Records show that they have planted and hoed gardens, set tobacco, washed and ironed clothes, washed dishes, fed chickens and hogs, helped milk, watered stock, tended sheep, prepared meals and cared for small brothers and sisters. Many of these club members will help increase tobacco returns by pruning.

The German army will eventually collapse but until it does it will fight the Allied soldiers, attacking the foe, deserve the admiration of their people at home.

Full production for war may point the way for full production for peace and thus usher in a new era of progress for the people of this country.

POOR SEALS CAUSE LOSS IN CANNING

Imperfect seal of jars was said by Olden county homemakers to have been the major cause of canned food spoilage last year. Approximately 111,500 quarts were canned by 450 women reporting. If gardens produce, it is expected that even larger amounts will be put up this year, said Home Agent Lila Hembree.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Bert Childers Sees the Silver Lining

The drought hit Bert Childers' farm mighty hard. Corn yielded cut 'way down. Hay short. Cattle on grass as dry as a bone. But one thing that keeps Bert going is his everlasting optimism.

"Joe," he said, "I read where the brewers, in cooperation with the W. F. A., are turning out a lot of brewers' dried grains for fattening cattle and to help make up our protein shortage."

"Also brewers' dried yeast, Bert," I told him. "And from what I hear, that's still higher in proteins and the richest natural source of the vitamin B complex."

"Good for livestock and humans, they tell me, Joe."

That's what I understand. And from where I sit, brewers in Kentucky and many other states are genuinely interested in supplying these important feed concentrates at a time when they're needed most.

Walton Stock Yards To Open August 29th

The Walton Stock Yards will have their opening on Tuesday, August 29th. The sales will be held on Tuesdays of each week thereafter. The yards are located on the old C. C. C. Camp site, off Alta Vista Drive, Walton and will be open at 2 p. m. (E.W.T.) and run until everything is sold. There will be representatives there to bid on all kinds of livestock from the various large packing houses.

The latest type of scales have been installed which stamp the weight on your ticket and also has an indicator in sight so everyone can see readily what the weight is. The pens and large building for sales purposes has recently been completed and can take care of all types of stock.

In Compliance With Health Board Request

The 1944 Boone County 4-H Utopia Club Fair and County Picnic scheduled for this Saturday, August 19th has been postponed. The 4-H and Utopia Club Council in charge of the fair held an emergency call meeting Monday morning and voted unanimously to comply with the local Board of Health's request to postpone the fair and picnic.

Both the fair and picnic will be held on a date to be announced in the near future.

Triple Auto Crash Injures 3 Men

Sheriff J. T. Williams of Boone County and Chief Al Hue of Florence reported a collision Saturday involving three autos on the Dixie highway at Florence, Ky.

Three men were injured in the collision, none seriously. Sheriff Williams said an auto driven by Nathan L. Wilson, R. R. 1, Florence, sidwiped a car operated by Robert Moore, R. R. 2, Walton, and a passenger, a soldier on furlough, of Florence, received minor face cuts.

Sgt. Rosentel and Wilson were treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, and released. James was treated by Dr. H. F. Mann, of Walton.

James suffered injuries to both knees and Moore was unhurt. Wilson suffered a right arm injury and a passenger in his car, Sgt. Ernest Rosentel, a soldier on furlough, of Florence, received minor face cuts.

Funeral services were held in the Coalville Christian Church with burial in the Casey cemetery.

NOTICE TO VOTERS

Notice is hereby given, that any voter who desires to register, or who has moved from one precinct to another, or desires to change their party affiliations, may do so in the County Clerks Office at Burlington, Ky., from August 15, 1944 to September 8, 1944, both dates included.

Clerk of Boone County Court.

"Wall of Lead"

"It was just like walking against a wall of lead," S. Sgt. William Campbell described the D-Day invasion of France to his father, Russell B. Campbell, of Highway, Ludlow.

Sgt. Campbell was with the initial forces to land along the Normandy beaches. "It was sure tough going, but we just kept on marching, crawling and running forward until we had achieved our objective," Sgt. Campbell wrote.

"I saw a good many of my buddies all wounded and some, I suppose, killed outright, but we just kept moving forward. Of us that survived we fought our way and established ourselves. Now we are still fighting hard and constantly moving forward. We'll not stop until we reach Paris and then Berlin and then on to Japan."

Sgt. Campbell, a graduate of Walton-Verona High School, entered the Army in January, 1942, and has been assigned with a combat engineer unit overseas, serving in North Africa and later being transferred to England for the invasion.

His mother, Mrs. Mable Campbell, lives in Walton.

UTOPIANS HOLD OUTDOOR MEETING

Boone County Utopia Club members will hold an out-of-doors meeting at the Fair Grounds at Burlington on this Thursday evening, August 17th at 8:00 p. m. (E.W.T.) according to Lucian Bradford, president of the club.

The members will enjoy a fish fry in connection with the regular business meeting. All who are interested in Utopia Club work are invited to attend.

Committees plan to redouble efforts to make this year's fair on the new date the biggest and best on record. A large increase in attendance is expected to result from the date change.

The committees in charge of the fair program were disappointed in that emergency conditions demanded the date change. All plans for a record event were made and the committees were working vigorously to have everything in shape for Saturday. The few days postponement, however, will allow extra time for details and preparation of exhibits.

OMIE T. WINKLE

Mr. Omie T. Winkle died Sunday August 6, 1944 at the home of his sister Miss Cora Winkle near Berry, Kentucky, Harrison County.

He lived in Walton until a few months ago when his health became too bad for him to live alone.

His wife Ellen preceded him in death about a year ago. He leaves four children to mourn his going. P. Fred Winkle, Camp Folk, La. S 2-C Homer Winkle, U. S. Naval Hospital, Calif., Mrs. Orville Jones and Mrs. Charles Tungate both of Covington.

Funeral services were held in the Coalville Christian Church with burial in the Casey cemetery.

Established 1857

Under the provisions of the Absentee Voter Act passed at the last Regular Session of the General Assembly, every eligible and qualified voter including civilians as well as those in the Military or Naval services, and whether such voter be registered or not, who expects to be absent from the County in which his voting precinct is situated on the day of election, shall be entitled to vote at an Absentee Voter.

Application must be made to the Secretary of State of Kentucky for an official ballot by the Absentee Voter.

If the names of all Absentee Voters of Boone County, together with their present address and the precinct in which they vote are mailed to the undersigned by their relatives residing in this County, an application for an Absentee Ballot will be mailed to the Absentee Voter.

All Absentee Voters must be 21 years of age before the Regular Election date, November 7, 1944.

Please mail the names and addresses within the next few days as it is very important that the applications be mailed out this month, a post card with the necessary information will be sufficient.

INTERESTING TALK GIVEN TO RED CROSS

Miss Enle B. Willis who is now vacationing in Boone County, gave a very interesting talk at the regular monthly meeting of the Red Cross Nursing committee. Miss Willis has been employed by the Red Cross ever since she left Boone County. She is now a member of the National staff.

All members of the nursing committee were present excepting Mrs. Luella Houston of Florence, who was away on account of illness in her family.

Two urgent tuberculosis cases were discussed. These cases are in dire need of sanatorium care, and so far no beds have been available. We are doing every thing we can for these cases, but the fact remains, there is only one small sanatorium for the entire state: However, just in the past week it has been published that a state appropriation has been made for five sanatoriums to be located in five different parts of the state.

COUNTRY NURSES REPORT Attendance has been good at the four Home Nursing Classes, which are under way.

On account of doctors being so busy, summer roundups of children to enter school next year have not been pushed, however one school planned their own and had a good clinic.

WITH OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

CLIPPING TO EDITOR

Dear Editor:
This is the story of my ship of which we are all so proud.

Sincerely,
R. E. Smith Ph. M. 2-c
SHE IS "JACK-OF-ALL SHIPS" From Betty Knox, Evening Standard War Reporter.

For 29 years the U. S. S. Melville has been following sea-going craft around the world doing repair jobs.
Like a country doctor, the Melville keeps on going wherever anybody needs fixing up. The log book shows a total of as many as 9879 man-hours of work aboard damaged vessels in one month.

That does not count small repairs of little ships that pull up along side for a few patches.

Since 1915 the U. S. S. Melville has kept turning up wherever she was needed. Every American sailor throughout the world knows her comfortable lines. Admirals have come aboard to remind the skipper about "that time" in almost any place where the Melville did a neat job of work on their favorite ships.

Now the Melville is at anchor in a British Harbor to service the ships running a daily Channel service of vital supplies to Allied troops.

Her service duties are what their chief, Commander Francis Taylor, U. S. N., from New Jersey, describes as "just routine."

But the crews of American craft returning from the bombardment of Cherbourg or any place else do not think that. Anything from the casting of springboard bearings for a transport during invasion months to borrowing a potato peeler is more than just routine in their eyes.

The necessities of the war have turned the Melville into a "jack-of-all-ships."

After Cherbourg she repaired several destroyers and patched others up enough for them to proceed to a fully equipped shipyard.

The ship does a large trade in turning freight fleet around as quickly as possible.

"Other things we do include hair-cutting, dental service, and providing uniforms for anybody who is short," one of the crew said.

Since her arrival, the Melville has taken care of minor and major injury to landing craft, destroyers, battleships, cruisers, transport, and the minesweepers. Her unalike lines are recognizable to sailors anywhere.
They expect the Melville to arrive and she does.

AUNT RECEIVES LETTER

Below is a letter to Mrs. Walter
King from her nephew Edward S.
Eggleston who is in a U. S. Army Hospital in England.

Hello Dearest Aunt,
I have received six more of your back letters so I had better begin answering. I was moved to a new hospital but you can tell by my address that it wasn't far.

I am wondering whether Mildred Catherine got married or not. If she is, I wish her all the happiness possible. As I am writing this letter, I hope David Earl is enjoying his vacation in Michigan.

I would have liked to have heard the radio on D-Day. From what I hear and read, the world actually took hold of itself and stopped and prayed for the soldiers. What I mean is, they realized what the fellows were facing. On D-Day, we were on a boat heading for Normandy.

I hope I can get home to enjoy some of that canned goods you are putting up. I went through some beautiful truck gardens in Normandy, onions, strawberries, cabbage.
Those strawberries were so tempting, but we had to keep on going. I would like to see your garden if all the weeds are out of it.

When I was at the other hospital the Red Cross called and showed me your V-mail letter you sent them, inquiring how I was, they can tell you better than I.

Thanks a lot for the pictures Aunt Sara, they are swell. Mildred looks very nice. That old front yard sure gets me down, no kidding.

I've received some cards from people in Verona.
Tell all hello, and take care of yourselves. Write when you can. Always thinking of you,

As Always

News From The State Capital

L. C. Willis, Commissioner of the Department of Industrial Relations stated today that the newly appointed Workmen's Compensation
Board composed of E. Poe Harris,
Claude Hommonds, and C. B. Latimer has set a special investigation and hearing for August 15 on the claim for compensation arising out of an accident sustained by James Wilson, a miner, formerly employed by the Fayette-Jellico Coal Company of Knox County.

Commissioner Willis explained that Wilson has previously been granted an award of $7,500 as total permanent disability and that the employer had submitted for approval of the Board an agreement signed by the employee providing $2,300 in a lump sum in addition to some $1,200 he had been paid. There had been no evidence of change of condition, mistake, or fraud presented to the Board. The Commissioner stated that he knew of no cases where investigations of this nature had been conducted by the Board in the past but that he intends to encourage similar investigations in the future in order to carry out the humane purpose of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

The State Fire Marshal's Office has held several courts of inquiry in Lexington and Fayette county during the course of investigation of the burning of a Hemp Barn on the farm of David M. Lusk of New York and in which a loss of several thousands of dollars is claimed. Insurance involved in the coverage of hemp, allegedly amounted to one hundred and eighty thousand pounds ($180-000). Total insurance involved in the coverage of the loss amounts to $49,000.

Studies made by the Kentucky
Highway Department's Division of Planning, in cooperation with the Public Roads Administration, yield interesting information on the number of motor vehicles now being operated in the state and on the amount of gasoline being consumed by them. J. Stephen Watkins, Commissioner of Highways, announced today.

The total number of private and commercial motor vehicles registered in Kentucky for the calendar year, 1943, was 438,879 as compared to 461,509 in 1942; a decrease of 4.9% in 1943 from 1942. An analysis of 1943 passenger car registration show the average age of all cars in Kentucky to be 6.8 years as compared to a national average age for the country as a whole of 6.2 years.
With reference to gasoline consumption by motor vehicles, gasoline tax collections indicate that 35.7% less gasoline was used in Kentucky in May, 1944, than in May, 1941.

The appointment of J. Paul Ward, of Edmonton, as Supervisor of Field Men in the Fire Marshal's office will greatly add to the reorganization plans of the department. Ward will direct the activities of the Deputy Marshals and will be in direct supervision of all inspections of Public Buildings and the transportation and handling of inflammables and explosives. The new Supervisor will also assist in the prosecution and investigation of all arson cases within the state. At the present the department is prosecuting five arson

John W. Kelly, Director, Division of Public Health Education, announced today that the State Department of Health will shortly have in operation two mobile units, equipped with photofluorographic X-ray machines, for the uncovering of hidden tuberculosis in Kentucky. One such unit, now operating in Knox,

Laurel and Whitley Counties, was donated to the Department some two years ago by the Elks Lodges in Kentucky and the National Youth Administration.

The new unit, equipped with a 35mm photofluorographic X-ray machine, will be installed in a new trailer donated by the Elks Lodges in Kentucky. Each of these units is capable of X-raying at least 1,000 persons each week that it is in operation.

Because of their mobility, they are especially valuable in surveying large groups in factories, mining camps and schools. These surveys are, in many ways, comparable to the mass blood testing program used in venereal disease case findings and have largely replaced the mass use of the Tuberculin Skin Test as a procedure in uncovering cases of active tuberculosis.

The more you do for some people the louder they grumble and complain; this explains some of the noises that you hear.

home from lodge. I can't word it just the way you did."

"Sure thing, Tim. Here's what I told him.
Charlie. There's no such thing as votin' a nation, a state, a county, or even a community dry. We had proof enough of that during our 13 years of prohibition. What you really vote for is whether liquor is going to be sold legally or illegally...whether the community is going to get needed taxes for schools, hospitals, and the like, or whether this money is going to go to gangsters and bootleggers. That's the answer, boys...

simple as A-B-C."

BETTER METHODS TO CUT CANNING LOSS

Fewer jars of canned fruits and vegetables will spoil in Caldwell county this year. If interest in better canning methods is an indication, at canning clinics held in different parts of the county, Home Agent Nancy Scroggins explained the common types of spoilage of canned foods brought to the meetings, and then told how they can be avoided. Sterilization of jars, the proper adjustment of jar lids, and processing the canned food the required length of time, were emphasized as being essential for good results. Miss Scroggins recommended that copies of old canning directions be destroyed, as better methods have been developed. They are to be found in the leaflet, "Can Fruits and Vegetables for Victory," which may be had from county or home agents, or from the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Lexington.

REDUCES PIG LOSSES

Harvey Thrasher of Hancock county had outstanding success with tilted farrowing floors this season. No pigs were overlaid in four litters raised by heavy Poland-China sows. Losses due to mashing by mature sows on his farm previous to this spring had averaged almost 25 per cent.

If You Had MY JOB

KEEPING HOUSE, helping take care of the family—you would realize that business girls are not the only ones who sometimes get Headache and Throbbing Muscles. We home girls often work just as hard and have just as many Headaches, just as many Stomach Upsets and get just as tired.

ALKA-SELTZER

About a year ago, I first used ALKA-SELTZER. I find that it eases my Aching Head, takes the kinks out of Throbbing Muscles and brings relief when I have Acid Indigestion. The family says I am a lot easier to live with since I have known about ALKA-SELTZER. Have you tried ALKA-SELTZER? If not, why don't you get a package today? Large package 60¢. Small package 30¢, also by the glass at Soda Fountains.

HOMEMAKERS STUDY SAVING IN WARTIME

How to repair upholstered furniture, make curtains when sheer fabrics are scarce, and re-paint worn linoleum, are some of the practical subjects to be discussed in more than a third of the counties of the state this fall, when Miss Vivian Currutt, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, meets with homemakers' clubs. It is anticipated that more than 10,000 women will be reached with these money-saving ideas. Homemakers are particularly eager during wartime to learn of ways to make their homes attractive at little cost, Miss Currutt said.

BORON INCREASES YIELD OF ALFALFA

The use of boron increased the yield of alfalfa by a third for D. B. Graham, a farmer of Hickman county. The average yield of the field was 2,000 pounds per acre on the second cutting, while the boron treated plots averaged 3,000 pounds to the acre. It was noted by Farm Agent Warren Thompson that 95 per cent of the leaves were green and remained on the stalk where the boron had been applied, while on the area where it had not been used, a fourth of the leaves had fallen off and about a third were yellow. Graham plans to use 20 pounds of boron to the acre on 120 acres as soon as it can be obtained.

MORE SOLDIERS TO STUDY AT U. K.

A new group of one hundred and seven soldiers will come to the University of Kentucky by August 2 to study as part of the Army Specialized Training reserve program, according to an announcement by University officials. Classes for these men will start August 7, and the group will be eligible to continue its studies at the university for three terms or more.

Courses to be pursued by the new group will consist of work in mathematics, physics, chemistry, English, and history. At the present time, the University of Kentucky is instructing sixty ASTP engineers and fifty pre-medical army students. Therefore, the University will have on its campus 217 students of the army specialized training program.

The new students will be quartered in Breckinridge hall, one of the three residence halls for men.

WOMAN PROFITS BY DRESSING CHICKEN

Through good management, Mrs. Susie Cochran of Spencer county is continuing to make a profit on her poultry as she has for the past several years. She raises from 600 to 700 birds, dresses the fryers and hens, then sells all she can produce at ceiling prices. Instead of 30 cents a pound on foot, she gets 80 cents for dressed birds. Mrs. Cochran works closely with Farm Agent Nevin L. Goebel and the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

CHAIRMAN BRUGH EXPLAINS FARMERS GAS RATIONING

Gasoline rations to complete the harvest and carry on other essential non-highway activities are now being issued in this area in the form of E-2 and R-2 coupons. Mr. R. E. Brugh, Chairman of the Boone County War Price and Rationing Board, said today.

This makes three types of E and R coupons that will be circulating in this area in the next few months—the new E-2's, and R-2's, the E-1's and R-1's which most farmers are now using, and a few of the old-type E's and R's without serial numbers which have not been issued here since April 11, 1944.

All the R coupons are worth five gallons of gasoline each, and all the E coupons are worth one gallon each. They are issued to farmers and other non-highway users of gasoline such as mining and logging camps and construction projects, for gasoline to be used in tractors, sawmills, stoves, and all types of off-highway gasoline burning equipment.

They may be used, however, only for gasoline delivered into stationary storage tanks, or into cans or drums. They may never be used for transfers of gasoline into the fuel tank of a truck or automobile.

The new E-2 and R-2 coupons will differ slightly in appearance from the E-1 and R-1 coupons that farmers and filling stations are now used to. Mr. R. E. Brugh said. OPA makes it a practice to change the style of all classes of coupons from time to time, both to discourage counterfeiters and to help service station operators recognize the types that are no longer valid.

All three kinds of E and R coupons are still valid, however, he emphasized.

Service station operators may recognize the new E-2's and R-2's from the following description:

The R-2 (five-gallon) coupons are printed in blue ink, instead of the purple ink used for the R-1's. The E-2 (one-gallon) coupons are printed in black ink, whereas the E-1 is printed in orange.

Both E-2's and R-2's bear the notation "non-highway." In addition, the E-2 coupon will carry the legend: "Not good for obtaining gasoline for propelling registered vehicle." This longer legend does not appear on the R-2 coupons because of printing difficulties.

E-2's and R-2's, like E-1's and R-1's, are all serially-numbered and issued in strips. They are contained in a cardboard folder, with the highest and lowest serial numbers of the strip of coupons written on the face of the folder along with the name and address of the ration-holder. Gasoline dealers who receive these coupons should always check the serial numbers on the coupons against the range of serial numbers shown on the cover. Mr. R. E. Brugh emphasized.

He also reminded farmers to endorse their E and R coupons plainly with their names and addresses before giving them to their suppliers.

MORTALITY

The Childrens Bureau, of the Labor Department, reports that the nation enjoyed its lowest infant deaths for each 1,000 live births during the year. The maternal death rate in 1942 was 2.59 per 1,000 live births.

The infant mortality rate has been cut almost a third since 1936 and the maternal death rate has gone down more than half.

UNIFORMS FOR NURSES

The army nurse uniform, which has been white since the Nurse Corps was organized in 1901, has been discarded in favor of a brown-and-white pin-stripe seersucker for wear in army hospitals in this country.

The new uniform has been worn only in overseas theatres but is considered an improvement. It is easily laundered, has no buttons to be lost, does not wrinkle, and does not require starching or pressing.

SEE BETTER LOOK BETTER

Perhaps you are one of those who really need to wear glasses but don't because you fear they detract from your appearance. If you are careful to choose glasses that are becoming and have them expertly ground and fitted, they will turn out to be one of the sparkling ones that not only help but also better your life.

BOMBED OUR MEN

In the massive bombing attack west of St. Lo, about fifty American planes, some heavy bombers and a group of medium bombers, dropped their bombs into an American sector short of the target area. Casualties among the American troops were lighter than at first reported, but included Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair.

ARMY DEPLETIONS

Through May 31st, the Army lost 1,234,000 persons, according to the War Department, which says that the total includes 69,000 dead, 941,000 honorably discharged, 66,000 prisoners of war and missing and 158,000 "other separations."

People who go on pleasant vacations are unfortunate—they have to come back to work.

10,870 KILLED
The National Safety Council reports that in the first half of 1944, 10,870 persons lost their lives in automobile accidents. This is an increase of almost 1,000 deaths over the same period of last year.

Transportation is over-taxed

IS YOUR TRIP ESSENTIAL?

Frankly, the transportation situation is serious. Buses are overcrowded — working untold hardships and discomforts to all. Yet thousands daily ignore the gravity of the travel problem to make needless, unessential trips... trips for pleasure alone.

So important is the need to conserve space for those who must travel to meet the demands of war, that Greyhound urgently asks YOU to postpone pleasure travel until the war is won.

★ WHEN YOU TRAVEL... Be sure to put identification stickers or tags on your baggage to avoid delay or loss. Stickers and tags are available at all Greyhound Bus Depots.

We have an abiding faith in the loyalty and understanding of our riders. We believe that when they realize our task as prime movers of men and women to war jobs—fighters on well-deserved furloughs—millions of people on trips essential to Victory—they will do all that is expected of them.

Spend LABOR DAY at Home

LABOR DAY—has always been a peak for pleasure travel. Be wise this year and avoid all bus travel to resort spots. Prove your patriotism by doing all you can to help a critical transportation problem.

A Word from the Town Philosopher

Pete Swanson is pretty much of a philosopher in a home-spun sort of way. Got talking to him recently about the well-known human race.

"You know the old saying," Pete said; "it takes all kinds to make this world of ours. Folks have their good points (least-wise those of my acquaintance) and they have their shortcomings, too."

"And I reckon that includes you, Pete," I said good-naturedly. "It applies to one and all, Joe. Take old Doc McGinnis. He's mighty short-spoken at times, but he's kind to man and beast, mends his own business and never meddles in other folk's affairs."

"Well," I said, "from where I sit, that's the sort this country needs—men who respect the other fellow's rights, such as choosing his life's work, voting as he wants to and enjoying a moderate glass of beer if he wishes."

Not in the Book

By MART COLES

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

CORP. JIMMY KELLER walked briskly over to Sergeant Dikes. Now was the time to ask him, and even if the answer was no, well, you couldn't get ruled off for trying. Maybe all those hash marks on the sergeant's left sleeve didn't mean that he was as tough as most of the boys thought.

Jimmy was twenty-two, and a corporal of just three weeks. His blue denim bagged at the knees. Sergeant Dikes' uniform fitted him like the bark on the bluemug trees of the hillside where the artillery detachment was located. His face was rugged and bleak.

"I've been thinking, Sergeant, that the boys would be happier and do better work if we fixed up the camp a little."

"As how?" The older man's gray eyes roved over the scattered pup tents, the neat piles of barrack bags, and back to Jimmy. "Looks regulation. What's the matter with it?"

Jimmy gulped. Maybe it was dumb after all. The boys had said that the Sergeant would move him down. But he would make the attempt anyway.

"What I mean is, the boys have about four free hours every day. If they want to read, they have to sit on the ground. We could make a table and a couple of benches, fix up a spot to pitch horseshoes."

When the sergeant spoke, the words came from one side of his mouth. "Corporal, when I was your age I had ideas too. Sometimes they worked, but mostly they didn't. And when they didn't, it was just too bad. So all I can say is this, Me, I go by the book. If it says so in the book, I do it. And if it doesn't say so in the book, I don't do it. You asked me, and I'm telling you. I won't say yes, and I won't say no. That's all, Corporal."

"That's all, Corporal."

"What did the top say, Jimmy?" May we? About fifteen were crowded around the corporal.

"He didn't say yes, and he didn't say no," said Jimmy wryly. "He didn't even say maybe," he added with a grin. "But if you fellows will help I'll go ahead."

"If the old man doesn't like it he'll break you back to private," said Sam Johnson.

"Make it an order, Jimmy," brightly suggested somebody. "Then if the brass hats don't like it we'll be in the clear." Jimmy joined in the laugh that followed.

"Let's go," said Sam Johnson. "But remember, if there's a beef, you take it."

"I'll take it," said Jimmy. He looked at the chevrons on his sleeve. Six months to earn those two bits of cloth, and now he might lose them!

The material arrived the next day. The obliging landowner had driven his truck to the lumber yard and delivered it himself with eight large horseshoes, just the right size and weight to pitch. By sunset the rough table, two benches and four chairs were finished and placed. Stakes had been driven and two horseshoe courts marked out.

At four p. m. two days later most of the boys were off duty until seven. Three sat at the table writing letters. Sam Johnson and others were on the courts. All the chairs were occupied. Jimmy had just repacked his bag when he heard a challenge from the sentry at the camp entrance. Then the colonel's big gray car rolled past the guard, and stopped within ten feet of Jimmy.

The colonel walked toward the table. Sergeant Dikes followed at regulation distance, his face expressionless. After what seemed an hour to Jimmy the Colonel spoke. "Who is responsible for the mess, ah—shall we say improvements?"

Jimmy stepped forward one pace and saluted: "I am, sir."

The Colonel looked at the others. "Anyone else accountable?" No one answered. "Very well, Sergeant, take the corporal's name."

He turned to Jimmy. "I like the right kind of enterprise in the men of my command. These conveniences meet with my approval. Corporal, you will be acting sergeant from now on."

To Sergeant Dikes he said, "Make a note of the Sergeant."

As Jimmy watched Dikes "make a note of it" he saw him close one eye. And what was intended for a smile played for a moment about Sergeant Dikes' lips.

New Army Ration For Special Uses

Will Feed 10 Men 1 Day or 5 Men for 2 Days.

CHICAGO. — The army's newest rationing feat is its 10-in-1 ration, filling in the gap between combat food and base camp meals, Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Henry said here.

General Henry, director of the new developments division of the chief of staff of the army, spoke before the Institute of Food Technologists in its fifth annual conference in this city.

He was speaking with justifiable pride of the tremendous feat accomplished by army and food technologists, working unselfishly together in solving the problem of feeding the army's 7,700,000 men and women. Constant testing of rations under all conditions and immediate alteration to meet every objection, all done by the best minds in the industry, have made the American soldier well fed in the world.

"And I believe," he added, "that three-fourths of the scientific and technological effort now being poured into the supplying of our fighting forces will find its eventual application in civilian fields."

After outlining how the G and K rations—the combat rations—have been improved to meet the test of experience, with more meat added and some items eliminated, because they are unpalatable under combat conditions, he said:

"The newest ration development is called the 10-in-1 ration. This contains sufficient food to feed 10 men one day or five men two days. It provides five different menus to insure a wide variety of highly acceptable foods, nutritionally adequate to maintain troops under combat conditions."

"The ration was primarily designed to be used in bivouac areas after the troops return from front-line operations. The 10-in-1 is a sort of a transitional ration, a change from the G and K carried into combat."

WOMEN WILL LEARN TO JILT HOUSEWORK

That there are new tricks for making housework easier will be welcome news to hundreds of homemakers who, because of the war, are doing outside work on the farm along with their usual job of keeping house and preparing meals. In more than 60 counties of the state, Miss Ida C. Hagman, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, will discuss in homemakers' clubs how everyday jobs, such as washing, ironing and cleaning house, may be simplified to a large degree. The first of the meetings will be held in September. Renovating furniture, rugs, window shades and lamp shades to make them useful and attractive for the duration, will also be discussed.

OPA This Week

PLUMBING EQUIPMENT

Ceiling prices will be placed on used and reconditioned plumbing and heating equipment, effective August 9, S. J. Yeary, Price Specialist of the Lexington District OPA Office, announced this week.

All persons selling used or reconditioned plumbing or heating equipment at wholesale or at retail are covered by the order. Peddlers and wreckers are covered only on sales to retailers or to consumers. A householder who purchases an article for his own use then sells it direct to another person is not covered by the regulation.

Specific prices have been set for 65 items by the regulation, Mr. Yeary said.

FERTILIZERS PRICES ESTABLISHED

A simplified retail schedule of uniform dollars-and-cents prices for mixed fertilizers has been announced by the Lexington District OPA Office.

In the Lexington District, the price for 3-9-6 mixed fertilizers, delivered to the consumer at warehouse or railroad, is $32 per ton in 100-pound paper bags.

For less than carload lots, the above price may be increased by the difference between the less-than-carload and carload rates.

OATS CEILING REDUCED

A reduction in ceiling prices of oats at all levels, amounting to an average of five cents a bushel in production areas, has been announced by OPA.

In the 48 counties of the Lexington OPA District, the prices will vary from 81 to 87 cents per bushel at the farm, but will average about 84 cents the District Office said.

● THINKINGS ● DOINGS ● SEEINGS

By Ye Editor

What a grand feeling when the day is over and you have had a bath and gone to bed, laying there smoking your last cigarette for the day, dreaming of what you have done that day and what you plan to do next day, what some friend said, or how good that person made you feel by patting you on the back—my, but you are sleepy—you take another drag off your cigarette, and that all you go to sleep—but "great jump!" balls of fire something is happening to you—a combination of a "hot foot" colic, indigestion, and nightmare—you jump out of bed with a wild scream—to find that you had dropped your lighted cigarette in the pit of your stomach—the moral of this little story is not to smoke in bed.

I know a certain group of people who has certainly been reading our paper for the last few weeks—they were looking for a story of a lady from Walton who went to Burlington to get license (driver's license she said) and stayed all day—those state police must be handsome fellows to say the least!

Some weeks ago we raised the question of what man had the best disposition of any man in Walton—many guessed the right one—but his wife was the only one who guessed someone else.

We made an urgent appeal recently for blood donors—we certainly thank you for the wonderful response.

Hold on to those Bonds!

DIVISION OF GAME AND FISH SPORTSMEN HEARTENED BY WPB STATEMENT

The War Production Board's announcement of the release of more essential small arms ammunition through commercial channels this fall is exceedingly good news for ranchers, farmers and sportsmen who suffered from a shortage of this commodity last season. This information was received by the Kentucky Division of Game and Fish today.

WPB officials have reported that ammunition in process of manufacture would total, during the first quarter of this year, some 120,000-000 shotgun shells and 20,000,000 center-fire rifle cartridges. They state that two hundred million .22 calibre long-rifle cartridges have already been manufactured and have been made available.

They indicate further that all locations of production materials for the second quarter have been approved, which means that 251,000,000 shotgun shells, 30,000,000 center-fire rifle cartridges and 475,000,000 .22 calibre cartridges will have been placed in manufacture by July 1.

Initial shipments, according to WPB, will be confined to stocks necessary to fill orders now on dealer's books, from farmers and ranchers and for essential uses. Shipping schedules and method of distribution are expected to be determined at an early date, but WPB officials state that, while it is possible that sufficient ammunition for game shooting will be available by fall, for the time being none can be spared from supplies necessary to crop and livestock conservation.

Sportsmen who have been waiting patiently or otherwise, for an ample supply of ammunition to reap a fair harvest from increasing game supplies may be heartened by recent developments in the sporting arms and ammunition industry.

Although allied guns are firing all over the world at a furious rate, the small arms ammunition industry is so far ahead of requirements that several plants have closed and the production of others curtailed drastically.

The speed with which new manufacturing facilities were brought into operation, plus attainment of unexpectedly high production rates have resulted in an accumulation of reserve supplies. Greater effectiveness of improved types of ammunition also was a factor in creating the surplus, which contrasts sharply with the acute shortages of two years ago.

FOREST FIRE WARNING ISSUED TO MOTORISTS

Harrod B. Newland, Director of the State Division of Forestry, has directed a warning to all motorists against throwing lighted cigarettes from car windows. Many fires have been reported started by careless motorists throwing lighted matches and cigarettes along the roadside where the dry grass is highly inflammable.

The drought condition throughout the state during the past two months has resulted in numerous fires on property not protected by the State Division of Forestry and an example of that is an area of several thousands of acres burned over in Lewis County recently.

The necessity for greater care in observing the rules of fire prevention is heightened by the continuous dry weather and high wind which are very favorable to hazardous fires. Although recent scattered showers have helped temporarily in some areas, their affect will generally last for only a few days, and many localities have not yet had rain. The shortage of manpower to combat the fires also makes the dry areas vulnerable to swift and easy destruction.

Although some commercial flocks of poultry in Harlan County have been reduced, home flocks are as large as a year ago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for August 20

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected are copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, Inc. and permission.

THE PROPHET IN THE LIFE OF ISRAEL

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 3:1-10; 7:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—He that hath my word, let him speak my word faithfully.—Jeremiah 23:28.

Remarkably up-to-date is the helpful guidance found in this lesson. When our nation finds itself facing those other nations which would destroy our Christian faith, and we know that we need the help both to a true victory and a satisfactory peace, the message of this scripture comes with fine helpfulness.

The prophet Samuel (who was also priest and judge) served God in ruling his people at a time when they were under the hard heel of the Philistines. The way out of oppression was revealed in God's Word, which brought revival and deliverance—which was not forgotten in the day of triumph.

I. God's Word Declared (3:1-10). While a prophet had the ministry of foretelling, his chief work was forth-telling. He told of the future, but his larger ministry was to declare the message of God. As Samuel did this in faithful devotion to the Lord, there was the immediate blessing of God which established the prophet throughout the whole land.

Those who are timid about "limiting" their ministry (imagine that!) to the Bible should learn of Samuel that it is the only really effective message. God will not "let you down" if you teach and preach His Word. He let none of Samuel's "words fall to the ground" (v. 19) and He will not desert us as we give forth His truth.

Note that the Lord Himself came to strengthen and encourage Samuel (v. 21). He is just as gracious to His servants today. He comes to them in that blessed strengthening fellowship which stirs their hearts and fires them anew with holy determination.

II. Man's Heart Revived (7:3-9). The response of the people to Samuel's message was "whole hearted. They were sick of their sin and idolatry. They proved the reality of their repentance by putting away their heathen gods.

Such repentance and appropriate action is a prerequisite to spiritual revival. God cannot give us His blessing if we hold on to our sin and idolatry.

Note how the revival expressed itself. They gathered together and prayed (vv. 5, 6). Spiritual life thrives on the gathering together of God's people. The crisis in Israel was met by a convocation of the people. We need to revive the great soul-stirring religious gatherings of a generation ago. Go yourself, and encourage others to go. Let the fire of God burn, and let those who meet scatter far and wide as brands which will light new fires.

"I will pray," said Samuel. He was a great intercessor (1 Sam. 15:11, Ps. 99:6; Jer. 15:1). Revival starts in the faithful intercession of a burdened heart. Should we not well cry out, "Lord, do it again," and pray for revival in my church, my city, and my country?"

III. A Nation Delivered (7:7-11). "Cry unto God . . . he will save us," was the word of Samuel. They cried, and He did! "The Lord thundered with a great thunder," and discomfited the enemies of Israel.

In these days of warfare we might well cry out, "Lord, do it again," thunder upon our enemies and defeat them in such a way that they and we shall see that it was the hand of God and not of men! (See Ps. 20:7.)

That is one thing for which we might well pray, for "behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save, neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear" (Isa. 59:1).

Seeing Israel at prayer, the enemy took advantage of them and attacked. In the previous battle at this very spot (see last Sunday's lesson) Israel had been defeated because they had fought with the weapons of man. Now, with God's weapons of prayer and faith, they had glorious victory.

IV. God's Mercy Remembered (7:12).

Samuel raised a stone of remembrance, to remind Israel in the years to come that the Lord had been their help. A defeated, disheartened, sinful people had turned to God in repentance and faith, and God had given them victory. They must never forget His mercy.

One of the great concerns of thinking men in our day is the fear that victory may come to us before we are spiritually and morally ready to receive it. If it does, we shall see a mad rush into excesses of all kinds, a bold glorifying in our own ability and power, and even greater forgetfulness of God.

What America needs now is a deep going spiritual revival which will both prepare us for a God-given victory, and for the peace which is to follow.

Use Plastics to Make Stout Planes

New Material 50 Per Cent Stronger Than Metal.

NEW YORK. — A new airplane structural material, of glass and plastics, 50 per cent stronger than metal fuselages and 80 per cent stronger than wooden fuselages now in service, was announced here.

The new material is a quarter to a half inch thick. The plastic reinforced by glass fibers in a manner like that of concrete reinforced by steel rods.

The fiberglass reinforcement is either a glass cloth, or fine fibers. Strength varies somewhat according to the direction in which the majority of the glass fibers run.

The announcement was made by the Bureau of Industrial Service, Inc., with a military clearance from both Wright field and Washington.

In tests at Wright field the material was formed into fuselage, side panel and tail cones, with the glass-plastic serving as the outer and inner layers of a sandwich, and the core of balsa wood.

In firing tests the new structure perforated cleanly, without shattering into jagged edges. Certain high explosive projectiles went through without detonating. Failure to explode was due to low density of the new-type walls.

The announcement stated that the new stuff is a potential contribution to aviation and that uses are expected in automotive, marine and building fields.

Companies furnishing the materials to Wright field are the Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp., American Cyanamid company, Marco Chemicals, Inc., Plaskon division of Libby-Owens-Ford Glass company, Monsanto Chemical company, Columbia chemical division of Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, Dow Chemical company, Bakelite Corp.

Seven types of plastics were used.

Navy Bombing Planes Use Rockets to Sink U-Boat

WASHINGTON.—Use of rockets by navy bombing planes in the destruction of a German U-boat was disclosed by the navy.

It was the first attack with the new type rocket developed by the navy, and the announcement indicated that rocket firing planes have been operating several months.

The two planes—Grumman Avengers—located the Nazi submarine on the surface. "Attacking with rocket projectiles developed by the United States navy and backing this new style onslaught with older weapons," the navy said, "the American aircraft apparently destroyed the enemy without damage to themselves." Lieutenants (jg) Leonard L. McFord, 26, of Eugene, Md., and Willie D. Seeley, 24, of Huntington, Ind., were awarded air medals for the action. No date was given.

High Casualty Toll Is

Swiss Among Italians

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 17.—The Geneva newspaper La Suisse, in a dispatch from Chiasso on the Swiss-Italian border, has estimated that 50,000 Italians had been executed, killed in combat or assassinated in the struggle between fascists and antifascists since the German occupation of the central and northern parts of the country.

"Seventy thousand Italians have been deported to Poland, including around 10,000 Jews," the article said. "At least 250,000 soldiers or workers have been transported to Germany and 50,000 others are in concentration camps and prisons."

Sled Dogs Form Army

'Motor' Pool in Alaska

NOME.—The mid-winter "motor pool" of the army post near here is composed of 48 yelping sled dogs, known collectively and officially as the Post (Quartermaster) Kennels. Each dog has its own set of "dog tags" bearing its service record, serial number and position (lead, swing, intermediate or wheel). Teams usually are made up of seven dogs, though a nine-dog team, with an extra pair of intermediate dogs, sometimes is used for long or heavy runs.

Army Air Base Sergeant

Finds War Is Not Heaven

GREENVILLE, S. C.—A sergeant of the Greenville army air base telegraphed this plea for a five-day extension of leave: "Grandmother not dead. Aunt, uncle, cousin are well. I am in the finest condition of my life. But desire remaining in heaven five additional days."

His commanding officer conceded the approach was unusual but summoned the sergeant in "from heaven" on time.

Sunday morning—Sept. 3—"Three Prayers For The Church."

Sunday Evening—"The Eyes of Jesus." What Jesus saw that others with Him failed to see. A sermon-lecture counted by many as the most valuable sermon they have heard."

Specialist Urges Livestock Adjustments

Prof. Fordyce Ely, head of the Dairy Department and William C. Johnstone, Crops Specialist, in a field meeting at Grant Maddox's farm near Florence on last Wednesday afternoon, August 9th, urged Boone County farmers to adjust livestock numbers in line with balanced farm operation and to make maximum use of available feed supplies.

Prof. Ely pointed out that the grain situation as a whole looks better than it did last year but that Kentucky farmers have increased livestock numbers from 130 million head of livestock units four years ago to 170 million head in 1944. This was done without increasing the feed supply in proportion. Ely recommended that farmers maintain their best producing livestock that always pays well and to cut vigorously the low producing and diseased animals that consume large quantities of feed at a loss. A long time breeding program involving clean disease free herds is necessary now and in the future. Trucked in cows and cow trading represents a constant source for spreading disease among herds that would be otherwise profitable.

Johnstone urged farmers to make the maximum use of the growing corn crop, and to make early fall seedings of small grains. He especially recommended Balbo rye on all tobacco, corn and other cultivated land and on all lespedeza land. This will help meet the hay shortage and to lower the cost of milk and livestock production. Good corn fodder properly fed is worth $15.00 per ton compared with the present price of hay. Grasses should be sown with the small grain where permanent pasture and hay crops are needed. Five pounds of timothy sown in the fall is equal to 10 pounds of timothy sown in the spring.

Balbo rye, Thorne wheat, surplus alfalfa acreages were recommended as three great pasture improvement needs in the livestock program. The thousand of acres of limed and phosphated land in the county should form a good basis for large seedings of alfalfa and grass fields for drought pastures. Elected small grain fields will save hundreds of tons of high priced hay each year. Farmers who closely cut low producing animals from their herds and develop the maximum pasture and hay production on their farms will come out of the present tight livestock situation in a much better position than they were a few years ago according to both Johnstone and Ely.

Mrs. James H. Miller and Miss Wilma Boswell of Hope, Ark., are guests of their sister Mrs. Joseph Neumeister.

There was a surprise birthday dinner given for Mr. E. W. Kendall at his home, Sunday. Guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Boggs of Falmouth, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Grimes and daughter, Hazel Catherine of Erlanger, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mack of Beaver Lick, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carpenter and daughters, Marjorie and Shirley Lou and the hostess, Mrs. Claudia Shoulters.

The Farmer and War Bonds

By Mr. A. S. Goss

Master of the National Grange

WE FREQUENTLY hear farmers raise the question as to whether or not they should buy War Bonds as long as they are in debt. The answer to this question should depend in large measure upon the nature of the debt and whether or not it is current. If part of it is past due, and the borrower expects to experience difficulty in meeting past due payments, he probably should bring his debt into current position before investing in Bonds. If, however, his payments are current, there seems to be no reason why farmers should not buy as many Bonds as they are able. Most individual investors in government Bonds are carrying debt in one form or another at rates higher than the Bonds will yield. This is as it should be if the purchaser is in an earning position which permits the accumulation of some surplus, for we all owe it to our government to do our utmost in the financing of the war, even though the transaction may result in our paying some extra interest on outstanding debts.

When a farmer owes money, he is always concerned as to whether his crops will sell at prices which will enable him to repay his debt. When prices are high it is good business and conservative finance to reduce the debt as rapidly as possible because when prices are low, it takes more crops and more efforts to make the payments.

We should not forget, however, that a government Bond will pay off an equal amount of dollars of debt, no matter whether prices are high or whether prices are low. It is, therefore, a sound and conservative practice to buy government Bonds and lay them aside to make payments on existing debts when they fall due. In fact, quite aside from the patriotic appeal, it is good business to buy Bonds rather than make pre-payments on debt, because the time may come when the ready cash is needed and the money tied up in pre-payments cannot be re-converted. If this money is invested in Bonds, it can be converted into cash to meet any needs which may arise.

If everyone followed the policy of buying no War Bonds until their debts were paid, few Bonds would be sold to the public. We have an obligation to help finance this war which is vastly more important than the income we may receive on the investment of money in War Bonds.

Farmers are finding it impossible to maintain their machinery and buildings in a satisfactory state of repair. They are finding that they cannot replace worn-out equipment except at excessively high cost.

It would seem to be sound and conservative business practice to lay aside money to make the repairs and replace worn-out equipment when material and machines are again available. No safer place can be found to lay aside money for such purposes than in government Bonds.

Every time we buy a Bond we are not only assisting in financing the war, but we are also doing our bit to prevent that most dreaded economic disaster called inflation. If each one of us would invest as much as we could in government Bonds, the danger of inflation would be greatly reduced.

Simon-Kenton Cannery Now Open

The Simon Kenton School Community Cannery is open to the public served by this paper. The cannery is open from 8:30 to 3:00 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. If you desire to use the cannery, an appointment should be made the day before by calling Supt. Caywood's office, Independence 5054. When you make an appointment, give the amount of food, the amount to be canned, the time you will be at the cannery, and the number coming with you to can. It is highly desirable to bring someone along with you to help you with your canning. When you come to the cannery, you will need to bring your own seasoning, towels, pot holders or dishpans will facilitate your work.

Cans may be secured at the cannery. You will want to use "C" cans for lima beans, corn, and succotash. These pint cans are 6 cents and this includes the cost of the can and the cost of operation. Almost all other foods can be canned in plain tin cans, and the cost of these are 5 cents for the pint cans, and 6 cents for the quart cans. These also include the cost of the can and the use of the cannery.

The following are the policies of the cannery:

1. Pay for all canning cost before removing cans from the cannery.
2. The cannery is not responsible for any food or filled cans left in the cannery.
3. The Kenton County Board of Education and cannery will not be responsible for accidents in or around the cannery, damage to equipment due to improper handling, and loss of food.
4. No small children should be brought into the cannery during the hours of operation.
5. Valves and other mechanical equipment should not be regulated except under strict supervision.
6. Each person canning should leave the cannery and equipment clean and in good condition. Small equipment should be put in its proper place.
7. Before coming to the cannery, grade your food as to size and degree of ripeness or maturity. Some products may be partially prepared before coming to the cannery to can. These are: (a) Green beans—string and break. (b) Beets and carrots—tops cut off about 1 1/2 inches from beet. (c) Corn—remove all shucks except a layer around the ear.
8. All Lima beans—shelled. (e) All other food can be prepared at the cannery.
9. All garbage and waste products accumulated while using the cannery should be removed by each individual.

Each individual canning is responsible for labeling or marking her cans before placing them in the exhaust box or retart.

10. Bring as fresh a product as possible to the cannery to can. The cannery will have peaches which may be purchased through the superintendent's office. If you wish to purchase these and come to the cannery, can them, arrangements should be made through Mr. Caywood the day before you wish to come to the cannery to can. If you wish to do any canning on Mondays, arrangements should be made on this opportunity on Friday, as the office is not open on Saturdays.

If you plan to do a quantity of canning in one day, bring your own lunch with you.

Since the war effort needs so much of the commercially canned food this year, let's avail ourselves of this opportunity in our community, and can at least 100 quarts of food for each member of the family.

How To Earn Benefit Payment

Farmers of Boone County may earn a practice payment of $1.50 per acre under the 1945 AAA farm program for establishing winter cover from seedings this fall of corn, oats, barley, rye, or mixtures of these grains, it was stated today by Mark Cook Chairman of the County AAA Committee.

To qualify for this payment, a protective winter cover must be provided and the crop must not be harvested for grain. However, it may be pastured, cut for hay, turned under as a green manure crop, or left on the land. The seed bed should be well prepared and the seed sown sufficiently early to permit plants to withstand winter freezes.

"Announcement of this practice was made in July, 1944, by the Regional AAA Office in Washington in orders that farmers will have sufficient time to make plans for fall seedings of winter cover crops," he said. In addition, to serving as a curb on erosion, the forage from these crops should be especially valuable to farmers who have increased their livestock numbers to meet increased wartime demands for meat and dairy products.

Citing the urgent need for keeping farmland in condition to peak production to meet war needs, Chairman Cook declared that record production levels attained by the nation's farmers during the past seven years have been due largely to the fact that per acre yields were increased through widespread use of sound conservation measures encouraged by the AAA.

In view of the expected shortage of legume seed this fall, he said, farmers of Boone County should take advantage of this opportunity under the AAA program to protect their soil against erosion through use of small grain cover crops.

Warren county produced one of the largest and heaviest wheat crops ever harvested in the county.

Farmers in Letcher county are said to be well satisfied with their plantings of alfalfa and orchard grass.

Approximately 11,000 acres of wheat were harvested in Graves county, some yields ranging from 40 to 50 bushels to the acre.

Nineteen Exhibits Sent To State Fair From County Club

Nineteen 4-H clothing exhibits have been sent to the State Fair according to Barry Hood Gillespie, Home Demonstration Agent. These exhibits will be on display August 28th-September 4th at the Kentucky State Fair, Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky.

Since the county fair was postponed until after state fair, some of the blue ribbon winners at Rally Day were asked to send their clothing exhibits to Louisville.

The following girls representing eight community clubs have entered in the state contest: Vera Dean Scott, Grant; Jewell and Joyce Vio, Burlington; Betty Jacob, Petersburg; Violet Gschwind, New Haven; Martha Pfalzgraf, Hebron; Nina Joyce and Norma Jean Easton, Verona; Kathleen Kenney, New Haven; Loretta and Betty Pender, Grant; Bertha Mae Carroll, Hamilton; Helen Rogers, Hebron; Barbara Lutes, Florence; Bernice Seabrook, Florence; Jivee Hankson, Hamilton; and Louise McArthur, Burlington.

NEW CONTRACTOR STARTS RESERVOIR CONSTRUCTION

W. L. Harper Company of Cincinnati, started two bulldozers working in the county on Monday of this week building farm reservoirs in co-operation with the Extension and Soil Conservation Service Programs. Construction began Monday on Sterling Rouse farm near Limaburg and plans are for this company to serve farmers in the Limaburg, Pleasant, and Yousell Road territory on a route to the north of Burlington. Farmers desiring work, on this general route should contact the operators or the county office.

MRS. ANNABEL W. COOK

Services were held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Chambers and Grubbs Funeral Home, Walton for Mrs. Annabel W. Cook, of Walton, who died Saturday at her home after a long illness. Burial was in Independence Cemetery. Rev. R. F. DeMolay, officiated.

She leaves her husband, Ben Cook, six sons, Francis Denny, of Covington; George and Olivia Clay Denny, both of Newport, and Pats. Robert, James D. and William P. Denny, all on active service with the armed forces; three daughters, Misses Elizabeth, Rose Belle and Betty Lou Denny, all of Walton, and one brother, George Scott Wilson, of Southgate.

UTOPIA CLUB HOLDS FISH FRY

Forty Utopians attended the Annual Club Fish Fry held at the Fair Grounds near Burlington last Thursday evening. Special plans were made to prepare for the fair as soon as the definite date is set.

Special educational programs were planned for the next regular meeting. Denver Moore of Hebron will lead the boys' group discussion on meeting the 1944-45 winter feeding problems. The girls' group will discuss clothing making techniques. Alberta Dickey and Rogers Knox were appointed on a committee to bring the Utopia Club Armed Forces mailing list records up to date.

In England

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Huesman, of Independence, have received word that their son, Pfc. Carl Huesman, has arrived safely in England.

His wife and daughter are residing with her parents in Independence for the duration of the war.

Pfc. Huesman has a brother in Pfc. Huesman Navy, Seaman 1st Class Albert Huesman, and two brothers-in-law, Petty Officer Third Class Joseph Warren and Pfc. Frank Garrett, who are serving in the So. Pacific.

DATE SET FOR ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of Boone County Homemakers has been set for Tuesday, October 3rd. The planning committee held a meeting recently to make plans for the county-wide get-together of homemakers and friends. The meeting will be held at the Florence Methodist Church. Lunch will be served by the ladies of the church.

"All for One and One for All" has been selected for the day's theme. Mrs. Ralph Seare and Mrs. Mary Ehrig were selected for guest speakers.

Annual Meeting is a day of friendship and inspiration for the women of Boone County.

Mr. E. M. Monday and Mr. W. O. Rouse spent Monday in Frankfort. Mrs. Maude Dickerson of Sparks spent the weekend with her brother J. H. Vest and family.

Kenton Board Sets School Terms

Kenton County Public Schools will open Sept. 11 for the 1944-45 term, according to a calendar for the year issued Friday by the Kenton County Board of Education.

Schools are to be closed Nov. 10 for the Northern Kentucky Educational Association convention; Nov. 23 and 24 for the Thanksgiving holidays; Dec. 22 to Jan. 2 for the Christmas holidays; and April 13 for the Kentucky Educational Association annual meeting.

Commencement exercises will be held at Dixie Heights High School May 24, and at Simon Kenton High School May 25, which is the last day of the school term.

BAKING EXHIBIT.

NEW FEATURE

An open baking exhibit has been added to the 4-H and Utopia Fair entry list for 1944. This is the first time a baking exhibit "open to the world" has been planned for the fair.

If the women of Boone County enter exhibits in baking this year, the Council hopes to have more classes next year.

A special feature of the baking exhibit will be cakes, using a small amount of sugar. Entries may also be made for cookies, all bran muffins, sliced apple pie and homemade yeast bread.

Goshen Christian Church Holds Candle-Lighting Service In Memory of Servicemen

The Goshen Christian Church dedicated their last night of the revival services to the boys, whose names are on our "honor roll" Friday evening August 18th, with a very beautiful and impressive candle lighting ceremony. A large "V" holding (30) thirty candles was placed in front of the altar; on the table decorated with flags. The services were conducted by our pastor, Rev. Arthur Digby. The service was opened with the audience standing and singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" after which, Myron Stephens led the invocation; Rev. Digby read John 15:9-13 as a Scriptural thought for the evening. On this, the last night of our revival twenty people were awarded certificates for perfect attendance. The service was continued with the audience standing and singing "America." Bro. Digby then led in prayer. After the prayer, the minister thanked each and everyone who had contributed toward the success of the revival.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Beagle were thanked publicly for making the large "V" candle holder, also Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Frasier who came so faithfully from Independence to help with the music and the general conducting of the services. Also the Baptist services to be held at the Walton Christian Church, August 19, was announced. There are three candidates for Baptism.

The services were continued as the audience stood and sang our National Anthem.

The candle lighting ceremony was begun by Mrs. C. E. Menefee who lighted a large red, white and blue candle for her son, Woodrow, who

BIRTHDAY DINNER

Sunday August the 20th the family of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Washburn celebrated the 64th birthday of Mrs. Ida Pipes Washburn of Elliston. Mrs. Washburn was surprised by the arrival of her children. As the members arrived each brought well filled baskets and gifts.

Mrs. Washburn received the family with open arms as the members gathered around the table which was served buffet style and sang "Happy Birthday" Mrs. Washburn responded with a prayer for her loved ones. Among those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Simmons and children Junior, Carl and Donald, of Walton, Mrs. Callie Loomis and children Billy, Bobby and Barbara of Detroit, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Walter Barton and children, Dickie and Garland, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Pipes and children Mary Louisa and Donnie, Mr. Lloyd Pipes, Miss Ann Cope, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pipes Paul and Betty Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Webster all of Covington, Charley May of Walton and Lorain Hobbs.

EASTERN STARS MET MONDAY

The Eastern Stars met Monday evening Aug. 21st for their regular meeting. After the business session, a program was given celebrating Rob Morris day. Those taking part were Mrs. W. W. Rouse and Mrs. Eugene Sizemore. Lovely refreshments were served.

Priming Of Tobacco Urged By Experts

Large numbers of Boone County farmers have primed tobacco the past two weeks according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The priming or pulling and housing of the yellow or ripe lower leaves has been done too late to secure highest quality in most cases. The lower leaves should be primed as soon as they are ripe and before they dry up and damage.

Newton Sullivan, Burlington postmaster, on a small acreage has done one of the best jobs in the county. He has primed and properly tied up from two to four leaves per plant. part of which is already cured and will soon be ready to tie into hands and bulk down. Sullivan states he can tie the primed leaves on a stick according to the recommended method as fast as two men can hand him the leaves. The method of tying is important in the curing and is both easy and simple once the method or technique is learned.

A priming demonstration will be given on the Dendil Carpenter farm near Idlewild on this Wednesday afternoon, August 23rd, at 2:00 p. m. (E.W.T.) All interested growers are invited to attend.

Farmers interested in securing help to do priming work should contact Will Smith, County Farm Labor Assistant.

Army Plane Forced Down Friday Near Rabbit Hash

Efforts to "truck out" the Army transport plane that made a forced landing Friday in the East Bend Bottoms, near Rabbit Hash, Boone County, were to be made Tuesday, according to Sheriff J. T. Williams of Boone county.

Because of engine trouble, which developed when the craft was traveling over Warsaw, the plane was unable to gain enough altitude to remain in the air.

It was set down Friday afternoon between two cornfields on the farm of Reuben Kirtley. The pilot, co-pilot and navigator escaped injury. Work, which has continued on the plane since its landing, was to be continued at a nearby airport, it was believed.

Constant guard over the transport has been kept by a military detachment from Louisville since its landing.

BOY DIES OF POLIO

The death of the latest polio victim reported in Northern Kentucky, Paul Marksberry, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Marksberry, 104 Dixie highway, Erlanger, which occurred at his home Monday afternoon, was reported to Dr. H. C. White, Kenton county health officer, by the attending physician.

With the death of the boy, who became ill Friday, it was revealed by a member of his family that he and several friends had been playing in a hole in the wall, septic tanks are drained in Erlanger.

The Marksberry child was treated at home, having been refused admittance at local hospitals.

Pvt. James P. Watson, 33, husband of Mrs. Viola Watson, Independence, is now in France, according to a letter received here by his wife.

He entered the service in October 1943 and has been overseas for two months. He is with the Quartermaster Corp.

WILLING WORKERS MEET

The Willing Workers Class of the Walton Christian Church met at the home of Mrs. L. S. Maze and Mrs. Mary Renier last Thursday evening.

Clord Johnson had charge of the devotional program.

An outstanding feature of the meeting was a very interesting talk by Nick Welch.

A covered dish dinner was served.

Members and guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ransler Mr. and Mrs. J. B. ## "TO MOM"

I know that you are lonely, but there's nothing I can do. Till this troubled world is peaceful and I'm home again with you, I can't even send you flowers to express my love in part. But a carload of flowers couldn't ease an aching heart. Now, Mom, you keep on smiling, and at times, if you feel blue. Remember other boys are fighting, and their Mother's miss them too. So, you Mothers stick together, please don't worry about us men. And before you even know it, we'll be coming home again.

The services were closed by all singing prayerfully, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" as the light from the candles glowed and burned, this hymn concluded the dedicational part of the service, with a prayer in our hearts for all of our boys over there.

Lucille Wayman then presented Mrs. Callie a lovely gift from the church for making the flag, and Rev. Digby with a purse for services during the meeting, by the church members and friends for which he was very grateful to every one in the community.

The invocation hymn "Softly and Tenderly" was sung with the congregation remaining standing for the benediction by Rev. Digby.

Names of the boys as called in order by Rev. Digby were:

Then from that large candle each succeeding candle was lighted by whomever was there to represent that boy. Seventy-one names were called as the last Honor Roll name was called. Everyone was given the opportunity to come forward and light a candle in honor of someone in the service. Many additional candles were lighted.

After all the loved ones in the service were honored, Mrs. Edna Callen read the following poem,

SERVING WAR INDUSTRY

More and more power for war production is being supplied by this company throughout the territory it serves. Well over half (57%) of our entire output now goes to war-essential industries and military establishments.

AND THE HOME FRONT, TOO

War loads get the right of way, but despite heavy industrial demands there has been no shortage of electricity on the home front. Electricity is still unrationed ... still dependable ... ready any time of the day or night to serve your every need.

AT PRE-WAR LOW COST

Other items in the cost of living have been going up, but the cost of electricity has stayed down. You pay more for food, clothing, rent and almost everything else you buy, but electricity is still as cheap as it was before the war... still the biggest bargain in your household budget.

kind will tell the thrilling story of an aroused America at war, and a greatly enlarged Allied Nations Exposition occupying an entire floor of the grandstand building will dramatize the current and future problems of our allies.

All this will be of immense help to the war program.

What is more, plenty of wholesome, invigorating entertainment, a bulwark of morale, is being planned for this year's fair.

A sensational grandstand show, thrilling circus acts, record-breaking Horse Show, stirring band music and the world's best midway show will be leading amusement features. Educational and entertainment programs alike will maintain the same high standards for which the Kentucky State Fair has been famed ever since it attained leadership in The World's Champion Horse Show among the state fairs and expositions of America more than a half century ago.

HOUSES FOR SALE

At the end of the war, the Government will have about $1,000,000,000 worth of permanent housing units to sell, with three-fourths represented by individual dwelling units to sell, with three-fourths represented will probably get the first chance to buy these homes.

In addition the Government has about $800,000,000 invested in temporary war housing but legislation requires that these units be torn down within two years after the war ends. A study is being made of the salvage possibilities.

More than 2,000 acres of Thorne wheat in Hickman county yielded from 20 to 45 bushels per acre.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The more I read about it, Judge, the more I realize the tactics and requirements of this war are as different from the one I fought in 25 years ago as night is from day."

"Yes, and I can give you an example of how true that is, Fred. In World War I the chief uses of alcohol produced for war purposes were found in smokeless powder, medical supplies and chemical warfare materials. In this war the need for this product is far more vital because it is also used as a fuel to propel torpedoes, to make shatterproof glass for airplane windshields and instrument covers, to make lacquers used in camouflaging equipment and as a base for synthetic rubber needed for tires, gas masks, paratroop equipment and dozens of other things.

"Every time I think of it, Fred, I realize how fortunate we were in having a beverage distilling industry in existence when war broke out... ready and eager to convert 100% to the production of this critically needed war product. I'm mighty sure bootleggers wouldn't have been of much help."

OUR FARM NEWS

SOUTH SEAS VETERAN GOES BACK TO FARM

Back from the South Pacific on a medical discharge, Joe Burks, veteran of the Marines, is farming in Larue county, Kentucky. He has bought a farm of 114 acres, on which he has two and a half acres of tobacco, 15 acres of hybrid corn, and a herd of 26 Jerseys. Three-fourths of an acre of small fruits and a garden of the same size supply fruit and vegetables.

The farm house needing repairs, Burks, with the aid of his brothers at odd times, took out partitions, changed doors and windows, shingled and otherwise remodeled and repaired it. Then he made a spring-house and piped water a quarter of a mile to the house.

Although his recent bride was a city girl, she paped the rooms and painted floors and woodwork. Her earnings included blackberries and other fruit, and vegetables produced in the big garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Burks are taking an active part in older farm boys and girls Utopia club work, and spent two days at Camp Bingham in Washington county, where postwar problems of youth and the farm were discussed.

Where a good cover crop had been turned under last spring, farmers in Letcher county found the corn without the drought.

BIG GARDEN PAYS

Despite the drought, almost $200 worth of vegetables were sold in one week by Dover Cornett of the Wood community in Leslie county, and he still had an acre of tomatoes, a half acre of watermelons, an acre of potatoes and eight acres of beans to sell.

HALF-TON VETCH SEED ON 7 ACRES

On a seven-acre field which two years ago was so poor before liming and phosphating that it failed to produce good lespedeza, J. L. Turner of Allen county harvester 1,000 pounds of vetch seed. In September of last year, he sowed vetch and rye, but because he pastured it heavily during the fall and winter, the rye was almost destroyed and the vetch was left to combine. County Agent J. B. Williams reports that many farmers in the county sowed vetch in corn to be used as a green manure crop in the spring.

COVER CROP AND SMALL GRAIN

By Paul Whitehead
Mr. Johnstone, field agent from the University, at a recent meeting, gave recommendations for seeding.

For Balbo rye for pasture sow five pecks of rye and fifteen pounds of vetch seed, then to graze it heavy before it joints, then take stock off during the winter and then again graze it to the ground in spring. If sowed early and not grazed the rye gets too rank of growth and is hard to combine or thresh. He said where balbo is to be saved for seed that it should be sown from October 1-15 then it would not grow so rank and could be handled better through a combine.

For wheat sow five pecks per acre. The value of thorn wheat is the stiff straw holds up better to combine also yields two to three bushels more per acre, but more subject to rust and grows bad very quickly. Not much improvement in seed wheat so use local grown seed wheat for seed. It should be sown after October 5 in order to prevent damage from the Hessian fly.

Barley is a good land crop, should be planted on tobacco land on well drained land, sow at the rate of one and one-half bushel per acre.

Winter oats is doubtful this far north and will winter kill three years out of five. It should be sown during August at rate of two bushel to two and one-fourth or more per acre.

Sowing of vetch for cover crop sow at rate of thirty pounds per acre. Vetch sown for a seed crop sow fifteen pounds per acre supplemented with a small grain nurse crop sown at rate of one bushel to one and one-fourth bushel per acre.

Mr. Johnstone said that for good winter pastures and for saving the soil all lespedeza fields should be sown to a cover crop. The fields would only need disking and are ideal places for soy small grain for a seed crop. By sowing small grain cover all nitrogen put into the soil by the lespedeza is used up by the small grain which otherwise would be lost by leaching during the winter.

CONTOURS HOLD WATER

William McFarland of Red Fern, Taylor county, who planted some of his crops on the contour, had proof of the value of this method following a heavy rain. The water was held in the furrows to sink slowly to the roots. As a result, the soil there remained wet longer than on nearby fields planted in the usual way.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Pennington, son and daughter, Lucy and Jimmie were dinner guests Sunday of Mrs. Flora Woods and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Flynn spent Sunday with Mrs. Flynn's cousin near Covington.

Pvt. Harold Rader of Ft. Knox was home Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. McElroy and Mrs. Norman Dickerson and daughter Carol of Louisville was visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Pennington Saturday evening. Mr. Pennington had lots of water melons to eat. All had a nice time.

Miss Joan Farris spent Sunday night with Miss Lucy Pennington.

POULTRY POINTERS FOR AUGUST

By J. T. Cochran

The care the pullets receive from now on will largely determine whether they will lay enough full eggs to make their keep profitable. The change of the pullets from growing quarters to the laying house is a critical time in their lives. This change, if not carefully made, may result in a setback through disease, or a fall molt which could be extremely harmful. With care, the pullets may be brought into production that should be unbroken throughout the fall, winter and spring.

Laying House Preparation

If possible, the laying house should be emptied and cleaned well before the pullets are housed in order to break the disease cycle from the old to the young birds. For cleaning, the 4-S plan may be followed: Scrape the floor; Sweep the walls and ceiling; Scrub all equipment, and Sall floors with hot lye solution. Do any needed remodeling. Most common needs are construction of dropping pit (for sanitation and saving labor); a solid floor (for disease prevention through ease in cleaning); and adequate ventilation without winter drafts (for the comfort of the birds). Before housing set 4 to 6 inches of straw, shavings, ground corn cobs or shredded fodder on the floor for litter.

Housing the Pullets

Keep only pullets that are strong and vigorous. House the pullets just before they start laying. House pullets separate from hens of both are kept. Four square feet of floor space is needed for each bird.

Feeding the Pullets

Feed by cafeteria method using available grains and a growing or laying mash. Prepare for fall and winter pasture by planting Balbo rye. This has great nutritive value and cuts the feed bill. Keep plenty of clean water before the pullets at all times.

John Parks of Graves county harvested 50 bushels to the acre on 10 acres of Missouri early beardless barley.

NO YELLOW ALFALFA WHERE BORON USED

Farmers in Owen county, who had trouble with their alfalfa yellowing and got low yields from their second cutting, have been interested in the reports of men who used boron. On three farms where boron was applied the alfalfa had more leaves, more bloom, a richer color, a finer stem and practically no yellowing, making fine quality hay, notes Farm Agent Harry A. Berge. On the farm of Leslie Stephenson an increase of 38 percent in weight of green hay was obtained on the second cutting. J. C. Baldwin found his green hay increased 82 percent in weight, and states that as a result of these demonstrations, a number of farmers are planning to apply boron to their entire alfalfa acreage as soon as it is available.

GETS $15,000 FOR TIMBER ON FARM

J. C. Askew, a farmer in Christian county who owns 200 acres of woodland is pleased with his sale of selected timber on contract. Selling only those trees which were 17 inches or more in diameter, he received approximately $15,000 more than had been offered earlier by "boundary," or for all of his timber. W. E. Jackson, forester at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, says Askew will have another crop ready for cutting on the same woodland in five years if it is protected from livestock and fire. He added that farmers generally fail to realize that the damage done to young trees by livestock is far greater than the grazing value.

Dan's got three sons in the service and I know how he felt.

"And after the last gun is fired," Dan said, "I can just see my oldest son, Bill, sitting on the front porch after a hard day's work—just like he did before the war—sipping a cooling glass of beer and giving his wife the cheery companionship she's missed for many a month."

USE OF FERTILIZER PAYS BIG RETURNS

The use of ammonium paid big returns in Greenup county through increased hay crops. The largest increase was found on the farm of Sol Bradley where 100 pounds to the acre applied to timothy in April, increased the weight of the hay 277 percent. Other farmers had good results also, notes Farm Agent John W. Irvine. Charles Artis used 200 pounds and increased the yield of timothy 83 percent; V. B. Howland increased his yield of timothy and alfalfa 58 percent by using 100 pounds; Bill Lawson used 60 pounds and harvested 68 percent more hay, and L. N. Powell found that meadow of mixed grasses and clover was 58 percent.

OPA This Week

"A" GASOLINE RATIONS

Renewal of basic "A" gasoline got under way in late August since present "A" rations expire September 21.

Exact dates in which renewal applications will be called for will vary from one local War Price and Rationing Board area to another. So will the manner in which applications will be filed—whether by mail or in person, at the local Boards or at other designated sites. OPA District Directors will determine these details in the light of local conditions, and announcements will be made locally. All applications for renewal must be accompanied by the back cover of the current "A" book. OPA emphasized.

WORK CLOTHING

A complete revision of the staple work clothing price regulation, which provides more effective controls for sales at wholesale and retail, was announced by the Office of Price Administration this week.

Consumers in general will benefit from the improved controls which are provided in this action, and will assist in "holding the line" on the cost of living. The pricing methods previously used by retailers and wholesalers, except those established for war models, are completely changed. Dollars-and-cents ceilings at retail and at wholesale on all models of staple work clothing are substituted for the former method of pricing and retailers are required to mark the retail ceiling price on each garment. This will enable consumers to know what the ceiling prices are, and help business concerns in maintaining these ceilings, according to OPA.

WINTER COAL

More than half of the coal-heated homes of the nation face the prospect of partially filled bins this year. War industry, military and naval needs have increased tremendously and much coal will be required by the invasion army. By ordering coal now, home owners will help lessen the strain on the coal and transportation industry and improve the chances of a greater supply.

NO CERTIFICATES NEEDED FOR TWO-STORE TYPES

Special certificates from the Office of Price Administration are no longer required for the purchase of two types of stoves.

The two types to be removed from the ration list, are laundry stoves which burn either coal or wood and which do not have water jackets or

H. HAROLD DAVIS, major dome of The Courier-Journal's rare and difficult color photography, is a scholarly young man whose home town was Corydon, Indiana. Attracted to the newspaper as ideal to a magnet, the association has, for nine years, proved to be a mutually happy one. Davis has trained far afield, wherever new techniques in color photography were being developed. He has traveled from coast to coast, caught color shots on land, sea and air. At the Graphic Arts Institute in New York, Harold became friend and protégé of Carlton Dunn, pioneer and foremost authority on tri-color work in this country. Dunn, author of many textbooks on the subject, is a frequent visitor in our studios.

Dark hair falling across a serious brow, Harold talks about the 40-pound lens Levisathan which simultaneously filters basic colors on three plates. "It's done with mirrors," and while it's the best available now, great strides will be made in this field after the war. Perhaps then Harold will find a color lens capable of catching the exquisite beauty of his wife... who is remarkably photogenic. So far, none has done her justice.

Like his fellow technicians, Davis worships at the tripod feet of the "one-shot-color-camera," and becomes slave to its artistic temperament, which is notably allergic to vibration, temperature and humidity. Between the idiosyncrasies of the camera and Harold's currently changing status with the Draft Board (he's 1-A again), life is never static.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Suggestions from readers are appreciated but not all of them can be adopted, even if their value is appreciated.

Carelessness causes accidents and accidents help the enemy.

After an election any "expert" can tell you how and why the people voted as they did.

Don't be misled when a dispatch from the battle line tells of enemy losses; we lose men, too.

Nations that cooperate to wage war should be able to cooperate to maintain peace and prosperity.

You may be able to find a good excuse for anything but this won't get you anywhere in the long run.

Tokyo says that the Jap fleet will come out at the right time, we wonder if we can depend on this.

You'd be surprised how many times somebody requests The Advertiser not to print a news item.

Education may be an end itself but the popularity of education depends upon economic benefits to be received.

We may be wrong but it looks like the prosperity of the entire world will depend upon the promotion of international trade.

In a few weeks the great process of education will begin for millions of American pupils and, strange to say, few of them rejoice at the opportunity.

Every woman of Boone County has an opportunity to do something to further the prosecution of the war and to advance the date of victory when the boys will come home. Are you?

5 REPUBLICANS, 4 DEMOCRATS
NAMED ON GAME AND FISH COMMISSION

Five Republicans and four Democrats have been appointed by Gov. Simeon Willis to serve terms of one to four years on the new Kentucky Game and Fish Commission.

Plans are already under way for immediate final organization of the commission which was created by the 1944 General Assembly to function independent of the Conservation Department.

Governor Willis named the following men to the Commission:

For four-year terms—George Long (R) of Benton, First District; J. B. Miller (D) of Williamstown, Fifth District; and Errol W. Draffen (R), Harrodsburg, Sixth District.

Three years—Dr. O. W. Thompson (R), Pikeville, Seventh District, and W. G. Buchanan (R), Corbin, Ninth District.

Two years—Dr. W. H. Washburn (D), Beaver Dam, Second District and Dr. H. M. Bertram (R), Vanceburg, Eighth District.

One year—Ed Ernest (D), Louisville, Third District, and E. H. Pohl (D), Horse Cave, Fourth District.

Included in matters of business to be transacted at the first meeting of the Commission is the naming of a director, who with his office staff, will maintain permanent headquarters in Frankfort in the offices of the present Division of Game and Fish.

Also to be named at the first meeting are the chairman and secretary and other officers. Complete reorganization of the game and fish set-up in the state, including Conservation Officers is expected to follow shortly thereafter. All employees of the commission will be hired under civil service rules which will be adopted.

The Commission, as set up under the legislative act, will be self-supporting receiving revenue from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses, fines and other sources. An aim will be to qualify later for federal and wildlife appropriations, but no state appropriation is provided.

Governor Willis made his selections from a list of 45 nominees named by sportsmen—five from each of the 9 congressional districts.

The Governor pledged full support of all governmental agencies to the commission in a statement accompanying the appointments. He said "this program offers to the sportsmen a fine opportunity for self-government in the interest of all the people. The Governor extends earnest wishes for its outstanding success."

A Railroad Man who KNOWS about cattle

THIS L&N man is a specialist—selected because of his study and experience to render sound advice about cattle, other farm livestock and everyday problems of crop production and marketing.

This service existed long before other agencies entered the field and now works co-operatively with them toward farm and community improvement.

During its 94 years of life, the L & N has undertaken to wisely develop its territory—to balance farming with industry—the city with the country. The "proof of the pudding" is the helpful service it has rendered.

ISRAEL'S FIRST KING

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 9:1-21; 10:25-27; 11:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king. —Peter 2:17.

"Well begun is half done," says the old proverb, reminding us of the importance of a good beginning. While it does not guarantee success (see next week's lesson), it is eminently desirable, and truly helpful. Israel had foolishly begun to be a God-ruled nation and had begun to demand a king.

Samuel was directed of God to the man of His choice, Saul, in a very remarkable way. He entered upon his service as king as an obedient and earnest ruler. (Would God that he had continued in that way!)

We note a number of favorable elements which indicated the possibility of a successful reign. He was—

I. Wanted by the People (9:15, 16).

A ruler forced upon a nation is sure of opposition, but here the people were clamoring for a king to rule over them. The way was wide open to the interest and the affection of their hearts. Saul was just the type to please them. Physically he was head and shoulders above the people—a desired thing in a ruler (see 10:23). He was mentally fitted (10:25)—humble (9:21), spiritually right (10:6-9), tolerant and kindly (11:13), and a good military leader (ch. 11).

II. Chosen by God (9:17).

All these qualities commended Saul to God as well as to the people. In fact, he was God's choice. A man could not enter upon high office with any more auspicious token for good.

Observe that what looked like a purely chance visit to Samuel, when Saul was on business for his father, was the occasion for the making known of God's choice. Out of a simple experience in daily life came an event which changed his entire destiny.

III. Anointed by the Prophet (9:16-20).

The man of God's choice had met God's man, Samuel, who proceeded

To instruct him, and to privately anoint him as king. It was a tender scene. The aged prophet, rejected by the people as God's ruler over them, quietly and sweetly obeyed God's command to anoint the young man to be king.

Public recognition, which came later, was important, but, with Saul as with every servant of the Lord, the personal anointing of God, in the hidden place of communion with Him, was the matter of highest importance.

IV. Humble in Attitude (9:21).

That pride, which was ultimately to be Saul's downfall, was beautifully absent at the beginning of his reign. Although of good family, and well-equipped, he saw himself as poor and insignificant, not ready for such an honor.

That is the right attitude for one who is to serve God. Pride and self-assurance do not best fit the man who stands in the presence of the Almighty.

V. Guided by Principle (10:25). Saul did not enter upon his office, new as it was to both him and to Israel, without a Constitution, that is, without principles of action. Samuel, the Lord's prophet, wrote down "the manner of the kingdom" in a book. How interesting, and how important.

Rulers who imagine themselves so wise that they need no controlling law, and so powerful that the law may not question their decisions, are certainly not rulers after God's plan. Knowing the heart of man, his weakness and pride, God has provided true principles by which the ruler is to be guided, yes and controlled.

VI. Forgiving in Spirit (10:26-27; 11:12, 13).

Some "worthless fellows" despised Saul and would not recognize him as king. The urge of the flesh was to destroy them, and especially did that seem proper because of their worthless nature. But Saul, in true kingly spirit, said that there was to be no revenge, just rejoicing.

VII. Established in Office (11:14, 15).

While there is the secret whisper of God in the heart, and the personal anointing by the Lord's servant, there should be the public recognition which establishes the Lord's servant in the eyes of all people. Saul had this at Gilgal. It placed him among the kings of the earth, and gave him authority for his dealing with other nations as well as with his own people.

Applying that truth to those who serve Christ, we say that there is upon the church the obligation to recognize God's call and anointing by giving that official recognition which sets the testimony and service of the individual free to exercise itself among men in general.

Horning In

By JEAN CAMERON

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

WHEN the car came abreast of the running girl in the trench coat the horn sounded raucously. She, twice. She hesitated a moment, tugged her hat over her loose curls and jumped in. "So chemicals help drafting—thank you," she said.

The sandy-haired man behind the driver's seat looked at her gloomily. While her face was unfamiliar, he knew draftswomen had been employed for some weeks now. "How far, Miss?"

"To the highway intersection, please. Kay Farnham. I'll be quiet," she added, after another glance at the strong chin. "I know you're planning explanations for the Government inspection committee tomorrow."

The chin stiffened perceptibly. So the Government committee was coming, eh? The drive was a silent one. At the highway Donald crawled out and opened the door for his passenger. She smiled. "You're the first man to do that in two months, Mr. McAllister. And—and I am highly flattered that you took me home." He did not realize that the girl remained standing in the street until his car vanished from sight. She had noticed him in the halls and offices for some time.

McAllister was angry, with a cold, calculated, frightening rage that had been developing for many weeks. Let Wilson run the chemical department as he ran and bullied every one else—all right, just so long as he kept out of McAllister's way; let him have the soundproof laboratory, priorities, assistants—all right. He himself would work overtime, be underpaid, refuse better offers—all right. If this experiment succeeded—if he could work it out and it was accepted, it would be worth all of Wilson's sneers. He'd have done his part.

But the Government inspectors were coming tomorrow and not to test his model or his method! Well . . . his temper at a fine edge, he swung and headed back to the factory. In spite of his pugnacious look, his height and his square shoulders, there was a mildness about Donald something in the color of his hair, the blue of his eyes, his general absent-mindedness—which led people to think him timid. He had never cared, for he believed in attending strictly to his own business. And yet perhaps it was Cornelia's treatment which had helped to produce his present fury.

Cornelia believed in Cornelia first, peace or war. She was soft, blonde, helpless, appealing to big men. She demanded things and got them. And now that so many men were gone she had been concentrating on Donald with excellent results.

There was a quick hush as he entered the office, a bending of heads back to work. He glanced toward his desk; his lips tightened. "I thought I told you to stay out of my things, Wilson," he said slowly, striding over to his private corner.

A beefy, self-confident man swung about. "I was looking for a pencil," he grinned, nonchalantly ignoring the fact that two projectiles from his breast pocket. Donald controlled himself with a conscious effort and closed the desk top. He felt rather than saw Wilson's foot moving the wastebasket into a tripping position behind him, and kicked backward so violently that the basket shot between his ankles and he fell headlong.

He was up in an instant, furious, his fists lifted, but Donald's look lowered them. "Can't you take a joke, McAllister?" he asked feebly, realizing that his long domination of the office was crashing and that the story would soon sweep the whole plant.

"No," snapped Donald. He tramped across the room and slammed the sales manager's door behind him. "No, Mr. Bentley, you're not too busy to listen to me," he said, and poured out every demand he had formulated during his drive—better instruments, additional quarters, storage space, and full hearing before the committee. "I came here to work," he concluded. "If I can't do that here I'll go where I can. Pay Wilson what you want for making a general nuisance of himself. Give him any title you like—but let me do a good job!" "Of course," gasped the sales manager. "Naturally. We thought you were quite satisfied, Mr. McAllister. We'll have a new contract for you in the morning. We . . . Donald turned and left.

In the outer office a stenographer came up to him. "A lady has been calling," she reported. "Miss Cornelia Adkins, she said."

Donald did not pause. "Tell her I haven't come in." In the lab he pulled on his rubber gloves. He was quite calm now. He would get right at that new solvent. But first—he pulled off the gloves, made a notation on his calendar—"Take girl in drafting room to lunch after committee report tomorrow." Nice girl, he thought, arranging bottles carefully on the sink. He'd tell her—no, women were funny. Better not tell her he hadn't meant to pick her up, that when he bent over to rescue his fountain pen from the floor of the car he had accidentally rescued the horn.

Flier Broke News Gently
On Loss of His Right Leg

EVERETT, WASH.—"Dear sister Rosella and Bob and all," the letter, written in a German prison camp, began.

"I received your letter as a good surprise," Staff Sergt. Frank Batterson continued.

"I was wondering what your address was because I wanted to have you to break the news to the folks. I had you had taken up nursing so you'll understand what I'm about to write."

"Dear sister, please read this carefully, don't misunderstand me. I want you to break the news gently to the folks when you know their health is the best and when the shock will be the least."

"Well, here goes—Last autumn of flying along when—bang, a cannon shot came through the plane and blew my right leg off. So you see, I'll be a cripple now. But I got a good stump and am doing fine."

And so that is how Hero Batterson's wife, mother, father, four sisters and two brothers got the news. He has been exchanged and is on his way home.

"We're so glad to get him back alive," they all declared. "That's all that matters."

Failure of Production
In Germany Is Predicted

ZURICH, SWITZERLAND.—German war production will collapse early this fall from the destruction inflicted by Allied bombers, according to the prediction of a high Axis percentage quoted in Swiss dispatches.

This personage, whose identity was not disclosed, last autumn officially inspected several bombed industrial centers in Germany, he was quoted as saying.

"It is calculated that continuation and intensification of the Allied raids would reach a point early in the fall of 1944 where the German system of production would be disorganized to such an extent that a minimum flow of supplies to the troops no longer would be possible," he said.

ITHACA, N. Y. — Mrs. Harry Davenport, 560 South Main St., didn't let a little thing like a manpower shortage stop her from getting a winter supply of coal.

Mrs. Davenport volunteered to drive a truck when coal dealer Homer De Long, said he couldn't find a driver.

"It's a four-speed truck," De Long said.

"Just show me where that good speed is," Mrs. Davenport replied. She drove the truck all afternoon.

Sitting on Jury Painful
For This Keeper of Bees

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. — Judge Leon R. Yankwich asked the panel of veniremen if they knew any reason why they could not sit as jurors.

"Yes," spoke up one of the group, Paul J. McDonald, and the judge asked why.

"My friends told me the smart thing to do was to get a box of bees and raise my own honey," McDonald explained. "I got a big box. Next day my bees were gone. It seems they were looking for a place to swarm."

"Well, I was bent over, with my head and shoulders in the bee box, looking for honey (optimistic fellow) when they came back, and—I hope your honor appreciates my position."

"Painfully clear," agreed the judge. "Excused."

Organization For Youth Canteen Started In Walton

The youth of Walton, supported by adult leaders, are in the process of forming a Youth Canteen. The Canteen will be for the purpose of entertainment for the young people of this community.

The first meeting was held Tuesday night in the Vest building over the Community Public Service office, with Miss Helen Ruth Gardiner, acting as the temporary chairman. There were approximately forty young people there.

The following officers were elected: President, Blanche Brittenheim; V. President, Jack Hughes; Secretary, Beverly Pruet; Treasurer, Ernestine Webster. These officers will choose four adult members who will serve with the officers as an Advisory Council. This Council will set rules and regulations for the organization.

The Canteen plans to rent the room over the Community Public Service office as a club room and will sponsor recreation of all kinds for the young people. One of the rules already set is that at all seasons there will be adult leaders present to supervise the activities. They plan to meet three nights a week and will have a definite closing time.

In order to make the necessary repairs and decorations to the club room the members are asking the public for donations, but it is promised that after the organization is set and the building ready, it will be self-supporting.

There will be another meeting Friday night at which time the Adult Council will be chosen and other details discussed.

Details Set For Labor Day Outing

Magistrate Thomas Carr, Verona, is organizing a special committee to assist in management of the refreshment center for the Labor Day homecoming picnic for members and friends of St. Patrick Church, Verona, and All Saints Mission, Walton, to be held Sept. 3 at Woodland Inn, 2 and one-half miles south of Walton. Edward H. Walton, general chairman of the arrangements committee, and Rev. John F. Jobst, pastor of the churches, held organizing meetings over the weekend.

The Labor Day fete will be the seventh annual picnic sponsored by the two congregations. The Verona church has been long established and has given generations of service to the area.

The dinner hours will be from 10 a. m. to 7:30 p. m.

FARM BUREAU PICNIC POSTPONED AFTER FAIR

The first Annual Farm Bureau Picnic has been postponed until after our County Fair, according to Lloyd Slekmann, president.

The new picnic date will be announced as soon as a definite date has been set for the fair.

Fair Date To Be Announced Next Week

The new date for the twelfth Annual 4-H and Utopia Club Fair and County Picnic will be announced next week according to the 4-H and Utopia Club Council.

The new date will give Boone County people an opportunity to exhibit their products and to meet friends from all sections of the county in our biggest annual get-together. Let's all look forward to the new date and do our best to make our county get-together a success.

Worthington Reunion

The Worthington family is holding a family reunion Sunday, Sept. 3rd at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Worthington, on the Piner Branch road. This will be an all-day affair and all members of the family are requested to come and bring a basket dinner.

Prominent Local Physician Dies Tuesday Evening

Dr. R. E. Kyle, age 72, died at 12 p. m. Tuesday evening of a heart attack after several months illness.

He leaves his wife Mrs. Ethaline Griffith Kyle and one grandson Billy Kyle of Dayton. His only son William Kyle having preceded him to the grave a little over a year ago.

Burial services will be held at the Chambers and Grubbs funeral home, Friday afternoon at 3 p. m. Burial in Walton Cemetery.

Dr. Kyle leaves a host of friends to mourn his passing, having practiced medicine in this community for 30 years and at Beaver Lick for 26 years. He was an ardent member of the Walton Baptist Church and was a lovable, Christian gentleman.

Dismantled Plane Goes Though Walton

The transport plane that was forced down last week near Rabbit Hash was dismantled and loaded on large trucks and brought down Highway 25 through Walton. The procession had some difficulty in town getting under various signs and wiring. When they reached the white bridge in the South end of town, the plane got stuck in the bridge and delayed traffic for about an hour. It is supposed that the plane is headed for Louisville air field.

Walton Stock Yards Opens With Large Crowd

The opening day, Tuesday at the Walton Stock Yards was attended by about 1500 people and some 1000 head of stock was sold with the prices ranging high. Some of the stock was of a cheaper grade, but the top grades brought good prices.

The following prices were paid: Sheep, 5.00 to 7.50; Lambs, 10.00 to 15.00; Hogs, fat, top 14.50; Shoats, common 1.50, top 15.00; Top calves 15.50; Dairy cattle, common 85.00; Fat cattle 8.00 to 12.00.

Revival Continues At Christain Church This Week

The revival led by Rev. Chas. C. Thompson, evangelist, of Murray, Ky., at Walton Christian Church continues to draw new people to the congregation and to increase in interest.

Rev. Thompson and the pastor, Rev. Geo. Caroland, have been greatly encouraged by the cordial reception given to their work and the invitation of Christ extended to non-Christians and to Christians not affiliated with the local church.

Special features of the revival remaining are: tonight (Thursday) a "secret," known only by the "grapevine" system; Sermon topic will be: "Jesus at the Door." On Friday evening the young people will conduct a candlelight communion service, and the sermon topic will be: "The Gospel We Fail To Preach." Saturday evening the sermon topic will be: "Christian Perplexities." Sunday morning, "Three Prayers For The Church." Sunday evening, "The Eyes of Jesus."

The public is cordially invited to all of these services.

CROPS IMPROVED BY RECENT RAINS

Boone County tobacco, pasture, late gardens and other late crops are being greatly improved by recent rains according to the County Agent's Office. Rains were general over the county and will prove a great help to the fall feeding program.

Fall seeded small grain crops will be much benefited. The rains will not only help the Balbo rye, common rye, and wheat already seeded, but will put the ground in better shape, for seeding between now and October 1st.

Homemakers' Yearly Calendar Announced

The new Homemaker's calendar year will begin September 1st, according to Mary Hoy Gillespie, Home Demonstration Agent. Each club will resume monthly meetings after a recess during August.

The subject of the program will be "Women of Today." Each member shall respond to roll call by naming a famous woman with some comment as to her fame.

The 1944 program marked the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Federation of Women's Clubs in America.

EDWARD D. CAIN

Funeral services for Edward D. Cain were conducted from Big Bone Baptist church, Saturday at 3:00 p. m. with Rev. Roy Johnson officiating.

Mr. Cain passed away last Thursday at the home of his son Albert Cain near Burlington, after a short illness.

He is survived by two sons, Albert of Burlington and Charles of Richmond, Ind.

Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

Reds Return To Crosley Field For Final Home Session

Bill McKeechie's Cincinnati Reds ended last month's National League play in 1944 determined to head off the onrushing Pittsburgh Pirates in a desperate battle for second place.

The Reds are to start their final home stand, a stretch of ten important games, on Friday, September 1, when they lock horns with the Chicago Cubs in a night game at Crosley Field. They also are to battle the Cubs in a single game Saturday, September 2, and a gala doubleheader, Sunday, September 3.

Next week-end promises to be the most important occasion of the entire home season, for after the Reds finish with the Cubs, they meet the spectacular St. Louis Cardinals in a Labor Day twin bill on Monday, September 4. It will be the last appearance of the Cardinals in Cincinnati this year, and a big turnout is expected.

After two days of rest, the Reds will take on the Pittsburgh Pirates in a final series of four games, a night game, last of the year at Crosley Field, on Thursday, September 7, a ladies' day game Saturday, September 9, and a doubleheader Sunday, September 10. The latter date will be the final home appearance of the Redlegs. On that day West Virginia friends of Max Baucus, Pirates pitcher, and Arnold Carter, Redleg hurler, will come to Cincinnati to honor the two moundmen.

Marvin Lee Colston

Marvin Lee Colston, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Closton of Sherman, passed away in St. Elizabeth Hospital, early Friday of injuries suffered from being struck by an automobile in front of his home Thursday afternoon.

Funeral services were conducted from Goshen Christian Church Sunday at 3 p. m. with burial at Goshen Cemetery.

He is survived by his parents, two sisters, Marylyn and Katherine, three brothers, Robert, Charles and James. Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

KILLED IN ACTION

Pfc. Richard Gripshover, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gripshover, Richardson pike, Independence, was killed in action in France Aug. 6 his parents were informed by the War Department.

Pfc. Gripshover who was stationed as an anti-tank gunner, has been in the service since December, 1942, and has been stationed overseas since May 1944.

Schools will be closed November 10 for the Northern Kentucky Educational Association Convention, November 23 and 24 for the Thanksgiving holidays, December 22 to January 2 for Christmas holidays and April 13 for Kentucky Educational Association Annual Meeting.

Daughter Born To Bakers

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Baker an eight and one-half pound baby daughter Sunday morning at the home of Mrs. Baker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Caldwell.

The death of Mrs. Helen Wesselman, 38 years old, at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, Tuesday night brought to two the toll in an explosion that occurred in the cellar of the Wesselman home on Folley Road, Independence, last Tuesday afternoon.

Her eight-year-old son, Billy died soon after reaching the hospital. Both he and his mother had been burned in the blast.

Mrs. Wesselman was unable to tell how the accident occurred. Chief Al Jaeger of Independence Volunteer Fire Department surmised that a water heater in the basement developed a leak and filled the basement with gas. Noting that matches were found lying around the heater, he said the explosion probably occurred when Mrs. Wesselman tried to light the heater.

The blast, which blew off the cellar door, started a small fire, which was extinguished by Chief Jaeger and Volunteer Firemen Charles Dorsey, Robert Cornelius and Alvin Jaeger.

Mrs. Wesselman and her son were treated by Dr. F. W. Ray, Independence, before they were taken to the hospital in the Fire Department ambulance.

Mrs. Wesselman's husband, William Wesselman, was at work at the Kelly Koett Manufacturing Co., Covington, when the explosion occurred.

VISITING PARENTS

John D. Breeden, Aviation Machinist Mate of the U. S. Navy and his wife of DeLand, Fla. are visiting their parents Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Breeden of Walton Rl. and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Colebaugh of Independence.

They had his boat training at Great Lakes Naval Training Station and received six months training at Navy Pier in Chicago.

He returns to service at DeLand, this week for more extensive training at an advanced air base there.

Regulations For Overseas Packages

This year the Christmas mailing period for both Army and Navy overseas forces is the same—September 15 to October 15. After October 15 no gift parcel may be mailed to a soldier without the presentation of a written request from him.

The great demands upon shipping and the need for giving preference to arms, munitions, medicine and food is the prime reason for the early mailing date. Moreover, gift parcels must travel great distances to reach Army and Navy personnel who are located at remote points, and frequently the transfer of large numbers to new stations necessitates forwarding of the packages and additional time is required.

More care must be taken in wrapping and packing parcels securely and addressing them clearly and correctly.

If the gifts are to be protected in transit they must be packed in boxes made of metal, wood solid fiberboard, or strong double-faced corrugated fiberboard, reinforced with strong gummed paper tape or tied with strong twine. If both tape and strong twine are used, so much the better. If the outer wrapper is crushed—and this is likely to happen—the loss of contents may be prevented if fiberboard boxes are wrapped in heavy paper.

Many parcels which families and friends sent to men and women overseas last year were never delivered because they were crushed in transit and the gift and the outside wrapper. It would have been possible to make delivery if the address had been inside.

Christmas gifts mean much to our people overseas. Because strong twine, heavy paper and boxes and fiberboard will prove of real help in making delivery of gifts possible I urge those at home to begin saving these materials now. As time goes on they are likely to become even more scarce than they are now.

Among the more important rules for Christmas mailings to the armed forces overseas are the following:

The parcel must not exceed five pounds and must not be more than 15 inches in length or 10 inches in (Continued On Page Eight)

WITH OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

INDEPENDENCE MARINE PROMOTED

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Stephens of Mc-Millan drive, Independence, that their son, S. Sgt. Harold A. Stephens of the Marine Corps, has been promoted to that rank at El Torro
Marine Corps Station, Santa Ana, Calif. He is an aerial gunner with a dive-bomber squadron.S. Sgt. Stephens recently returned from overseas duty of more than a year. Prior to his enlistment he was employed by the John Shillito Co., Cincinnati.

VISITING PARENTS

Cpl. N. T. Welch is spending his furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Welch, of S. Main Street.
He is stationed at Brookley Field,
Ala.Cpl. Welch was graduated from Walton High School and was employed by the C. Eberle Sons Co. of Cincinnati before entering the service.

HOME ON LEAVE

Ensign Charles Ransler, U.S.N.R., arrived home last Tuesday for a brief leave after four months' service aboard a destroyer. Ensign Ransler is a graduate of the Walton-Varona High School and at the time of his enlistment was a junior at Transylvania College, Lexington.He leaves soon for Miami, Fla., where he will have several months' training for more extensive sea duty.

LETTER TO PARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Stephenson received the following letter from their son Pvt. Donald L. Stephenson who is in the Marines and is now on Guam Island.Dear Mom and Pop Well here I am finally with a few lines. I know you have wondered why you haven't heard from me, but now it can be told, we have taken back the Island of Guam. We were at sea a good while in getting here.
I just had my first good bath this afternoon and feel lots better. I am well and getting plenty to eat.A lot of Marines are getting lots of souvenirs and I have lots of chances to get plenty of them. The only thing I want to bring back is myself and I sure hope to do that.I have seen a lot of good sights (dead Japs) and a few horrible ones (Marines). We sure have a lot of things to talk about when I come home.You can probably tell the difference in the pens I am using. The one
I started with was taken from a Jap.
We have heard some reports that Germany is having some trouble,
I hope Japan gets some of the same medicine and both decide to quit.I sure would like to come home but I believe I would rather stay and see it finished and then we can all come home to stay.I knew you all were worried about me when you didn't hear for so long, but it couldn't be helped. We were so long riding a ship, for as long as we did and then coming in here, it wasn't any fun.This is a very nice place here and I believe I will like better than any-place we have been.

I got my first mail yesterday and sure was glad to hear from home.

When I finally counted my letters
I had one hundred and twenty-six in all.We finally got our Galley set up today and had our first hot chop since we struck here. We have been cooking for ourselves when we had time and really enjoy it. We have been getting plenty to eat so don't worry about me.I am working in the Post Office new we have here for our Company.
It is quite different from running a doper or shovel don't you think? I sure hope to get in an engineer outfit soon and get back on some equipment as I believe I will be better satisfied.I am glad Dora likes her work and I also think she is getting good money. I am glad she is staying with Sue rather than by herself. She won't have time to get lonesome.The Natives here on Guam are very friendly and glad the Marines are back, they want to know when we are going to have Mass and movies, those are the two main things they want. I have to take some mail to the hospital. Tell everyone hello and write once in a while.I love you both very dearly and wish I could see you. Be good and don't work too hard.All my love, Don.

U-BOATS

Complete victory in the war against the U-boats is indicated in the announcement, made by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill that more than 500 Nazi submarines have been sunk since the war began. While the U-boat fleet is "still of impressive size," they say that they have become the "hunted rather than the hunters."

HITS CANADIANS

Fragmentation bombs, dropped by U. S. heavy bombers short of their mark, fell among Canadian troops on August 8th, wounding Maj.-Gen.
R. S. L. Keller, Commander of the Canadian Third Division.

The Never-Ending Miracle of Southern Timber

WOOD has always played a vital role in the progress of civilization... for homes, factories, furniture, paper, airplanes, ships, farm implements, industrial equipment and other things. New discoveries will provide even greater opportunity for postwar development and employment.Our southeastern states consistently produce about 30% of the softwood and 50% of the hardwood of the United States—could supply even more if needed. In L & N territory alone, over 2,000 establishments handle timber products of every description.
This output in 1942 exceeded $200,000,000 in value, of which over $42,000,000 was paid for labor. Last year the L & N moved 113,000 carloads of these wood products, and otherwise contributed importantly to the develop-ment of southern timber resources.
Thus we see the practical application of American Free Enterprise
... what it has accomplished ...
how men of vision and courage built businesses of their own, and at the same time benefiting their neighbors and adding to the progress of the South.The immediate purpose of The Old Reliable is to help win the

OUR FARM NEWS

SAVE TOMATOES

Homemakers are urged to put up tomatoes this summer and fall whether they have few or many. Even one or two dozen vine-ripened tomatoes, left over from time to time during the summer when the family has eaten its fill, can be put up many ways to brighten next winter's meals.

Civilians can count on buying only five-eighths as much of commercially canned tomatoes and tomato juice this coming autumn and winter as they did last year.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture recommends canning tomatoes by the boiling water bath method according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Only ripe, firm and perfect tomatoes should be used for canning. After tomatoes are skinned, cut out stem ends and heat in their own juice, stirring frequently to prevent sticking and burning. When tomatoes have come to a rolling boil, remove from heat and put in sterilized jars. Cover with hot juice to within a half inch of top. Add a teaspoon of salt to each quart. Adjust jar top according to directions and process jars in boiling water for ten minutes. Tomato juice is processed 15 minutes in water bath.

Fresh tomatoes may also be used in chili sauce, catsup, tomato apple butter, and ripe tomato marmalade.

Ripe tomato marmalade uses 3 qts. (18 to 20 medium sized sliced, peeled tomatoes; 6 cups sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; 2 oranges; 2 lemons; 2 cups water; 4 sticks cinnamon and 2 teaspoons whole cloves. Combine tomatoes, sugar and salt. Peel oranges and lemons. Slice peel very thin. Boil in water 5 minutes and drain. Slice orange and lemon pulp and remove seeds. Add with rind to tomato mixture. Put spices loosely in a thin white cloth, tie top tightly, and add to tomato mixture. Heat to boiling, then cook rapidly, stirring constantly for 45 to 60 minutes until thickened—Remove spice bag. Pour marmalade into hot sterile jars. Seal with paraffin or air-tight in canning jars. Makes about 6 pints.

PROGRAM TO CHECK INFLATION PUT ON IN ALL COUNTIES

The Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics announced that its anti-inflation program now reaches into every county of the state.

Facts about prices of farm products and land values are being placed before farmers everywhere, so they may be forewarned of the possible consequences of paying too much for land says the college statement.

Farmers are being encouraged to pay off debts, rather than go further into debt, and to buy war bonds as a means of building up reserves to use during possible periods of low prices, according to a summary of the college anti-inflation program.

This summary of the program carried forward by the college's extension service shows that 16,513 neighborhood leaders helped take information about inflation to 144,524 families in Kentucky. These leaders held 422 meetings to discuss inflation, and county agents held 1,151 community meetings and 123 county meetings. Also, 220,000 circular letters dealing with inflation were mailed to farm families.

The Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics joined with other midwestern states in issuing a bulletin on the subject of farm land inflation. Other means employed by the college to combat inflation includes several hundred articles published in newspapers, furnished by the college and by county extension agents. Extensive use also has been made of the radio, in order that every farm family in Kentucky might be reached.

4-H MEMBERS TO GATHER MILKWEED

Patriotic Kentucky 4-H club boys and girls are to help gather life jackets. A survey made by county agents and the State College of Agriculture indicated there was enough milkweed in about 30 counties to make gathering practical.

The government is paying 20 cents for each bushel onion bag of pods. Two bags yield enough pods to make a life jacket. The pods will be ripe enough to pick about September 1 in much of Kentucky.

There are two kinds of milkweed—the regular stand-up variety, and the climbing kind, commonly called sand vine or wild cucumber. Boys and girls are to help gather life jackets and notify their agent, who will tell them how to secure bags and arrange for storing the pods.

GI HOUSEKEEPING FOR 300 KENTUCKY 4-H CLUB MEMBERS

Three hundred farm boys took basic training in GI housekeeping at 4-H club camps in Eastern Kentucky the last week in July and first two weeks in August. Bussed by hard-boiled county home demonstration agents, they learned how to make their beds clean their rooms, hang up their clothes, and how in general to be of less bother to their mothers.

General farm courses offered to the boys included gardening, poultry keeping, stock feeding and the use of better seeds. The girls learned more about such homemaking arts as canning, drying, buttermaking and the use of feed sacks to make towels and other household articles.

About 700 boys and girls attended camps at Quicksand, Paintsville, and London. The closing program at each camp included a memorial service for the late J. M. Felner of London, district 4-H supervisor for Eastern Kentucky.

DIRECTOR OF GAME AND FISH COMMISSION NAMED

Earl Wallace, State Fish and Wildlife Supervisor in the western section of Kentucky, was named director of the new Kentucky Game and Fish Commission Monday afternoon, August 21.

The commission, meeting for the first time, declined to divulge the vote by which Wallace was selected over two other applicants—Steve Wakefield Game and Fish director under past Democratic administrations, and Capt. Burt L. Monroe, of Louisville now stationed at an army air field at Dyersburg Tenn., and former president of the League of Kentucky Sportsmen.

Wallace is a native of Scott county, Kentucky, but he had been engaged in conservation work in Wisconsin for about 12 years before he was named to the Western Kentucky game-fish position.

A spokesman for the commission said Wallace was considered only on his qualifications and that members did not know his political faith. Legislative sponsors of the 1944 act removing the organization from the Conservation Department and making it self-governed and self-supporting said it was designed to remove the Game and Fish Division from politics.

Errol W. Draffen, of Harrodsburg Republican member of the commission, was named chairman, and Dr. O. W. Thompson, of Pikeville also a Republican was made vice-chairman. Dr. E. R. Pohl, of Horse Cave, Democratic member, was chosen as secretary.

The commission is made up of five Republicans and four Democrats selected by Gov. Elmore Williams from 45 candidates nominated by sportsmen in the nine congressional districts.

Other business transacted by the organization included the approval of a formal request to the Tennessee Valley Authority to include Kentucky in a co-operative agreement with Alabama and Tennessee for development of a fish and wildlife program on Kentucky lake. T. V. A. has agreed to amend its agreement to include Kentucky.

One of the next important steps for the Commission will be the drawing up of civil service examinations for personnel of the Division. And this will probably take place in the next two or three weeks.

DOVE SEASON OPENS IN KENTUCKY SEPTEMBER 1

Hunters were again reminded today by Earl Wallace, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, of the opening on Friday, September 1, of the dove hunting season in Kentucky. The season will continue through Monday, October 23.

The season as set out by the Fish and Wildlife Service for Kentucky this year gives a shooting period of 55 days for dove hunting. Last year the season opened on Sept 16 and ended October 15.

10% DUCK INCREASE PREDICTED

A release just received by Earl Wallace, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, from Ducks Unlimited Canada, flatly predicts "at least a 10% increase in Canadian ducks this year as compared to 1943." This increase is to take place "in spite of the fact that crow and magpie losses were the heaviest ever, flooding losses 'very great' and fire losses 'above normal'."

Chief reasons advanced for the increase are that drought losses were kept at a low figure as a result of unusually heavy summer rains over most of the duck range, plus the help of the Canadian people and Ducks Unlimited projects.

SUPER-BOMBERS

The production of new B-29 super-bombers and an undescended model, B-32, will be accelerated by reduction in the production of Liberator bombers, Commando transports and Thunderbolt fighters.

FROM RUSSIA

Henry Cassidy, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow for four years, reports little over-optimism in the Russian capital about an early end of the war, saying an unidentified Soviet authority predicts that it will take until next Summer to crush Germany militarily.

CROPS

Despite drought damage, the aggregate crop production this year seems to slightly exceed last year's output by two or three per cent, and to exceed production in any previous year except the record 1943 season, according to the Department of Agriculture.

Vacations serve a useful purpose in life if you have time to take one.

WHEAT

The War Food Administration has set the wheat acreage goal for 1945 at 68,500,000 acres, or 1,900,000 acres more than this year. At normal yields, this acreage would provide for estimated needs, including a reserve for the next crop year.

Insurance companies are not writing policies on the lives of dictators.

Promotion in war do not always come to the men who do the actual fighting.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Yes, I'm afraid there's no denying it. Judges' jeeps and trucks and other kinds of motorized equipment have taken the place of the good old horse in modern warfare."

"It's true of lots of things in this war, Eben. Every day we hear of new tactics and requirements and new uses of products. For instance, take the alcohol that is used for war purposes. In World War 1, this valuable product was used mostly in making smokeless powder, chemical warfare materials and medical supplies. Today it must do far more...it must provide the base for such indispensable products as synthetic rubber, shatterproof glass, lacquers, plastics and many other of our requirements so essential to victory."

"As a result hundreds of millions of gallons are required every year...half of which is being produced by the beverage distilling industry. Bet you didn't know that, Eben."

"As a matter of fact, I didn't, Judge. That's a mighty important war contribution that had escaped me completely."

OPA This Week

NEW STAMPS VALID

SEPTEMBER 1

Five more blue stamps worth ten points each—a total of 50 points—will be valid for buying rationed processed foods beginning September 1, 1944. The Office of Price Administration announced this week. The stamps—G5, H5, J5, K5, and L5—will be good indefinitely.

PANEL RESPONSIBILITY

BROADENED

The responsibility of Price Panels of War Price and Rationing Boards in handling violations of retail violations of retail ceiling prices has been broadened by OPA Administrator Chester Bowles.

Acting under a new provision of the price control law, Mr. Bowles directed Price Panels to negotiate with retailers for a voluntary settlement involving payments to the United States Treasury or to customers in cases of overcharges. The amount of payments may vary from the actual overcharge to a penalty of three times the overcharge, or $50, whichever is greater.

Price Panels are made up of unpaid volunteers, working with retailers and consumers to obtain understanding and compliance with wartime price ceilings.

The new procedure will give Price Panels the additional means they frequently asked in handling retail violations.

STAMP PROCEDURE

SIMPLIFIED

The fact that all ration stamps will make possible a simplification of procedure followed in transferring or making ration bank deposits and coupons are now valid indefinitely of envelopes containing ration currency, the OPA said this week.

Effective September 2, 1944, the former requirement that the depositor write the type of stamp enclosed (such as "Sugar stamp 30" or "Red Stamp A5") on the face of the envelope is withdrawn. The major purpose of this requirement, OPA said, was to indicate the expiration date of the ration currency enclosed in an envelope. Since all stamps and coupons are now valid indefinitely, the requirements is now eliminated.

No minority makes permanent gains through exerting pressure on the rest of the population.

TO ENFORCE SPEED LIMITS

Governor Simeon Willis has issued a special proclamation calling on the State Highway Patrol to caution all truck and bus drivers against speeding and to report all violations to the Office of Price Administration.

The Governor, pointing out that the OPA has reduced the August quota of heavy duty bus and truck tires more than 50 per cent, below the July quota, appealed to bus and truck drivers to observe such speed limits as are necessary to conserve tires and asked the people to report violations of the national speed limit of 35 miles per hour.

The Governor's action was taken at the suggestion of District OPA Director E. Reed Wilson and State Highway Commissioner J. S. Watkins.

Not more than one parcel may be mailed in any one week to the same member of the armed forces by or in behalf of the same mailer.

When combination packages are made up of such items as miscellaneous toilet articles, hard candies, soaps, etc., the contents should be tightly packed so that they will not become loosened in transit and damaged.

Perishable goods, such as fruits and vegetables that may spoil, are prohibited. Inflammable materials such as matches or lighter fluids, poisons, and anything that may damage other mail also are prohibited. Gifts enclosed in glass should be substantially packed to avoid breakage. Sharp instruments, such as razors and knives, must have their edges and points protected so that they cannot cut through the coverings and injure postal personnel or damage other packages.

Relatives and friends who know that the personnel in the armed services to whom they plan to send gifts are at far distant points should begin to mail their packages on the opening day—September 15—of the mailing period. Last year late mailings, causing concentration of great numbers of packages in the final days of the mailing period, threatened to defeat the program. It is stressed that success can be assured, with the limited personnel and facilities available, only if the public gives full cooperation, through prompt mailings of the overseas gift parcels from the opening of the mailing period.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends and neighbors for their kindness during the long illness and death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Annabelle W. Cook.

And especially do we thank Rev. R. F. DeMolay and Rev. Burton Garrott for their consoling message, and Mrs. Olivia Willis for her beautiful songs.

Also Chambers and Grubbs for their efficient manner of conducting the service.

Tobacco Priming Demonstrated At Meeting

The priming and tying of primed leaves of tobacco was demonstrated at the farm of Denzil Carpenter of near Idlewild, last Wednesday afternoon according to the County Agent's Office. Twenty farmers attended the meeting.

Considerable misunderstanding has been encountered among growers as to the purpose and methods of priming. The purpose of priming is to harvest the lower leaves that ripen ahead of the rest of the plant, thereby allowing the remaining top leaves to ripen. The leaves are harvested as soon as they are yellow ripe and before they cure up on the plant and waste away. Many farmers last year were able to make $200.00 more per acre through this method of harvesting.

It's fast getting to the day when the son of Heaven will be glad to leave Tokyo.

News From The State Capital

Bids on a project for reconstruction of the administration building at the Greendale Houses of Reform have been asked by the State to be opened September 12. The project is the first under a proposed extensive institutional rebuilding and remodeling program, plans for which have not been completed.

Delivery of steel to be used in construction of the new Clay's Ferry bridge over the Kentucky River has started, T. H. Cutler, State highway engineer, said today.

Cutler said two or three car-loads already had been trucked to the bridge site from unloading points in Lexington and that work on the bridge would be resumed soon after a long delay caused inability to obtain materials.

Clyde Smith, State Fire Marshal, and J. Paul Ward, Supervisor of the Field Force attended a meeting of the Executive Committee of the agents recently.

At this meeting, Smith and Ward had the pleasure of becoming acquainted with many persons with whom they will come in contact during their term of office and Smith discussed with this committee future plans for the State Fire Marshal's Department in cooperation with the Kentucky Association of Insurance Agents. Reorganization plans of the State Fire Marshal's Department explained in detail and an outline of the year's objective given.

Plans are under way toward the development of a Hobby Shop at the Kentucky State Reformatory, La Grange. Joshua B. Everett, Chairman, Board of Welfare, reported today.

There is a great deal of talent among the men there which has never been used, Everett pointed out. Plans are being made to take these talents out from under the bushes and allow the prisoners to make useful articles, such as: belts, purses, canes and practical souvenirs of all kinds. This shop will be sponsored by the Canteen, which belongs to and is operated by the prisoners.

The Farmer and War Bond Purchases

by Charles W. Holman, Secretary

The National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation

AMERICAN farmers have a great deal more at stake in purchasing War Bonds than simply a patriotic urge to assist in financing the war so that it may be prosecuted to an early and victorious conclusion. Modern war demands governmental expenditures far in excess of those which may be met by current revenue receipts. This means Government borrowing. If a large part of this borrowing is through commercial banks additional inflationary spending power is created through the expansion of credit. On the other hand, if the borrowing is largely from individuals much of their excess funds are drained off. Hence, the pressure on prices resulting from unusually large funds bidding for limited amounts of goods and services is relieved, and thus inflation retarded.

A tremendously increased agricultural production and a decrease in average prices received above those paid by farmers have raised the net income of all United States farmers from the 1933-34 average of $4.7 billion to $6.3 billion in 1941, $9.4 billion in 1942, and an estimated $12.5 billion in 1943. With available supplies of farm machinery replacements and building materials limited, Agriculture has a fund available for either debt retirement, savings readily liquidated for future purchases of machinery, building, etc., or for present investment in land.

A marked decrease in farm mortgages in recent years indicates that much of this fund has been properly applied to debt retirement. However, activity in land sales and a very marked increase in land values demonstrate that farmers are probably diverting a large part of this fund into land purchases. From 1933 to 1943, the average land value per acre rose 15 per cent, with the larger part of the rise taking place in the last four months of the period. The increase during this four-month period was the highest on record, being 20 per cent greater than the average monthly rate of increase for the 1919-30 boom year. Average values per acre have increased more than one-third in the past 3 years. In the 1916-19 period the rise was about the same.

It appears that an overcapitalization of probably temporarily high farm commodity prices is in process just as in World War I. Large mortgage debts incurred now, at high levels of income, will prove disastrous when both total agricultural production and prices fall. Land values are based on the net return to land. With the end of the war in sight and with the prospect that farm labor and other costs will require a relatively larger return leaving the return to land, the logical course of land values at present would appear to be downward rather than upward.

Therefore, it appears that farmers would do well to invest every available dollar, beyond that needed for debt retirement, in Government Bonds. These can be held against the day when necessary farm replacements will be available and when farm land values will have become more stable. In this way the individual farmer may assist in hastening the day of return of his son, and also have capital available to help finance him in ventures of his own choice.

U. S. Treasury Department

The second annual work conference on teacher education sponsored by the State Department of Education, will open Sunday, August 27, at the University of Kentucky, Lexington.

Dr. R. E. Jagers, director of teacher education and certification, described the conference as part of a three-year study begun in July, 1943 aimed at making education in elementary and secondary schools and teacher education at the college level function more efficiently in solving the problem of living.

Cooperating with the State Department are the University, Eastern; Western; Morehead, and Murray State Teachers colleges, the University of Louisville; Berea College; Bell County, Carter County, Green County, Pulaski County, Valley High School in Jefferson County and Lowell Elementary School at Louisville.

The conference ended on Sept. 1.

Governor Simeon Willis has ordered activation of a military police company of the Kentucky Active Militia, upon recommendation of Adjutant General G. H. May.

According to the executive order the new unit of the Kentucky military force will be located at Hazard. In a separate order, Governor Willis commissioned William Lunsford Detherage as a captain in the militia and designated as commanding officer of the military police company.

Old age and other public assistance checks will be reduced in average size within two or three months due to a steadily mounting number of recipients, Welfare Commissioner John Guertin announced.

He said that although the annual public assistance appropriation was increased from $4,250,000 to $4,400,000 by the 1944 Legislature it now appears that more than $5,000,000 would be needed if the present level of payments should be maintained.

Two to three months will be required to re-figure the approximately 60,000 grants in force and complete the task of cutting 60,000 metal check plates, he said.

"It is the intention of the department to continue the present level of payments until this work can be completed and thereafter pay a lower average monthly grant to keep the total payment for the fiscal year within the scope of the legislative appropriation. It is impossible at this time to announce the amount of the adjustment, but I will do it as soon as possible," he added.

In spite of the largest school budget in history and smaller operating capital, it appears that all payments of teachers' salaries can be met on time, John Fred Williams, superintendent of public instruction, declared yesterday.

He said sufficient funds to meet all per capita and equalization installments, used to pay teachers through September, were available and that on October 1 new funds would be available with which to meet coming installments.

With emergency funds becoming available, it is believed, he added, that "per capita and equalization installments can be made as scheduled by law until all payments of this school year are met." "It is felt," Williams stated, "that delay will be necessary only in case revenue receipts fail to maintain the level indicated at present, or in case districts fail to comply with regulations of the State Board of Education."

The superintendent pointed out that schools draw their entire appropriation during the first three quarters of the school year while revenues come in over a year's period.

"This situation," he said, "is unusual. It differs from years immediately preceding in that the common school appropriation is the largest in history, while funds available for operating capital during the first three quarters are more limited. In spite of this, it appears that all installment payments can be met on time."

TIPS ON OVERCOMING FEED SHORTAGES

By Paul Whitehead

At a recent meeting Mr. W. C. Johnstone, Field Agent in Crops, University of Kentucky, pointed out since the prospects of the Corn Crop in this state would be short he advised several methods of using the entire crop of stover as a roughage for feed. He put a value of $16.00 per ton on the use of corn stover for feed if properly handled as one-third of the nutrients of the corn plant are in the stover. The first and best method would be the use of trench silos and use the corn as silage feed, this would be done where the grain did not fill out.

Other methods would be cut and shock the corn or to chred it and put it in the barn. If left out in the weather this stover should be fed out before January first in order to secure the best feed value from it.

He also pointed out that if farmers would sow every acre of their cultivated crops to a small grain either for cover or for grain that they would have a good winter and spring pasture. It would also save their fields from heavy soil loss due to erosion also if there was vetch seed added to the grain cover crop, this winter legume would improve the soil.

The earlier that the small grain and vetch seed mixture could be sown the more pasture the farmer could get. Where land was thin the use of lime, phosphate, and 4-12-4 fertilizer should be used. Recent tests has shown that with the use of $3.00 for nitrate the increase in wheat yield has been eight bushels to the acre.

Farmers who will not be able to earn their soil building payments should not over look the chances of sowing twelve pounds of alfalfa and eight pounds of orchard grass or five pounds orchard grass and three pounds timothy. The seed bed should be well prepared, and if freshly plowed it should be well rolled or use a cultipacker. Payments for new pasture is $5.00 per acre.

SAUL REJECTED

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 15:10-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—Because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, he hath also rejected thee from being king.—1 Samuel 15:23.

Moral failure is a direct result of disobedience to God's law. He established the moral order in the universe. His is the only right way, and the man who does not walk in God's way is wrong no matter how successful he may seem to be at the moment.

After a brief period of success, Saul sinned by intruding into the priest's office at Gilgal (1 Sam. 13:10-14). This was soon followed by his disobedience in the battle with Amalek (1 Sam. 15:1-9). This brought final judgment from the Lord, and Saul stood revealed as:

I. A Self-Willful Backslider (vv. 10, 11).

"Turned back from following" God means just one thing, that is, turned back to self-will. These two principles, which are mutually exclusive, rule all actions of man—it is either God's will, or self-will.

Saul, who had every opportunity to make good as Israel's first king lost out completely, and so turned away from God that God had to turn away from him, which is the thought expressed by "repenteth" (v. 11).

II. A Lying Hypocrite (vv. 12, 13). Knowing that he had done just the opposite, Saul puts on his best "Sunday-go-to-church" manner and professed to be very pious, and completely obedient (v. 13). One marvels at his tenacity, but not so much so when one thinks of those in the church who put on the same kind of a "front" to cover a worldly, self-centered life.

Nothing hurts the cause of Christ more than the nervy hypocrite who deny by their lives before the community the thing for which the church stands. By the way, are you a hypocrite, who read these lines? If so, flee to God in repentance. You are in bad company.

III. A Proved Deceiver (vv. 14, 15). The difficulty with falsehood is that ultimately the truth comes to light. With Saul it came quickly, for the sheep which he said were dead were alive enough to bleat at just the right time. The deceit of Saul thus was proved in the very instant of his false declaration of innocence. "Be sure your sin will find you out" (Num. 22:29) is not just a religious theory, it is God's word. "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whose confesseth and forsaketh them, shall have mercy" (Prov. 28:13).

IV. A Proud Disobeyer (vv. 16-19). Now Saul had to stand before Samuel and hear the words of God's condemnation. He had to face his own life and see there the ground of the judgment of the Lord. He was reminded of the day of his humble dependence on the Lord, which had brought him exaltation to the highest place in Israel.

To be small in one's own eyes is to be great in the eyes of the Lord. He is looking for the acceptable sacrifice of a humble heart (Ps. 51:17; Isa. 57:15).

The tumult and the shouting dies; The captains and the kings depart: Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice, A humble heart, and a contrite heart: Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet. Lest we forget, lest we forget.

V. An Argumentative Evader (vv. 20, 21).

Once set in the way of disobedience, there seems to be no limit to the bold stubbornness of man. Instead of breaking down in contrition and confession, Saul tried to face the matter down by further argument and tricky evasion.

"I have obeyed," said he, "but the people." Who was king? "Did the people obey Saul, or Saul the people?" There is nothing honest about laying your sins over on another. How often people do it!

Notice also that Saul became very religious again. If anything had been done that seemed wrong, it was with a good purpose; they were going to "sacrifice to Jehovah." "The sacrifices and ceremonies of religion" to aid and promote obedience, not to be a substitute. Disobedience can never be made a virtue, even though attended by a thousand sacrifices" (Stanley).

VI. A Rebellious Reject (vv. 22, 23).

"To obey is better than sacrifice." Oh, that we might learn well that lesson which led through Samuel tried to teach to Saul. We need to recognize that giving to the church, or working for the church, is not enough if there is not obedience to God; and with that obedience must be the recognition of Christ as savior and Lord.

Lip service, half obedience, a willingness to make sacrifices were not acceptable in the case of Saul. Be sure they are infinitely less acceptable to God in this day when we have His Son who wants to be our Saviour and to give us the enabling grace to obey His will.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Around the Town: June Knight, the musical comedy songstress, crossing Broadway at 44th street—Knightingale in Times Square . . . Irina Baranova, the ballerina, dreamily listening to a Russian melody tinkled by pianist Owen Jones at Leone's . . . Victor Borge ordering waffles and honey at the Grand Central Oyster Bar and getting an idea for a new comic monologue when the counterman calls, "Gridle cakes in a snood—oiled." Hi Breezy: Red Barber and Variety's Abel Green making a mind's-eye technicolor panorama at the Rainbow lounge—with only Maize West missing . . . Allan Jones and Kenny Baker toe-and-heeling down Broadway at a furious pace—two male thrushes in a rush . . . Helen Hayes and Roberta Hollywood at Cerutti's . . . a scenario based on the first lady of television . . . At La Martinique, Rose Marie singing "The Barbershop Chord" and Jackie Gleason quipping, "That's hair-conditioning for you."

Cuff Notes: The trumpet player in Ted Straker's orchestra is named Gabriel Horn . . . Evelyn Knight reminded me that May 29 was the anniversary of that day in 1835 when aged Henry Brevoort appeared with a shotgun and threatened to blow to perdition any workman who touched his favorite tree and so 11th street was never cut through to Broadway . . . a scenario based on the City Lombardo musical family is being peddled to the pix studios . . . Shep Fields was the first orchestra conductor to contribute old musical scores to the waste paper drive—a good idea for other maestros to follow . . . During a performance of "The Hitler Gang" at the Globe theater, a woman upset a row of customers by trying to get through a space much too confining for her spaciousness . . . "Please, lady," pleaded one of the trampled, "walk sideways." "Sorry," sighed the woman, "but I have no sideways."

Here and There: Hildegard walking down Fifth avenue and making on-lookers' day dreams come true . . . Ladislav Czettel, the "Helen Goes to Troy" designer, ringside at the Blue Angel and mentally dressing all the ladies in the room . . . George Jessel and Somerset Maugham at the Chateau Briand—a character and a plot . . . Ralph Forbes looking very British over a lobster at the Sea Fare . . . WAC Col. Oveta Culp Hobby waiting for the elevator in the Henry Hudson hotel—Hobby Lobby? . . . Katherine Hepburn at Tony's Trouville looking as thin as a chorus girl's excuse . . . D'Angelo and Yvonne dancing at the St. Regis Roof—and raising it . . . Producer Milton Berle chuckling his way out of Dazian's—"Goodbye Mr. Quilpa?" . . . Sophie Tucker booming at Margaret Sullivan, "Dearie, you may be the voice but I'm the shape of the turtle."

This and That: On the menu in a restaurant much patronized by actors: "The Broadway ladder of success has splinters but most stars fail to notice them until they're sliding down." . . . A number of out-of-town residents, who make the Biltmore their home while in New York, keep extra clothing at the hotel so they won't have to bother with so much baggage . . . Broadway's motto concerning friends: "Use well before shaking." . . . In the Stock club, an ex-pugilist told Arlene Francis of "Blind Date," that he's going to turn bandleader . . . "What are you going to do?" inquired Arlene sweetly. "Lead with your chin?"

Faces and Places: Eddie Cantor conversing with a glib on Broadway—Popeye and the sailorman . . . A Madison avenue bus driver stopping his vehicle and speeding on foot a block back to hand a purse to a lovely lady who had forgotten it—Julia Sanderson . . . Dr. Frank Black, the maestro, at Madison avenue and 49th street, listening intently to "The Merry-go-Round Broke Down" as ground out by a hurdy-gurdy . . . Isabel Hewson Manning in front of a shiny shop window—time to redecorate . . . Dunfinger, the mentalist, undecided about crossing a street as the light changes and a husky cop urging, "Make up your mind, Bud, make up your mind."

Treasure: Serge Jeroff, of the Don Cossacks, bringing his three-gallon brass samovar into the Cafe Dubois and inviting every guest to share his "chi." . . . Jeroff has nursed that charcoal burner through a revolution, several ocean voyages and many cross-country treks with his singers. Once, when boarding a plane, he was ordered to reduce the weight of his baggage . . . So he left three suits of clothes behind—but not the samovar.

3 Zeros in 90 Seconds
Wins D.F.C. for Texan
WASHINGTON.—It took Marine Capt. John L. Morgan Jr., of Arlington, Texas, just 90 seconds to knock out three Jap Zeros in a dogfight in the Solomons. The fighter pilot's exploit was revealed with release of a presidential citation accompanying a distinguished flying cross award for his action.

Purchase And Loan Program Announced

A purchase and loan program for the 1944 crop of burley, dark air-cured dark fire-cured, Maryland and cigar filler and binder tobacco has been announced by the War Food Administration according to W. J. Scherm, Acting Chairman of the Kentucky State AAA Committee.

The program provides for purchase by Commodity Credit Corporation of tobacco for export under lend-lease and for sale to other countries of the United Kingdom to meet their minimum civilian requirements," Mr. Scherm stated. "Of more direct interest to growers," he added, "the loan plan of the program which includes non-re-course loans by Commodity Credit Corporation to cooperating producers at 90 percent of parity as of the beginning of the marketing year."

As in previous years, purchases for export will be made through foreign and domestic companies. Commodity Credit Corporation will specify the way in which the tobacco shall be purchased and handled, and the amounts which will be paid for the service performed by the companies.

"Producer loans," Scherm said, "will be offered in accordance with a definite schedule of rates for the various government grades, plus specified amounts to cover handling and carrying costs."

ENTERTAINS MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Hamilton of Verona entertained the Men's Bible Class and their families of the Madison Av. Baptist Church, Covington with a Labor Day picnic. Those who enjoyed the day were: Rev. and Mrs. Malone and Marilyn, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dieterlen, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bonar, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. P. Yelton, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Hildreth, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Porter L. Noel, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Dungan, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bagby, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Fooks, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. ## WALTON STOCK YARDS

The sales Tuesday at the Walton Stock Yards were a little lighter than the opening day a week before, but the prices were good. The following prices were paid:

Cows and calves, common, $89.00; shoats, 11.00 to 12.50; lambs, tops, 14.50; sows and pigs, 35.00 to 40.00; fat cattle 9.50 hundred; veals, medium, 15.00.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank Rev. Garrett and his church members for conducting so nice a weekday Bible School for the young people at our church (colored) Mount Zion Baptist Church.

NEW FAIR DATE SET FOR SATURDAY, SEPT. 16

Horse Pulling Contest Suggested For Fair

Desire for a horse pulling contest at the county fair and picnic was expressed by several folks just as this week's paper was going to the press.

A committee was appointed to see if sufficient premiums and equipment could be secured in time to officially announce the contest before next week's paper comes out.

Dairy Production Payment Increased During August

The payment rate for the dairy production payment for July and August will be 50 cents per hundredweight of milk and 8 cents per pound of butterfat. This increase was made earlier than had been previously planned because of the drought. The payment for July and August was originally scheduled to be 35 cents per hundredweight for milk and 6 cents per pound for butterfat.

The new ruling became effective August 5, after the drought became severe which increased dairy production payments to 70 cents per hundredweight for milk and 11 cents per pound for butterfat.

In order to avoid computing payments separately for the period August 5 to August 31 inclusive, an adjusted payment rate for the entire July-August production period will be used, which is the rate of 50 cents per hundredweight for milk and 8 cents per pound for butterfat.

The rates of payments for production and sales in Boone County, and other designated drought counties for the period September 1, 1944 to March 31, 1945, inclusive will be at the winter rates of 70 cents per hundredweight of milk and 11 cents per pound for butterfat.

Final payments are now being made for the May and June sales of milk and butterfat.

All producers are urged to submit their weights showing sales of milk and butterfat as soon as possible for the July and August period.

EXHIBITS OPEN TO WOMEN AT FAIR

Six different Home Economics exhibit classes are open to women at the 4-H and Utopia Fair Saturday, September 16th. Any woman living in Boone or neighboring counties may show canned products, quilts, feed sack garments or a baked exhibit. There will also be a style dress revue for feed sack garments. The Homemakers exhibits will only be open to Boone Homemakers. This exhibit will consist of things made in the homemakers club during the past year.

All entries in Home Economics must be made in their respective departments by 11:00 a. m. (E.W.T.) and remain until 5:00 p. m.

The new 1944 Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Fair date has been set for Saturday, September 16th according to the Council. Plans are being made for the biggest and best fair and county picnic on record. Larger numbers of dairymen, sheepmen, poultrymen, horse and pony owners and other exhibitors than even before have notified the committee of their plans to exhibit.

The new date has given much more time for crop exhibits to mature and more time to prepare exhibits. The county picnic feature of the fair gives Boone County an opportunity to hold its annual county-wide home coming and get-together. All people of the county and their friends are urged to bring their picnic lunch and take part in the events sponsored as recreational and educational features of the program.

All adults attending this year are

DR. ROBERT E. RYLE

Dr. Robert E. Ryle, son of Perry and Jane Adams Ryle, was born near Burlington, November 8, 1871. He attended school at Burlington under Prof. Newton. He taught school in Boone County and later attended Starling Medical College in Columbus, Ohio, where he graduated in 1896 at the age of 25. In 1897 he came to Big Bone Springs to practice his profession. He united with the Bellview Baptist Church in 1897 under the preaching of Rev. J. W. Hill, later moved his membership to this place.

He was married to Othaline Griffith Nov. 30, 1899. One son was born to this union William C. Ryle who preceded his father in death 13 months and 13 days. He moved to Beaver Lick in 1910 where he practiced his profession until he moved to Walton in 1923, where he continued his practice until illness two years ago. He was loved by the young and old at this place not only here but all Northern Ky., where he was so well and favorably known.

He leaves his wife, one grandson, Billy Wayne Ryle, a daughter-in-law Mrs. William Ryle, three sisters in California and two brothers of Boone County.

His funeral was held here last Friday afternoon attended by one of the largest crowds ever held here. Rev. B. C. Garrett conducted the funeral assisted by Rev. A. K. Johnson and Rev. R. F. DeMoisey. Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Chroland rendered two beautiful hymns.

HOMEMAKERS LEARN DUTIES

Twenty-three officers and committee chairmen of local homemakers clubs attended a training class last week. The afternoon meeting was held at the Courthouse in Burlington.

The duties of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, and chairman of publicity, citizenship, program and reading committees were discussed by the county officers. The importance of faith in one's self and faith in others when serving as an officer was stressed by Miss Lullie Logan Assistant State Leader of Home Demonstration Agents. Each county officer stressed the importance of having the ability to get others to work or assume responsibility.

urged to contribute to the building and grounds improvement fund through the 25-cent gate charge for adults. It is hoped this new gate charge will not keep anyone from attending and that it will contribute greatly toward construction of new buildings, livestock pens, and facilities that will in the not too distant future enable the county to have one of the best fair and picnic grounds in the state.

Special judges for the fair exhibits include: Lullie Logan and Edith Lacy of Lexington for Home Economics; S. A. Porter, Alexandria and C. W. Jones for poultry and garden crops; Lynn Copeland, Lexington, for dairy and livestock exhibits, and Bert Rich of Covington, for the horse and pony show.

This is our fair and county picnic. Let's all work together to make it the best ever.

Thirteen Ribbons Won By 4-H Girls

Boone County 4-H Club girls having clothing exhibits at the State Fair last week won 13 ribbons. Four were placed in the blue ribbon group one in the red ribbon group and eight in the white ribbon group.

Boone 4-H members were able to send only a clothing exhibit since the county fair will be held later than the State Fair. Clothing worn in the county had been judged at Spring Rally in May. The exhibits of some blue ribbon winners at Spring Rally were sent to the State Fair according to Mary Hood Gillespie, Home Demonstration Agent.

LOCAL AIRPORT BEING USED BY ARMY PLANES

The Greater Cincinnati Airport in Boone county is being used by Lockbourne Air Base Flying Fortresses, C. Lisle Kays, chairman of the Kenton County Airport Board, said Tuesday.

At the same time, official announcement that the Army Air Forces are making use of the local field came from Col. Audrin R. Walker, Columbus, O., Lockbourne deputy for training and operations. He said that 24 planes a day are to fly to the new airport.

BOONE COUNTY BUCCANEERS AND DOLLY GOOD PROVIDE SCINTILLATING HARMONIES ON WLW

Here are those popular Boone County Buccaneers and that equally popular femme vocalist, Dolly Good, whose scintillating vocal and instrumental harmonies delight Station WLW listeners Mondays through Fridays at 8 a. m., and 6 p. m., and on Sundays with the Boone County Neighbors at 8:30 a. m. ### VERONA HOMEMAKERS' HOLD MEETING

On September 1st the Verona Homemakers' Club held its first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. John Boyer.

The day was spent in making dress forms. Four were made at the meeting and more to be made later.

The next meeting will be October 8th at the home of our president Mrs. Joe Rouse.

Distribution Of "A" Books To Be Made By Mail

Distribution of "A" Books will be made to all Boone County applicants by mail.

Application blanks can be secured at most gas service stations and all banks in Boone County or the board office.

The application form is very simple and it will not be necessary for you to visit the board office in connection with securing your book. Simply fill in the application and mail it, or bring it, to your local board on or before September 9, 1944. Include with the application the back of your present "A" Book.

If you do not have the old book cover enclose with the application your 1944 Passenger Car Registration Certificate. (This will be returned to you.)

Special groups of volunteers are being set up to process and mail your new book and Mileage Record to the address you gave on your application. (If you have sent in your car registration certificate it will be returned to you in the same envelope.)

SPARTA HOTEL ROBBED

Sunday morning between the hours of 10:30 and 11:00 thieves entered the Sparta Hotel by way of a rear window first having ripped the screen and breaking the glass. They took a quantity of whisky, brandy, wine and cigarettes. The eight year old daughter of Frank Alexander saw the men coming from the building and later told police that they were all colored men, three in number. Chief Shelly summoned Warsaw's Chief Glosser and Sheriff Chas. V. Hall and a search is being under the direction of Chief Shelly. In checking clues have been found which may lead to the arrest of the guilty parties. Leon Jamison the proprietor states that he and his family were absent from home only three hours during the time that the robbery was carried out.

Sheepmen Hold Annual Meeting

The Boone County Sheep Protective Association completed its sixth successful year of operation on last Saturday September 2nd, according to H. E. White, president. One hundred seventeen farmers, owning 4,382 sheep the past year, sponsored the Association activities the past year.

Association members reported the losses from dogs continued to be a major problem of the sheep industry. Losses were reported to increase or decrease in proportion to the number of dogs in the community. All dog owners are urged to purchase their dog tags and keep their dogs under control. Stray dogs, the cause of greatest losses, should be destroyed.

The Association the past year again had lost claims in excess of payments, but completed the year with a reserve fund of $404.00 for the new year starting September 1st. Sheepmen are urged to sign up immediately with their director so that a full year's protection will be secured.

The following officers were elected for the 1944-45 year beginning September 1st: H. E. White, Charles E. Beall, Charles W. White, John T. Stevens, L. H. Congleton, Russell Sparks, John W. Conley, James Pennington, Walter Johnson.

The directors elected H. E. White, president and Charles E. Beall, vice-president, and L. H. Congleton, secretary-treasurer.

HONOR ROLL BOARD BEING FINISHED

The new Honor Roll Board is nearing completion on the school grounds.

Those having names not appearing on the board please notify Rouse Slen Service. Those wishing to make a donation please send it to Mrs. Helen Jones or leave at Conrad Hardware Store.

CLOTHING LEADERS MAKE SEWING AIDS

Newly appointed clothing leaders from eight Homemakers' Clubs attended a training class last week in Florence. The morning meeting was used for demonstration of making a dress form. Seven other individual dress forms were made during the afternoon. Each club was asked to send three leaders. One to serve as model and two to make the form.

The lesson and demonstration was given by a committee composed of Mrs. Leo Flynn, Mrs. John L. Vest, Mrs. John Seixen, Mrs. John Martin, and Mary Hood Gillespie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Dress forms will be made in all local clubs during September. Any desiring this sewing aid is asked to attend the September meeting and bring two or more helpers.

News From The State Capital

Foreseeing a boom in postwar aviation, Commissioner of Highways J. S. Watkins has inaugurated a policy designed to utilize the highway department for development of aerial commerce in Kentucky.

Harry St. George Tucker Carmichael, Jr., Director of the Division of Planning and Survey has been directed by Watkins to begin immediately a continuing study of how the department can co-operate with the aviation industry in encouraging promoting and developing such essentials as runways, access roads to airports and auxiliary landings in connection with highways.

One development that might follow locally, Watkins said, would be creation within the department of a Division of Airway Facilities comparable in administrative setup to the Division of Rural Highways.

Watkins and Chief Highway Engineer Thomas H. Cutler joined in the assertion that the Department of Highways is the logical agency in Kentucky to undertake expansion of landing facilities. They cited the following natural advantages:

1. The department has equipment, the engineers, and the experience to build runways access roads, and auxiliary landing strips.

2. The department has collected from the outset a tax of 5 cents a gallon on gasoline used in intrastate aviation and this revenue will increase as intrastate aerial commerce expands.

3. The 1944 Legislature authorized the department to begin its first active participation in air transport when it passed a bill directing highway maintenance of runways at city and county airports.

The department now is concluding a survey to determine how much of this type of maintenance it may be called upon to do.

Five small boys ranging in ages from 8 to 12 were arrested by a Deputy Fire Marshall, whose jurisdiction is in the vicinity of Louisville Clyde Smith State Fire Marshal announced today. These boys were brought up to Juvenile Court on August 16, where they admitted that they had matches and were lighting them and set fire to a brewing company in Louisville. These children were paroled to a probation officer in the vicinity.

A through investigation is being made of the fire occurring near Shepherdsville on August 20 in which a large dairy barn, belonging to W. B. Crenshaw was totally destroyed Clyde Smith, State Fire Marshal said today.

This fire apparently was of incendiary origin, it being a fact the owner received an anonymous note demanding that he leave $800 in a case tied to a white handkerchief, lying in the middle of the roadway near his home at a certain hour and that if this was not done that his home would also be destroyed by an explosion at 11 a. m. on August 21. Sheriff Fred Smith of Bullitt County is working with the State Fire Marshal's office and has obtained some very valuable clues and evidence and all indications are that an arrest will be made shortly.

Commissioners of Industrial Relations, L. C. Willis today announced that a total of 1,260 accidents occurred in Kentucky during the month of July. Of this number 1,155 of the accidents were among male employees and 105 among female employees.

There were 11 fatalities reported. The mining industry proved to be the most hazardous of the 8 major industries reporting to the Workmen's Compensation Board with a total of 464 accidents followed by 433 accidents in the manufacturing industry and 91 in construction.

There were 215 accidents reported in the Louisville district, 35 in the Covington Newport area, 11 in Ashland-Gattsburg 24 in Owensboro-Henderson, 13 in Paducah-Mayfield, 14 in Hopkinsville-Bowling Green, and 10 in Lexington.

The Workmen's Compensation Board made 16 awards amounting to $15,531.88 in July and denied 4 claims. The total compensation paid on cases closed out during July was $150,212.71. Cases assigned totaled 68 and cases docketed numbered 64.

Capitol Hill to Kentuckiana homefolks.

ROBERT L. RIGGS... The Courier-Journal's Washington correspondent legs his way through legislative sessions, chronicling affairs that affect the blue-grass belt. His informative output reaches readers via the shortest route... a breezy column resume of governmental goings on. Sundays see Kentuckiana slants on national and international news... usually of an expository nature, in The Passing Show section.

From three generations of Kentucky stock, on both sides of the family, Riggs, through some accident of fate, was born in Missouri, and graduated with scholastic distinction from that state's University. His first job was covering the State Legislature in Wisconsin for the Associated Press. Accepting the post of Assistant State Editor on The Courier-Journal fifteen years ago, Bob tried out most of the chairs in the editorial department during ensuing years, before traveling up to Washington in 1942 as a top flight correspondent.

With an ear firmly glued to committee room keyholes, Riggs rambles through capitol hill's cabbage patch, astutely thumping heads. Readers will recall the incident pictured above. The cameraman caught Riggs as he drew a press conference lead on Senator Barkley in a memorable moment following the latter's dramatic tax bill veto speech before the Senate.

OUR FARM NEWS . . . .

PASTURE AND HAY ARE BASIS OF BOONE COUNTY AGRICULTURE

Good pasture and hay crops are the basis for successful agriculture on most Boone County farms, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The only exception to this would be a few river bottom farms. The quality of the farm and in most instances the profitable returns of the farm can be judged by the quality of hay and pasture crops it produces.

Most Boone County farms can be made to profitably produce hundreds of dollars more income through better seeding, mowing, and fertilizing practices.

The present and usually present limited income of farmers, fear of failure, and often improper seeding practices have caused many farmers to move slowly in trying something new. One relatively new seeding practice that should pay large dividends is the seeding of a bushel of Balbo rye, common rye or wheat per acre before October 1st. On all lespedeza land where the grass stand is thin or has been lost. This small grain seeded early should furnish good fall, winter, and early spring pasture and where tried, has not injured the lespedeza.

Surplus alfalfa acrages for both hay and pasture is probably the greatest single need for both basic pasture and hay improvement. Progress is being made by many farmers on this program. It is conservatively estimated that approximately 16,000 acres of land instead of the present approximately 4,000 acres of land would successfully grow alfalfa with grass if properly seeded. Alfalfa seeded with grass is one of the safest and surest ways to get good pasture stands.

The Simpson county wheat crop was one of the best on record, yields averaging 20 bushels, with a total production of 600,000 bushels.

About 100 pressure cookers for canning have been bought by members of homemakers clubs in Boyd county.

The Salvage club furnished four of the five county champions at the annual 4-H club rally in Mercer county.

FARMERS GET LUMBER FOR ESSENTIAL USE

Farmers who buy lumber in Boone County now may purchase small amounts for essential maintenance and repair of farm service buildings or implements or for other approved uses essential to wartime food production by signing an application at the lumber yard, according to Mark Cook, Chairman of the County AAA Committee.

A total of 300 board feet is the largest amount that may be obtained by a farmer for approved uses from dealers in any one calendar quarter without first getting a Farmers' Lumber Certificate. These certificates carry an AA-2 rating.

Any farmer who needs more than 300 board feet of lumber during any calendar quarter should apply to the county AAA office at Burlington for a certificate. The County AAA Committee has authority to issue Farmers' Lumber Certificates for essential maintenance and repair use and for other approved uses essential to food production, and for new construction, other than residences, where the cost is not more than $1,000 per calendar year for the farm. The committee also will issue certificates for lumber to meet emergencies. For construction which must be approved by the War Production Board, the County AAA Committee receives farmers' applications and makes recommendations but does not issue certificates.

Farmers' Lumber Certificates are rated orders, with ratings as high as any assigned to non-military users. Mr. Cook stated. Dealers can use the ratings to place certified orders with their suppliers. "In fact," Mr. Cook said, "these certificates offer the only opportunity to keep enough lumber in the county to meet our essential farm needs."

COMBINES WHEAT AND RYE MIXTURE

Coleman Foster of Livingston county combined about 1,200 bushels of a mixture of wheat and balbo rye which he sold to farmers for fall seedings. It was about 40 percent rye and 60 percent wheat. He also combined 250 bushels of pure balbo rye. He usually seeds 15 to 20 acres of balbo rye and 50 to 75 acres of a mixture of wheat and rye each fall. H. S. English of Livingston county is sowing 125 acres of small grain for pasture and 12 acres of alfalfa for hay, according to County Agent Robert L. Rudolph.

THIS WOMAN WORKS TO HELP WIN WAR

The war contribution of Mrs. Ray Davis, member of the Women's Land Army in Muhlenberg county, is summed up by Home Demonstration Agent Roberta Sanderson as follows: She helps her husband milk 18 cows twice daily. She cares for the milk house and for the young calves. She relieves her husband on the tractor while he delivers the milk. Then she does the house work. She looks after the family garden and raises a flock of chickens. An extra job is caring for her 21-month-old grandson while his father is in the Navy.

"This may look like a lot of work," adds Miss Sanderson, "but Mrs. Davis declares she hopes she can do more next year. She says she is helping to win the war."

In Taylor county, where practically all straw was baled, many farmers sold their crop for $15 a ton.

Anxious to get early fall feed, Anderson county farmers in July began sowing balbo rye in corn fields and on stubble fields on which they failed to get a stand of grass.

Twenty-four bushels of beans and two bushels of peas were dehydrated by Anderson county homemakers before the drought became severe.

SOIL IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM EFFECTIVE

Because the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Experiment Station had advocated a permanent soil-building program for more than a quarter of a century, the agriculture of Kentucky was ready to make a maximum contribution to the nation's wartime program, says the annual report of the director of the College's Extension Service.

During the years before the war, 7,000,000 tons of lime materials were used, enough for 3,000,000 acres. In addition farmers used vast amounts of phosphate made available through the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Farmers also bought larger quantities of fertilizer than ever before. Efforts to expand the use of soil-building materials continued, despite the shortage of trucks, and even limestone itself, and more than 1,000,000 tons of limestone and 300,000 tons of phosphate were used in 1943.

The hospital used in 1943 supplied the equivalent of 300 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate an acre for 2,000,000 acres of land. Also, about 100,000 tons of mixed fertilizers were used.

The program which the College of Agriculture launched years ago to increase the production of grass and legumes is going forward with increased momentum. This program has made an invaluable contribution to agriculture and to the general welfare of the state by building fertility preventing leaching and erosion of the soil and increasing the feed supply, says the report.

GIRL SEWS TO CUT COST OF CLOTHING

Wilma Rosalee Watts, 13-year-old 4-H club girl in Mercer county, is helping keep clothing prices down by doing much of the family sewing. Since the first of the year she has made seven dresses for herself and five for others. Then she made six slips, five pairs of pajamas, three aprons, a playsuit and two hats. From feed sacks she has made a dozen or more different items, including tea towels, luncheon sets, dresser covers and vanity set. Wilma who will be a sophomore in high school this year, is a member of the Salvisa 4-H club, of which her mother is the leader.

IMPROVED TOBACCOES SHOW UP IN BOONE

Reporting on disease-resistant tobaccos in Boone county, Farm Agent H. R. Forkner says Nos. 41A and 33 are making "excellent showings." No. 33 in one field known to be diseased had 99 percent healthy plants, while some other varieties were 65 to 100 percent damaged by wilt diseases. Streak was found in many tobacco patches in Boone county.

The Louisville Kiwanis club gave four registered Duroc-Jersey gilts to Jefferson county 4-H club boys.

Henry Helm of Fulton county picked a ton of lima beans from one acre.

LESLIE TURNS OUT LUMBER PRODUCTS

It is estimated that 25 saw mills in Leslie county are turning out about 20,000 board feet of lumber daily. County Agent S. M. Cook lists some of the lumber products of the county as barrel staves, poplar logs for veneers, walnut logs for gun stocks, dogwood for weaving shuttles, crating materials, and wood for making gun covers, ship covers, parachutes and clothing.

BIG WHEAT CROP

County Agent W. B. Collins says Mason county harvested its best wheat crop since 1936. Eight thousand acres averaged 22 bushels to the acre compared to the usual crop of about 6,000 acres yielding 12 to 13 bushels to the acre. The price this year is about $1.50 a bushel, compared to an average of $1 a bushel.

PEACE PRODUCTION

The defeat of Germany will permit American industry to increase non-war production thirty per cent, according to Donald M. Nelson, who points out that this increase will bring the output of civilian goods up to the level reached in 1939 which was the highest level to that time.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Did you hear that Tom is going to be inducted into the Army next week, Judge?"
"Yes, Frank told me this morning down at the barber shop. Our town's got a lot of men in the service now, Jim. In fact, all towns have. I was just reading in the paper where there are more than 10,000,000 men away from their homes in the armed forces. And, from all reports, they're doing a grand job bringing victory closer every day."
"We folks at home have a mighty big obligation to those 10,000,000 fighting men. We've got to produce the food to keep them well fed. We've got to keep them supplied with the ammunition and equipment they need to finish their job. We've got to help the Government pay for all these supplies our men need by buying more and more War Bonds. We'll have another big chance to do that by helping to put the next War Loan drive over the top, Jim."

"And, in addition, we must be sure that, while they're away and can't express their opinions, we don't go voting on and deciding any things that will displease them when they come back."

Glad to report that Mrs. Agnes Atha of the Big Bon neighborhood is doing nicely following an operation at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

It is regret that we learn that Rev. S. E. Godbey, who has been pastor of Hughes Chapel, Big Bone and East Bend Methodist Churches for the past five years, has been sent to Tilton a charge near Flemingsburg. Rev. Godbey and family have endeavored themselves, not only to their own congregation but to all the other folk of the community and all are sorry to see them go, but wish them well in their new home. Rev. Pylow who was pastor here about thirty-three years ago will return to this charge.

EMERGENCY FEED FROM SUDAN GRASS

Alert farmers in McCracken county sow grass for emergency feed in time of drought, says County Agent Joe Hurt. He tells how S. G. La-Mond, livestock farmer in Massac community, seeded 30 acres to Sudan grass on May 20, putting on 25 lbs. of grass seed and 200 pounds of lespedeza seed to the acre. On June 15 he turned 107 head of stock into the field, and by July 15 he had to mow the field to keep the Sudan grass from getting ahead of the stock and becoming tough.

ON KENTUCKY FARMS

The 100 acres of snap beans growing in the northwestern part of Graves county returned profits, despite drought.

Each members of the Manchester Kiwanis club is sponsoring one Clay county 4-H club boy or girl.

Much of the cabbage in Harlan county was unfit to sell, and was made into sauerkraut. Many samples of soils from Jefferson county alfalfa fields were found low in potash, in tests made by the county agent.

More than 200 Rockcastle county 4-H club members received fall garden packets containing turnips, kale, mustard and crimson clover seeds.

Chicken raising in Lee county has been cut in half, due to low egg prices and high feed costs.

Test Vitamin C to Combat Rheumatic Fever

Rheumatic fever, dread cause of heart disease in children and young adults, may yield to a chemical found in red pepper and lemon peel. According to a preliminary report by Dr. James P. Rinehart, professor of pathology in the medical school of the University of California, a plant pigment, flavone, known as vitamin P, has shown considerable promise as a treatment for the great disabler, rheumatic fever.

While the bacterial cause of rheumatic fever has not been definitely established, it is generally accepted that respiratory infection is at least one factor. Dr. Rinehart advanced the theory that nutritional deficiency might put the body in such condition that it was predisposed to rheumatic fever under the attack of an infection such as tonsillitis.

Treatment of rheumatic fever patients with vitamin C, though possibly beneficial, was disappointing, but when vitamin P was added, improvement was noted, Dr. Rinehart said.

"While it seems improbable that improvement in these cases was coincidental, this must be considered a preliminary report and final judgment regarding the effectiveness of vitamin P in the treatment of rheumatic fever withheld until a larger number of cases has been studied," Dr. Rinehart warns.

U. S. Initiates Program For Producing Cork

The U. S. forest service, state departments of forestry and local farm bureau agents are cooperating with private industry in a program looking to a future supply of cork in the United States. This project, started four years ago, has resulted in the planting of more than 100,000 cork oak seedlings in California alone, and plantings are to continue.

The idea of planting cork oak trees in this country is not a new one. Thomas Jefferson tried, unsuccessfully, for 40 years to establish the cork oak tree in the United States. In France in 1784, he saw cork oak trees and noted the soil and climatic conditions under which they grew. He shipped some acorns to the United States but the three and a half months in transit caused them to become moldy. He made many other attempts to have cork oak acorns brought to this country and planted but was unsuccessful.

In 1888, the U. S. government made plantings of cork oak acorns imported from Spain. Most of these died from storms, insects, or lack of care, but a hunt through the southern states has located several large cork oaks of this 1888 planting. More acorns were brought from Spain in 1880 and distributed through the south, and in California and Arizona. A few of these trees survive.

Help Produce Food

Pinch-hitting for their fathers, husbands, brothers and sweethearts on the beachheads, women, boys and girls are already making their presence felt on the food production front, according to Roy E. Moser of Massachusetts State college, state supervisor of farm labor. More than 60 girls representing 23 colleges are working on Middlesex county market garden farms. It is the second season for many of the group. Thanks to the efforts of 308 boys and girls from Amherst High, Northampton High, St. Michael's High of Northampton, Easthampton High, Northampton school for girls, Burnham school for girls and Smith college, the harvesting of Hadley's big asparagus crop is nearing completion. Many of the 124 boys who took the one-week dairy farm training course at M. S. C. are at work on farms in the state. Others are awaiting the close of school before they take jobs which are ready for them. Worcester county had 42 boys taking the course and thus stands to benefit heavily. Realizing the importance of the food production program, school officials are cooperating to the fullest extent, releasing boys where it is possible so that farmers may have immediate help in planting and caring for early market garden crops.

Put Milk in Bottles

Proper handling can prevent many of the peculiar tastes that often develop in the family milk supply, says A. A. Roter, extension dairyman at N. C. State college. He points out that the container in which the milk is stored is of great importance and suggests that the best container for milk from one of two cows is the standard glass milk bottle. "Just after milking, strain the milk through three or four folds of a good grade of cheese cloth," says Roter. "One yard of this cloth is sufficient and will cost only a few cents. Hold this cloth over the end of the milk bucket and strain the milk into another bucket. It can be poured from this bucket into quart glass bottles, using a small tin funnel to prevent spilling. He further suggests that the bottles be capped with standard milk bottle caps. These caps prevent dust and odors from getting into the milk. A supply of caps for several months will cost less than 50 cents. He also recommends that, after the milk has been bottled and capped, it be placed in cold water since it cools much more rapidly under this condition than it does when placed directly in the refrigerator or ice box.

NEW TOBACCO VARIETY SHOULD RIPEN

The new 41-A tobacco variety grown by a large number of Boone County growers this year for the first time, should be ripe before cutting according to the County Agent's Office. This is a late maturing variety that gives highest quality and heaviest yield when ripe.

Boone County tobacco growers began cutting considerable acreages of tobacco the last few days. Recent rains have greatly increased the growth of the crop.

Following a 4-H club tobacco printing tour, Eugene Greenwell of Daviess county picked enough leaves to make 91 sticks.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh You Can't Beat a Farmer for Optimism!

You can't help but admire the farmer's way of reasoning. Just take Bert Childers, for example. "Joe," he said, as we took a turn around his dairy barn, "I'm a good deal like old Micawber in David Copperfield! I just know something would turn up to help me out on this milk-production." "What's that?" I asked him. "What ought to know, brother. The dried grains and yeast the Kentucky brewers are providing us dairy farmers to boost the protein content of our feed mix.

"With no soybean meal, no cottonseed meal and the peas cropped short as Thad Phibbe's hairdo, I'd a' been sunk without it!" "Oh sure," I said, coming to after admiring the cleanliness of Bert's milkroom. "From where I sit, it looks like the brewers found the answer just in the nick of time, too!"

Prayer of Mother

Mrs. Leatha Losey

"MY PRAYER"

Our Father who art in heaven,
Hallowed be thy name.
Watch over our loved one's in service.
No more may they be tortured and slain.
Help us to work and toil Father,
In this war torn sinful world,
While our loved ones' from us are taken.
And to a battle field are hurled.
Watch over our boys Father,
Wherever they may be.
In the air, at the battle front,
Or on the deep blue sea.
Protect them dear Father,
Not our will, but, "Thy Will be done."

Praying to see her loving son.
When war's are all over,
May we be free from strife.
We'll praise thee dear Saviour,
For a new and happy life.
May we be humble as little children.
Kneel down at thy feet.
There we can find comfort,
And everlasting peace.
In thy precious book we know,
We can find comfort and rest.
When the tempest roll away,
Our Father may be blessed.
Help us to walk in thy footsteps,
As Daniel did of old.
Help us to conquer our enemies,
Instead of condemning their souls.
May we ever be looking upward,
For we know you are coming soon.
Then all this sin and wickedness,
Will meet its fatal doom.
I pray you will help me, dear Father,
Souls for thee each day may I win.
Those out in the utmost darkness
Traveling the wide road of sin.
My Father may this world know,
I am living for thee each day.
Praying for my friends and loved ones.

In that old fashion way,
So lost soul just look to Jesus,
All for you he freely gave.
Yes, the rugged cross he's taken,
Bled and died you might be saved.

"MY SON"

When Uncle Sam drafted you my dear
He promised he'd let you come back in a year
He was only sending you to a training school,
To protect our own Red, White, and Blue.

I am proud to know that you willingly went,
Only two short furloughs at home you spent.
Just eight months in Camp Shelby you know,
Then to California you had to go.

You a soldier brave and true,
There was nothing that I could do.
But with constant fear I knew,
You soon would sail the ocean blue.

To a destination I knew not where,
I patiently waited a word to hear.
By the help of God with my uplifted hands,
I prayed that you would safely land.

Often in silence a tear drop fell,
Until the word came you were safe and well.
If you get back you can smile and say,
We have won the Victory of to-day.

You left April the seventh nineteen forty-one,
To muster out and shoulder your gun.
Though a great hero you may not be
You were not a slacker everyone can see.

Now that three years have slowly passed,
Since I pressed you close in my arms last,
I wonder how long the time will be,
Until you can return to me.

In looking around the house,
I see your clothes and toys.

It doesn't seem long to me,
Since you were a small boy.

I have missed you so much,
No matter what may be said.
I miss you playing your guitar,
Before tucking you into bed.

I miss you singing those old songs,
Like, "The Maple on the Hill,"
"Oh, my son," when night is falling
Everything seems so quiet and still.

Now that we are miles apart,
You far over the dashing foam.
I pray that God may speed the Victory,

So you can come sailing home.
Your loving Mother.

Glencoe R. 1

Mrs. Henry Gross has accepted a position as clerk in Mrs. J. W. Connelly's store at Glencoe.

A storm visited this community Monday evening blowing down and damaging tobacco and wrecked a barn belonging to Elbert Gross.

COST OF LIVING

During the last year, average prices of family living essentials have risen by 1.8 per cent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics Index. This compares with six per cent in the year ending July, 1943, and eleven per cent in the year ending July, 1942.

ALL SET FOR SCHOOL But Are They?

Off they go! New books... new clothes... but what about eyesight protection? Eighty-seven per cent of all that children learn they absorb through their eyes. Their ability to get ahead in school and win advancement in later life depends to a large extent upon their eyesight. So don't take chances. Give your children enough light and the right kind of light for easy seeing when they play or study at home. Better light means better grades!

Five Simple Things You Can Do to Assure Better Light for Home Study

- 1 Make sure bulbs in each reading or study lamp total at least 100 watts.
- 2 See that each lamp is properly shaded to prevent glare from exposed bulbs.
- 3 Keep bulbs, shades and reflector bowls clean. Replace blackened bowls.
- 4 Place lamps close enough to working area to provide maximum amount of useful light.
- 5 Provide enough general room illumination to prevent eye-tiring contrasts of light and shadow.

Greyhound Promises Best In Bus Travel After War

Revolutionary design and mechanical features that will bring new luxury and comfort to highway travel were disclosed as the Greyhound Bus Lines let contracts for the construction of experimental models of the postwar Compartment Super Coach.

Although the program is dependent on wartime priorities, O. S. Caesar, Greyhound vice-president who announced the plans, is hopeful that the new buses will be completed for road tests early next year.

From a mechanical standpoint, two different types of buses will be built. The Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation will manufacture models with air-cooled engines and many outstanding wartime developments of airplane construction. This will mark the first effort to adopt the air-cooled aviation engine to highway transportation. The other experimental buses, to be built by General Motors, will be diesel-powered and will follow methods of construction perfected by that organization.

Both types, which were styled by Raymond Loewy, noted industrial designer, in collaboration with Greyhound engineers and technical experts representing the manufacturers, will be similar in exterior appearance and luxury of interior appointments.

The new buses will have a seating capacity of more than 50 passengers, as compared with 41 in the cruiser type Super Coach, the most modern buses of the present Greyhound fleet. The improved design provides for wider seats, deeper and more restful cushioning, and more space between seats to allow greater relaxation and freedom of movement by passengers. The increase in the number of passengers carried will be gained by adding only slightly to the height, but not enlarging the width or length of the bus, in comparison with present Greyhound coaches.

The increase in passenger-carrying ability is achieved by placing the seats into three compartments and this novel arrangement actually gives 30 per cent more floor area. Of the three compartments, one will seat 17, another 21 and the third, 13. All seats will be placed so as to give passengers visibility since scenery is a major attraction of highway travel.

Regardless of extreme weather conditions in either summer or winter, passengers will be assured a maximum of comfort as a result of perfect air conditioning that includes the most modern methods of temperature and humidity control. Riding ease and "roadability" will be gained by an entirely new method in shock absorption that is brought about by a complete departure from conventional methods of weight distribution and suspension. A central doorway and a spacious interior airway leading to the three compartments will add to passengers' convenience when boarding or alighting from the bus.

One of the comments, which included toilet facilities, has the possibilities of being used for sleeper accommodations, or as buffet and smoking lounge. It may also be utilized for the storage of light express shipments and baggage, although passengers' luggage will be carried in lockers in the body walls.

For more than a year, a wooden "mock-up" of the bus body has been under constant study and subjected to exhaustive tests by Greyhound engineers and specialists in all phases of passenger accommodations. Numerous changes and improvements were made in these testing arrangements, the dimensions of seats, the lighting and interior appointments during this long period of experimentation. As a result, the new buses will offer higher standards for passenger comfort than have ever before been obtained in highway transportation.

Use of plastics and larger curved window surfaces give a new, modern streamlined appearance to the Compartment Super Coach. The driver's section will be almost entirely surrounded by plastic materials to permit a wider range of view.

Hydraulic gearshifts and air brakes now make modern buses easier to drive than most passenger cars, but the new Greyhound coach will incorporate still further refinements in the use of controls and instruments to simplify operation. All mechanical and design features of the new bus have been planned to insure a maximum degree of safety.

An outstanding feature of both models will be larger window spaces for increased visibility, combined with greater strength, obtained through the use of new light-weight, shock-resistant alloys. An important innovation in bus construction—the use of a newly developed demountable rear-end engine assembly—will be included in both types.

This engine assembly will be mounted on a double set of axles, each with dual wheels, and may be easily detached for maintenance and repair while the body remains in service with a replacement motor unit will completely eliminate motor noise and vibration.

Although the new bus model embodies the most modern trends of streamlining design, its styling is accomplished with the more practical considerations of passenger comfort and operating efficiency and also to conform with size limitations of state highway regulations.

WOMEN WORKERS

A downward trend in the employment of women in factories is reported by Miss Frieda Miller, new Director of the Women's Bureau, who says that there has been a seven per cent drop from the all-time peak of 4,500,000 in November, 1943.

MAN HAD BRICK IN HIS STOMACH FOR 10 YEARS

One man recently stated that for 10 years he felt like he had a brick in his stomach. This feeling was due to the lump of undigested food he always had inside of him. He was weak, worn out, headachy, swollen with gas and terribly constipated. Recently he started taking ERB-HELP and says the feeling like a brick in his stomach disappeared the second day. Bowels are regular now, gas and headaches are gone and he feels like a new man. ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP from Jones Drug Store.

Pioneer Memorial State Historical Shrine

By RUSSELL DYCHIE, Director Kentucky State Parks

Most people of Kentucky are familiar with the palace of Old Fort Harrod, and the log buildings within that inclosure, but not so many know about the Mansion Museum, pictured above, nor the Lincoln Marriage Temple in which the parents of the immortal Abraham Lincoln had been married by Rev. Head, nor the Federal and other monuments, the Doctors' Shop and many other things that make up the Pioneer Memorial Historical Shrine at Harrodsburg, operated by the Kentucky Division of Parks. But each year more and more people are becoming acquainted with them, and Pioneer Memorial is to Kentuckians one of the most popular historical shrines in the State.

Harrodsburg people will claim, and I believe rightly so, that more Kentucky history has been learned here than in any hundred school rooms in the Commonwealth. No one can visit Pioneer Memorial, look upon the many shrines it contains, read the dedicatory bronze tablets and learn from them the story of important people and significant incidents of the early days, without being imbued with renewed interest in Kentucky history and development.

In Old Fort Harrod, built near the site of the original Fort, Kentucky's first permanent settlement, faithfully reproducing it on a slightly smaller scale, will be found the old school house and other buildings furnished in the mode of pioneer days and items used in the homes and in home industry of that time; while in the Mansion Museum rooms are dedicated to periods of our country's history, including the early Federal Union of States. There are the Lincoln Room, the Confederate Room, the George Rogers Clark Room, while on the second floor are collections containing most every type of gun, many old and rare musical instruments, Indian relics, rare bottles, historical books and many articles of unusual interest. Many hours can be spent profitably by persons of all ages, at the Pioneer Memorial State Historical Shrine at Harrodsburg.

fish, butter, margarine, cheese and cheese products and evaporated milk the Office of Price Administration announced this week.

No additional red stamps will be validated for use before October 1, 1944, OPA said.

Tire Quotas Announced

Tire quotas for September were announced last week by the Office of Price Administration.

The new figures, OPA said, underlining the continued necessity for large-scale recapping.

Principal changes from the August quota are a decrease in passenger car and motorcycle tires from 1,950,000 to 1,600,000 and a slight increase in heavy truck tires from 85,000 to 102,000.

The cut in passenger-car and motorcycle tire quota will not mean any corresponding cut in eligibility, OPA said, but it does mean a still more difficult job for local War Price and Rationing Boards in deciding who among the many applicants for new tires are the most essential drivers.

Concord Grapes

Price control on Concord grapes sold for home consumption has been suspended, the OPA has announced, until the new prices for the 1944 crop are established. New crop prices are expected to be announced within the next two weeks. The action became effective August 26, 1944.

Work Gloves Prices Set

An increase of four per cent in manufacturers' dollar - and - cents prices for staple work gloves and an increase of three per cent in wholesale dollar-and-cents prices for these gloves were announced this week by the OPA. At the same time, OPA announced that there would be no price increase to consumers for staple work gloves.

Food Point Changes

Three processed foods—dry beans, fruit butters and prune juice—will be added to those which have a zero point value during the ration period beginning September 3 (Sunday) and ending September 30, OPA has announced.

Ration points will continue on all varieties of canned dry beans; the zero point value applies only to raw dry beans, regardless of variety or color. The zero point value on fruit butters applies to apple, apricot, grape and peach butters.

Pineapple juice shows the only increase of major importance to housewives, advancing from 15 points for the No. 2 (18-ounce) can to 25 points.

The point values of small size containers of tomato juice (up to 14 ounces) are adjusted upward, and the ration values of small containers of tomato pulp or puree are adjusted downward.

FLIERS COME HOME

Under the new Army Air Force personnel distribution plan, some 5,000 fliers are returning from overseas for "processing." The War Department says that some men are being brought home for thirty days' rest and recuperation even before completing their required number of missions overseas.

NAVY OPPOSES

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal has written the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate, opposing repeal of railroad land grant freight rates to the Government, declaring that it would cost the Navy eighty to ninety million dollars a year during the war period. He refers to a special fifty per cent discount on war supply shipments upon rail routes over land originally given to the railroads by the Government.

DAVID ANOINTED KING

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 16:1-13, 14-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.—1 Samuel 16:7.

Outward appearance, by which man judges, is almost always deceptive. God knows the heart and is able to evaluate a man correctly. In calling David, the ruddy shepherd boy, to be king, God cut across the ideas of men, but He was, as always, right.

I. A Man from God's Storehouse (v. 1).—"I have provided."

God's great storehouses are full of blessings, material and spiritual, but He also has a great and constantly replenished reserve of men and women from which He calls and sends them forth. The thing we must guard against is the setting of hindrances in His holy way, either in our own lives or in the lives of others.

A man power shortage is very serious, for it simply cuts off the stream of production without which action becomes impossible. There should never be any shortage of man power in the Lord's work, and there would never be any if all His creation were willingly subject to Him.

God was ready to set aside Saul, and He had David ready. Samuel the prophet was still grieving over Saul's failure. In a sense that feeling for Saul was most commendable, but it could not go on.

When men, even of our own families or circle of friends, rebel against the Lord, we must not let our grief hold us back, but move on with the man of God's choice.

II. A Man Who Had to Be Sought (v. 25).—"Send and fetch him."

Usually those who are quick to offer themselves for an important place are not the ones for the place. And those who are sitting around doing nothing but waiting for some honor to come to them, are not the ones to choose.

"Let the office seek the man" is the highest ground; surely it must be the proper procedure in spiritual activity.

David might well have wanted to be at the place of sacrifice and the feast that day, but since all his family were there, and someone had to care for the sheep, he did it. A man like that, hard at his work, is well worth seeking when something important needs to be done.

The interesting story of Samuel's effort to find one among Jesse's seven sons (vv. 6-10) is well worth reading. Samuel still had the idea that a king must be prepossessing and able to thrill men by his appearance. He should have learned better from his experience with Saul.

If you have any farm machinery that needs welding we are equipped to do any kind of welding.

We Can Weld Anything
Except a Broken Heart

MICHEL'S WELDING CO.
722 WASHINGTON ST. COVINGTON
CO 0670

God put him right (v. 7), and we do well to renew our thinking on that point. The world is in a place where many leaders must be chosen in the months and years just ahead. Will we be eager and willing to have God lead us in our choice? Or will we be swayed by personal interests or political expediency?

III. A Man of Spirituality (vv. 11-13).—"The Spirit of the Lord came upon David."

The Holy Spirit, ever active in all periods of Bible history, became the abiding presence in the believer's heart after Pentecost, but during the Old Testament period He came on chosen individuals for a particular work. As David was anointed king the Spirit came upon him for that service. In spite of his failings (when he forgot the Lord) David was throughout his reign a spiritually-minded man who wanted God's will and His glory to be uppermost.

God never calls a man without enabling him for his task, and the chief and indispensable enabling is that of the Holy Spirit's power. Like David, we may enter upon a God-appointed responsibility without fear or question, simply trusting the Holy Spirit to take, transform, empower, and use us for God's glory.

IV. A Man Willing to Serve (vv. 14-18).

Upon Saul there came tremendous moods of despondency. These were "from the Lord" (v. 14) in the sense that God permitted His disobedient and rejected servant to suffer the result of his self-will and failure. How awful it is for anyone to be out of the will of God and conscious of His disapproval.

David, the sweet singer of Israel, was willing to serve with his voice and his harp. How many thousands of times David has served all the generations since with his psalms. He was a man of gifts, gladly given for the Lord and for others.

Bear in mind that while David was not yet publicly crowned, he was already anointed to be king. Yet he was ready to serve the one whose place he was to take even in his hours of dejection and hateful ill-will.

New Homes Top After-War List

Electric Appliances Among First Things Women Will Require.

WASHINGTON.—Washing machines, electric irons and mechanical refrigerators, in that order, are called for in the postwar plans of most housewives, but a large number prefer to build or buy a house before shopping for appliances, a nation-wide survey of consumer requirements has shown.

Conducted by the Office of Civilian Requirements, the survey, embracing 11 major household appliances, concluded that, contrary to most expectations, there will not be a wild buying rush when things are available and that the public is willing to wait.

Release of the survey coincided with these developments:

1. William Y. Elliott, newly appointed director of the Civilian Requirements Office, said he and his associates were "looking to the production of only those items which are necessary to the civilian economy so that the need for the ordinary necessities in human living can be met." He made it clear that frills were out and would stay out for the duration.

No Sewing Machines.

2. The War Production board announced that resumption of manufacture of sewing machines—No. 7 on the public's list of wants—must be postponed indefinitely because of shortages of manpower and parts.

The OCR's survey showed that after washing machines, electric irons and mechanical refrigerators, the public wants cooking stoves, electric toasters, radios, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, heating stoves, electric fans and water heaters—in that order.

Indicating that there will be no general buying rush when civilian goods are available again, 56 per cent of those interviewed said they would not buy immediately even if there were plenty of all items in the stores. The others said they would.

Forty-two per cent of the 4,488 families interviewed said they wanted one of the three items most in demand because the old one was unsatisfactory; 56 per cent just don't have one now. Difficulties with commercial laundry service were the main reason for wanting a washing machine.

Radio Tubes Major Concern.

Elliott declared that providing radio tubes and batteries for farm radios was now a major concern to the requirements committee because of "overwhelming" military demands for the facilities needed to manufacture them.

He reported "ground gaining" on production of infant's and other essential clothing, short for many months.

Substantial gains, he said, have been made in getting production of laundry and dish-cleaning equipment. He agreed that further deterioration of these services would "breed absenteeism" in war plants, particularly among women workers who are also housewives.

One out of every 10 families interviewed planned to acquire a home after the war before buying appliances, with 71 per cent already saving their money for this purpose.

Four per cent of the potential home owners planned to spend $9,000 or more; 9 per cent will spend less than $3,000; 14 per cent will spend between $3,000 and $4,000.

Nazi Clandestine Radio

In U. S. Balked by FCC

WASHINGTON.—George E. Sterling, chief of the Federal Communications commission's radio intelligence division, revealed that the clandestine radio station operated from within the German embassy at the outbreak of the war was located and jammed by the FCC before it had ever made contact with Germany.

State department orders prevented an immediate raid on the embassy because of possible reprisals against our diplomats interned in Germany, Mr. Sterling told the house FCC investigating committee.

Larger Belly Tanks Now

Boost Range of Mustangs A FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND.

American Mustangs, the world's fastest long range fighters, now are equipped with larger belly tanks, giving them an even greater range, it was disclosed.

The new cigar-shaped detachable tanks, carried one under each wing, increase the total gas load by 66 gallons. They are jettisoned when they are empty or when enemy fighter planes are engaged.

The new tanks enabled the P-51s to fly a 1,400-mile round trip to Poland recently.

Second Cup of Coffee

Brings Award of $25,000

CHICAGO.—An argument over a second cup of coffee wound up with a jury award to Harold Winters of $25,000. In his suit against the restaurant, Winters said he was refused a second cup in the coffee-riddled days of Jan. 1943. He shared his wife's first cup, got into an argument with the waiter and suffered a fracture of the leg. Waiters are not as courteous as they used to be, it seems.

HERE'S THE WAY TO MAKE FALL PIGS PAY

The following four points on feeding and management of fall pigs which, if followed, will help you keep the pigs healthy and produce pork with less feed and more profit, are offered by Prof. R. W. Pifer of the Kentucky College of Agriculture:

(1) Farrow the pigs in clean quarters and keep them away from worm infested lots and ponds until they weigh at least 100 pounds. Many of the little pigs raised in old hog lots die or become so wormy and diseased that profits are completely wiped out. By farrowing and raising the little pigs in new lots and keeping them away from old hog beds, lanes and ponds, it is possible to market one or two more pigs to the litter, save one-fifth of the feed and finish the pigs for market in 5 to 6 months. The feed saved and the additional pork produced by raising pigs the healthy, sanitary way may amount to as much as $100 a litter.

(2) Early this fall seed at least one acre of winter pasture for each three sows due to farrow. With normal fall rains this will produce enough forage for the sows and pigs throughout the suckling and fattening periods. Balbo rye seeded in late August or early September is one of the best winter pastures for hogs. Wheat, barley and crimson clover are also very good. Some farmers like to seed vetch with rye and other small grains. Good pasture replaces up to one-half of the protein supplement and from 10 to 15 percent of the grain, a saving amounting to $30 to $50 for each litter raised.

(3) A week or so before the sow farrows, turn her into a new hog pasture so the wet grass will wash the worm eggs from her legs, under and sides. Or better still, wash the legs and under with soap and warm water. A sow confined in an old hog lot has millions of worm eggs clinging to her body. Unless these eggs are washed off before farrowing the little pigs get wormy with their first mouthfuls of milk.

(4) Feed protein supplement and limestone-salt mineral mixture with corn and other grain. Feeding corn or other grains alone without supplement and minerals wastes nearly 100 bushels of grain to the litter. Three to five dollars spent for a 100-pound bag of tagage soybean oil meal, or other good protein supplement will save from five to ten bushels of corn and will put a top finish on the hogs in from 30 to 90 fewer days.

SHELBY COUNTY TO SOW MORE ALFALFA

Drouth has stimulated interest in alfalfa growing in Shelby county, says County Agent John W. Holland. Farmers who had alfalfa got a good first crop, some hay at the second cutting, and now rain has come to make a third crop. Those who depended on lespedeza are short of hay.

Shelby county farmers ordinarily have about 40,000 tons of hay for winter feed, but Holland thinks they may not have more than a third of that amount this year. They already have been paying $25 to $35 a ton for hay from Indiana, Ohio, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

8-OZ. PACKAGES

Packages of candy and other food stuffs weighing eight ounces or less, may no longer be mailed to members of the armed forces overseas (except at Christmas) without a request from the addressee. Foodstuffs and candy not exceeding five pounds and not too bulky will be accepted for mailing if a request from the addressee is presented. However Christmas packages may be sent without request between September 15th and October 15th.

MONEY IN TOMATOES

Despite a late spring followed by drought, Callaway county growers of green-wrap tomatoes made money, according to County Agent S. V. Foy. Because of low price, the market closed at the peak of production; after the Callaway County Vegetable Growers Cooperative had shipped 45 carloads of tomatoes from Murray.

FIRE PREVENTION WINS 4-H AWARDS

In recognition of the fire prevention activities of Kentucky 4-H clubs the Farm Fire Underwriters Association has announced that it has awarded scholarships to the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics to three girls and one boy. All are outstanding 4-H club members who have just finished high school and are ready for college.

They are Margaret Campbell, Logan county, a graduate of the Russellville high school and state 4-H club clothing champion last year; Ruby E. Hampton, Oldham county, member of the Pewee Valley 4-H club and a graduate of the Crestwood high school; William Chapman Loyal, graduate of the Greensburg high school who lives on 180-acre general farm, and Mae Kathryn Blackford, Calhoun high school graduate.

In addition to outstanding club work, including competition of many club projects, the four have made a special study of farm safety and fire prevention, according to J. W. Whitehouse, state club leader.

Record Attendance Is Expected at Fair Sat.

Record attendance is expected at the Boone County Fair and Picnic to be held at the 4-H and Utopia Club Fair Grounds near Burlington on this Saturday, September 16th according to the 4-H and Utopia Council. The premium list and number of classes and special events will also set new records.

Committees from all sections of the county will supervise the program and will donate generously of their services to make the fair a success.

Open to the World classes in canning, sewing, Style Revues, baking, vegetables, fruits, field crops, poultry, dairy cattle, sheep and horse and pony shows, baby shows, and special events have been added for competition and for entertainment throughout the day.

The special 4-H, Utopia, and Homemakers Clubs' exhibits will also make up a large and important part of the fair.

A team pulling contest was added last week. A $60.00 stake for the best teams will be divided between the light and heavy classes. All owners of good pulling teams are invited to compete.

The fair will open with a team pulling contest at 10:00 Eastern War Time. Entries in all other classes are to be made by 11:00 a. m. Special events will start at 11:00 a. m.; the Baby Show and livestock show at 1:00 p. m.; and the 4-H and Open Class Style Revues and Horse and Pony shows at 3:00 p. m.

The Utopia Club will be in charge of eats and refreshments. Ralph Keim's rides, the Boone County School Band and other special concessions and entertainment will add to the day's attractions.

The Fair and County Picnic represents the annual get-together and home coming for all Boone County people and their friends. The committees in charge are anxious that everyone attend and to take part.

Sewing Machine Clinic

Boone Homemakers' clothing leaders will have a sewing machine clinic next Monday, September 18th. Two leaders from each of the eleven clubs will meet at the Florence Town Hall at 10:30 a. m. (E.W.T.) to 3:00 p. m.

Sewing machines will be taken apart and cleaned by leaders under the direction of Miss Dorothy Threlkeld, Clothing Specialist, University of Kentucky. Leaders will also learn the use of machine appliances by making bedroom slippers.

Sewing machine clinics will be held in each club during October.

Oak Island Homemakers Elect Officer For Year

The Oak Island Homemakers' held the monthly meeting recently. The following officers were elected Mrs. Walter Linville, President; Miss Olga Douglas, Vice-President; Mrs. Albert Martin, Secretary-Treasurer.

Receives "Wings"

Lt. Stanley L. McElroy

Lt. Stanley L. McElroy received his "Wings" and commission as Second Lieutenant at Lubbock Field, Texas on September 8th.

He is spending a short furlough with his mother, Mrs. Hazel McElroy, before going to another base for further training.

Forty-Five Home Economics Leaders To Assist At Fair

Home Economics leaders in 4-H, Utopia, and Homemakers will direct the Home Economics exhibits at the fair Saturday. These leaders will see that each exhibit brought to their booth is properly labeled and arranged and that exhibits do not leave the booths until 5 p. m.

Twenty-six adult 4-H leaders will have charge of the 4-H Home Economics exhibits. Utopia exhibits will be directed by eight Utopia members; while Homemakers and "Open to the World" classes will be arranged by eleven Boone Homemakers.

Mrs. George Moritz is chairman of the 4-H Club Home Economics classes with Mrs. R. V. Lents serving as assistant secretary. Chairman of the Open Class Home Economics are Mrs. Leo Flynn and Mrs. Courtney Kelly.

Judah Benjamin To Be Guest Speaker

Mr. Judah Benjamin, a native of Iran, will be guest speaker of the Willing Worker's Class at the Christian Church on September 21st at 8:30 p. m.

He is thoroughly familiar with conditions in the near East, and can give a very clear picture of the position of various countries around the Mediterranean, not from a military angle exclusively, but from the viewpoint of the peoples concerned. The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting. Students, especially should find it very helpful and interesting.

Use Of Blue Tokens Discontinued Oct. 1

Discontinuance of the use of one-points blue tokens, effective October 1, was announced this week by OPA Administrator Chester Bowles.

Removal of practically all canned and bottled vegetables and fruit spreads and specialties from the Processed rationing program on September 17 makes this step possible, Mr. Bowles said.

OPA explained that under the new plan, the following points should be kept in mind:

1. Consumers may use their blue tokens just as they have always used them, until September 17.
2. Beginning September 17, retailers will not give blue tokens to consumers for ration change.
3. From September 17 through September 30, shoppers will be able to spend their blue tokens only in groups of ten. If necessary, during this period, they may pool tokens to make up units of ten. Fewer than ten tokens cannot be used.
4. Housewives should be sure to use all their blue tokens by September 30, because after that date they cannot use them.

County Fair To Have Team Pulling Contest; $60 Prize

The Team Pulling Contest scheduled to be held at the Boone County Fair and Picnic at the 4-H and Utopia Club Fair Grounds near Burlington on this Saturday, September 16th is attracting wide attention according to the committee in charge. More than $60.00 in cash prizes have been raised and large numbers of entries are expected. The best teams in the county are expected to compete.

The contest is open to all teams. Both a light team class for teams under 2400 pounds and a heavy team class for teams over 2400 pounds are offered. Prizes for each class include $20.00 cash, first prize and $10.00 cash for second prize. There are no entry fees or other restrictions. All teams must be entered by 10:00 a. m. (E.W.T.).

Rules for the contest are as follows:

1. Distance of pull 10 feet.
2. Two pulls and out.
3. Hitting horses on pull is out.
4. Crossing side-line counts one pull.
5. Pulls start at 3000 lbs. for light teams and 4000 lbs. for heavy teams, with additional weights added until the next to last team fails to pull the 10 feet.
6. Light class entrants will weigh at least Bros' scales, Burlington.

The committee in charge of the contest are Edgar Graves, John E. Crigler, Ted Cress, and Lillard Scott.

Former Pastor Finds Son In Hospital In England

In that one chance in a million, a Louisville minister now serving as a first lieutenant in the Chaplains Corps came across his wounded son in a United States hospital in England.

A letter from Lt. Clyde L. Breland, Sr., former pastor of the Walton Baptist Church, describing the dramatic meeting, reached his wife, Mrs. Bessie Breland, 1481 Cypress, Louisville before the telegram from the War Department.

The telegram in the usual pattern, of "regret to inform you your son was wounded August 18 in France" came two weeks after the letter from the chaplain describing the chance meeting with his son, Sgt. Clyde L. "Buster" Breland, Jr., age 21.

Father Excited Too
"I saw him yesterday and he was eating supper as I walked into the ward," Lieutenant Breland wrote. "He was so excited that he spilled his coffee over the sheet. He looks splendid and no doubt will be running all over the place—with my bicycle—within a few weeks. We have so much for which to be grateful, don't we? He expects to write to you as soon as he is permanently (Continued on Page 4)

Sheriff Jake Williams Suffers Fatal Heart Attack Last Wednesday

Sheriff J. T. (Jake) Williams

Daughter Is Named By Judge Cropper To Fill Unexpired Term

A heart attack late Wednesday ended the career of Boone County Sheriff J. T. (Jake) Williams, in his office at Burlington. He had no warning of the impending attack, for he had been working in the office the entire day.

The 53-year-old public figure, who became nationally known through his role in the famous Kiger murder case, was stricken as he pulled down a window shade in his office while preparing to go to his home about five o'clock.

A native of Union in Boone county, Sheriff Williams had been active in Democratic politics for many years. Prior to being elected Sheriff in 1941, he had served as deputy under former Sheriff F. M. Walton. His term runs until January 1, 1946.

He served in the Army one year during World War I. Later he and two of his brothers, Eli, now a resident of Covington, and Courtney, who died in 1935, operated a farm at Bullittsville. When Jake became sheriff, another brother, James R. Williams, of Erlanger, became associated in operation of the farm, which they sold a year ago.

Blow to County
Sheriff Williams was a member of the Modern Woodmen. County Boone Post, American Legion, and Judge C. L. Cropper, who said he had talked to Jake an hour before his death and had not heard him complain of any illness, said, "his death is a great blow to the county. He was well like and respected." Words of sorrow came from many other northern Kentucky officials.

The sheriff and his family lived on Gallatin street in Burlington. He had purchased the home there after selling his farm.

Christian Church Revival Closes With 29 Additions

The Revival at the Christian Church under the leadership of Rev. Chas. Thompson of Murray, Ky., and Rev. Geo. S. Caroland of this place, closed Sunday night, Sept. 3rd with twenty-six additions.

MISSIONARY MEETING

The Missionary Society of the Walton Baptist Church will have an all-day meeting, Thursday September 21 at the church building. Business session will start at 11:00 a. m. with a covered dish lunch at noon. An entertaining program has been arranged for the afternoon. All members and visitors are invited.

IN ACTION

Five Army Corps have been identified in action in Northern France. They are the Fifth, Seventh, Eighth, Twelfth and Nineteenth Corps.

DAUGHTER NAMED SHERIFF

Miss Glenrose Williams was appointed Tuesday by County Judge Carroll Cropper to complete the unexpired term of her father, Sheriff J. T. Williams.

Miss Williams, who is 23, had served as deputy in her father's office since Deputy William Green entered the Army in February, 1942. She is a graduate of Hebron High School and the Y.M.C.A. Business School, Cincinnati.

Sheriff Glenrose Williams will be assisted by Deputy Irvin Bousie, prominent Boone county public figure who has been in the office since the late Sheriff Jake Williams became sheriff. The unexpired term will end January 1, 1946.

Boone county now has the first woman sheriff in its history.

Besides his brothers, he leaves his widow, Mrs. Edith Carpenter Williams; three daughters, Glenrose, Osceola and Patricia Williams and four sisters, Mrs. Alva Dickerson and Mrs. Lane Riggs, Erlanger, and Mrs. R. O. Corbin and Miss Lottie Williams, Cincinnati.

Funeral services were held at a funeral home in Erlanger at 3 p. m. Saturday. Burial was in Florence cemetery.

Active pallbearers were Eli and J. R. Williams, his brothers; Boone County Judge C. L. Cropper, Deputy Sheriff Irvin Bousie, County Clerk C. D. Benson and Proctor Brothers, Lima burg businessmen.

Thanks For Co-operation

The Parishmen and Pastor of St. Patrick Church, Verona, and All Saints Mission, Walton, desire to express their sincerest and deepest appreciation to all who assisted their recent Labor Day Outing.

They are especially grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Homer Cline who so generously donated for the day their beautiful grounds, their spacious hall and equipment, and asked nothing in return.

The success attained on Labor Day was due to the good will and wholehearted assistance of these and many other of our friends. We thank you, and may God bless you. John T. Jobst, Pastor

LETTER FROM W. A. C.

Following is a letter received from Pvt. Mable Kittle, W. A. C. who is stationed in Grenier Field, N. H.

Dear Sir:

Just a few lines to thank you for sending me the Advertiser. I do enjoy it very much. By reading the paper I can keep in touch with the many nice friends I have in Walton. Although I do get many nice letters from them, they can't take the place of a home paper.

I have now been in the W. A. C. for 5 months and think the girls are doing grand jobs, we all have that feeling of helping to win this war, so we all can be home again.

I am now taking my over seas training.

Again I thank you.

LETTER RECEIVED FROM SGT. WALTER A. BROOKS

The following is a letter received by his family from Sgt. Walter A. Brooks who is in Italy.

Dear Family,

Received your letter saying you have not heard from me for some time. I was in the hospital for about a month. I was hit in the arm and side but am O. K. now and back with my outfit. I had a pass to Rome, and it sure was something to see. I have never been able to locate anyone that I know. I received the paper and was glad to read the news from home.

We sure were glad to get out of Anzio and being in one fox hole for thirty days was no fun. We captured a lot of German guns and equipment and it looks like the Jerries are about finished. I sure hope so I have been ready to come home for a long time.

Will close for this time. Best regards to all and write soon.

As ever, Walter

It's HOUSE CLEANING TIME for Lamps and Fixtures, Too!

YOU would be surprised how much dust and dirt hold back light from your reading lamp. Just by washing the bulb and diffusing bowl you can get 25 to 30% more useable light. So don't let accumulated grime rob you of vitally needed eye-sight protection. Wash bulbs, bowls, reflectors and enclosing globes regularly and get all the light you pay for.

Other Ways to Get More Light from Your Present Equipment

If lamp shades are dark or turned yellow inside you may be losing as much as 50% of the light. Clean or brush shades regularly, or if they are too bad relime them or replace them with fresh ones.

Replace blackened bulbs with bright new bulbs of the same wattage and you'll get up to 25% more useful light at no additional cost. Tinted bulbs also waste light. Replace them with inside frosted white bulbs.

Place lamps to make light more useful. By rearranging furniture, one lamp can often serve two or more people effectively. But be sure it isn't too far away from either.

CAUTION: Always disconnect lamps before washing, and be sure bulbs and fixtures are dry before reconnecting.

4-H CLUB EXHIBITS FEATURE STATE FAIR

Displays of 4-H club canned and baked foods, clothing and home furnishings and club livestock shows were features of the Kentucky State Fair.

Thirty-one counties were represented in the 4-H club clothing show and club girls from 24 counties sent canned and baked foods to the fair. Approximately 150 blue ribbons were passed out to the girls.

Nineteen counties sent 4-H club stock judging teams to the fair. Mason county furnished the champion fat stock judging team, Graves county the top dairy cattle judging team, and Grayson county the best team in judging poultry. Madison county was second in judging fat stock, with other teams ranking in this order: Garrard, Russell, Franklin, Green, Webster, Caldwell, Henderson and Clark.

In the dairy cattle contest Warren county was second; Owen county, third; Casey county, fourth, and Bracken county, fifth. Hopkins county was second in judging chickens; Pike county, third, and Floyd county fourth.

Eugene Ring and Roy Rice of the champion Mason county team ranked first and second respectively as individual judges of fat stock. Best individual judge of dairy cattle was Marion Floyd of Warren county, with Carmon Cursinger of Graves county second-best. Thomas Embury and Lucille Layman of Grayson county ranked first and second respectively as poultry judges.

Earl Rhea Jean of Jefferson county had the senior and grand champion cow in the 4-H Jersey show and Will Ed Warren of Graves county had the junior champion. John E. Kalmey of Jefferson county won all championships in the 4-H Holstein show.

Monroe Miller, Jefferson county, won all top awards on Duroc 4-H hogs and Owen Dale Lea, Bracken county, and John A. Roederer, Jefferson county, divided awards in the Poland-China show.

COOKED A FINE DINNER THEN THREW IT TO DOG

One lady recently stated that she used to throw her own dinner to the dog most of the time. It made her sick just to look at anything to eat. She was swollen with gas, full of blood, had headaches, felt worn out and was badly constipated. Finally she got ERB-HELP and says she now eats everything in sight and digests it perfectly. Bowels are regular and normal. She is enjoying life once more and feels like "some other woman since taking this New Compound."

IMPROVED METHODS PAY FLOCK OWNERS

Flock owners using improved methods suggested by county agents and the Kentucky College of Agriculture last year gathered an average of 175 eggs a hen and had an average income of $4.45 a hen above cash expenses. This was $1.23 higher than in the previous year. One hundred and nineteen flocks in 47 counties containing 14,099 hens were used to demonstrate that good flocks pay when given proper care.

During the year field agents of the college held 510 meetings attended by 10,156 poultry raisers, and visited 1,874 farms, 259 hatcheries, 117 produce dealers, 87 feed and lumber dealers and 12 producers of broilers. An egg-grading school was held at the college, and the annual poultry short course was attended by 98 persons from 40 Kentucky counties and from Indiana and Illinois.

COLLEGE EXPENDS ITS FARM RADIO SERVICE

Dean Thomas Cooper announces that the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics is expanding its farm service radio program to six days a week. A Saturday program will be started Sept. 16 devoted to the interests of the home and other related farm activities. This program, which will be a regular feature at 12:50 o'clock each Saturday, will be given by Miss Orin Johnson, assistant in public information at the college.

The Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics started its farm radio program on April 1, 1929, through the cooperation of the late Robert W. Bingham. The program has a vast audience in Kentucky and other states reached by WHAS, Louisville.

TOBACCO "FEEL" TELLS MOISTURE CONDITIONS

The following is the first of a series of articles on tobacco curing, furnished by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

The effect upon tobacco barns of firing and of opening and closing ventilators during different kinds of shapers can be determined if barns are equipped with means for determining the condition of the inside and outside atmosphere. Fortunately cured tobacco is so sensitive to changes in the moisture content of the surrounding air that no means is needed other than the "feel" of the tobacco itself.

A few leaves of cured tobacco, such as can be obtained from flyings at cutting time, hung outdoors can be used as sensitive indicators of the moisture content of the outdoor air.

The outdoor leaves should be protected from the sun and rain by hanging them under an open shed near the barn, or any other suitable place such as the back porch of the farmer's home. Inside the barn a small rope or stout cord upon which samples of cured tobacco may be tied, can be looped through pulleys, screw eyes, or fence staples fastened to the rafters. About five such ropes should be equally spaced from side to side of a 40 ft. wide barn. A stone tied to the bottom end of the loop, which should extend all the way to the ground, will keep the ropes straight while the tobacco is being hung.

Roll not more than four or five cured leaves into a small piece of tobacco cotton or similar light weight fabric to form a parcel shaped somewhat like a cigarette. Tie three or four of these samples on each rope so that when the ropes are drawn up into the barn the samples will be spaced at different tier levels between the top and bottom of the barn. Tie the ends of the tobacco cotton to the ropes so that no crotch is formed to catch on the tobacco plants or sticks as the samples are raised and lowered in the barn.

If four samples are tied on five ropes, then there will be twenty different places within the barn where the condition of the tobacco can be determined within a few minutes at any time of day and night, and more accurately than by any other method, because the feel of the tobacco itself will tell exactly how the tobacco feels. The condition of the tobacco inside the barn compared to the feel of tobacco outside the barn will tell whether the air inside is more or less moist than the air outside, and also, whether the ventilators should be opened or closed, or whether the tobacco should be fired.

LISTS AMOUNTS OF FEEDS STOCK NEED

As a guide to farmers who would balance livestock numbers and feed supplies the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics lists the amounts of feeds, other than pasture, needed each season for each kind of stock.

A mature milk cow or dairy bull needs about two tons of hay, 27 bushels of corn and 500 pounds of protein supplement. A yearling heifer or bull requires a ton and a half of hay, 14 bushels of corn and 200 pounds of supplement, and a dairy calf eats about half of a ton of hay, 7 bushels of corn and 200 pounds of supplement.

A beef cow or bull needs a ton and a half of hay to go through the winter, and to feed a beef calf takes a ton of hay and 10 bushels of corn. Wintering and finishing a yearling requires 10 bushels of corn, 120 lbs. of supplement and a ton of hay. It takes about 14 bushels of corn, 25 pounds of supplement and a fifth of a ton of hay to put 100 pounds of gain on two-year-old steers and heifers, drylot feeding.

To go through the winter and up to grass time, a ewe and lamb require about a bushel and a half of corn and a seventh of a ton of hay.

A sow and litter to weaning time need about 24 bushels of corn and 100 pounds of supplement; a pig from weaning to 220 pounds, 13 bushels of corn and 56 pounds of supplement; and a feeder pig eats per 100 pounds of gain about 7 bushels of corn and 25 pounds of supplement.

A medium-size horse or mule doing medium work eats in a year about 30 bushels of corn and two tons of hay, and a colt under working age get about 15 bushels of corn and a ton and a half of hay.

One hundred laying hens will eat 80 pounds of corn and 3,000 pounds of protein supplement feed a year, and 100 pullets, from chicks to laying age, will consume something like 14 bushels of corn and 800 pounds of supplement.

STORY-TELLER...

FROM

Army Back!

..there's a "laugh-in-Bloom" every evening that Louisville Times readers wouldn't miss for the world!

HARRY BLOOM... The Louisville Times' "Off-the-Record" raconteur, knows more stories than the proverbial traveling salesman. By mailbag, telephone and personal call, bons mots twinkle into Harry's office daily. Bloom's only regret is that so many stories are "out-of-bounds" ... a bit on the shady side, or apt to prove painful to someone. These jokes are censored "for the book," to be compiled when time moses them with anonymity. From a lifetime in Louisville and a rich background of thirty-three years in the business, Harry could absent-mindedly drop down at any newspaper desk and turn out a spanking good day's work. Graduate of Vanderbilt University with a B.S. degree, he is married and has two lovely daughters.

Like his heir, Mr. Bloom parts his activities neatly on the side ... his main job being that of a serious editorial writer for The Times. Only a sideline is his widely known, "Off-the-Record." Seated behind his joke-strewn desk, you could easily mistake Harry Bloom for an M.D. If he hauled out a stethoscope you'd let him listen to your heart. The only difference is that when you have "cashed" your story, he'll reward you with a big, soul-satisfying laugh ... instead of the usual prescription. That's why readers urge their friends to "turn that story in to Harry Bloom." Many become regular contributors ... purely for the love of seeing a good story circulate.

More fruitful than a "Planter's Punch" are "Off-the-Record" moments in

NITRATE ON GRASS BRINGS BIG RETURNS

A profit of almost $20 for every dollar spent in ammonium nitrate was realized by R. O. Sims of the Worthington community in Jefferson county this year. Associate Farm Agent Henry C. Hensberry reports that Sims applied 100 pounds of the fertilizer per acre on half of a 20-acre field of orchard grass. The untreated half produced 10 bushels to the acre, while the other half yielded 30 bushels per acre. Sims said that he and many of his neighbors plan to use ammonium nitrate on all of their orchard grass seed next year.

ON KENTUCKY FARMS

Edwin Sharer of Butler county has purchased a pick-up hay baler that ties with twine instead of wire. County Agent R. B. Rankin says hybrid corn has been a "lifesaver" in Adair county.

Fifty thousand pounds of tobacco may be primed in Owsley county, thinks County Agent H. M. Williams. Harrison county farmers have been buying water in Cynthiana for 50 cents a 50-gallon barrel.

Prizes for the oldest and the most unattractive hats were awarded at a homemakers club style show in Davies county.

Fall and winter laying flocks in Woodford county will contain 10 to 15 percent fewer birds than a year ago.

Turkey raisers in Hancock county are giving phenothiazine to their birds.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"It sounds almost like a miracle, Judge... how did we ever do it?"

"American industry did it, Sally. When the Japs conquered the chief natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had dealt a death blow to our war effort. But, in less than two years, we are producing enough synthetic rubber in this country to supply all our military and essential civilian requirements."

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it, but the most practical process at the time required huge amounts of industrial alcohol ... far beyond the already overtaxed capacity of our industrial alcohol plants. So, overnight, our country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and produced hundreds of millions of gallons of the vitally needed alcohol."

"As a matter of fact, Sally, a high government official said recently ... synthetic rubber is from 6 to 9 months ahead of where it could have been if alcohol had not been available for butadiene production."

"We were really fortunate, weren't we Judge, to have a beverage distilling industry in existence ... able to help perform this great wartime miracle!"

Mrs. Anna Story spent a few days with her sister, Lena Harrell and family of Independence.

Miss Roberta Clifton spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Faye Miskell, of Glencoe.

VERONA

Cutting tobacco is the order of the day and many people will have to look for more house room.

David King, who spent two weeks at Camp Minnawana near Camp Shelby, Michigan, returned home last week reporting an enjoyable as well as a very instructive vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Barnes from Williamstown spent Sunday with W. E. Waller and family.

Mrs. Lula Hayworth and granddaughter Artie Lu of San Antonio, Texas are spending a few months with relatives and friends in Ind. and Ky. This week they will be with her brother Walter of Walton.

On Sunday Sept. 3 all (living) children of the late J. G. and Jane Vest met at Bethel with many of their relatives and friends. The children were: Mrs. Lula Vest Hayworth of San Antonio, Texas; Harve Vest, Richmond Grade; Walter Walton; Maude Ashman, Indianapolis, Ind.; and Steele of Elwood Ind.

School opened here Tuesday with three teachers as last year.

Tom Ryan had the misfortune to fall while hanging tobacco and hurt himself very badly. He hit the back of his head causing a concussion and requiring a stitch.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boyer entertained on Sunday her brother Raymond L. Spennberg and family of Worthville.

Rev. A. K. Johnson and Nell Hunt went to Christ Hospital on Saturday to see Edgar Powers who is in a serious condition.

On Friday of last week several neighbors of Willie Lundford gathered at his home to cut tobacco for him. He has been sick for some time.

OPA This Week

INSPECTION RECORDS NOT REQUIRED AFTER SEPT. 22

The inspection records will not be used in rationing after current "A" gasoline ration books expire, the OPA announced this week.

New "A" books will go into use on September 22. Along with the new "A" gasoline ration book, each motorist will receive a new Mileage Ration Record, which will thereafter serve as the record of gasoline rationing issued. As soon as this is done the old tire inspection record will no longer be necessary.

NO NEW SHOE STAMP IN PROSPECT

Because word has gotten around that a new shoe stamp is soon to be validated, some ration book holders are hastening to make use of the two stamps now available, Irwin N. Lee, District Shoe Rationing Officer, said this week.

Mr. Lee warned ration book holders that there is no reason to believe that a new stamp is soon to be validated.

"There has been no indication as to when a new shoe stamp is to be validated," Mr. Lee said. "If and when a stamp is validated other than Airplane Stamps 1 and 2, the public will be advised well in advance as has been the custom of the National Office."

USE YOUR TOKENS THEY ARE "CHANGE" It has been reported to the District OPA Office that some housewives are not turning in their red and blue tokens when they make purchases, preferring to spend whole stamps, and thus lose points, rather than carry tokens with them when they go to the grocery store. Housewives who follow such a practice sacrifice valuable food points unnecessarily, OPA said. It is no more trouble to carry tokens in one's purse than it is to carry pennies, and they are used for the same purpose—to provide "change."

USED CAR REGULATION AMENDED

Important changes which affect dealers in used passenger cars are contained in Amendment 2 to MPR 540, S. J. Yearly, Price Specialist of the Lexington District OPA Office, said this week. Each dealer must furnish a certificate of transfer to his Board five days after the purchase of a used car from an individual. Dealers are required to furnish an inventory of their local War Price and Rationing Boards of all cars they had on hand September 11. This inventory must be filed on forms that can be secured from the local Boards for replacement. This must be filed by September 24.

TOMATO PRICES ANNOUNCED Processors' ceiling prices for the 1944 pack of canned tomatoes were announced last week by the OPA.

The new processors' ceilings will result in very little increase in prices at the retail level, the Lexington District OPA Office said.

PROCESSED FOODS TO BE RATION FREE

A list of 17 processed foods which will be removed from rationing on September 17, was announced by the White House last week. The list included: canned asparagus, fresh lima beans, corn, peas, pumpkin squash, mixed vegetables, baked beans, baby foods, soups, tomato paste, sauce, pulp and puree; and all varieties of jams, jellies, and fruit butters.

FORMER PASTOR FINDS SON IN HOSPITAL IN ENGLAND

Mrs. Breland said her husband explained he had gone to the hospital to visit an officer friend. From the tone of the letter, the father was just as excited as the boy at the unexpected meeting.

Father Follows Sons

Sergeant Breland, a graduate of Louisville Male High School, was taking a premedical course at the University of Louisville when he entered the Army on February 22, 1942.

His brother, Robert Breland, 18, is a seaman second class in the U. S. Navy and is stationed in Ohio.

With both sons in the service, the father announced to his family there was nothing for him to do but go in to service also. So he became a chaplain in August, 1943.

FINDS TOMATOES PROFITABLE CROP

By August 1, Mrs. U. E. Hinton of Mulleberg county had sold $140 worth of tomatoes from 180 hills, and the plants were still producing. The family table also was supplied for mite patch. Roberta Sanderson, the county home demonstration agent, tells how Mrs. Hinton grew the tomatoes.

The ground was plowed in the fall and covered with manure. More manure was applied in February and the ground deeply disked. At planting time, hills were made by scooping out big holes and filling in at the bottom with well-rotted manure covered with a light layer of soil. Potted plants were set an inch deeper than they were in the pots.

Mrs. Hinton says $1 a hill is an average return. The high price received this year helped to offset low yield.

CROP OUTLOOK

With agriculture producing one-third more than before the war and with the prospect that foreign demands for food will dwindle, the nation's farmers will be asked, in 1945, to produce less than in 1944.

BEEF

The War Food Administration has ordered slaughterers, operating under Federal inspection, to set aside sixty per cent of the beef to meet Army specifications. This is the highest percentage yet fixed and means that civilians will get fewer steaks in the immediate future and that the quality is likely to be much poorer.

Walton Women's Club Meeting

The Walton Women's Literary Club met on Wednesday Sept. 6th in the home of Mrs. H. P. Mann. Mrs. H. P. Mann presiding called the meeting to order by giving her membership and guest a hearty welcome and putting forth a very challenging goal for the coming club year. The chairman of the various committees were called upon for reports in a way of introduction. Each member answered to roll call by giving the name of a famous woman. The thought for the day was given by Mrs. G. S. Caroland.

The subject of the program was "Women of Today." Each speaker was introduced by the program leader Mrs. Clayton Jones.

Mrs. Gaines Huey gave (in a very explanatory and challenging way to cause us to take note of ourselves) Clara Boothe's article "What I Like About Women," found in "This Week" Enquirer Magazine 1941.

Miss Emma Jane Miller gave the life of Madame Chang Chi Chek to portray the thought "I Confess My Faith."

"The Life and Work of Helen Keller" was well written with a personal touch by Mrs. Pearl R. Johnson who in early summer heard her speak before the Lions Club in Lexington.

Mrs. Clayton Jones and Mrs. E. B. Wallace were appointed delegates; Mrs. J. E. McCabe and Miss Emma Jane Miller as alternates to the district convention to be held in Carrollton October 3rd.

Compiment were paid to Mrs. J. L. Vest for the compilation of an attractive year book. Mrs. W. W. Rouse is given much credit for having enrolled the efforts of the girl scouts in the interest of the honor roll board sponsored by the women's club. The board in its new setting is about to be completed.

Members and guests, present were Mrs. J. C. Bedinger, Mrs. C. F. Blankenbaker, Mrs. John Boyer, Mrs. J. R. Conrad, Mrs. G. S. Caroland, Mrs. C. S. Chambers, Mrs. A. H. Gaines, Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, Mrs. Gaines Huey, Mrs. Pearl R. Johnson, Mrs. Floyd Johnson, Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. D. L. Lusby, Mrs. R. G. Moore, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. H. P. Mann, Mrs. John Myers, Mrs. J. E. McCabe, Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mrs. D. H. Vest, Mrs. J. L. Vest, Mrs. E. B. Wallace, Miss Carol Brown, Mrs. Marion Gardner, Mrs. Mable Stanifer, Mrs. R. E. Brugh and Mrs. Leon Flynn.

Refreshments of punch and home-made cookies and crumche sandwiches were served by the hostess, Mrs. H. P. Mann assisted by Mrs. Mable Stanifer and Mrs. D. H. Vest.

Quotation for the month. It's serving, striving, through strain and stress. It's doing your noblest that's success.

AUNT LOU JOHNSON

Aunt Lou was a native of West Virginia, but had made her home in Walton for many years. She is survived by five children.

RYLAND HOMEMAKERS' MEET

The Ryland Homemakers' convened, after a summer vacation at the home of Mrs. Wm. E. Diskman on Conly Road near White Villa.

Election of officers and the planning of the year's program was the event of the day.

Major subjects to be studied are "What Women Should Know About Business;" Home Furnishings and Clothing."

Minor studies are to be "Citizenship," "Reading," and "Exterior Beautification."

Newly elected officers are as follows: President, Mrs. W. Damon; Vice-President, Mrs. J. C. Brown; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. H. Rubbe; Program Conductor, Mrs. G. A. Damon; Music Leader, Mrs. John Murcheson; Recreation Leader, Mrs. W. Dickman; Publicity Sect., Mrs. J. S. Murcheson.

A tasty luncheon was served the following: Mrs. W. Damon, Mrs. O. Gee, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. Anna Bagby, Mrs. Harry Rubbe, Mrs. G. A. Damon, Mrs. W. Mendenhall, Miss Zelma Byerly, Mrs. J. S. Murcheson, Miss Barbara Rubbe, Miss Glude Lee Murcheson and the hostess.

The next meeting will be on Oct. 3 at the home of Mrs. O. Gee in Ft. Mitchell.

Exiled Prince, Later French Ruler, Decorated Walls of Old Kentucky Inn

ROYALTY left its mark on a famous Kentucky Inn a century and a half ago when Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans, painted murals on the walls of Talbott Tavern, at Bardston.

Talbott Tavern

These paintings by the royal exile, who later ruled France from 1830 to 1834, were uncovered recently when the wallpaper was scraped, and King Louis' legacy to the New World brought to light. Older by 13 years than the State of Kentucky, the historic tavern was first known as the Old Stone Inn. Many notables enjoyed its hospitality, in peace and war, since it first opened its doors in 1779. Its ancient registers reveal the names of Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay, William Henry Harrison, and hosts of others of equal fame.

Among its many well-known guests during the years was Judge John Rowan, whose nearby home has become equally historic as "My Old Kentucky Home." It was there, 21 years ago, that Judge Rowan's famous cousin, Stephen Collins Foster, wrote the immortal folk song to which he gave that name, and whose words were often sung by congenial host and guests in the friendly warmth of Talbott.

Louis Philippe

The Inn still stands, with a history of continuous operation for the past 165 years, offering its hospitable welcome to this day to the descendants of its early Kentucky patrons.

Staffordsburg

Pvt. Joseph Goedde is leaving for a camp in Missouri, having spent a ten day furlough with his family. He was of course anxious to see all of his family, but a special thrill awaited him in getting acquainted with his six-week-old daughter, Janet.

Seaman Wm. Tuman has been spending his leave with his parents Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Denner.

Miss Helen Richardson had as Sunday afternoon guests, Misses Melva and Scottie Giles and Louise Wallace who are her from Lexington for the opening of Kenon county schools and also Miss Hope Kenney who is visiting her parents before returning to her work in Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Att Hoffman and son Linden were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Stephens of Independence.

Mrs. Charles Menninger of Bowman Road entertained the Homemakers club on Thursday for the first meeting of the year. Most of the old members were present. Election of officers was practically a retention of those of past year with some changes of project leaders. A well planned lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Geo. Kilim. Among those present were: Mesdames Lee Franklin, Clifford Coleman, J. W. Shaw, Denver Binder, Bluch Rich, J. A. Keeney, L. J. Rapp, Wm. Gackler, Stella Richardson, Emilie Stein, Jack Beall, Alice Riggs, Charles Minninger, Geo. Kilim also a few children. Miss Beverly was on hand full of pep and plans everyone seemed eager for the year work to start. The most interesting exhibit was a comforter for convalescent soldiers made by Mrs. Alice Riggs, who recently celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday. The colors were so well chosen and workman ship would do credit to an eighteen year old.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Riley were guests on Sunday afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hanna.

Mrs. Hershel Sowder and son and Miss Bessie Loney started Monday for a camp in Mississippi, where Mr. Sowder is located in the naval service. Miss Loney will remain one week, but Mrs. Sowder will stay while her husband is in port.

Come to S. S. and let us study Gods word together and help each other to attain a worthwhile life.

WORTHINGTON REUNION

The annual Worthington reunion was held Sunday Sept. 3 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Worthington. After invocation by Mr. Z. W. Stephenson the guests enjoyed a delicious dinner. The afternoon was spent in eating water melons, taking pictures and pitching horseshoes.

Those enjoying the day were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stephenson and family of Rising Sun, Mr. and Mrs. James Durr of Piner, Mr. and Mrs. Hurb Shafer of Latonia, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Alexander and family of Elliston, Mr. and Mrs. John Worthington of Verona, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Worthington and family of Florence, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. ## There's an unpaid balance due...

THE minute never comes when any of us can say, "I've done enough." Until the end of the war—and for years thereafter—there'll be an unpaid balance due the men who are winning Victory for us today.

But War Bonds do pay installments on that balance!

Right now, the only protection we can give our boys is guns that fire quicker, planes that fly faster, and tanks that maneuver better than the enemy's. Your War Bonds help to buy them.

And when the war's over, War Bonds will go on making "payments"—because they'll help the country—including your farm—get back to peacetime prosperity. Let your returning boy find the farm backed with a strong financial reserve in Bonds... for new buildings, new stock, new machinery, and extra living comforts for the home he's been fighting for.

Today, and every day you can, buy another Bond toward that unpaid balance!

5 REASONS FOR INCREASING YOUR WAR BOND PURCHASES

1. The tempo of this war is hitting its highest point. Government expenditures for war are at the peak. MORE MONEY IS NEEDED... NOW!
2. In proportion to who has THE MOST MONEY, individuals are not buying their share of War Bonds. America must correct this situation.
3. War Bonds provide the farmer and rancher with the financial reserve he must have to survive the ordinary ups and downs of farming as a business.
4. Money will be needed urgently at a future date to replace and repair farm equipment, machinery, and buildings. War Bonds will provide it.
5. War Bonds are the safest investment in the world, retain a good rate of interest, are easy and convenient to buy... from bank, post office, rural mail carrier or Production Credit Association.

For America's Future, for your Future, for your children's Future

Keep Backing 'em Up—WITH WAR BONDS!

NICHOLSON

A romance that had its inception in the Bellevue High School, culminated in the recent marriage of Miss Jean Rich, Mills and L. A. Clement, Jr. of the Army Air Force. The attractive bride is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Mills of Bellevue, and was selected as "ideal girl" of the Senior Class of the High School in 1942. She has attended both the University of Cincinnati, and the University of Kentucky. Following a lovely reception at the home of the bride's parents, they left for Columbus, Ohio where the bridegroom is taking advanced training. May they ever tread a primrose path, and blue skies and sunny days be always theirs.

After an enjoyable stay at Herndon Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Butler and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Durr have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Popp have returned home after a pleasant visit with relatives in New York. Their little daughter enjoyed visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisk, during their absence.

Verona

Mrs. Louis Margolen and Mrs. Bert Kennedy had as surprise birthday dinner in honor of Mrs. John C. Kennedy at her home on Sunday, September 3rd. A number of friends and relatives gathered for this occasion and had a very enjoyable day. At the noon hour a beautiful and most delicious dinner was served. Those present were: the guest of honor, Mrs. John C. Kennedy and Mr. Kennedy; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Margolen, Jr.; Tommy of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kennedy; Ronnie and Jimmy of Walton; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alphin, Bonnie, Glenna, Jr. and Jack; Mr. and Mrs. Sleet Alphin; Mae, Sally, Harold Bernard and Johnny Scott; Mrs. Sally Beall; Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Kennedy and Dorothy; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Chapman, and grandchildren, Sandra and Daniel; Mr. Pete Chapman; Mrs. Nora Benson of Piner; Mrs. Pearl Alphin, Mr. and Mrs. George Alphin and Mary Linda; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hunt and Bro. JUAN BARGAS felt the rich freshly turned soil sink under his feet. He slung the old leather whip over a shoulder and lifted his feet to the morning sun which streamed through the mist still hanging over the river bottom. It would be a very pleasant morning, he thought, had he not the memory of last night's quarrel still in his mind.

Juan remembered well the scene in the adobe cafe the night before. "Si, my friend," Roberto Barrientes had bragged loudly, "Senior Allison has chosen me to show him where the great deer, El Cervo, lives. What is more . . . his dark hairy fist came down on the table top with a crash . . . we will shoot El Cervo!"

Juan had just walked across the fields to the cafe for his evening chat with old Sanches, the owner. He stepped through the door just as Roberto's deep voice made the announcement.

"Well," came sarcastically from behind him when he passed the table, "here is the great, wise Juan Bargas."

Juan's jaw tightened but his voice was soft. "I want no quarrel with you, Roberto. I have only said that no man will ever kill El Cervo. This deer is my friend. He comes every day to the river near my field."

One could hear Barrientes' angry breathing in the heavy silence. Allison, the paunchy city hunter who was at Barrientes' table, stood up. He jammed a cigar into the corner of his fatty mouth and moved close to Juan. "I have planned this hunting trip for months. Paid Barrientes a fortune to trail the deer. How much do you want to keep your job?"

Juan stared down at the roll of bills in the hunter's fat hand. How could he make them understand? He would not tell the game warden. It was not he who could protect Allison, the paunchy city hunter who was at Barrientes' table, stood up.

El Cervo. But Juan was only a poor old man to whom words came slowly; he pushed the money aside and said, "I will tell no one," as he walked out into the night.

Now in the field behind his team, Juan thought of the thing for which he had not been able to find words. He was an ignorant man. He could neither read nor write. He could not tell time; yet every evening at the supper hour, the setting sun shone on the stained glass window of the Mission La Bahian and told him as he worked that it was time to go home. If in such a manner a foolish old man was taken care of, would not, in some way too, the beautiful deer, El Cervo, be protected?

Miles away to the west, Barrientes crept gently through the brush, Allison puffing close behind. They had been on the trail for hours; it was only a question of time now to a clear shot. Allison congratulated himself on his cleverness. When deer season opened a few months from now, every hunter in the city would be after the almost mythical El Cervo. Here he was, ahead of them all.

The sun was low when at last they came out on a ledge. Barrientes sucked in his breath. "Look," he whispered, "that farmer, Juan Bargas, has right! The deer does come to the river as he said."

Roberto's lips drew back in a confident grin. He leveled the expensive rifle. The Mission was in his sights. He lowered it a bit. There! Now power on earth could stop him. What a pleasure to kill the deer right before Juan Bargas! His finger tightened, squeezed. Then a sharp cry came from his lips. He snapped the gun and it roared into the blue sky. He pawed at his eyes. "You fool!" Allison screamed. "You swine! You have thrown away the chance of a lifetime. There goes the deer!"

"My eyes . . ." Barrientes choked.

Down below Juan Bargas' head had jerked up at the rifle's sharp report. But the crashing of the deer through the underbrush brought his gaze to follow the animal to safety. A smile was on his lips.

A flashing ray caused him to shield his eyes and look toward the Mission where the sinking sun shone blindingly on the window. Never before had it been so bright. Juan Bargas unhooked the reins from his shoulder. It was time to go home.

Cellophane Used as Cover Against Gas

One of the many war jobs assigned to the familiar transparent film finds cellophane in the form of a gas protective cover for use by the armed forces in case the enemy should resort to gas. Several of these cellophane covers are issued to each man and woman in the overseas forces as protection against possible attack by poisonous gases; and each soldier's cover equipment uses as much cellophane as is required to wrap 1,400 packages of cigarettes.

When it is recalled that gas casualties in the first World War are reported to have reached substantial totals, it can well be seen why our government has left no stone unturned to provide our invasion forces with every possible protection against the use of a gas.

The garment is not a substitute for a gas mask which, incidentally, is also wrapped in cellophane until issued, but is designed to keep the fine spray of blistering gases, such as mustard, from touching the skin, clothing and equipment of the fighting men, the doctors, nurses and other exposed personnel.

A special type of cellophane was chosen by the army's chemical warfare service because it proved to be more impermeable to the poisonous gases than any other lightweight transparent material. The cover is expendable, is torn away after a gas attack and new ones issued.

Many Materials Make Good Garden Mulch

Besides slowing evaporation of water already in the soil and keeping soil temperature down, mulches also keep weeds and cut grasses from the harmful packing of the soil when tramped.

Lack of mulching material need never cost you a crop if you look around a bit. Try using straw from oats, wheat, rye, rice, and beans; slough hay, salt marsh hay, alfalfa hay; straw manure; leaves raked from lawns; shredded cane, shredded corn stalks, pine needles, peanut shells, rice hulls, buckwheat hulls. Also shredded redwood bark, seaweed, tobacco stems, ground corns, peatmoss, sphagnum moss. And where plentiful, cottonseed hulls, cotton burs, clover chaff, alfalfa chaff, spent hops and pea vines.

Excelsior used in packing makes a serviceable mulch as does tar paper (for cool soils), building and wrapping paper, newspapers, cardboard, corrugated paper, wood shavings and sawdust. For the benefits of summer mulch, all these materials are spread between the rows on top of the soil and not hoed into it. The least bit should be cultivated and spread lightly with a balanced plant food before the mulch goes on.

Chemists' Incomes

A study of chemists' incomes reveals that earning capacity reaches its maximum at approximately 50 years of age. The central point for beginners' incomes in 1943 was slightly over $2,200 a year, inclusive of salaries, fees, and bonuses. Of this group, 25 per cent were earning less than $1,800 a year and 10 per cent less than $1,200 a year, while 25 per cent had annual incomes in excess of $3,000 and 10 per cent in excess of $3,400. Of those with eight and a half years of experience, one-half were earning more than $2,000 a year, and one-half less than $3,750 a year. Ten per cent of this group earned more than $5,219 a year. Beyond the 10 years' experience level the spread in earning capacity becomes markedly accentuated, the report continued. For chemists with 14 1/2 years of experience, annual incomes at the upper level, $7,189, were almost two and one-third times as great as those of $3,019 at the lower level.

Garden Irrigation

Emergency irrigation means digging a six to eight inch hole beside each plant and refilling this with water at least three times before leveling the soil again. It does many times the good that spraying the same amount over the garden will do. A canvas hose that lets the water ooze through its pores to soak the soil without washing is a great convenience. Where your garden is level and you have water to lead along the rows, use your hand hoe or wheel hoe to open two to four inch furrows out some eight inches from the crop rows. Then lead the water into these. Count on watering your vegetables thoroughly once a week. Test each time with your hand trowel to make certain the soil is wet down the depth of the blade.

Poultry Feeds

Poultrymen will get the most out of a feed when used for the specific purpose for which it is designated. Five main classes of poultry feed include chicken starters; broiler mash or combination starter and broiler mash; growing mash; laying mash or combination laying and breeder mash; and breeder mash. Use of specific feed for the specific need will conserve the most critical ingredients, namely proteins and vitamin supplements, and permit more efficient use of grains and their by-products. Even at a higher price, it is said, properly designed mash not only saves feed, but usually gives a greater return over feed cost.

Independence R-1

The rains which we have needed so badly for some time, has been very much appreciated and is doing a great deal of good to the late gardens and pastures.

We have received the news from the Methodist Kentucky Conference stating the Visalia charge has for their pastor for this year Rev. Rule of Winchester, Ky. Remember church services will be at Staffordsborg the Sept. 17th. All come out and welcome the new pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Rapp and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Stein attended the Alexandria Fair on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Keeney and children were guests on Monday of Mrs. Caroline Armstrong.

The Stephens family held a reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Rector on Labor Day. The young folks enjoyed games while the older ones enjoyed reminiscing and discussing current events while a well-filled table appealed to all.

Among those present were: Mrs. J. N. Stephens, Misses Alma and Mary Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Stephens and daughter, Carol, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Loomis, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Stephens and children, Bobby, Dale, June and Linden, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Keeney and Donald Keeney and Mrs. Morris Wharton and the hosts. Come to Sunday School and Preaching Service! We believe that the only way to build a lasting peace is to give the teachings of Jesus a try. That must be all great movements begin with the individual. So come and do your part toward averting conflict. Let's study together.

ROCKETS

While successful experiments indicate that detachable rockets can assist heavily-laden planes into the air from short runways, the general idea is that their use will be extremely limited. The rocket-unit attached under the wings, are dropped after helping the plane into the air and salvaged for future use.

Lesson for September 17

THE KINGDOM STRONGLY ESTABLISHED

LESSON TEXT—II Samuel 4:7; 5:1-10
GOLDEN TEXT—They that trust in the Lord shall be as mount Zion, which cannot be moved, but abideth forever.—Psalm 125:1.

Position and power are important to a king, but of even greater importance is the winning of the hearts of his people. Only as he has them with him can he build a great nation.

David was the Lord's anointed. The kingdom was his. But God expected him to make the necessary effort and use his own abilities to bring it into a place of honor and usefulness. God gives us all we have, but He does not shower it down on us; we must go out and possess it.

Note in the three verses that precede our lesson (vv. 1-3) that David moved forward only after prayer and divine guidance. Little wonder that he succeeded.

I. The Southern Tribes Declare Their Loyalty (2:4).

The nation was divided into two parts, Judah in the south and Israel in the north. To bring them together again called for consummate skill. David had it.

When Saul had died, David showed his respect and genuine loyalty to the king by his actions and by his song of lament which we find in II Samuel 1. Then by the Lord's leading he went to Hebron, the national capital of Judah, and there awaited the will of the people.

Their declaration for David was not long in coming. They knew and respected him. He had shown himself to be their friend (I Sam. 30:26) and now they made him king. It was the first step and a long one in the right direction.

II. The King Makes Friends by Being Friendly (2:5-7).

The men of Jabesh-gilead, hearing that the Philistines had killed Saul, went for his body and gave it a suitable burial. This gave David occasion to show his fine spirit of appreciation, which naturally warmed the hearts of all those who had loved and followed Saul. It was excellent strategy, but at the same time it was the natural expression of a kind heart.

He that would have friends must show himself friendly (Prov. 18:24). And why not? The friendly and open-hearted kindness of some Christians does more to win others to Christ than the brilliant discourses of some cold, exclusive Christian worker. Most of the Lord's work is done by ordinary people with warm hearts. Is there any reason why we cannot all be winsome and attractive in Christ?

USDA's New Apple Syrup Process Quickly Adopted

A process developed in the Federal laboratory of the department of agriculture for the production of a bland apple syrup has been adopted commercially. This accomplishment is particularly significant because of its timeliness and unusually short period of conversion from the laboratory scale to commercial acceptance and production.

Three million pounds of the syrup were produced in five factories in the United States and Canada from the 1942 crop, most of the product being used in the tobacco industry as a moisture retention agent, replacing the glycerin required in the explosive and other war industries. This and other important uses in the pharmaceutical, cosmetic and food industries created a demand for additional large quantities of the syrup.

The simplicity of manufacture, great demand, and the usual availability of apples induced some 15 companies to prepare to produce about 20 million pounds of syrup from the 1943 crop. Several factors, such as short apple crop, scarcity of labor to gather the less valuable windfalls and drops utilizable in the process, and unprecedented demand for vinegar and for apple juice concentrate have intervened, however, to limit the output to four or five million pounds from the 1943 crop. Technical assistance has been given the manufacturers of the syrup in choosing locations, obtaining equipment, planning machinery layouts, and solving production problems.

Don't Overcook Spinach

To Preserve Vitamins
To make the most of vitamins, cook spinach in a minimum amount of water as soon as possible after picking and don't overcook it.

There is less vitamin loss if fresh spinach is cooked only in the water which clings to the leaves after washing. In cooking frozen spinach, add the greens to boiling water rather than starting them in cold water.

It's best for the vitamins and for you when spinach is cooked only until it is done or just tender. Prepare enough spinach for one meal at a time, as cooked spinach stored 24 hours in a refrigerator loses some vitamin C and reheating causes more loss.

Study in the University of Illinois Food Research laboratory shows that vitamin C in spinach decreases rather rapidly during storage. This loss can be checked somewhat by storing spinach in the refrigerator rather than at room temperature. It is not to be cooked at once after picking or buying. Only small amounts of the B vitamins—thiamin and riboflavin—seem to be lost during marketing.

Blindness Cured

Blindness due to high blood pressure as well as to some other diseases has been cured and sight restored to numerous patients by maintaining them on a diet consisting almost entirely of rice, Dr. Walter Kemper of the Duke university school of medicine has reported. At the same time, he stated, the treatment, or diet, reduced blood pressure to about half in hypertension cases. He was unable to give the exact reason for this rice "magic." The diet consists almost entirely of rice, boiled or steamed, plus fruit juices and vitamins. No salt is permitted. Beneficial results were achieved in some cases in a few days, but most of them required from three weeks to three months to achieve reduction of blood pressure from about 240-140. The blindness treatment required from a few months to a year. It was determined that the kidneys were not to blame for the blindness since the diseased conditions of the kidneys were not improved, although blindness was cured.

Curious Misnomer

Of the many misnomers current in the world today, none is more curious than that applied to the product known as "balsam of Peru," which in reality originates in El Salvador, smallest of the ten Middle American republics. There are several explanations of this strange misnaming. Most logical seems that of William Reid who says that the mislabeling dates back to Spanish colonial days when all Middle American products were shipped to Spain. Since Peru at that time was synonymous with the wealth and luxury of the New World, Spanish traders, assuming that all New World products originated from Peru, proceeded to misname the product, which since that time has been known as "balsam of Peru." In any case, considering the importance of balsam in medicine today, perhaps the Spaniards were not so far wrong in believing it Peruvian—which means—"price less."

Personal Hygiene

Do you keep your teeth and mouth clean by frequent use of dentifrice and mouth wash? Do you air your dresses and shoes after wearing them and before placing them in a closet with other garments? Always brush off your collar after combing your hair. Make an effort always to keep your nails clean. Keep from biting your fingernails. Always carry a clean fresh handkerchief. Always wash your hands and freshen-up before eating.

● THINKINGS ● DOINGS ● SEEINGS

By Ye Editor

OUR SCHOOLS SERVE DEMOCRACY

With the opening of the schools of Boone county, this week and next, it might be well for parents and teachers to do a little thinking about the pupils that present a problem to both of them.

Children going to a school system should not be regarded as raw material to be subjected to certain definite processes in the expectation that the finished product can be certain or standardized. Factors of inheritance and environment combine to make each child a special subject requiring, more or less, individualized treatment.

Parents who expect a school and its teachers to take a rough specimen of untrained humanity and develop it into a polished human being are looking for a good deal. They must not expect the school to take the place of the home and the church. The guidance that a teacher can give to a pupil is valuable and necessary but it should not replace entirely all function of parents.

Teachers, on the other hand, facing a mass of little human beings in their classrooms, should not overlook the importance of identifying each pupil as a separate and distinct human entity.

The good teacher is not a mass worker. There must be the recognition of the peculiar difficulties that confront each student, together with an intelligent tolerance for the child, if the greatest improvement in the individual is to be secured.

Naturally, we are very proud of the school system in this community. Along with millions of other Americans, we thoroughly endorse the common schools which offer educational opportunity to all the children upon practically equal terms. The school house, in our opinion, is the bulwark of democratic processes, which should be understood, respected and observed by officials and teachers, as well as by students.

9,000,000 BONDS A MONTH

For every $100 worth of War Bonds sold in the second quarter of this year, $22 were cashed in, according to a Treasury report, which says that this rate is far above last year when only $9 per $100 sold were cashed. In 1942, the redemption rate was only $4 per $100 sold.

The average American will learn with a shock that between nine million and ten million individual bonds are being redeemed every month and that the rate is growing. In the face of this tendency, the Treasury will put into effect next month a plan to make it easier for individuals to cash in bonds.

Everybody knows that some people, under the stress of war bond drives, over-extend themselves and buy more bonds than they can afford to hold. Moreover, many industrial plants, where all employees were pledged to the ten per cent per month purchase plan, produced a situation where the redemption of many bonds was inevitable.

Nevertheless, the people of the United States generally should realize

One Of Busiest Women In Radio

Olive Kackley

One of radio's busiest women is Olive Kackley, WCKY's good will ambassador, women's commentator and women's program director. In the past three years she has spoken to more than 1,000 civic, service, professional and business organizations throughout Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana. She has received more than 53,000 pieces of mail; has addressed more than 500,000 persons, including a single audience of 18,000, and has received mail from an average of 21 states every week.

Miss Kackley is heard at 8:15 a. m. Monday through Saturday on the L. B. Wilson station and at 5:30 p. m. each Tuesday and Thursday on the program, "Charm for You."

ize the necessity of considering their purchase of war bonds an investment for the duration of the war at least. This does not mean that an individual facing an unexpected emergency, should not cash a bond. It means that the individual should not cash the bond except as a last resort and of necessity.

What redemption means, in the way of additional money to be borrowed, is seen when we recall that in May June and July, $754,000,000 worth of bonds were cashed in. This means that $3,000,000,000 worth of bonds must be sold in 1944 to provide the funds with which to pay for bonds redeemed.

If everybody in the city, who wants to go on the farm, would go there the farm labor supply would be satisfactory.

Results from advertising are constantly reported by those who use the Walton Advertiser but we are not surprised.

Nazi propagandists have a hard time making it clear to the Germans that they are winning the war by losing ground in Italy, France and Russia.

A starving nobody can steal a loaf of bread and go to jail, but a prosperous, well-to-do business man can violate all sorts of laws without getting behind the bars.

Reading is not the art of skimming through a novel that is not enough to burn.

Any speaker can make out a good case for whatever he advocates, especially if nobody in the audience asks questions.

If anybody in Germany continues to have confidence in Nazi promises and predictions the sucker-list is larger than we thought.

Men on the fighting front are not concerned with vacation and high wages; they are trying to save their lives and protect yours.

There are any number of persons who have elected themselves to be spokesmen for the men in the armed forces; our boys will speak for themselves when they come home.

SURPLUS STOCKS

The end of the war in Europe will begin the long job of distributing surplus war stocks to the people of the nation across retail counters. The consumer will probably not buy directly from the Government. Surpluses will be marketed through the usual channels of trade, and will appear in retail markets.

RESERVES

The reserves of all American corporations are expected to pass the $48,000,000,000 mark by the end of this year. This represents cash on hand, money in the bank, government securities owned and the inventories held by corporations. The estimate compares with a total of $24,000,000,000 in 1939.

Matt Dooley Versus the Tomato

Matt Dooley's skin broke out in a rash last week. He finally admitted to Doc Hollister he'd eaten twelve tomatoes in a row just the day before.

"Shucks," said Doc. "That's all that's the matter with you. That kind of eating would turn anybody red."

So now Matt has not only cut out all tomatoes for himself. He's forbidden his family to eat tomatoes. And won't even have them in the house. Says tomatoes are anti-social and ought to be prohibited by law.

Funny how some people rush off to extremes like that. They take a wholesome thing and overdo it till it disagrees with them—or maybe find they don't happen to like it—and then they want it banned for everybody.

From where I sit, folks ought to realize there's a middle ground in everything—a middle ground of moderation on the one hand... and tolerance for our neighbors on the other.

Prominent Speaker Coming To Walton This Thursday

The Willing Worker's Class of the Walton Christian Church invites the public to a lecture this Thursday evening at 8:30 (E.W.T.) in the auditorium.

The speaker will be Mr. Pera Benjamin a native of Iran (Persia) now connected with the Clason Company, in Cincinnati.

Mr. Benjamin was educated in native schools and was graduated from Urmia College, a school founded by the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Board, at Urmia, Iran.

He is well versed on conditions in Persia. Knows the characteristics and desires of the people and their attitude toward the western world.

In his college days, he associated with many Mohammedan young men some of the nobility. By contact with influential Mohammedans he has come to have a knowledge of Mohammedanism, their practices of the religion and particularly the modern changes that have taken place.

Mr. Benjamin is a Christian of Christian parents. His family's faith in Christianity goes back to 48 A. D. through two of the seventy Disciples, Thaddeus and Thomas, sent out after Pentecost to further the teachings of Christ.

Mr. Benjamin can give very interesting facts about the history of Christianity in Persia. As early as 600 A. D., their Christian Church, known as the Nestorian Church, sent missionaries to Japan and China.

Persia is being used as a base of supplies for Russia and other Allied forces in the Middle East. One of the American soldiers stationed in Iran wrote this message home to his family, "American Missionaries in the last 100 years have done more to further good will than all diplomats put together."

The members of the Willing Workers Class are especially anxious to have a good crowd for this event, and hope their friends, and all who are interested, will make plans to attend. Thursday, September 21st, at 8:30.

Fidels and B.W.C. Meeting
The Fidels Club and Business Women's Circle met, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wilson for their regular monthly meeting.

The program was based on Community Missions and was very well presented.

Those who enjoyed the evening were, Mrs. Myrtle Little, Mrs. Edith Turner, Mrs. Martha Jones Carpenter, Mrs. Katie Hankinson, Mrs. Virgie Allan, Mrs. Lola Mae Bollington, Mrs. Geraldine Harris, Mrs. Blanche Roberts, Mrs. Roberta Dychemin, Mrs. Mary Humphrey, Mrs. Lucy Breeden, Mrs. Lucietta Neumiller, Rev. and Mrs. R. F. ## Back to "Slow Time"

The time here in Walton and vicinity will be changed back to Central War Time (slow time) on Saturday night at midnight. The city of Covington and Cincinnati are doing the same, so Sunday morning everyone in this whole section will move their clock back an hour.

Daughter Born, Sept. 13

Mrs. William Leslie Cooper is in Bethesda Maternity Hospital expecting a young daughter, born last Wednesday, September 13th. The young lady weighs 8 1/2 lbs. and is named Leslie Francis Cooper, wearing a part of her soldier father's name, who is at present in Porto Rico.

Parent - Teachers Hold First Meeting

The Parent-Teachers Association of the Walton School held its first regular meeting on Friday afternoon September 15.

The President, Mrs. Virginia Schwab, appointed the various committees who will serve during the year.

The question of lunch room was discussed and a committee was appointed and plans were made to have a lunch room if at all possible. In order to have a lunch room it may be necessary to ask a mother to help each day. The committee feels sure that the mothers will co-operate with them in this respect.

The purpose of the Parent-Teachers Association is to bring about a better understanding between parents and teachers, thus making it possible to have a better school. Our organization now has thirty-one enthusiastic and interested members. We need the co-operation and help of every parent. Won't you join the P. T. A. and help your school to better serve and supply the needs of your children?

Watch this paper for the announcement of our next meeting.
Mary E. Humphrey, Secretary.

HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Mr. Samuel Collins of Sadville, Ky., is suffering from a possible skull fracture received Saturday evening when he walked into the path of an automobile on North Main Street.

Mr. Collins was on his way to attend the Masonic meeting at the school building.
Mr. Collins was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by Mr. R. E. Brugh, and is reported to be in a fair condition.

CHURCH TIME CHANGES

The Christian Church School Services will be at 10:00 a. m. (C.W.T.). The church services will be at 11:00 Sunday morning and 8:15 Sunday evening. This Sunday is Promotion Day in our Bible School and we urge all members of all Church School classes to be present. A special program is being prepared and given to those who will go into advanced classes. Let us see you in the church services Sunday.

Walton Sergeant Lives On Weeds in Jungle

Sgt. James Carpenter, son of Mrs. J. W. Carpenter, of Walton, is now stationed in a hospital somewhere in India, according to the last letter received by his mother.

In his letter Sgt. Carpenter said "The mail is still slow, but I got three letters yesterday and you asked how sick I am. Well, I'll tell you and you can tell the rest of the family."

"I first became sick on May 24 but was deep in the jungles with about 70 miles to go to our objective, so I started taking from two to 10 adobines a day, thinking I had malaria.

"After that long hike, I could barely carry my rifle and ammunition. The last 18 days I had eight days' ration with the Chinese which consisted of corned beef and rice, and the next 10 days I had weeds, roots and whatever I was lucky to kill on the trail.

The other boys were not much at hunting. At last we arrived at our destination and the colonel told the two other boys and I that since we had time and were so hungry we could take four or five days off and just lay around and eat.

"On June 4 I went to the field hospital nearby. They referred me to another field hospital, saying they thought I had malaria, but were not sure.

"After the two other boys had been up for the night, we got our mail for the last three months. I decided to go to the other hospital the next day. I got no sleep at all that night because of the enemy.

"I went to the hospital the next day and they told me to get out of the jungle and go to this hospital. I came here in June with malaria and started taking treatments, but the doctor found out I had typhus. "I was going to be ok" The doctors don't know a lot about the fever. They just wait and see if a guy is going to live or die.

"I'm now getting over the fever and the doctor said I am gaining weight every day. I will be out of the hospital soon, but will probably go back into combat again."

Local Eastern Stars Elect New Officers At September Meet

ACREE-ALLEN WEDDING
A pretty wedding of September 15, was that of Miss Betty Acree and Mr. William Wilson Allen. The ring ceremony was solemnized at 6 p. m. by the Rev. Samuel S. Hogan, minister of the Big Bone Baptist Church, at the home of the bride's parents in East Bend, in the presence of immediate families.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Casper Acree of East Bend Road and the groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen of Big Bone.

Miss Geneva Coggage was the only attendant. The groom had for his best man, Mr. Edward Earl Smith.

Mrs. Allen is a graduate of Williamsburg High School, Williamsburg, Ky. She studied piano under Dr. Nell Moore and attended Cumberland College and is a member of the Erlanger Christian Church.

Mr. Allen is a graduate of Hamilton High School and an active member of the Big Bone Baptist Church.

Following a reception at the home of the bride, the couple left for a brief honeymoon. They will reside at the home of the grooms parents. We wish for them a very happy and prosperous life together.

Team Pulling Contest Requested Annual Event

The team pulling contest held at the County Fair last Saturday attracted wide interest. There have been many requests that the contest be made an annual event.

The light champion team owned by Lester Craycraft of Florence and the heavy champion team owned by Bert Loomis and Bill Sullivan of Burlington gave excellent demonstrations in how good well-trained teams can perform. Farmers claim these contests will encourage the training of better farm teams.

Dillard Proffitt in England

Pvt. Dillard Proffitt

Pvt. Dillard Proffitt was inducted into the Army November 5, 1943 and took his basic at Ft. Sill, Okla., after a furlough he was sent to Ft. Meade, Md., from where he was sent to the New England states. Here he remained for a brief stay and then was sent to England.

Pvt. Proffitt had served six years in the Army previous to the war. He was assigned to the field artillery department.

Mrs. Dillard Proffitt resides in Walton and is employed by the Beaubronne Tie Factory of Walton.

Masonic District Meeting Held Here Last Saturday

The Masonic Lodges of District No. 28 met September 18th at the Walton High School with 15 lodges out of the 18 in this District represented and 8 lodges not belonging to this district.

It was a fine meeting and too much credit cannot be given to the Northern Kentucky Masonic League for their part in making this a big success. Key Man Carl Bloesing demonstrated his wonderful ability in that part. And to remind you if you missed this meeting, don't miss the District 27 meeting held in the Masonic Temple, 7th and York, Newport, Ky., Friday, Sept. 22, 1944.

We were glad to have with us Grand Junior Warden Albert C. Hanson and Grand Master E. B. Bealy who gave a fine address that was very instructive.

W. O. Rouse, Sec'y.

County Fair Had Large Attendance; Winners Listed

The Annual Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Fair and Picnic held its twelfth successful event at the Gair Grounds near Burlington on last Saturday, Sept. 18th. The postmodern and unusual busy tobacco cutting season did not prevent good attendance and an enjoyable day for all.

The winners in the various classes may be called Boone County champions for 1944 in that the fair represents the county's only opportunity for all to compete for this honor.

Plans are to enlarge and improve the Boone County Fair and Picnic program. The 4-H and Utopia Council will welcome all suggestions and help for future improvement provided they provide for more wholesome educational and recreational interests of our people.

The Council wishes to express their deepest appreciation and thanks to all committees, exhibitors, judges, advertisers, the Fiscal Court, County Road Department, the Florange County Scouts and the fine people who attended and all others who helped make the twelfth annual event a success. It will be about two weeks before a financial report can be made. Indications are a substantial contribution to the improvement program will be made this year.

The unusual busy season prevented many from preparing and making exhibits but the quality of exhibits were good. The winners in the various contests are as follows:

USED AS FIRE FIGHTERS

Following is a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ryan of Verona from their son Pfc. Clifford E. Ryan.

Dear Mom and Pop

I guess you are wondering why I haven't written in the last two or three days.

Well I have had an experience of a lifetime. You probably heard over the radio or read about the big fire they had out here. If you haven't that is where I have been for two days and nights, fighting fire in the mountains and I mean mountains.

They called out our battery to fight it and finally had to call the Navy Seabees to relieve us. The two days and nights we were there we never had a wink of sleep and I was sure tired.

The fire burned over thousands of acres and the first half-day 25 homes were destroyed. I haven't heard how many more. A house burning started the fire.

You just imagine the blackest cloud before a rain you ever saw and that's what the whole sky looked like from the smoke.

I never saw fire spread so fast in all my life just like the trees had gasoline on them. Two of the fellows got burned up, it came so fast they couldn't get out of the way. One of them was on a bull-dozer.

I got in eight hours of sleep last night and feel pretty good this morning.

Well I'm learning a new trade. I have gone into the plumbing business. We are putting in a pipe line from the road to the barracks. It's 110 yards and we are digging a trench for the pipes about a foot deep. The water will be too hot to drink but can be used for washing and etc.

I am the number one man with the pick and shovel. Plenty of practice you know. That's where the good old farm life comes in handy once in awhile. I guess too it's because I had such a good Sgt. at home.

Did you don't want to wait too long and let the frost get your tobacco. You know you don't have me there now to see how much we could get housed in a day. When you start cutting just imagine I'm about 50 sticks ahead of you and you're trying to catch up. You will soon get it in that way.

They keep putting off our trip to the desert perhaps they will finally forget all about it.

Is Walt wanting to start to school or does he think he will farm this year.

Well I guess I'd better close for this time. Tell everybody hello. Lots of love, Cliff.

IN MERCHANT MARINE

The Editor received the following letter from Edward McIntyre who is stationed at the Maritime Service Training Station, Sheephead Bay, New York.

Dear Mr. Meadows,

How are you and the paper coming along? I guess everything is just about the same in Walton.

Your wife told me the right thing to do when she told me to take the top bunk, the boys down below have to wash everyday.

I am about ready to ship out. I have 4 more weeks of advance training. They push you around, but I am used to that by now.

We have to get up at 4 o'clock and get dressed in 5 minutes, also get our bunks made up. I had abandon ship tests today and passed O. K. but I am tired after jumping around all day.

Tell all my friends hello,

Yours Truly,

Edward

BUYS PIECE OF AIR FORCE

An Eighth AAF Fighter Station, England—Sergeant Everett M. Bolen of Walton, Ky., has "bought" himself a piece of the air force.

He was among the first soldiers stationed on this Eighth Fighter Command Mustang base to make a purchase in the War Bond campaign staged by the Eighth Air Force to buy a "Victory Squadron." All planes flown by the Eighth will be represented in the "Victory Squadron," and each officer and enlisted man buying bonds in the drive becomes a "shareholder."

A quota was assigned to personnel of this base under the command of Col. William J. Cummings Jr., Law-

SAILOR WANTS PAPER

Dear Sirs:

As I am a former resident of Boone County, near Verona, I would appreciate it very much if you would send me your paper.

I am stationed out here in the Paradise of the Pacific. I can't tell much of my work, but it is along the same type as to what I was doing for the War Dept. in Cincinnati, before entering the Navy.

Thanking you for your kindness, I remain,
Wilber E. Harris

PVT. RYAN WRITES PARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ryan received the following letter from Pfc. Earl L. Ryan, who is stationed at Camp Van Dorn, Miss.

Dear Mom and Dad

Hope you are not too disappointed in the scarcity of letters from me, we have been pretty busy. Had a night problem night before last. We got yesterday afternoon off and pitched horse-shoes so didn't write again.

I ate five meals yesterday. The cooks served three breakfasts, for the ones that had to go on the rifle range early, the ones that had other details and for the regular company. I was present every time. I am now back to my normal weight.

It sure felt good to get back into harness after nearly three weeks in the Hospital. Better than I ever thought it would.

The first thing we had to do that morning was take a physical fitness test which was exercises of all kinds and a 300 yard dash in 45 seconds. I made better than average all the way through and the speed hike of four miles right after that in 45 minutes then the bivouac.

I was pretty sore and stiff but it is good to know I am still in condition. Most of the soreness has left me by doing a few exercises on my own time.

You didn't mention whether the rain had stopped or not but I suppose it has by now. It didn't rain here yesterday but three times. It rains just enough to get us wet and holds off long enough for us to dry out. We got wet five times day before yesterday. It stays damp and foggy all the time. Real raining for the South Pacific. You can imagine how the boys gripe, but me I'm just crazy enough to like it.

We have a new method of combat drill here that has just come out and it beats all I have ever had. I have gotten the hang of it and have been second in combat commanding so must be on the ball.

I just hung out my washing before I started this letter. It looks like the rain is going to hold off so they will have time to dry. I send my underwear, socks and other stuff to the laundry but clean fatigues are needed all the time so I do them myself.

It keeps us on the ball cleaning our rifles. The rust will gather pretty quick. We stand inspection at retreat about five times a week and its best to have a clean rifle.

Mississippi has a couple of queer sounding bugs that make noises at night. One sounds like a buzz-saw and the other says "fall out," maybe it has picked it up from the sergeants. I have never seen them so can't tell what they look like.

I would like to send you our weekly paper but haven't any stamps at present. There was a piece by a Sergeant of 32 years. He was saying how the Infantry had changed since the last war. He also said an Infantry man in the next war if there was one, would be required to have a college education. It is no place for illiterates now as we have a lot of complicated stuff.

Hope the kids are ready for school little Bobby will be lonesome.

Think I will close now and look up the gang. I made this one a little longer to make up for lost time.

Love

LaVerne

Acclaimed official harbingers of the seasons, Allan has forced robins to wire him for Spring reservations, and heckled the lowly groundhog into wearing sun glasses.

Tall and lanky, and priding himself on a weatherbeaten countenance at 41, Trout graduated from Georgetown College with an A.B. degree. He started work on The Courier-Journal as a police reporter, later becoming re-write man, night city editor and held various other desks before taking over as Frankfort Bureau chief in 1940. Student of Kentucky's historical, scenic and cultural life, he has traveled every county, visited homes in every hamlet.

On the serious side, Allan describes state government as a processing plant drawing into its maw a million tax dollars weekly to be turned into roads, bridges, schools, hospitals, law and order, conservation, regulatory measures, aid to the poor and general welfare. As a sideline superintendent, Trout reports to the people on how their processing agency at Frankfort is operating. Whether he writes about apple knockers or allocations, Allan strikes vibrant chords as measured by the mailbox. ## TEMPORARY SILO PLANS PUBLISHED

Need for additional space for storing feed has brought from the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics plans and specifications for temporary silos. These include trench, box, baled straw, and silos made of snow-fencing, corn-cribbing or picket-fencing.

These silos can be built by the farmer himself at small cost at a time when the cost and scarcity of labor and materials prohibit the construction of silos out of materials ordinarily used.

Copies of the publication telling about these silos, and giving plans for their construction, can be had from county agents or from the college.

MORE FEED CROPS IN LOGAN COUNTY

Because of the feed-livestock situation in Logan county, more cover crops will be established than in any other year, reports Farm Agent John R. Wallington. It is expected that 1,500 acres of alfalfa and grass mixtures will be sown. The balbo rye acreage will exceed 20,000 acres, and more than 1,000 acres of rye-etch mixture will be sown for harvesting seed in 1945.

SAVES 75 ACRES OF CORN STOVER

James Rogers of Lyon county is saving 75 acres of corn stover to help out in the serious shortage of hay. Part of it is being cut by hand and shocked for feed, while the remainder will be cut with a binder. Farm Agent Aubrey M. Warren says that Rogers plans to seed the land in small grain, red top and timothy this fall, then in the spring he will sow sweet clover and lespedeza.

In Boone county, 1,000 bushels of balbo rye seed were sold to farmers; last year less than 40 bushels were available.

4-H ACHIEVEMENT DAYS IN OCTOBER

J. W. Whitehouse, state 4-H club leader, announces that 12 district achievement programs will be held in Kentucky in October. They will be attended by county champions from whom district champions will be selected. Then, from the list of district winners, members of the Kentucky 4-H Club Hall of Fame will be selected. The state champions will receive trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Achievement programs will be held at the following points: Bowling Green, Danville, Greensburg, Latonia, Lexington Madisonville, Morehead, Paducah, Paintsville, Prospect and Quicksand.

GIRLS FIND 4-H WORK PROFITABLE

Mary E. Hancock, Adair county 4-H club girl, received $33 for a pig which she raised as one of her club projects. She fed it corn, ground wheat and milk. Mary also raised a flock of chickens in her poultry project. Virginia Wilson, another Adair county 4-H girl, has sold six pigs this year and is feeding two more.

COLLEGE CIRCULAR DISCUSSES FARMING

"Farming as a Business" is a new 16-page circular of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Reared on the farm and still owner and operator of a farm, Lawrence A. Bradford, the author, gives farming a going-over that should be interesting and valuable to many now living on farms, as well as to others who are thinking about returning to the land or who are planning to farm for the first time.

Discussed are such subjects as how much money farmers make, the cost of living on farms, how to learn farming, and factors that should be taken into account in buying a farm either as an investment of just for a place to live.

Bradford brings out, for instance, that farmers had on an average only about $600 a year to call their own, even after average gross incomes had climbed to $2,200 in 1941. Incomes in the five years before that averaged only $1,600 a year, which left still less after operating costs, upkeep, taxes labor and rents were paid. Finally, he says:

"This circular lays large emphasis on farming as a way of gaining a comfortable living and wholesome life. A farm in a good community is recognized as being unsurpassed as a place to rear a family. It provides hundreds of satisfactions to those who like it. These advantages and satisfactions can be had by those who approach farming with a good attitude and understanding and a sound financial basis. Most farmers who have succeeded have used this approach; most of those who have failed have approached farming on false assumptions. A discriminating family acts with good judgement in all things, and particularly in choosing and buying a farm on which to live and earn a livelihood."

MANY REQUESTS FOR FARM BUILDING PLANS

Despite war restrictions the Kentucky College of Agriculture sent to farmers last year, upon their request, almost 3,000 sets of plans for buildings and equipment. In most instances plans and information were asked for stock and poultry buildings, granaries and other storage, self-feeders and other labor-saving equipment.

As a result, says the annual report of the College's Extension Service, about 8,000 new buildings were built, 10,000 were remodeled and about 10,000 pieces of livestock and poultry equipment made.

Increased stock raising in Kentucky has revealed that many farmers do not have adequate buildings for more stock, poultry and crops according to the college. A review of the general situation also brings out that many buildings have been neglected and allowed to depreciate to a condition where they are almost useless.

SURPLUS TRUCKS

The Treasury Department is disposing of some 2,000 passenger cars, 9,000 motorcycles and 19,000 trucks to essential users such as farmers, produce haulers, etc. Applications should go to County AAA transportation committees, to regional offices of the WPB, the Petroleum Administrator for War, or the Office of Defense Transportation.

Rev. Rylo, the new minister of the Hughes Chapel moved to the parsonage here Wednesday. He will conduct services at the Chapel Sunday, September 24th at 11 a. m. (E.W.T.)

Mrs. Edward Hamilton was stricken with appendicitis Monday and taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital where she was operated on immediately. She is now convalescing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Afterkirk of Erlanger, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Besterman. Mrs. Afterkirk and daughters attended services at the Baptist Church in the afternoon.

Mrs. James Moore and little daughter, Marlene Kay, came home from Booth Hospital Thursday.

Miss Ada King of Tampa, Fla., visited Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McCabe last week.

LABOR

John L. Lewis's blast against President Roosevelt emphasizes the differences that confront labor leaders in the political field. Sidney Hillman of the C. I. O., is working for the President. The A. F. of L., apparently, continues a somewhat divided course, without becoming strongly identified with either national party.

FARM IMPLEMENTS

Farm implement plants are producing normal products at above the pre-war rates.

Clark county turkey growers have 28,000 turkeys in flocks of 200 or more.

CONTOUR TOBACCO SURVIVES DROUGHT

An acre of tobacco grown by Orvin Loy, 4-H'er of Russell county, demonstrated the value of planting tobacco on the contour. When drought wilted the other tobacco on the farm, Orvin's patch withstood the heat because of its stored-up moisture.

FARM PRICE SUPPORT

War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes estimates that price-support expenditures, in compliance with congressional pledges to farmers, could run to $2,000,000,000 in 1945.

The price surpluses on corn, tobacco, wheat, rice and peanuts is ninety-two and one-half per cent of parity.

Farmers in Boyle county are pretty well agreed that Ky. 41-A has made the most satisfactory growth this year of all varieties of tobacco.

At the Christian county 4-H club camp for Negro boys and girls, $41 dollars in war stamps were purchased.

WAR PRODUCTION

Aircraft production in August totaled 7,939, with construction of heavy bombers being about 1,500. Ship production was 119 vessels, or 1,157,802 tons.

A Letter from a Fighter Overseas

Nothing I'd rather print in my column than a good chatty letter from one of our boys overseas.

Here's one I got a kick out of, from Lem Martin's son:

"Howdy Dad and Mom!" he writes. "I hear you all had right smart of a drought in our part of old Kaintuck. How's that piece of tobacco you set out down near the creek? Did it fire much? Wish I was there to help at stripping time. Maybe I will be!"

"Yes, I've been getting your letters right along. Glad to hear it's the same old town, with the same friendly people dropping in. And I can just picture you, Dad, sitting on the side porch with a cooling glass of beer after your day's work at the plant and cheering up the folks like you always did.

"Wish I was there to join you. Just keep the old town like we left it. There's no country on this green earth like the good old U. S. A."

Well, from where I sit that just about sums up the sentiments of our fighting men, everywhere.

BILL'S SMILE...

PERHAPS it's a little thing, after all . . . that friendly smile on Bill's face. But we don't think so. We're proud of that smile.

You see, Bill is a conductor on one of our passenger trains. And, like 45,000 other men and women of the Southern Railway System, he is mighty busy these days.

Busy . . . because the Southern is carrying the greatest transportation load in all its history.

Busy . . . because every Southern railroader is working harder than ever before to do a vital war job that is helping to speed final Victory.

Busy . . . Yes! But not too busy to smile, to be courteous and considerate.

In fact, in a recent survey of public opinion in Southern Railway territory, 98 percent of the people interviewed said that our employees habitually "make an effort to please."

This is a reflection of the very heart and soul of this railroad. It is an expression of the spirit of the 45,000 Southern Railway System employees who are dedicated to the service of our Southland.

DEMobilIZATION

Demobilization of our soldiers and sailors will take many months after both Germany and Japan have been defeated. The Army can hardly muster out more than 200,000 or 250,000 men a month and the Navy estimates that it will take eighteen to twenty-four months to demobilize 2,000,000 men after the defeat of Japan.

SIXTEEN NEW BOOKS

Sixteen new books were added to the Boone County Homemakers' lending library last week. This brings the total number of books in the library to 153.

The library is open to anyone in the county. Homemakers may keep a book one month for five cents, while non-members may keep a book two weeks for five cents. Part of the books are kept in the Home Agent's Office at the courthouse; while the others are carried to Homemakers' Club meetings.

The county reading chairman, Mrs. Alexander Yelton, and her committee tries to keep the library up-to-date by frequently purchasing books with funds collected in book rentals.

OPA This Week

Tire Regulation Announced

The dealers who sell to consumers now are required by the Office of Price Administration to sell any new tire in their inventory to any person who presents a valid tire rationing certificate and the purchase price of the tire.

Dealers also are required to post daily inventories of their stock of tires with a cross-section size of 8.25 or larger.

"R" Coupon Restriction Removed

Beginning September 22, all gasoline filling stations may again accept off-highway "R" coupons, the OPA announced this week. The prohibition against acceptance of these coupons by most filling stations (Amendment 111 to Ration Order 5C) has been in effect since April 1, 1944. Its purpose was to limit the channels of transfer of "R" coupons to reduce their illegal use.

Fuel Oil Coupons Extended

Period 4 and 5 fuel oil coupons, along with definite value coupons left over from this year's ration, may be used throughout the coming heating year, the OPA has announced.

These coupons were scheduled to expire on September 30. An amendment issued last week extended their validity for rationed fuel oil purchases until August 31, 1945.

New "A" Books Due Sept. 22

New "A" basic gasoline books go into use in this area on September 22, 1944. Coupons A-13 are valid on that date. Holders must immediately write or stamp their car license number and state of registration on the face of each coupon. Detached coupons are void. If a motorist stops using or sells his car, the book and all unused coupons are to be surrendered to his local War Price and Rationing Board. Each of the new coupons is stamped with a serial number which is the same as the serial number on the book.

Point Losses To Be Adjusted

Provision has been made for retailers to apply to their local War Price and Rationing Boards for an adjustment if they suffer point losses in excess of 25 per cent of their allowable inventories because of the removal of processed food items from rationing, the OPA has announced.

When most canned vegetables, all fruit spreads, and all specialties except catsup and chili sauce are removed from rationing on September 17, it will be possible for many retailers to continue to operate without an adjustment. But others will be in serious need of adjustment, OPA said.

The local Boards have been authorized to issue certificates to registered retailers in an amount equal to the difference between the point value of the inventory on September 17 and 75 per cent of the retailer's present allowable inventory.

NO CHANGE IN TRUCK TIRE INSPECTION

Henry A. Leachman, District Manager, Office of Defense Transportation, Highway Transport Department, announced today that there has been no change in tire inspection requirements for commercial motor vehicles. The regulations still require tire inspection for commercial motor vehicles every six months or every 5,000 miles, whichever is sooner.

Mr. Leachman states that quite a number of inquiries have been received in his office due to the fact that newspapers have been carrying the O.P.A. passenger car tire inspection notices and that commercial motor vehicle operators have been laboring under the opinion that this also applied to them. Such is not the case.

The dairy program in Casey county has been increased by the purchase of a second load of Brown Swiss cattle.

The Runaway

By DEE CAMPBELL
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

It was ten minutes past midnight when Big Mike Condon saw the boy in the dim glow of his big truck's headlights. Immediately his large foot pushed on the brakes. The boy wore a white shirt and blue pea-coat of a sailor. Big Mike had a friendly feeling for bluejackets; his kid brother was one.

The truck smoothed to a stop. "Hop in, Mac."

The sailor leaped into the seat, placing at his feet the small bag he carried and tilting his hat to the back of his curly brown head.

Big Mike gave him a quick comprehensive glance. "Pretty young to be in the navy, aren't you, Mac?"

"I'm seventeen," the sailor answered shortly.

Big Mike kept his eyes on the gray concrete ribbon that retreated dizzily beneath the hood. "Cigarette?" He turned and offered his pack.

"Thank you — I — I — don't smoke." There was a moment's pause and then the boy went on hastily. "Of course I really do smoke — it's just that — I don't want one."

"I think I know what you mean," Big Mike said meaningfully. Then he changed the subject. "How's the navy treating you? His keen eyes didn't miss the way the boy's mouth stiffened stubbornly. "Not exactly 4.0, huh?" Big Mike laughed.

"No," the boy replied emphatically. "No, it's not I — His eyes held a frightened look.

The zipper of the bag had jammed halfway and through the opening Big Mike could see a jumble of socks, unfolded dungarees and skivvie shirts. It had obviously been packed in a hurry. He said quietly, "So you're running away — or as you boys say, you're going 'over the hill.'"

The boy swung around. "Yes," he said defiantly. "For good!"

"Well," Big Mike began, "that's a pretty big thing to do."

The sailor interrupted. "There's no use trying to stop me, either. I know the line about serving my country and being patriotic! Well, I'm sick of it! I'm sick of standing watches and being bawled out and not seeing my folks! He swallowed hard and went on. "Anyway Dough tried to tell me all that — Dough's my buddy back at the base. He thought he'd talked me out of it too — but I waited until I was sure he was asleep and took out. So you see," he turned back to Big Mike, "nothing you can say will make any difference!"

Big Mike turned to him with a little smile. "That's exactly what I wanted to find out. How would you like a job? I'd be safe enough. You'd do all your work at night — like me, see, driving a truck."

The boy looked at him straight. "Hauling what?"

Big Mike grinned knowingly. "Well — you know, Mac — what you were talking about — all this nonsense about patriotism and so on? Well, I feel the same way. So when this scrap started, I figured there was ways of making it pay off — and there is! Know what I got back there? Tires — new rubber tires. I'm making big dough! Sometimes I haul — best! Ever hear of the black market? Yeah? Well, that's the racket."

"So you're running a black market? I've heard of them — sure I have!"

"I'm offering you a chance, kid. And right now is the time to look out for yourself. Oh, yeah, I know you hear that stuff on the radio about the fighting men needing food and rubber for jeeps and planes — so what? I'm looking out for myself and not a bunch of run-dum soldiers in Italy or Alaska! It's me I'm interested in!"

Without warning the boy swung. His fist struck Big Mike squarely on the chin jerking back his head. Before he could recover the sailor struck him again, this time in the eye. "Black market, eh? So you don't care what happens to our soldiers —"

The big truck swerved and left the road. Big Mike jammed the brakes and it lurched to a stop. "O. K., kid," he muttered. He was trying to ward off the blows and manage the wheel at the same time.

The sailor got out. "Anyway you showed me something," he said grimly. "Guess I never knew there really were people like you!" He took his bag. "I'm heading back to the base in case you're interested." Big Mike looked at him. "I'm interested," he said. There was an odd look on his face. "Here's something I want to show you."

He took out his billfold. The sailor stepped close to look. Then he gasped. "Why, that's Dough's picture!"

"Sure," Big Mike grinned. "My kid brother. You see, he didn't fall to stop you. He knew that I carry defense material every night and so when he saw you pack your bag he just gave me a ring before I started. He figured I'd be along in time to pick you up. Things worked out fine too, except," he rubbed his chin. "Dough didn't say anything about that right wallop you pack!" He opened the door. "Get in, sailor," he said. "I'll drive you back to the base."

-- BUT DON'T FORGET ABOUT Eyesight Conservation

While cooperating in the saving of gasoline, tires, fats and other war essentials, let's not overlook another vital national resource—GOOD EYESIGHT.

Even in these war-busy days, anyone can take these four simple precautions against eyestrain. Read them carefully and teach them to your children.

- 1 Sit close enough to your reading lamp to get all the help it can give your eyes.
- 2 Avoid shadows. Make sure you have good light directly on your work or book. Shadows strain eyes.
- 3 Avoid glare from bare bulbs. Don't sit facing light. Have all lamps properly shaded.
- 4 Have eyes examined regularly. If eyes are defective, vision will be greatly helped with proper glasses.

When peace returns, we are all going to have Better Light for Better Sight. In the meantime, take care of your eyes, but don't waste light.

HIGHWAYS

Congress is expected to complete action on the $3,375,250,000 road construction program before the end of the year. Action is urgent because forty-five legislatures meet in January and it will be necessary for the States to supplement Federal expenditures by providing forty percent of the total cost of the program.

Tentative plans call for a $650,000,000 appropriation annually by the Federal Government, with $200,000 for urban highways $250,000,000 for Federal-aid highways and $200,000,000 for farm-to-market roads.

SURRENDER

The Office of War Information warns Americans not to give credence to stories of surrender unless they are confirmed by General Dwight Eisenhower, Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in Western Europe.

ARMY MAIL

The Army is now using a massive one-story postoffice building containing 500,000 square feet of floor space, to handle parcels, newspapers and magazines for the millions of men and women overseas. The $3,500,000 building covers fourteen and a half acres of ground in New York, and was completed in a little more than three months. It will employ 10,000 civilians and 4,000 soldiers to care for the Christmas mail rush.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war sure has made a lot of changes in this old world of ours, hasn't it, Judge?" "Plenty of them, John. One that few people realize is that the rubber producing center of the world is now right here in the United States."

"When the Japs conquered the big natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had us licked. But in two short years, thanks to American industry, we are now producing synthetic rubber enough to supply all our military and essential civilian needs."

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the problem was to get the huge amounts of industrial alcohol needed. Almost overnight the country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and converted 100% to the production of this vital ingredient. A high government official said recently this was '...an almost unparalleled example of the overnight conversion of an entire industry from peace to war.'"

"Come to think of it, Judge, it was a mighty fortunate thing the beverage distilling industry was in existence, wasn't it?"

RELIGION IN THE LIFE OF A NATION

LESSON TEXT—II Samuel 7:17-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory. Isaiah 60:19.

"Righteousness exalteth a nation" (Prov. 14:34). True religion is vital to the life of a nation and is the only foundation for national stability and growth. David, the man after God's own heart, knew this, and was not content that the ark of God, the center of the nation's worship, should be without a suitable house. He was not one to be content with a fine palace for his own comfort while the ark of God had a temporary abiding place within curtained walls (v. 2).

Although the prophet Nathan encouraged him in his plan (v. 3), the Lord revealed to the prophet that David was not to build His house (see I Chron. 22:8, 9), but to prepare the materials so that his son Solomon could do it. David's response to that message reveals the true religious attitude of a king and a people who fear and worship God. They were ready to—

I. Receive God's Grace (vv. 18-22). The great Davidic covenant, which is yet to have its final fulfillment in David's greater son, our Lord Jesus, was made with him at this time. He was promised that the throne of his kingdom was to be established forever (18-19), a prophecy to be fulfilled in Christ.

But there was also the great promise of blessing upon David's son Solomon, and the reminder of God's grace upon David, the one brought up from the shepherds to be king (v. 8).

In humility of heart David received this grace and thanked God for it. Note such expressions as "Who am I?" "What is my house?" "What can David say more?" and "For thy word's sake thou hast done these great things." David knew and admitted his unworthiness; he realized that this was indeed unmerited favor from God, but he accepted it as God's gift.

II. Recognize God's Power (vv. 23, 24).

Israel had seen the mighty hand of God at work on their behalf repeatedly, since the day God had brought them forth out of Egypt. God had literally redeemed them for Himself, a purchased possession, protected by His limitless power.

That redemption was not only national but spiritual—they were set free from the gods of Egypt (v. 23) and confirmed to the Lord (v. 24).

It is a great and noble thing when a nation recalls its past and thanks God for His powerful hand upon its destiny. It has been said that a nation which does not remember its past will not have a future worth remembering; and when it remembers, let it recognize God in its history. He is the God of the nations as well as of individuals.

III. Rest in God's Promise (vv. 25-27).

"Do as thou hast said." That is a perfect prayer for any nation. Let the will of God be done, and all will be well—now and in the future.

There is nothing commendable about doubting God's promise or limiting Him in fulfilling it. It glorifies God and magnifies His name to let Him act at His word and to confidently expect Him to fully meet His promise. To do anything else is to reflect on His power and His integrity.

It was the prayer of David that the Lord's name might be magnified forever in the keeping of the covenant which He had made with him. That squarely put all of the authority and dependability of God behind the keeping of the promise.

David found peace of heart there. May not we do likewise, resting on the promises of God?

IV. Rejoice in God's Blessing (vv. 28, 29).

David praised God for the assurance that His words were true, and claimed the promise of a blessing upon his house, "That it may continue forever before thee."

He evidently saw beyond the immediate fulfillment of the promise in Solomon to the coming of Christ (cf. vv. 18, 19; Rom. 4:8-9). And his heart leaped for joy at the unspeakable honor which had thus come to him.

This is substantiated by the translation of verse 19 by the Hebrew scholar Adam Clarke: "O Lord God, thou hast spoken of thy servant's house for a great while to come, and hast regarded me in the arrangement about the MAN that is to be from above, O God Jehovah."

Little wonder, then, that David raised his voice and heart in praise and worship. His "adoration and thanksgiving at the revelation of this great truth is beautiful. Its humility, faith, and gratitude reach a sublimity unequalled since Moses" (James M. Gray).

Even Lady Beetles Have

Black Sheep in Family

The Mexican bean beetle is a black sheep of the lady "bug" or lady beetle family. While most lady beetles destroy aphids and are beneficial, the bean beetle is our most serious pest of beans. It is a problem in practically all gardens, and injures bush and pole snap beans and limas, "shell" beans, and sometimes soybeans.

The bean beetle is easily recognized by its half-pea shape, yellow to coppery color, and the 16 black spots on its wing covers. The young are spiny, lemon yellow, oval grubs, often likened to tiny pin cushions. Both the beetles and grubs feed mostly on the underside of the leaves, leaving only a lacework pattern of veins. They also destroy blossoms and eat holes in the pods.

Rotten dusts or sprays are the best materials for controlling the bean beetle as well as most other garden pests. They kill both the beetles and grubs, and are safe to use at any time. Pyrethrum sprays and dusts are also safe and fairly effective. Cryolite, relatively new as a garden insecticide, is effective. It is only slightly poisonous and can be used safely even after the pods form if the beans are washed before use. Calcich arsenate and lead arsenate are not recommended as they are likely to "burn" the bean leaves and are more poisonous.

Oppressed People Sought Freedom in Iceland

The same search for freedom which stimulated later colonization in North America prompted Norwegians to flee royal oppression in their homeland and settle on Iceland's west coast 1,070 years ago, in 974 A. D. Today's inhabitants are descended from those Vikings and from Irish, Danish, Scotch and English, some of whom reached Iceland's shores even earlier.

They were free. In 930 they set up their republic and its governing Althing, the parliament. In the year 1000, while an Icelandic, Leif Ericson, was discovering America, the parliament adopted Christianity as a state matter, and all citizens were baptized.

After three centuries of freedom Iceland fell under foreign rule; first, Norway, in 1262, then Denmark, in 1380. Emigrations to America followed the nation's darkest hour in 1783, when unprecedented volcanic damage capped a long era of plagues, famines and raids by sea rovers.

The turn came in the 19th century. On June 17, 1811, patriot Jon Sigurdson was born. His life of labor put Iceland on the road back to the freedom realized recently when the country declared itself a republic.

Jap Islands

The Bonin Islands directly south of Japan are a sort of miniature Japanese Hawaiians. They are approximately in the latitude of those American mid-Pacific islands as well as in the latitude of Miami, Fla. Until recent centuries the 27 islands were uninhabited and covered with tropical jungle. They lie north of the trade winds and east of the monsoons, but occasionally catch the tail end of storms. Aggregating about 30 square miles, of which one-third is on Chichi Jima, the Bonins are bold and rocky but have a fine volcanic soil producing luxuriant vegetation. Sugar cane, pineapples and bananas are the chief crops. Turtles and fish are caught in the surrounding waters. Palms cover the lower slopes. Mulberry trees and ferns grow to great sizes. In prewar years the islands supported the surprising number of 6,000 inhabitants—about 200 persons per square mile.

Natural Sunglasses

Some animals, besides having a yellowish network of capillaries in front of the retina, also have yellow corneas and yellow lenses in their eyes. These tend to reduce the light and filter out blue rays. Generally, the more time an animal spends in the sun, the more highly developed are the protective filters in the eye. Even the lens of the human eye is yellowish, which deepens with age. However, the human eye does not have very effective natural protection against very bright sunshine. The prairie dog, that basks in the sun, has a highly colored protective filter in his visual mechanism, so he does not mind the bright glare of the sun. But human beings are naturally shade loving creatures, and their eyes generally cannot tolerate bright sunlight with comfort.

Home of Balsam

Fronting the Pacific and directly below Guatemala lies El Salvador, the smallest of the ten Middle American republics, and the real home of balsam. The source of balsam is a tree which grows on the "Balsam coast" of El Salvador. After the tree has been bruised and charred, its bark falls off and balsam begins to exude. It is then received on rags, which when saturated, are boiled in water, allowing the separated balsam to fall to the bottom. Balsam is well known for its fragrant odor and is used in confectionery and perfumery and most important of all, in modern surgery and pharmacology. Balsam is indispensable in modern warfare and has proved invaluable in the treatment of various diseases.

News From The State Capital

The death rate from diphtheria in Kentucky in 1943, as shown by final tabulation, reached the all-time low of 1.6 per 100,000 population. Among a total of 5280 cases reported, 44 deaths occurred, as against 64 deaths among 374 cases in 1942. John W. Kelly, Director, Division of Public Health Education, State Department of Health, stated today.

While these figures indicate continuing and gratifying progress in controlling a disease which finds its victims chiefly among young children, they note the loss constitute a grave indictment against indifference or ignorance on the part of a not inconsiderable percentage of parents. No child today need have diphtheria, much less die of it, unless someone fails to see to it that he is properly protected through immunization. Diphtheria, while one of the most dreaded of the so-called childhood diseases, is also the easiest to prevent. Against it science has provided an effective immunizing agent, which is available to every child, everywhere, in the State. Any parent unable to pay the family physician's modest fee can have his child or children immunized, free of charge, at the local health department.

A 25.4 per cent increase in toll bridge collections last month over August, 1943, has been announced by Highway Commissioner J. Stephen Watkins.

Discontinuance of sales of round-trip tickets across the bridges was attributed as one of the chief reasons for the sharp increase.

The Canton and Rockport bridges showed biggest increases, Canton with an 86.6 per cent rise and Rockport with 72.1 per cent. Traffic in general over the state decreased.

Permanently disabled workers should be provided lifetime compensation, L. C. Willis, Commissioner of the State Department of Industrial Relations, declared recently in an address before the Kentucky State Federation of Labor at Lexington.

"Without in any manner detracting from the nation's obligations to our men disabled in battle, I firmly believe that industry owes an equal responsibility for and to those injured in the battle of production," Willis asserted.

"It is indeed an unsound hypothesis which holds that a man who, if he loses an arm in battle, should receive monthly payments the rest of his life; but if this same man survives this battle, returns to his job and two weeks later suffers a similar injury should receive the pitiful amount of $12 a week for 200 weeks, after which he must fight for himself."

Sale of liquor in Kentucky must cease immediately on official announcement of Germany's capitulation, the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has announced.

The regulation, which does not affect beer sales, was explained as designed to curb possible disorder.

If the announcement comes before 7 p. m., sales will be suspended until 6 a. m., the next day. If it comes after 7 p. m., the ban will be in effect through the twenty-four hours of the following day.

The regulation, promulgated by Charles F. Brown, board chairman, said retail dealers must be guided by official announcements through newspapers or radio or whatever method is utilized.

Premises where liquor is sold must be cleared of customers and closed at once, the order stated, except that hotels, private clubs, drugstores and grocery stores may remain open provided they lock up their liquor.

State tax collections, paced by returns from a record whisky production month, increased 14.9 per cent last month over August a year ago and boosted collections for the fiscal year to 7.1 per cent above those for the same period last year, according to Revenue Department tabulations.

General-fund collections last month totaled $2,519,548 as compared to $1,994,492 in August 1943 while the road-fund receipts dropped from $1,192,339 in August a year ago to $1,182,465 last month.

General-fund receipts for the fiscal year through August amounted to $5,506,710, an increase over $4,699,323 collected for the same two months a year ago, while the road fund dropped from $2,818,713 to $2,298,629.

The whiskey production taxes made possible by the Government-authorized August "holiday" from the manufacture of war alcohol, saved chiefly to offset decreases in other revenues, however.

As a result of demonstrations made this season, a large number of Hickman county farmers will apply borax to their alfalfa.

Kentucky Wildcats Win First Game; Next Game Oct. 7

The University of Kentucky football team won their first game Saturday night from Mississippi, 27 to 7.

Coach Ab Klrwan, convinced that he has a "better-than-average" war-time squad, expects to give all the southern teams a contest in the competition for national football recognition.

Football ticket sales this year have been the heaviest ever recorded at the Kentucky University. The stadium is expected to be filled at most of the games.

Newspaper editors of Central Kentucky will be guests at Editor's Day, October 7, when Kentucky plays Michigan State.

The complete Wildcat schedule follows: Sept. 23—Mississippi, 8 p. m. at Lexington; Sept. 30—Tennessee at Knoxville; Oct. 7—Michigan State, 2 p. m. at Lexington; Oct. 13—Georgia at Athens, Ga.; Oct. 21—Virginia Military Institute, 2 p. m. at Lexington; Oct. 27—Alabama at Montgomery; Nov. 4—Mississippi State at Memphis, Tenn.; Nov. 11—Open date; Nov. 18—West Virginia at Lexington; Nov. 25—Tennessee at Lexington.

BOONE COUNTY MAN HELD ON AUTO CHARGE

A man registered as Louie Kimmon, Big Bone, Boone county, was ordered held to the Kenton county grand jury under $500 bond Saturday by Judge John B. Read in Kenton county Court, Covington, on a charge of grand larceny.

Herman Hoffman, 2022 Madison avenue, Covington, salesman for the Fitzgerald & McCullough Motor Co., 1616 Madison avenue, charged Kimmon appeared at the garage several days ago and said he would like to purchase an auto.

The salesman said the man selected a car and requested permission to drive the car to his home to obtain the money. He charged the man failed to return with the car or the money. Kimmon was arrested Friday at his home by Boone county officials.

Women's Literary Club

The Walton Woman's Literary Club will hold its October meeting at the home of Mrs. J. E. Hamilton, Verona, on Wednesday, October 4th.

The subject of the meeting will be "Boone County's Historical Places of Interest."

JOHN L. SNELLING

John L. Snelling of Petersburg, age 30, passed away late Sunday following an acute attack of Cardiac Asthma.

Services were conducted from Petersburg Baptist Church Tuesday at 3 p. m. with burial in Petersburg Cemetery.

Mrs. Snelling is survived by his wife, parents Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Snelling, one son David Allen, three brothers Howard, Albert and Franklin all of Petersburg, four sisters, Mrs. Howard Aylor of Florence, Mrs. Richard Hensley, Marie and Vergina Snelling of Petersburg.

Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

Four Poultry Meets Set in Near Future

Poultry raisers are invited to attend four community poultry culling and winter management meetings on Thursday, October 5th according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent at Knoxville, Tenn. The meetings are: 9:30 a. m.—Mrs. Stanley Fooks of Verona; 11:00 a. m.—Mrs. Chris Edwards of Hamilton; 1:30 p. m.—Mrs. Huey Aylor of Hebron; 3:00 p. m.—Mrs. Thomas Hensley of Burlington.

Each meeting will last approximately one hour with demonstrations on culling, selection of laying pullets and winter housing and management problems being discussed. It is hoped all farm flock poultry raisers will attend.

The Abraham Lincoln Memorial, Westminster

This little sketch about Lincoln Memorial, Westminster England, was written by Vernon Lipscomb, who is stationed somewhere in England with the U. S. Army.

A copy of the St. Gaudens statue in the Lincoln Park, Chicago; given in England in 1920 by citizens of Chicago with wishes to mark the closer friendship between the two countries.

The statue was unveiled by the American statesman, Mr. Elihu Root. The British Government suggested it be placed as near the Westminster Abbey and the Houses of Parliament as possible, in view of the fact that the statue is the resting place of some Britains most famous statesmen and the Parliamentary system as the mother of all democratic forms of rule, a system which Lincoln was most closely allied.

The Lincoln Statue stands by the Gothic Middlesex Guildhall. At the statue's unveiling Mr. Root said that "from now on the Father of Liberty would stand for all time outside the mother of Parliaments."

A. F. Willis of Trimble county threshed an average of 38 bushels to the acre from 18 acres of Thorpe wheat.

Despite drought, N. J. Tuttle of Estill county cut two tons of alfalfa hay to the acre.

Annual Meeting of Homemakers Oct. 3 At Florence Church

The ninth Annual Meeting for Boone County Homemakers will be held next Tuesday, October 3rd. The meeting will be held at the Florence Methodist Church, the same meeting place as the past two years.

Mrs. Stanley Ransom, Walton, program chairman, has announced details of the program. "All for One, and One for All" has been selected as the theme for the day's program. The meeting will be called to order at 10:30 a. m. (C.W.T.) by Mrs. Leo Flynn, County President of Homemakers. After the pledge to the flag and the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner," the Rev. Elmer Kidwell, pastor of the Florence Methodist Church, will lead the group in prayer. Following group singing of "All for One and One for All," Mrs. Flynn will call for activity reports of the various county chairman. The short business session will be held before lunch.

Lunch will be served by the Ladies of the Methodist Church. All luncheon reservations must be made by Saturday, noon, September 30th. Phone Burlington 412 or send a postal card to Mary Hood Gillespie, Home Demonstration Agent. Lunch tickets will cost sixty cents.

Special music will be one of the highlights of the program. The Rev. Bruce Eaton will sing in the morning; while Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Caroland will sing in the afternoon. The Boone County School Band will start the afternoon program at 1:15 p. m. Students from three of the county schools will participate in the band concert.

The guest speaker for the day will be Mrs. Ralph Seaton, Shelbyville, Ky., state president of Kentucky Federation of Homemakers. Group singing of "Sing Your Way Home" will conclude the program.

Friends and neighbors of Homemakers are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

Those who served on the program committee were Mrs. Ransom, Mrs. William Hill, Mrs. Howard Aylor and Mrs. Garnett Tolin.

FEED CROP SHORT CORN FODDER AID

Boone County farmers are faced with another serious feed problem for this winter according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Those farmers who must purchase roughages, especially hay, are being required to pay prices that are almost prohibitive for making a profit.

Corn fodder or stover is one of the most important supplementary roughage crops that should enable a large number of farmers to effect a great saving on their winter feed bill. Corn fodder properly handled and fed early is estimated to be worth 65¢ as much as good timothy hay, or 2.7 times as much as wheat straw or 1.1 times as much as oats straw. Figure at present prices of timothy hay, corn fodder would be worth around $20.00 per ton. A shock of corn may weigh around 200 pounds or an acre of good fodder will weigh 1 1/4 tons or more per acre.

Feeding early or shredding after the first heavy freeze is recommended as the way to get the most out of fodder.

Four corn shredders are listed in the County Office as being available for shredding work. They are owned by J. B. Heizer of Beaverlick; E. A. Martin of Idlewild; Harold Craig of Hebron; and Leian Snyder of Woolper.

The baling of corn fodder to get it in the dry is also recommended. Owners of hay balers in the county include Ben Menke, Walton; Dancy Bros., Walton; Ute and Blackburn, Burlington; Roy Kenney, Beaver; Ira Tanner, Florence; J. B. Heizer, Beaver; George Spertl, Burlington; and Jimmy Brink, Union.

Farmers are also advised to seed cultivated acre of the past season to wheat or Barley at the earliest possible date. If sufficient growth to relieve the hay shortage in early winter is not secured, a great saving in feed will result next March and April when feed will usually be more scarce and high.

Commercial tomato growers in Carroll county report better-than-average crop prospects.

K. C. Dunn, Ballard county, harvested 35 bushels of wheat to the acre, and R. I. Cooke got 30 bushels off disked lespedeza land.

War Reporter Jim Cassidy Of WLW Examines Bren Gun On French Front

A quintet of Canadians in a war-ravaged French village take time out to show Jim Cassidy (right, kneeling), fine points of the Bren gun, that "sweet little baby that plays such an important part in street fighting." There is plenty of street fighting in France, every hamlet being a haven for snipers long after the main body of Hun troops has retired. Handling the Brens are Spr. John Tepfer of Winnipeg and Spr. Ed. Kube of St. Thomas, Ontario. Mr. Cassidy is Station WLW's own war correspondent on the European front, broadcasting to WLW listeners by shortwave Mondays through Fridays at 6:25 p. m., EWT.

Celebrate With Silver Wedding Surprise

On Monday night, September 18, a group of friends, relatives, and neighbors met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Carroll to surprise them with a silver coin shower on their 25th wedding anniversary. After refreshments were served, the guests of honor opened a box filled with silver coins and beautiful cards and sentiments. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pitcher (Velma Loomes) of Independence, who were the attendants, presented them with a bouquet of flowers, the centers of which carried silver coins. The guests, which totaled over seventy were: Mrs. Sophia Jones and Mrs. M. Binder, Miss Rebecca Sleet, Mrs. Garfield Hamilton and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Orin Edwards and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Black, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Sebre, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. William Moore and two sons, Mrs. Helen Moore, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Kirtley and daughter, Mrs. Maude Asbury, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Acree, Mrs. Lillian Ryle, Mrs. Ed Beem, Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, Mrs. Charles Black, James B. Jones, Robert Stephenson, Mr. Bryant Jones, Mr. and Mrs. John Black, Denver and Melbourne Black, Wanda Miller, Mary Lou Jones, Miss Lena Binder, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Jones, Walter Ashline, Little Miss Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Carroll and family.

Everyone left wishing them many more happy anniversaries. Many who could not be present sent their remembrances.

WOUNDED IN ACTION

The following telegram was received by Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Webster of Verona, Ky. R. I.

Deeply regret to inform you that your son Pvt. Elmer C. Webster was slightly wounded in France, September 8th.

Signed J. A. Uilo, Adj. Gen.

Pvt. Webster entered the service March 1942, and was sent overseas February 1944.

Gallatin County Votes

Wet In Election Monday

The Local Option election held Monday in Gallatin County resulted in the county voting wet. A very large vote was cast, showing the interest that was shown on both sides. The total vote in the county was 1023. The wets received 996 and dries 615 over the county.

There were only two of the nine precincts which voted dry, they were Glenoe 139 to 101; and Napoleon 73 to 61. The Warsaw precincts were the heaviest wet precincts going about 2 to 1 wet.

Willing Workers Meet

The Willing Workers Class of the Walton Christian Church held their regular monthly meeting at the church on last Thursday evening.

Pera Benjamin was guest speaker. Members and guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Pera Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. Powers Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Doan, Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Meadows, Mrs. J. C. Cutham, Mrs. Ruth MacDonald, Mrs. John Gault, Mrs. W. R. Wouse, Mrs. Lois Mase, Mrs. Alene Comer, Mrs. Mildred Rice, Mrs. Louis Schwab, Miss Helen Ruth Gardiner, Miss Mary Renaker, Coreia Rice, June Doan, Ginny Lou Schwab, Sue Ann Mase and Sammy Johnson.

Tobacco Labor Is Serious Problem; Frost Is Bad Threat

The tobacco labor shortage is the most acute in Boone County since the war started according to the County Agent's Office. The late ripening season delayed cutting and fear of early frosts is making a serious situation for a large crop now ready to be harvested.

Securing of day labor is practically out of the question. Neighbor cooperation still offers the best solution. A call on Monday to the State Office revealed that there are now 3,500 requests for war prisoner labor and the war department will allow no more prisoners. They advised the County Office that the securing of war prisoners locally would be impossible.

Unless the situation is relieved by good weather, this week, the public may be asked upon to cooperate in helping to harvest the crop. Tobacco has been classified as one of the needed war crops and every effort should be made to complete the harvest.

Mrs. Louisa Stephens Aylor

Mrs. Louisa Stephens Aylor, of Petersburg, passed away in her home late Wednesday following an illness of ten years. Mrs. Aylor was 89 years old and lived her entire life in Boone county.

She is survived by three sons, James and Cleve, both at home; Chester Aylor, Milwaukee, Wisconsin; five daughters, Miss Emma who lives at home, Mrs. Lou Stephens, Petersburg; Mrs. Albert Vastine, and Mrs. Clifford Ryle, both of Aurora, Ind.; Mrs. Georgia Stephens, Norwood, Ohio.

Funeral services were conducted from the residence Saturday at 3 p. m. Rev. Roy Johnson officiating. Burial was in Petersburg Cemetery with Chambers and Grubbs in charge.

SIX SEWING MACHINES CLEANED BY LEADERS

Six sewing machines of varied makes and degrees of burred mechanical parts were cleaned last week by clothing leaders. The training class was held at the Town Hall in Florence. Seventeen leaders representing nine Homemakers Clubs attended the all day meeting.

Mrs. Dorothy Threlkeld, clothing specialist, University of Kentucky, conducted the training class. She demonstrated how to clean a sewing machine, make adjustments to a machine attachments. Following the demonstrations, clothing leaders cleaned the machines and practiced sewing attachments.

This lesson will be given to all local clubs during October.

P. Mann, Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, Mrs. George Knox, Mrs. Cecil Gains, Mrs. Bertha Baker and Little Misses Irma Rector and Donnie Joy Wright.

Boone County Tuberculosis Association and Red Cross

Boone County Tuberculosis Association will see that all persons (who live in a home where there is an open case of tuberculosis) have a chest X-ray. For those unable to pay for themselves it will be paid out of the Christmas Seal Fund. The seal of the Christmas seals in Boone County does a great deal for tuberculosis cases here.

Boone County Tuberculosis Association will arrange for X-rays where ever this is necessary.

Children whose X-rays show no trouble, should attend school.

WITH OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

MEMBER OF EIGHTH FIGHTER COMMAND

An Eighth Air Force Fighter Station, England—Sergeant Everett M. Bolen of Walton is a member of an Eighth Fighter Command P-51 Mustang group which recently passed the 450-mark in victories over Nazi planes, becoming the third American fighter group in the European Theatre of Operations to make such a record.

Sgt. Bolen is an armorer in a Mustang squadron and his work contributed to the group's high record of combat efficiency. As a part of the organization which enables the fighter pilots to devote all their time and energy to the pursuit and destruction of the Luftwaffe, he is helping to keep American fighter planes in combat against the enemy over every corner of occupied Europe.

This fighter group, commanded by Colonel William J. Cummings Jr. of Lawrence, Kansas, established a record for American units in this theatre when it destroyed 44 enemy planes on the ground and seven in the air in one mission. And in four low-level attacks, the group destroyed 118 German planes on the ground, an average of more than 29 per mission.

Sgt. Bolen, who formerly resided on Route 1, Walton, was employed as a welder by the A. J. Bayer Co. of Los Angeles, Calif., before being inducted in November, 1942.

LETTER TO GRANDFATHER

The following letter was written to Mr. William Berry Johnson by his grandson L. W. M. Mills who is stationed in New Guinea.

Dear Grandpa,
Here I am in New Guinea, a beautiful Island of the Southwest Pacific. The climate here is very mild, much like that in California.

Cliff Renaker is somewhere in this part of the world but he is quite a distance from where I am.

I hope that everything in Walton is O. K. and that you had a good croquet season.

Tell June that I said she should play you a game of croquet sometime.

Tell J. B., Olive and Tommy hello for me, and take care of yourself.

Best regards,
Billy
(Editor's Note:—L. Mills inquires as the croquet season—well we hear that the team of Mr. W. B. Johnson and George Nicholson took all comers and won—so I guess that makes them "champs"—also it is said that in one of those games Mr. Lusby didn't get through the first wicket—we don't know for sure about this, but we do know that Nicholson and Johnson were champs that day.)

Democrats To Start Ball Rolling in State

Kentucky Democrats will begin an all out drive to put Kentucky safely in the Roosevelt column for the fourth time on Saturday afternoon September 30 when they formally open their campaign with a rally at Glasgow.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, a candidate for reelection to the United States Senate for a fourth term will make the principal speech. The senator's address will be broadcast over a statewide radio hookup headed by Station WHAS of Louisville and nine other Kentucky stations.

The party's nine congressional nominees and party leaders from all sections of the state are expected to attend.

The opening of the campaign at Glasgow will bring all of the party's organization work into full swing. "We have the votes. All we have to do is get them to the polls on election day," declared Harry Lee Waterfield, Democratic campaign chairman in announcing the Glasgow rally.

During the week prior to the Glasgow rally Chairman Waterfield and J. Lyter Donaldson, chairman of the Democratic state central and executive committee will hold organization meetings in all of the congressional districts of the state.

To all of these meetings will be invited, the county campaign chairmen and chairwomen, members of the party's state committee, the congressional nominees and party leaders.

Meetings are tentatively scheduled to be held at Covington, Mayesville, Pikeville, Corbin, Lexington Paducah, Madisonville and Glasgow.

The decision to hold the party's first rally at Glasgow is ample notice that the Democrats intend to make an all out fight to recapture the congressional seat in the fourth district now held by Chester O. Carter, of Leitchfield, who is seeking reelection as re publican nominee. Major Frank Chelf, of Lebanon is the Democratic congressional nominee in the district.

CONTROLS

Estimating that there will be a reduction of forty percent in war production within three months after the defeat of Germany, the War Production Board, with the approval of Army, Navy and other war agencies, plans to remove almost all controls over materials except those absolutely necessary to assure the defeat of Japan. This will permit manufacturers to use any plants and any materials not needed for military production.

WAR PLANTS

Disposition of Government owned war plants to the value of more than $15,000,000.00 and what happens to their "several million employees" constitutes the score of the post-war unemployment problem, according to James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization.

$2,000

During the first six months of 1944, the OPA took action against 42,000 violators of price, rationing and rent regulations.

17-18 YEARS

Automobile thefts increased 26.6 per cent during the first six months of this year, compared with the first half of 1943, according to J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director. Mr. Hoover also says that the gravity of present juvenile delinquency is indicated by the fact that the ages of seventeen and eighteen predominate in the frequency of arrests.

OVERFILLED BARNS MAY NEED FIRING

Burley tobacco barn should be fired, that is, heated artificially, whenever it is impossible to dry the tobacco in the daytime merely by opening the ventilators.

The time to fire does not depend solely upon the weather. Some barns may be so loaded with tobacco that good curing conditions can be obtained in no way except by continuous firing, even in the best of weather. Barns containing a moderate amount of tobacco and having plenty of ventilation may need to be fired only during periods of exceptionally humid weather. There is no single rule that will cover every situation.

Above all, a tobacco grower should not fire, or refrain from firing, just because his neighbor does. The circumstances may not be the same. Each grower should be guided by the tobacco inside his own curing barn, and he should fire whenever he finds that his tobacco has remained in case for more than 12 to 24 hours.

If the grower will feel around inside his barn to find out how his tobacco feels and compare what he finds there with the feel of a sample of tobacco hung outdoors, he will soon learn just how his barn reacts to different kinds of weather. Given this knowledge he is then in a position to know when he should fire and when he should attempt to get by merely by adjusting the ventilators.

The purpose of firing is to lower the humidity of the barn air and thereby prevent the cured leaves from remaining in case for too long a time. Tobacco cured under high moisture conditions is likely to houseburn, or at least, to be of low quality. This is the chief reason that many farmers find firing profitable. However, each tobacco barn should be treated as an individual problem, and firing should not be done without regard to the need for it.

It is never necessary to raise the temperature inside barns more than 10 to 15 degrees above outside temperature. The ideal is to both heat and ventilate so that the cured leaves will be barely out of case. If the barn is tightly constructed, the side ventilators should be partially open both at night and during the day. Never heat a closed barn. Too much ventilation wastes fuel; where as, too little ventilation will make conditions worse than when no heat is used.

This is the second of a series of articles on tobacco curing, furnished by the University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

HELPS CURE BURLEY HEPS CURE BURLEY

When burley tobacco barns are fired, the artificial heat is used in three distinct ways.

Part of the heat is used to evaporate the water out of the tobacco. For example, about the same amount of heat is used in evaporating a pound of water from tobacco in a tobacco barn as is needed to boil away a pint of water over a cook stove.

Another part of the heat is used to warm the air supplied for ventilation is essential, of course, as it is the means by which the moisture is conveyed out of the barn.

The remainder of the heat is used to offset that lost by conduction through the walls and roof of the barn as a result of the temperature inside being higher than that outside.

The amount of heat required by a particular barn depends not only upon the size of the barn but also upon the amount of tobacco it contains, the degree of ventilation and the materials of which it is constructed. The circumstances vary so widely that the heat required to produce the desired atmosphere within a particular barn can be determined only by trial.

To obtain good distribution of the heat and avoid overheating some of the tobacco, the stoves should be operated at a low rate of combustion.

A commonly used stove is 17 inches in diameter and 24 inches high. If one stove full of coke can be made to last for 12 to 16 hours, the rate of combustion will be about as low as practical.

Three stoves burning at this low rate were found to be sufficient to heat satisfactorily an experimental barn 28 by 36 feet by 16 feet to the plate when six vertical ventilators were open about two inches on each side of the barn. The barn contained 7,920 plants. To produce the same results within a similar barn 40 feet wide, 72 feet long, and 20 feet to the plate, and 15 stoves would be required; that is, an average of 2 1/2 stoves for each 12 feet. This number conforms closely to the practice followed by some farmers.

Stoves should be evenly and regularly spaced to obtain the best distribution of heat, except that they should be placed somewhat closer to the windward side of the barn than to the leeward side.

The coke required per season will vary, of course, with the weather. It depends also upon whether firing is made routine practice or is done only at times of exceptionally humid weather. For the latter purpose, a rate that may be used for rough estimates is one pound of coke per pound of cured tobacco. A single stove burning at a low rate will consume over a period of 12 hours an average of about 2 1/2 pounds of coke per hour.

This is the third of a series of articles on tobacco curing, furnished by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Up to April, 27 vessels of the Navy had received presidential citations for outstanding service in the present wars.

OPA This Week

GET YOUR STOVE NOW

Consumers who are badly in need of coal or wood cooking or heating stoves, and who are eligible under the present regulation, were urged by the Lexington District OPA Office this week to procure certificates from their local War Price and Rationing Boards and purchase the stoves before October 15. On that date stoves will go off rationing and there is likely to be a rush to buy stoves, with the result that some who really need them may not be able to obtain them, OPA said.

BLUE TOKENS INVALID AFTER SEPTEMBER 30

Blue tokens will be accepted by retailers only in groups of 10 from now until September 30, when they become invalid. E. Reed Wilson, District OPA Director announced this week.

Use of blue tokens is being discontinued because point values for processed foods are being set in multiples of 10 and tokens are no longer needed.

Housewives having fewer than 10 tokens may pool them in order that all tokens may be used before September 30, and retailers will have nine days after that date to deposit tokens in ration bank accounts or exchange them in multiples of 250 for ration checks or other forms of ration currency.

CRANBERRIES PRICES TO BE CONTROLLED

Cranberries, both for fresh use and for processing, will be brought under price control for the first time soon, the OPA said this week.

Advance announcement of the forthcoming maximum prices is being made, OPA said for the information of both buyers and sellers.

Although not all of the distributive mark-ups have been finally determined, the agency said that the highest retail ceilings are expected to be about 40 cents per pound.

"B-3" AND "C-3" COUPONS TO EXPIRE

"B-3" and "C-3" gasoline ration coupons will be invalid for motorists after September 30, the OPA announced this week.

At the same time "T" coupons marked "3rd, qtr." will expire for commercial motor vehicle operators. Filling station operators will have ten days, or through October 10, to turn them in to their supplier for gasoline or exchange them at their local War Price and Rationing Board for ration checks. Distributors have until October 20 to deposit these coupons in their ration bank account.

Holders of invalidated "B-3" and "C-3" coupons which were issued for use beyond September 30 may exchange them for valid coupons at their local Board.

The Board may either issue new coupons equal to the amount of gasoline still outstanding on the old ration, or may evaluate the applicant's mileage needs and issue coupons sufficient for the remainder of the ration period, but not in excess of the coupons surrendered.

Tobacco Cutting Begins On Large Scale This Week

Tobacco cutting the first part of the week began in the county on a large scale. Growers are experiencing an acute shortage of labor according to the County Agent's Office.

The most important solution to the labor shortage again must be solved on the individual farm. Farm women are working harder than ever before rendering every possible assistance to those farms with family size crops. Neighbor cooperation is probably the most effective help with many farmers in meeting the emergency.

There are reported plans in several Central Kentucky counties for using war prisoners to assist in the labor shortage. To date, there has been no such program worked out for Boone County. It is hoped the situation can be solved locally.

JET UNITS

The Navy reveals that the length of take-off runs by airplanes and flying-boats can be reduced to sixty percent by jet units which assist the planes in take-offs but are detached in flight.

Interesting Facts About Westminster Abbey

By Cpl. Vernon F. Lipscomb

(This story was written by Cpl. Vernon Franklin Lipscomb, who is stationed in England. He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Frank Lipscomb of Morning View, Ky.)

The proper name is the Collegiate Church of St. Peter and St. Edward the Confessor in Westminster.

The early history of this Church is shrouded with considerable mystery and legend, but we do know that a Christian Church founded by the Benedictines was standing here in the year 618 A. D. It is thought that the Ancient Romans had a temple dedicated to Diana on this site, and recently, under the floor of the Presbytery, traces of ancient Roman flooring has been found. Also, in the grounds of the church, on the north side of the nave, a roman stone coffin has been found, bearing an inscription to the effect that it was made by the sons of Valerius Amanandus in memory of their father. This coffin can be seen in the entrance passage or "Slype" to the Chapter House.

We also know, that in the time of St. Dunstan the community of monks numbered nearly a hundred, this was about the year 960. This Church which had been burnt down by the German or Danish pirates which periodically ravaged England and was replaced by a Church built by King Edward the Confessor a Saxon King of this Country, but the King, who was a very devout man, died a few days before the dedication of the Church on December 28th, 1065. December 28th is now St. Edward the Confessor's day. The King was buried in the church, and his tomb was visited by pilgrims from all over Europe, and miracles were supposed to have taken place, and consequently he was canonized as a saint of the Church of Rome. (1160).

Following upon the conquest of this country by William the Conqueror, Duke of Normandy; the Duke was crowned William I of this country on Christmas day, 1066. While the Normans were inside the Church taking part in the ceremony, the English outside started cheering the new Sovereign, but the Norman Knights inside thought that an insurrection had started, so they rode out of the church, killing the English and burning the houses. From this coronation, every Sovereign of this country, with the exception of Edward V (murdered in the Tower of London—"The Princes in the Tower") and Edward VIII (Duke of Windsor) have been crowned here.

Due to the remains of St. Edward being in the church and the large number of pilgrims attending the wealth of the Monastery increased together with its power. Henry III, who was also a devout King, very similar to St. Edward, in as much as he neglected the country and drained its resources in order to further his religious works, started to rebuild the church in order to make a more fitting place for the remains of the Saint. In 1220 he laid the foundations of the Lady Chapel, which was situated at the eastern end, where the Chapel of Henry VII now stands. In 1246 the greater part of King Edward's building was pulled down, as far west as the Nave. By 1245 the work had proceeded as far as the central crossing, the transepts, North Front, Rose Windows, Cloisters and Chapter House.

In 1247, the Abbey received its most valuable relics, including some of the stones that (Acts 7:54-60) St. Stephen was stoned, some bones of the Holy Innocents, the tooth of the Magi, The Girdle dropped by the Virgin Mary to convince St. Thomas of her assumption. (This was used for averting the perils of childbirth, and was often used for that purpose by Queen Philippa) Henry I, wife, Queen Matilda presented some of the hair of Mary Magdalene; but Henry III gave the most valuable of all relics, a phial containing the blood of our Lord when his side was pierced by a spear during the Crucifixion. This phial was carried in utmost solemnity to the Abbey by the King himself, who spent the previous night in prayer and fasting. At that time was also added a stone bearing the footprint of the ascending Christ; also the tooth of St. Athanasius.

In 1269 the choir and the first bay of the nave was completed. In that year, the body of St. Edward was removed from the front of the High Altar to a chapel behind it, where it still rests. The shrine was very elaborate, made of gold and valuable jewels and stonework. In the same year the elaborate mosaic floor in front of the Altar was laid, and it still may be seen. In 1272, Henry III died, and was buried in the Chapel of St. Edward, the first king to be buried in the church since St. Edward.

It was in the year 1303, whilst the King, Edward I was fighting the Scots, a sensational event occurred. The state treasury was kept in the crypt of the Chapter House, and it was during this year that it was robbed. The Abbot and 48 monks of the Monastery were taken to the Tower of London, but after a long trial were released. The real culprit, Richard de Polioite, keeper of the adjoining palace of Westminster was hanged, and his skin was used to cover a door leading into this room. A warning to other would-be thieves. Traces of the skin can still be seen.

It was in the previous year, 1302, that the Coronation Chair, used for the actual crowning ceremony was made and deposited at the church. Edward I, in fighting the Scots, captured the Stone of Scone, on which the ancient kings of Scotland used to be crowned. The fable round this stone is that it was the one on which Jacob rested his head at Bethel and dreamed of the Angels ascending and descending from Heaven (Genesis XXVIII 10). Jacob's sons carried it to Spain. About 700 B. C. it appeared in Ireland, whither it was carried by the Spanish King's son of Tara and called the Lia-Fail (Stone of Destiny), for when Irish kings were crowned upon it at the coronation, the stone groined aloud if the king was of royal blood, but remained silent if he was a pretender. Fergus II (d.501), the founder of the Scots' Monarchy and one of the Blood Royal of Ireland took it to Scotland, and King Kenneth deposited it at the Monastery of Scone (846). This stone when captured by Edward I, was placed in a specially made Oak Chair, and it is in the badly battered remains of this formerly elaborately painted chair, that the kings sit. In 1914 some damage was done to the chair, due to a bomb placed in a lady's bag behind the chair exploding. This bomb had been put there by one of the Militant Suffragettes who were campaigning very vigorously for votes for women.

Richard II was the third royal builder erecting an elaborate porch (now spoken for by Sir Gilbert Scott), to the North Transept. He was the only actual reigning monarch of this country to be married here (1382).

The next important period, was order to provide an elaborate tomb during the reign of Henry VII. In for his uncle, Henry VI, the last Lancastrian King. Henry VII asked the Pope for the canonisation of the dead king, which was granted, but the price charged by the Pope for this, was such that Henry VII who was very tight when it came to money, would not pay it, so the body of his uncle remained at Windsor. The King then thought of erecting a chapel in honor of the Virgin. The Lady chapel was pulled down for this purpose, and on January 24th, 1502, the foundation stone of this new church was laid. About a month after, the Queen died in the Tower of London, and her body was temporarily laid in a side chapel until the new chapel was ready. The work was completed in 1519. The King did not live to see his chapel completed, dying in 1509. He was buried with his queen in the chapel behind the altar. This chapel, in 1725 was made the chapel of the Knights of the Order of the Bath, each knight having his own seat or stall with his flag flying over it. When the war is finished some new knights, including General MacArthur and Eisenhower will be installed, and their flags hung.

It was between 1500 and 1532 that the nave was completed.

The Western Towers were started by Sir Christopher Wren (builder of St. Paul's Cathedral) in 1722, but he died before they were completed, so the designs were altered and the upper parts completed in 1740 by his pupil Hawksmoor.

On November 11th, 1920, the body of the Empire's Unknown Soldier buried in the nave, near the great West Door, in the presence of the King George V, members of the Royal Family and others, and on October 19th, 1921, General Pershing, brought over, on the directions of Congress and laid on the grave, the Congressional Medal of Honour, which now hangs on a nearby pillar.

There is much more to be said about the Abbey, such as burials, stories, monuments, coronations and historical events, but if I stated this, I would have to write a full book.

We gave our 'teen age youngsters the recreational facilities they needed and really wanted. Those familiar with this wartime problem know that young folks go to places they shouldn't only when the proper places

IN REMEMBRANCE

We the Missionary Society of Zion Baptist Church of Walton, Ky., have lost a member and loyal friend to all, both white and colored, Mrs. Lucy Johnson, passed away Sept. 8, leaving many to mourn her loss. To know her was to love her, she had worked in nearly every home in and about Walton, she never failed to go wherever she could in the hour of sadness to help. She was the oldest member of the church and was always ready to help put over God's program. We haven't words to express how we miss her. Her place can never be filled.

Sleep on mother Johnson, take thou rest, We loved you, but God loved you best.

Eyestrain Picks Its Victims YOUNG!

ONE school child in five, on the average, has defective vision. Four college students in ten are victims of eye troubles. Accustomed for centuries to outdoor living, mankind has never adjusted eyes to indoor lighting.

Fortunately science is bringing sunlight indoors. And the science of seeing is teaching us how to use indoor light with least danger of eyestrain. Here are four simple rules for eyesight conservation it will pay every family to follow:

- 1 Do all reading, studying, sewing or game-playing close to a good light source, preferably a modern reading lamp.
- 2 Avoid shadows. Make sure you have good light directly on your book or work. Shadows strain eyes.
- 3 Avoid glare from bare bulbs. Don't sit facing the light. Glare strains eyes.
- 4 Have eyes examined regularly. If eyes are defective, vision can be greatly helped with proper glasses.

When the war is over, we are all going to have Better Light for Better Sight. In the meantime, let's conserve both eyesight and light. Take care of your eyes, but don't waste light.

Of Erb-Help Medicine

One man recently took ERB-HELP three days and said afterward that he never would have believed his body contained so much filthy substance. He says his stomach, intestines, bowels and whole system were so thoroughly cleansed that his constant headaches came to an end, several pimply skin eruptions on his face dried up overnight, and even the rheumatic pains in his knee disappeared. At present he is an altogether different man, feeling fine in every way.

ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs: they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon felt different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP. Jones' Drug Store.

FLORENCE School News

Another school year began September 11, 1944 at 10 a. m. with Mrs. Sibbia Reimer as principal.

The first day is always very exciting for all the pupils. Four of our teachers were new and we were kept busy getting acquainted. Each teacher was introduced to the student body and the parents.

Mrs. Huff is in charge of the first grade; Mrs. Yelton the second; Mrs. Jones the third; Mrs. Markberry the fourth; Miss Readnour the fifth; Miss Watts the sixth. The teachers in charge of the High School are: Mrs. Caudill the seventh; Mrs. Clore the eighth; Mr. Caudill the ninth; Mr. Yealey the tenth and eleventh and Mrs. Thomas the twelfth.

Our speaker was Rev. Kidwell from the Methodist Church at Florence. The songs were led by Rev. Dearing of the Walton Methodist Church. Mrs. Smith played the piano.

Mrs. Reimer made a short talk on the fundamentals of school and gave us our schedule. Many parents came to enroll their children in the elementary grades.

SENIOR CLASS NEWS

The Senior Class of forty-five had its first class meeting Monday Sept. 18. Paul Grayson, our president, brought the meeting to order. The meeting was especially called to discuss and select our class color, flower and motto. We discussed the publishing of the school paper for the year. After much debating, we decided our class colors were to be blue and pink. For class flower white rose, lily of the valley and the violet, were suggested. We shall decide on this later. Class meeting was then dismissed until Wednesday morning.

HI-Y CLUB

The Hi-Y Club was organized Tuesday, September 12. We elected officers for the year of 1944-45. President, Paul Grayson; Vice-President, George Houston; Sec.-Treasurer, Charles Aylor. We decided to meet once a week and we hope for a better year than ever before. The purpose of the club is to create, maintain, and extend a higher Christian character.

GIRLS' CLUB

Mrs. Reimer, our principal, called a meeting of the Junior and Senior High School girls. This meeting was called for the purpose of organizing our girls' activities. Mrs. Reimer had us list what we would like to have for activity period each day. The following activities were considered: Junior Girl Reserve, Senior Girl Reserve, Physical Education, Glee Club, and a Debating Club. Ping Pong and Shuffle Board will be played in the Club Room.

FAMILY LIVES WELL OFF SMALL ACREAGE

Through family cooperation, practically all of the living of the Pearl Elkins family in Fletcher Co. has been provided on their small farm. The father works in the mines. From a garden of one and a fourth acres, tended by Mrs. Elkins and the three children, who are 4-H club members, they canned 360 quarts of vegetables and stored a bushel and a half each of dried beans and onions. Mrs. Elkins estimated that they would can around 200 quarts more of vegetables and in addition, stored the root crops. Then she planned to put up 60 to 70 quarts of beef, pork and chicken. More than 200 quarts of fruit have been canned, also. Along with the garden, the Elkins grew seven acres of corn and also sweet Irish potatoes. Livestock consists of a horse, a cow and calf, 10 hogs and 75 chickens. Charles, 14, carried on as his 4-H projects, swine poultry, garden and labor service; Shirley, 11, did clothing, garden and poultry; and Dorcas Ann, 9, carried a pig project, and helped with the garden.

65-YEAR-OLD MAN
KEEPS FARM GOING

Shortage of help did not keep Ben T. Blair, 65, of Adair county from carrying out a substantial program of farm production, says County Agent R. B. Rankin. He alone grew one and four-tenths acres of tobacco, 16 acres of corn, 10 acres of oats, two acres of barley, two and a half acres of wheat, and put up 30 stacks of hay. He milks several cows grows a garden and half-acre of potatoes, and has sheep, hogs and horses.

Mr. Rankin said he noticed that his farm is free of weeds and grown up fence rows and orchard; and that his stock is in good condition. Not on an electric line, Mr. Blair has a carbide light plant that has served efficiently and economically for years.

Ed Edstrom...

ED EDSTROM... The Courier-Journal's man of many by-lines, has just remembered that he came to Louisville on a temporary assignment... to pinch hit for a City Room reporter during the latter's six-week absence. That was five years ago last July 3rd. It was mighty warm for July, so Ed and his bride resolved to scam out of town the minute his job was finished. But time has scampered on. The Edstroms bought a house on a quiet street, the stork called and left a little girl, and Uncle Sam decided against putting a gun in Ed's right hand, injured in a college boxing bout.

Grandson of Swedish immigrants who brought along eleven blond, blue-eyed children, Ed's youth was spent meandering through America with his parents, seeing its swiftly changing panorama through classroom windows of no less than twenty-six grammar schools. On leaving Wayne University in Detroit, he met the depression head-on. Before his vagabond path led to Louisville, Ed had worked at many trades and on several newspapers.

His weekly features now include: "News Eddies" and "Parade of Personalities" in the Sunday Passing Show section. In Roto Magazine his "Off the Cuff" is news trivia with a chuckle... and readers like his interviews with wounded vets at Nichols General Hospital. Classic in its field, of course, is Ed's eminently readable daily Radio Column.

Old Jeb Crowell
Is Just Too Modest

Jeb Crowell has a son overseas, too. We were talking about him.

"Down in my heart," Jeb said, "I hated to see that boy leave, but still I don't regret it. I was glad he was fit and rarin' to go!"

"And I reckon he's been pillin' up some mighty fine records, Jeb."

"Yes," said Jeb, thoughtfully, "and here I am, enjoyin' all the comforts of home while our youngsters are doin' the dirty work. I wish there was somethin' I could do!"

"There is," I said, reassuringly, "you've done it and you're still doin' it. You've bought War Bonds to the limit. You've given blood free, to save the lives of our wounded soldiers.

"You've written cheery letters to every boy you know in the services and you've fought like a trojan to prevent the passin' of any drastic laws, here at home, till our fightin' men have some say about how to run the country they're fightin' for."

"From where I sit, Jeb Crowell, we're proud of you. You're a true American."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for October 1

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

LESSON TEXT—John 9:1-7, 13, 34-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life. John 8:12.

Light is a fascinating subject for study, and especially is that true when we speak of spiritual light. In the lessons of the next three months we are to see the light which Christ sheds on the problems of life today.

How appropriate to begin that study by recognizing Christ as the one true "light of the world." He it is who brought us out of darkness, and it is from His light that we too are lighted and become God's lights in this wicked world (Matt. 5:14-16).

The story which presents our Lord as the light and the light giver is that of the man born blind. Four choices confront us.

1. Guesswork or God's Glory (vv. 1-5).

Men have an inordinate curiosity about those who are handicapped or crippled. Even the disciples of Jesus had fallen into the sad tendency of seeing in one who needed their help, a case for theological speculation rather than one in whom God's glory could be revealed.

Need without power to help is a depressing thing, and may encourage a man to a bit of scientific or religious guesswork. Here is a specimen—let us examine it. How did this happen? Who was responsible? But when we know the power of God, guessing and theorizing is gone. Here is help!

Jesus declared a great truth here—suffering is not necessarily the result of sin, nor for the purpose of judgment or punishment. This man was here that God might show His grace and power.

Those who suffer in our day may be the means of declaring God's glory, either by His deliverance from pain and sorrow, or by His grace to bear the burden graciously and for His glory.

II. Impossibility or Obedience (vv. 6-7).

"Clay cannot bring sight to a man's eyes—anyone knows that! All such a covering can do is to make the darkness of sightless eyes even more impenetrable." The blind man might have reasoned that way. He would have been entirely logical in so doing—and he would have gone right on being blind.

It is possible to thrust from you God's richest blessing by insisting that God's work be done in accord with your ability to understand.

But the blind man chose the obedience of faith—"he went . . . and washed, and came seeing." Jesus is the light of the world to those who will believe. The blind man found it so—we may also find it to be true, if we will believe. The impossible becomes possible—with God, for "with God all things are possible." Jesus said it (Matt. 19:26); let us believe it and act on it.

III. Controversy or Confession (vv. 13, 34-38).

This is a great chapter, one in which we see the glory of God contrasted with the controversial smallness of unbelieving men. The Pharisees were religious men, but they hated Jesus (a combination possible even in our day), so they sought in every possible way to discredit Him. To deny the miracle, and to destroy the one who was healed.

Against that dark background the light of this man's faith shines the more brightly. The more they tried to confuse him, the deeper they estranged themselves, as he answered in simple faith.

Testimony is a tremendously effective thing, even though it must cling to the elementary and blessed truth "I was blind, now I see" (v. 25). But note that he went on, and under the tender ministry of Jesus, he received his spiritual, as well as his physical, sight. "I believe," what majestic words! What transforming words, what world-shaking words! Friend, do you believe on Christ? If not, will you do it right now?

IV. Healing or Hardening (vv. 39-41).

The same sun which softens the wax hardens the mud. The light which attracts some out of the dark places causes others to shrink farther into the shadows lest they have to step up their dark deeds and thoughts.

So it was in this case. The blind man who had faith, saw, and that sight was the sight of the soul as well as of the body. The evil-battered Pharisees were only hardened in their sin. Because they boasted of their spiritual sight which made the ministry of Jesus unnecessary (as they thought), there was nothing for Him to do but to leave them in their darkness.

The light of Christ, which is to shine on the problems of life in the lessons of the three months ahead of us, will either bring men to the light in faith, or confirm them in their unbelief. Which is it to be in your case and in that of those to whom you minister?

Reckon They's Crazy

By EDWIN T. STRAYER
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

LITTLE Darling got up with tears of pain and anger in his eyes and swung his three hundred pounds at the Great Haleney. Haleney ducked, but I noticed it was only by a margin. He was grinning, though, so he still had plenty left. Little Darling swabbed his face with his huge arm, trying to wipe off the sweat. I believe he's have given that arm to beat Haleney. Just once!

The miners were crowding around but no one dared to stop the fight. The antagonism between the two dated back a full year. The very first thing that Haleney had done, as soon as he got a job at St. Michael's, was to start picking on Little Darling, as the men called the enormous fellow. Some of them were actually sticking at St. Mike's to see how it would all turn out. To see if Little Darling would ever give in. But why was the Great Haleney so gleeful? The tiny guy was smiling delightedly and waiting.

Little Darling bore down again. At the last possible second, Haleney took a single step in and to the side. One swing and poor big Darling plunked down in the mud again. Without being able to hear what they said, he had a feeling that the men on the side lines were laughing at him. His fury increased by degrees. Great fat tears of rage stood in his eyes. Seeing Haleney smiling broadly with that bedeviling, serene confidence, he could have killed him with an all-satisfying pleasure. He sprang up and lunged forward like a charging bull. The little guy must have had all the stuff in the world or he'd have run from that mountain of evil. But he seemed to get results without moving around too much and it certainly exaggerated the big boy.

None of us saw Haleney strike. But suddenly there was the sound of a thud and Little Darling was on the face of the mud. It looked sort of bad, him lying there helpless. After all, he was a man. And we were supposed to be men, too. But we left him stretched out, like a helpless hog. Some of the miners looked odd but still they hesitated to touch him. His head was buried in the mud that hundreds of heavy boots had been meaning all winter with cigarette stubs and discarded plugs. He finally glanced around, but so feebly that I thought he was about to die.

But he didn't die. No, by Godfrey! That bruised hulk had been thinking. Thinking! Suddenly he lifted a ham of a hand and motioned the little guy to come over to him.

Little Darling reached slowly, limply, up to the Great Haleney. Did he want to forgive? To kiss him good-bye? But Haleney, his fingers locked themselves around the little one's neck. To say that Haleney was astonished is to put it mildly. He seemed to be trying to keep his eyes from bulging out. It looked like his end and no one had the courage to help him. He had asked for it—now he was getting it. Yes, by his bluish face, you'd say he was getting it. There was probably just enough oxygen reaching his brain to supply the energy for one more idea. He acted on it right away. He went expertly "dead" in Little Darling's grasp. He hung there exactly as if only the warmth of his body kept him from growing rigid. So, the rage gone from his face, the big brute let him slide to the ground.

Almost instantly Haleney was up on his feet, but keeping away, keeping away all the time. If I ever saw anyone save his breath, it was that midge miner. He kept his eyes open just wide enough to watch his playmate and he would move out of range barely in time to escape a charge. And soon the fishlike, gasping look left his face, he seemed pretty fit again, more like himself. But he waited another three minutes before he took any chances. His old strength was coming back. Now it was clear that he was the cruel one. The Great Haleney grew dead. His moving body took on a definite rhythm. His timing was actually that of a dance.

It was the first word spoken in the bout and it seemed to turn the tide. Swift as a striking snake, he proceeded to press out the sweat. His huge opponent could do nothing. With his left hand Haleney grabbed him by the neck and with his right cut his eye open. Reversing hands for holds, he gashed his other eye with his bullet fist. Then he stepped back quickly and I could see the blood streaming down both sides of Little Darling's face.

Haleney moved in again. He sank one hard, ripping blow into the giant belly. It jerked inward and from somewhere came a deep groan. Haleney grabbed his man with both hands so that he couldn't fall. Then he put another cripple in the same spot. That was enough! In fact, judging from a sight of Little Darling's face, it was too much. Anyone could see that there was no more fight in him.

But now that it was all over, there were tears in Haleney's eyes. I had to look twice to make sure. Jiminy, I was glad I reckoned they were crazy but at least I knew they were human too. Little Darling proved it. He looked up at the Great Haleney and said, "Blast yuh, if yuh hadn't been my own born brother I'd a gived up long ago!"

Independence Marine Killed in South Pacific

Cpl. Harlan H. Marsh

Cpl. Harlan H. Marsh, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Marsh, of Fowler Creek road, Independence, was killed in action in the fighting somewhere in the South Pacific theatre of war, the parents were advised.

The Independence marine has three brothers serving in the armed forces. He is also the brother of the late Wesley Marsh, who was killed two years ago while serving with the Canadian Army.

Two Sons in Navy

Two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barhorst, of Route 1, Independence, are serving with the Navy.

Arthur G. Barhorst, machinist's mate third class, is stationed in a ship repair yard in California. His wife, Dorothy, and son, Jimmy, are with him. Before joining the Navy last November he was employed as a machinist at the Avey Drilling Machine Co., Covington.

His brother, James, aviation machinist's mate second class, is stationed in the South Atlantic area. He was employed at the Kelly-Koett Manufacturing Co., Covington, before enlisting November, 1942.

Osman Jack Dies As Result of Shot in Head

Osman Jack, of Beaver Lick shot himself fatally, Tuesday night about 6:30 at his home. The shot was fired from a 32 caliber pistol. Drs. Daugherty and Marshall were called immediately, but they decided there was no need to take Mr. Jack to the hospital. He died Wednesday morning at 4:00 a. m. Ill health is said to be the cause of the act.

He is survived by his wife, Bertha Brown Jack; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Jack; one brother, Scott Jack of Hicks Pike; three sisters Mrs. W. W. Rouse of Walton, Mrs. Bob Carpenter of Walton and Mrs. William H. Bertram of Greenville, Ohio.

Funeral services will be held at Hughes Chapel Friday at 2:30 p. m. Burial in Hughes Chapel with Chambers and Grubbs in charge of arrangements.

ALBERT A. ROTER

Albert A. Roter, age 78, passed away at his home early Saturday following a paralytic stroke.

He and his son Raymond owned and operated the Roter Garage in Beaver Lick for the past 35 years.

He is survived by his son Raymond and one sister, Mrs. Sue Kidd of Rising Sun, Ind.

Funeral services were conducted from Hughes Chapel Methodist Church, Monday at 2:30 with the former pastor Rev. Goddy officiating. Burial was in Hughes Chapel Cemetery, with Chambers and Grubbs in charge of arrangements.

If milkweed pod pickers can be secured, it is expected they will fill 10,000 bags in Livingston county. Around 2,500 acres will be seeded to alfalfa in Shelby county this season.

Vest Makes Appeal as Chairman of Local War Fund Drive; Asks Help of Everyone To Raise Quota

Soil Conservation Contest Sponsored Courier-Journal

A Soil Conservation Contest offering $1500.00 in war bonds, sponsored by the Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times in cooperation with the Kentucky Soil Conservation District, is open to young Kentucky students, it was announced yesterday by A. Threlkeld, President of the Kentucky District Supervisors.

The contest, first of its kind in the state, is held for any Kentucky boy or girl in grade or high school who writes an essay not exceeding 1,000 words on "The Job Ahead For Soil Conservation Districts." Deadline is November 15, when essays must be assembled from school and taken to the County School Superintendent's office.

The three state prizes of $100, $50 and $25, war bonds respectively, will be awarded December 15, at the two papers' annual Farm and Home Campaign-Tom Wallace Forestry Award dinner-broadcast.

Each essay should include plans and ideas on why once-prosperous farms are abandoned; the results of this waste land and why it is permitted to continue; what Kentucky farmers can do to prevent such future losses; and how each soil conservation district can help meet the needs for conserving soil resources.

According to Mr. Threlkeld, 95% of the land areas in Kentucky are affected by soil erosion, a higher percentage than in any other state in the U. S.

Burlington Boy Wins Army Citation

A citation has been won by Pvt. Thomas J. Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Starling Stewart, Burlington, Ky., who is somewhere in France with the Combat Engineers, for extraordinary heroism and bravery in the performance of his duty on the initial assault of Normandy D-Day, June 6, his parents have been notified.

Inducted in the service Aug. 31, 1943, Pvt. Stewart received his training at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Prior to entering the Army, he was employed by the E. W. Bushmann Company as a welder.

44 Sheep Owners Sign in Association

Forty-four sheep owners had renewed their 1944-45 Sheep Protective Association dues on September 30th, the last day of grace or protection for old members, according to H. E. White, president of the Association. This leaves 73 old members without protection at the start of the new year.

The percent signed up at this lapse according to Mr. White.

There is a tendency for members to wait until the last minute and then unintentionally let their protection lapse according to Mr. White.

The Boone County Sheep Protective Association annually enrolls more than a third of all sheep owners in the county. Through cooperative paying of dues, protection is supplied each member who suffers losses from dogs. This protection renders valuable aid to the sheep industry in the county. All sheep owners are invited to participate. Officers of the Association are: H. E. White, president; J. G. Pennington, vice president; L. H. Congleton, secretary and Charles B. Beall, Chas. W. White, John T. Stevens, L. H. Congleton, Russell Sparks, John W. Conley, James G. Pennington, Walter Johnson, and H. E. White, directors.

Completes "Boot"

Pvt. Dolly Jean Sedaries

Pvt. Dolly Jean Sedaries, daughter of Mrs. Harold Dickerson of 211 Timberlake Ave., Erlanger, Ky., and a member of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve, has recently completed the six week "boot" training course at Camp Lejeune, N. C. Her first assignment was as clerk at the Marine Barracks of Parris Island, South Carolina.

Pvt. Sedaries is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Struve of Walton R2.

RETURNS TO BASE

82-c Clyde Chapman returned to his base after spending a short leave with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Chapman of Verona. His wife and two children of Louisville and grandmother Mrs. Ella Gurley of Laocina, Ind., joined him also.

When I was drafted one year ago for the purpose of raising $5,023.11 for Boone County's quota of the Kentucky War Fund, I then hoped that this would be the last time in my life that I would ever have to appeal to the public for a donation. My hope was in vain, and now again but with apology, on account of the worthiness of the objection, I am asking you again to open your purse and raise our 1944 quota for the National War Fund. You responded nobly one year ago, and I know that we will not fail this time, although Boone County citizens are asked for practically one-third more than one year ago. Our quota this year is $3,910.00. This sum, or more, must be in the hands of our Treasurer, A. B. Renaker not later than October 31st. Even though the war in Germany should terminate before that date (and we hope it will) still we must have our quota.

Boone County in the past has never failed in any good and noble cause and this is just one more good cause that we must do. In a short while the people of Boone County will again be called upon for something over half a million dollars, but that will be money loaned at interest. This $21,600 is a gift! Nickles, dimes and dollars will be appreciated, of course, but in order to raise $5,000.00 or even $3,910.00 some of us must do more. Last year we had two $25.00 donations. This year we should have at least twenty, $25.00 donations, and many who donated $5.00 last year should make it $10.00 this year.

The County's official organization is as follows:

John L. Vest, Chairman.
C. G. Beasly, Secretary.
A. B. Stephens, Publicity Agent.
M. M. Meadows, Publicity Agent.
A. B. Renaker, Treasurer.
The several precinct chairman and the amount allotted to each precinct are as follows:

PRECINCT	CHAIRMAN	QUOTA
Beaver	Mrs. Ruth Green	150.95
Bellevue	R. P. Hodges	154.35
Bullittville
Hebron	Charles W. Riley	348.30
Burlington	J. K. Cropper	536.35
Carlton	Reuben Kirtley	140.30
Constance	Mrs. T. Kenyon	218.79
Florence	W. R. Davis	382.44
Hamilton	William W. Allen	130.31
Petersburg	Mrs. J. Dolph	215.13
Union	Mrs. Martha Huey	317.73
Verona	Fred Hamilton	193.22
Walton	Mrs. Mildred Rice	628.06

When a solicitor approaches you concerning this matter, don't argue with the solicitor, give him or her as much as you can, and encourage them. Not only give yourself, but let the solicitor where you or she can get some more donations.

Let's make Boone County's donations $5,000.00 and when Victory shall at last come, we can all look back with pride, that Boone County met every call for help during the world's greatest conflict. What is a $5,000.00 donation from Boone County when compared with the sacrifices and hardships of our boys, on all the far-flung fronts of the world? So let us get busy and raise $5,000.00 and then get ready for the bond issue in November.

John L. Vest, Chairman

Richwood Honor Roll Board Dedicated

The dedication of Richwood Honor Roll Board, which Mr. Louis Neer, so kindly donated, was carried out with the greatest simplicity.

Mrs. Ferdinand Decker, President of Richwood Red Cross Unit thanked Mr. Neer in behalf of the community. The flag was raised by our honored guest Mr. Allan Kinghorn, who was home on furlough.

The "National Anthem" was sung by all present, followed by the pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Decker then presented the speaker, the Rev. M. A. Wilmes-here of Richwood Presbyterian Church. This address was very touching closing it with a prayer. Bobby Robinson and George Howard then unveiled the board as all sang "America."

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wallace accompanied Mrs. Mills Wallace to the funeral of Dr. G. A. Mattier who passed away Thursday.

LADY NEARLY CHOKED WHILE LYING IN BED—DUE TO STOMACH GAS

One lady said a few days ago that she used to be afraid to go to bed at night. She was swollen with stomach gas, which always got worse when she went to bed, and the gas would rise up in her throat after she lay down and would nearly choke her. She couldn't lie flat. Had to prop herself up on pillows. Recently this lady got ERB-HELP and now says gas is gone, stomach feels fine, bowels are regular and she can go to bed and sleep soundly.

CAN'T YOU SLEEP?

WHEN the stress of modern living gets "on your nerves," a good sedative can do a lot to lessen nervous tension, to make you more comfortable, to permit restful sleep.

Next time a day's work and worry or a night's wakefulness, makes you Irritable, Restless or Jump—gives you Nervous Headache or Nervous Indigestion, try

"SEEING THE WORLD"

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Littrell of Verona received the following letter from their son-in-law James F. Armstrong, S I-c Pharmist, who is somewhere in the Pacific.

Dear Mom and Dad

How are all of you? I guess you thought I never intended to answer your letter, but the truth is I have been so busy I haven't had time to write, then too we are out on the water for weeks at a time.

I have been seeing a great deal of this old world, but rather see it under different circumstances.

I was in Panama and Cuba before coming here. This sure is a pretty place. I like the climate, but after all I like home the best.

Give my love to James and all the rest, and Mom take good care of Hazel. Mom I sure do miss her. As ever love, Florian

IN HOSPITAL IN ITALY

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Littrell of Verona received the following letter from their son-in-law Pvt. Jesse McMillan who was wounded and is in a hospital somewhere in Italy.

Dear Mom and Pop
